This season taffeta, satin and chiffon are the favored materials for the bridal gown. Hems are irregular, often being shorter in front and dipping at the sides and rear. Bodices are semi-fitted with snug-fitting sleeves which extend down over the hands. Except in a few instances where the quaint old-fashioned wedding gown is chosen, skirts are short.

The bride's maids invariably wear bouffant frocks with skirts trimmed in tiers, ruffles, pleats, godets or circular floating drapes. Bodices are slender and little capes, wide berthas or floating wing panels aid in the bouffant effect. Organdy in pastel colors is a favored material for the bride's maid. Often each maid wears a different shade, giving a rainbow effect. Drooping-brimmed horsehair hats match the color of the gown and they are either trimmed in velvet or with a single huge flower of harmonizing color. Satin slippers also match the maid's gown.

The fringed wedding gown is one of the season's new offerings. In this case the gown is of satin and falls in slender lines to the hem, being trimmed in deep white fringe from hips to hem.

HER OWN WAY

by

A GIRL of TODAY

FACE TO FACE!

I flamed with anger.

The idea of writing what I had to say!

"I'll dictate nothing. You may tell Mr. Hathaway that I'll put nothing in writing. I have come to tell him about something that was stolen in his restaurant. At least his son says it was stolen and he has been trying to make restitution. I have a feeling that Mr. Hathaway knows nothing about this and he would like to probe it to the bottom, for——"

"Mr. Hathaway will see you."

I followed her through the door and came face to face with the sternest, most disappointed-looking man I had ever seen.

My father had sometimes looked as stern as Mr. Hathaway, but I had never seen disappointment on his face.

I felt very sorry for the man before me and also I had a little qualm of remorse.

Was my father as disappointed in me as this severe old man was with his son?

I never before had thought of my father as being lonely. He was always finding fault with me and I thought perhaps he would be relieved when I went away.

It's a good thing that thoughts have almost the velocity of light, for it was only a moment when Mr. Hathaway spoke.

"What do you want with me, young woman? Tell it to me as quickly as you can. I am a very busy man."

"I've come to tell you that your largest and most fashionable restaurant is a den of thieves and it's only a question of time before your employes there will pull off a stunt that will make the police shut up the place."

Mr. Hathaway looked at me as though I were crazy.

"What are you talking about, Miss —Miss——"

"Dean is my name. Maybe you recognize it."

"I never heard of a Miss Dean before in all my life."

"Your manager, Mr. Sterns, told me he would write you the entire story but I expect that was said in the heat of our controversy and he forgot all about it."

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Dinner—Broiled lamb chops, potatoes au gratin, buttered spinach, new onions and radishes, whole wheat rolls, strawberry shortcake, milk, coffee.

The luncheon menus is planned for "company." Every hostess likes to serve an attractive luncheon to house guests but sometimes if small children must be provided for the grown-ups' meal is slighted by necessity.

Crab Meat in Tomato Sauce.

Three medium-sized onions, 1 large green sweet pepper, 6 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups strained tomato juice, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup crab-meat, pepper.

Melt half the butter and add onions cut in thin slices. Remove seeds and white fiber from pepper and mince flesh. Add to onions. Cook over a low fire until onions and pepper are tender. In the meantime melt remaining butter, stir in flour and slowly add tomato juice, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and boil three minutes. Add crab meat to onion mixture and when very hot add tomato sauce. Serve on triangles of hot toast.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

(By Edson R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

That it pays to be courteous.

That the rights of others should be respected.

That you should not criticize your neighbors too much until you are sure you are right; you might be wrong.

That you should not dig up troubles; they come fast enough anyway.

That you should not impose upon others if you don't want them to impose upon you.

That you shouldn't boast—you can't always make good.

That a whole lot of people in every city are asleep and need some prodding.

That some cities should bear in mind that visitors to their city come to spend money; not to have it taken away from them.

That in some cities the principal thing handed a visitor is a cold shoulder.

That when visitors are treated rough they usually go away knockers.

Most cities have an over supply of knockers at home; no use making a lot of fun of out-of-town ones.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

As you know I am interested in old people. Firmly convinced that the span of life can be increased materially, I am always attracted by the newspaper records about persons who are reaching or have reached the century mark.

In one paper I saw several dispatches of this nature. One told about a man who died in Marquette, Michigan, at the age of 102 years.

A woman died at Pottsville, Pa., at the age of 90. She left 114 descendants. There are nine children, 48 grandchildren, and 57 great-grandchildren, all living.

Here is a third story. This one comes from Billingsborough, England. It tells about five women living under one roof and all related. Their combined ages amount to 465 years, an average of 93.

The oldest is 97, but—as the dispatch states—"she still gets out to do the shopping, while the flapper of 87 spends most of her time doing the kitchen work and chores." Two of these women earn the living by knitting and dressmaking, while the other three do the housework.

One of my colleagues in the Senate has two aunts, each past a hundred years of age. I have told you about an uncle of my own who will be 101 this Spring. There are said to be 3,500 men and women in this country past the century mark.

It is a shame that we settle down to old age and accept it as inevitable. The other day I sat down by a Senator and we got to talking about the future. He lamented that he was an old man. "What?" I said in amazement. "What year were you born?"

It turned out he was born the year after I was. Of course, I wouldn't admit that I am old, so I insisted that he should consider himself in the prime of life!

After all, it is all in the spirit. We are as old as we feel. If we are satisfied to settle down and be old, why, we are old.

I used to attend a club of a dozen doctors. We dined together the first Monday of every month. Year after year we continued that delightful practice. One by one our members grew old, took on canes, stumbled in walking, and some of them really looked old.

There was not one of these men but could brace up, prance across the floor and act like a four-year-old. During the club evening they were all boys, but on going out into the world they assumed their old age manners and were old.

What foolishness! Don't permit yourself to get old. Stand up straight, use your legs as if they were human and not glass, dress becomingly, keep your hair cut and have a clean shave every day. So long as you act young, you are young.

The way to be well is to act well. To keep young be young. Keep your human contacts and interests. Then you will live to be a worth-while centenarian.

Answers to Health Queries.

A Reader. Q.—I have a slight leakage of the heart. Will this prove fatal?

A.—No; with proper care you may live a perfectly useful, normal life. I would, however, suggest that youh avoid over-exertion and undue excitement. Under these circumstances the heart condition will probably never get any worse.

Mrs. J. L. H. Q.—What do you advise for oily hair? What will stop falling hair?

A.—The condition of the general health has a great bearing on the condition of the scalp and hair. Frequent shampooing with a good, pure soap and careful rinsing should be helpful. Use a good hair tonic occasionally. This will stimulate the growth and benefit it generally.

L. E. Q.—What would you suggest for a jaw which hurts from being opened too wide when yawning and which has bothered me ever since? I have used a hot water bottle and also rubbed it, but the trouble persists.

A.—Try resting it for a while. Eating food which requires little chewing would be helpful along this line. Massaging would also be helpful.

B. Q.—Is meat necessary every day?

A.—No. Meat is necessary only once or twice a week.

A. S. Q.—What causes excessive perspiration?

A.—This is due to nerve stimulation. After bathing use a solution of alum, two drachms to a pint of water. It would be advisable to have treatment for the nervousness.

A Reader. Q.—Will X-ray show up a lung condition?

2.—What do you advise for gland trouble?

3.—Will living in the open in a high altitude benefit a child with weak lungs?

A.—Yes, in this way the trouble may be definitely diagnosed.

2.—This should have a doctor's personal attention so that proper treatment may be advised in each instance.

3.—Under such conditions the child should benefit very much.

Mrs. W. E. V. Q.—What causes a pain on top of the head. Is it neuralgia?

A.—This may be due to neuralgia, high blood pressure, or poor circulation. Consult your doctor for an examination, and determine the cause.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 20—THE NICE OLD AUNTIE.

After Mister Tingaling and the Twins got Mrs. Brown Bear's rent money, they went down the hill and across the meadow to the buttonball tree on the edge of the woods.

Colonel 'Possum had rented quite a large, beautiful apartment in the buttonball tree, and they were going to collect his rent.

So they went "tingaling—aling" at his doorbell. And a little sharp-nosed lady in a white lace cap answered the door.

"How do you do, Madam," said the fairyman landlord, tipping his ice-cream saucer hat and making a grand bow.

"I'm pretty well," said the little old lady, "All except for my rheumatism, and a cold in my pipes, and a toothache. Just come in."

"Is Colonel 'Possum at home?" asked Mister Tingaling when they all stepped inside.

"No, sir! He isn't!" said the lady. "Can I do anything for you? I'm his old aunt from the country."

"You don't say so!" said Mister Tingaling in surprise. "Why, I never knew he had an old aunt. I never knew that Colonel 'Possum had any relations at all. He comes up here every summer, from the south, and I thought he lived all alone."

"Oh, did you!" said the lady. "Well, here I am. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"I suppose there isn't, Madam," said Mister Tingaling. "Unless you can give me his rent money. It's his rent money I am after. He owes me a dollar in fairy money for this beautiful apartment he rented, with sunporch, awnings, screens, hot and cold water, electric lights, electric ice-box, electric stove, elevator, and everything. It's cheap at the price."

"It does sound like a lot of money to a poor old lady like me," said Colonel 'Possum's aunt with a loud sigh. "You poor dear dear children must be tired. Aren't you?"

"Oh, no! We aren't tired," cried Nancy and Nick, thinking what a kind old lady this was. "We're not tired a bit."

"Well, just sit down," said their hostess. "The Colonel will be in soon. If I just knew where to get it, I'd give you the rent money myself. But I don't know where he keeps his money."

Mister Tingaling looked at his watch. It was getting later and later.

"Why he keeps it in the silver pudding-dish on his sideboard," said he. "At least that's where he always kept it last year when I came around to collect his rent."

"Why, that's so! How forgetful I am!" said the nice old lady. "I suppose he did tell me it was there and I just forgot. I'll get it at once for you."

So Nancy and Nick and Mister Tingaling sat down. And they waited and waited and waited.

After awhile Colonel 'Possum himself walked in.

"Your aunt has gone to get the rent money," said Mister Tingaling. "She's been gone a good while. I told her where you kept it!"

"What! My aunt! Why, I have no aunt!" cried the Colonel.

They all rushed out to the dining-room, and there on the floor lay a little pile of clothes—lace cap and all!

On the empty pudding dish lay a note. It said

"Dear folks 'Thanks! Sorry I had to leave.

"Your loving Auntie,
"Snitcher Snatch, the Goblin."

The money was gone!

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

A GOOD JOKE ON JOHNNY GRASSHOPPER.

The morning was lovely when Johnny Grasshopper hopped over the meadow and down the dusty roadside.

He stopped to chat with all his meadow friends as he hopped along until he came to the bank of the stream. Here Johnny Grasshopper saw a clumsy bumblebee trying to force his way into the honey well.

"Hello, there, Billy Bumblebee. What is all the trouble," he asked.

"Trouble enough," buzzed Billy Bumblebee. "I've made up my mind I'm going to sip from this honey well if I have to die in the attempt," and with a mighty kick of his hind feet and a great big push, Billy Bumblebee's head disappeared between the petals of the flower.

Then the trouble began in earnest.

The queer little flower lady began to tremble. Her upper petals began to quiver and shake. Her lower lip-like petal snapped and Billy Bumblebee's whole body disappeared out of sight. The flower lady began to chew and Johnny Grasshopper fairly gasped at the sight. He never hopped farther or faster in all his life. He nearly flew to Cherry Cricket's house.

"Oh, do come and help Billy Bumblebee," he sobbed. "He asked the flower lady for a sip of honey and she has actually eaten him alive. Come, friends. Let's go and rescue Billy Bumblebee before it's too late."

Cherry Cricket joined Johnny Grasshopper and on their way back, they stopped and told all their friends. By the time they reached the queer cannibal lady, Billy Bumblebee was out of sight. Everyone loved Billy Bumblebee and everyone was only too glad to hurry to his rescue. There was quite a crowd following Cheery Cricket and Johnny Grasshopper.

"Why, you foolish meadow folk!" laughed the flower lady, "I haven't eaten your friend."

"How could you say such a thing?" fairly screamed Johnny Grasshopper. "I saw you chew on him with my own eyes. You are a cannibal—an eater of insects—and should be chased out of the meadow!"

There was a tremble inside the pinkish-white petals and out came two legs, followed by more legs, then two more legs and out crawled Billy Bumblebee covered with yellow. He laughed loudly when he found his friends waiting to rescue him.

"Why, I've had the best drink of honey I've ever had in all my life, thanks to Miss Snake-head," he buzzed merrily. "It took me a long time to get in, but a thing that's worth having is worth working for, isn't it, Miss Snake-head?"

"Indeed it is," laughed Miss Snake-head. "You see Johnny Grasshopper thought I was eating uyo up alive. I was just making you push against my pollen walls so you'd be well dusted when you went away. That's the only way I have of getting my pollen scattered. I'm sorry if I startled you folks."

"I'm just foolish," laughed Johnny Grasshopper. "I'm sorry I made such a silly mistake, friends."

But the meadow friends only laughed. They were glad he had called them for they had learned something new about Miss Snake-head.

MEN THINK BETTER UNDER STRAIN.

Your easy going, pleasant fellow isn't going to get there as fast as the man who grits his teeth, knits his brow and holds his muscles tense, says Popular Science Monthly. A series of psychological tests recently was tried on persons while they were gripping a dynamometer, a pair of hand-grips with meter attached, and then repeated while the subjects were sitting in relaxed positions. The results showed that persons can think much better and faster when their muscles are under tension.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

ANDREW MELLON—THE MAN BEHIND THE TREASURY.

Andrew Mellon, the banker, of international fame, started with the disadvantage of being a rich man's son. But in spite of this he has succeeded as well as if he had struggled through the adversities of poverty. His father's wealth did not put the damper on his ambitions and did not leave him with a desire to idle his time away. But his entry into the business world is due to his peculiar dislike for making speeches.

When he was about to graduate from college his father became worried about his health and advised his son to leave without his diploma. This gave young Andrew the opportunity of leaving college without the necessity of making a speech—and the thought was a pleasing one to him. Accordingly, he accepted his father's suggestion.

After he left the university he and his younger brother, Richard B. Mellon, borrowed some money from their father at a rather stiff rate of interest and organized a lumber business at Mansfield (now Carnegie), Pa. The business was progressing successfully when there was a slump. The brothers, afraid of losing their original investment, sold all their lumber and the plant. After this their father invited them into his bank.

This gave Andrew Mellon his first real chance for exercising his financial and executive ability. One of the first loans made by the Mellon bank as a result of young Andrew's advice proved successful and established Mellon as a banker of sound judgment. He was sent by his father to investigate a loan that had been made to a business man who was having difficulty to meet his interest payments. Judge Mellon sent his son to get all the facts and to form an opinion as to how they could get their money back. He told him to stay as long as was necessary. Andrew stayed away a week, learned all about the man's business, and when he returned told his father that the way to get their money back was to loan the man $40,000 more. The borrower, he said, was honest and able, and all that the business needed to make it successful was more capital. The additional money was supplied, the business prospered, and when that man died he left more than $2,000,000.

Some time later there was some reason to feel apprehensive regarding the first loan that Andrew himself had made. Judge Mellon remarked to one of the clerks in the bank that he hoped "Andrew's loan" would go bad—"it would be a good lesson for him." But the loan did not "go bad," and in a very few years Andrew had taken the entire management of the bank off his father's shoulders and the Judge had practically retired.

This was before Andrew Mellon was twenty-five. Before he was thirty his father had deeded his entire property to him to manage and divide among the others. From that time on, until he was in his sixty-seventh year (when he was appointed Secretary of the Treasury), he built up his fortune until now it is one of the largest and safest in the United States.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

FRIDAY, APRIL 23.

A fairly routine day is forecast from the rather quiet movement among the stellar bodies. In all that pertains to personal, social, artistic, domestic and affectional affairs there may be happy and flourishing conditions owing to the lunar aspect to Venus, but business matters will probably move in the customary grooves. However, there is a strong note of warning to protect all the possessions, however trivial, as there is a figure testifying to loss.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a routine year in their business affairs, but in all their social, domestic and affectional affiliations things may flourish and promote happiness. They are urged to guard against all manner of loss. A child born on this day should be accomplished, popular, well liked and respected, and should rise to happy and prosperous place in life.

VACATION

"Well, where are we goin', this summer vacation?" The family's all thinkin' of that. Of course they might visit some country relation—and yet the thought kinda falls flat.

Big sister decides that a summer resort, with dancin' and swimmin' and such, is just the right place for a real spell o' sport, but father's reply is "not much!"

Young brother prefers that they get out the bus, and tour fer a couple of weeks, but mother objects, and she starts in to fuss—"I can't stand the rattles and squeaks."

Says she, "lemme see—I guess that I'd pick the mountains, if I had my wish." And father admits it would be kinda slick—except that there's no place to fish.

The arguing lingers for week after week. They all know the best place to roam. If peace and real quiet's the thing that they seek—they'd best spend vacation at home.

More than 1,000 miles of new trunk highways were constructed in Canada last year.

The cause of the blaze is unknown, as the building has not been occupied for four years. The flames were burning furiously when the firemen were called and they were able only to keep the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings.

FIRST CRICKET WED. APRIL 28

MINOR COUNTIES.

LONDON, April 22. Canadian Press. — Members of the Australian cricket team which is to tour England this summer and engage in a number of test matches, have lost no time since their arrival last Sunday in beginning practice, and are now seen daily at Lords. They will open their tour at H. Martineau's private griund at Holyport, near Maidenhead, on April 28th, in a match with a team representing the Minor Counties.

The Minor Counties team has been selected as follows: M. A. Falcon, Norfolk, captain; G. Colman, Norfolk; R. Meyer, Hartfordshire; A Ling, Cambridgeshire; F. Perens, Durham; L. Crawley, Suffolk; W. Franklin, Buckinghamshire. J. Buchanan, Buckinghamshire; W. Hazelton, Buckinghamshire; professionals. Edwards, Buckinghamshire and Hetherton, Northumberland.

Praise for Cricket.

"It has been said of the great armies of the dead, marching always on their eternal journey, that when they come to a country cricket field, the Englishmen among them step out of the ranks for a moment to lean over the gates and smile."

In this striking sentence, introduced in what was otherwise a richly humorous speech, Sir James Barrie Tuesday expressed the love of the Briton for his national game.

The Great Scotch dramatist, Prime Minister Baldwin and a host of famous British cricketers of former days had gathered for a luncheon in Londay to-day to the formidable Australian eleven who have arrived to do battle once more with England for the famous trophy known throughout the British Empire as "The Ashes."

Mr. Baldwin was in a happy vein. "The game of cricket," he said, "the nursery of which is in the villages of England, has cast its seed across the ocean and nowhere has a mightier tree grown from it than in Australia. To us the mere word Australia smacks of romance, and recalls those great cricket names on which we were once brought up, and we seem to see once more the champion bowler, the once great Spofforth. We have here to-day an old friend in Sir Kynaston Studd, who tells me his body is still scarred with bruises received from that giant."

"The Prime Minister," said Sir James Barrie, "on the only occasion I saw him play made one run in the first innings. He wasn't so successful in the second innings. If we had not thought of cricket first, the Australians would have thought of it. Whether we win or lose they cannot deprive us of our greatest boast that we invented both cricket and the Australians.

"The great glory of cricket lies on our village greens. Test matches are only the fever of the game. Their very names may in time be forgotten, but long, long after that, I think our far off progeny and the nation champion calling for his ale on those bumpy old village pitches."

James Eggleton, who was found unconscious in an office on Hunter street last week, has been able to return to his home from St. Joseph's hospital. It will be several weeks before he is able to resume his work and as soon as he is able to travel he is going to stay with friends in Toronto.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree distributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskathewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain ersort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth; Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devil's Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

Forward Pass.

Many of the prominent football coaches have taken issue with the restrictions placed on the forward pass by the rules committee.

I am inclined to think this action premature and rather undeserved.

The football rules committee always seems to have the courage of its convictions. If it feels some reform will help the game it is willing to gamble.

After a season's trial, if the change in rules doesn't work out, the committee frankly admits mistaken judgment and goes back to the old rule.

The baseball rulemakers are far too conservative. Many changes that might help the game are passed up simply because those in charge are not willing to gamble on the correctness of their opinion.

Let us reserve judgment as to whether the allowing of only one incomplete pass without a penalty and that the second and third be penalized by a five-yard loss, will stop the athletes from throwing the ball around promiscuously with defeat staring them in the face.

Take a Chance.

It is my opinion that the five-yard penalty on the second and third incomplete pass will not stop teams from gambling as strongly as ever when seemingly beaten.

When a team is on the short end of the score with only a few minutes to play, it is shooting the "works" on every pass and a mere penaty of five yards isn't going to stop tossing the ball around.

I do not think it will make the game less daring, remove any of the thrills. On the other hand, it may develop some good features that do not now appear on the surface.

Collegiate.

The New York Giants have a most promising pitcher in Fay Thomas. The young man hails from the University of Southern California. He starred in football, tennis and track as well as baseball.

Thomas is a great prospect if he can forget he is no longer a collegian.

They tell this story on the young man relative to his first meeting with Manager John J. McGraw:

When Thomas arrived at Sarasota, Fla., the training quarters of the Giants, a half dozen tennis racquets formed the largest part of his baggage. After being introduced to Manager McGraw, the collegian spoke thusly:

"Some friends of mine from the coast are driving through to Miami. I would like to go along, as I am anxious to play there for several days. Want to enter some of the tournaments.

McGraw who manages his ball clubs, was temporarily floored. When he recovered he replied:

"If your ambition is to become a Bill Tilden keep right on going and don't come back."

Thomas stayed and is a most likely prospect.

Confidence.

"Second-division ball players are not wanted on this ball club," remarked Rogers Hornsby to me at San Antonio in discussing the chances of his team.

"Only players who want to win have a chance. We are going after these exhibition games just as keenly as if they were championship contests. Winning them gives the players the needed confidence for the regular season.

Latest reports on the Cardinals show they have won 26 straight this spring.

The St. Louis Cardinals seem destined to be the most talked-about team in the National League this year.

The Cardinals are managed by Rogers Hornsby, outstanding star of the National League, one of the greatest players that has ever graced the game. Here is his size-up of his ball club:

"You can't take a thing for granted in baseball but I am going to be a terribly disappointed person if we are not in the race from start to finish.

"In the first place we have the spirit. You can't have a winning ball club without it. Spirit is as important as ability to get results.

"The Cardinals can hit the old ball. It takes mighty fine pitching to stop the attack of my ball club.

"Our defense is perfectly satisfactory and we appear to be well fortified with substitutes at all positions.

"Bill Killifer is going to prove a great help. There is no better coach of pitchers in the country. He is going to improve my pitching staff.

"I see most of the other National League managers and many of the baseball experts fear for my twirlers.

"There isn't a major league manager who wouldn't welcome a star left or right-hander and I'm no exception. Possibly there are certain flaws in my pitching but try to name a major league pitching staff that hasn't 'em.

"I am positive my pitching will be considerably better than rival National League clubs are willing to admit.

"It was a pretty good staff last season. I have every reason to believe it will be much better this year. I am sure Johnson, for several years with Detroit; Huntzinger, who has gained his big league experience under McGraw, and Vic Keen, who performed well for the Chicago Cubs, will help.

"My dope is that the Cardinals are better than five other clubs in the league. That leaves two we must prove our superiority over, the Pirates and the Giants

"I am going to be disappointed unless we are up there from start to finish."

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

GEORGE DUNCAN—CONFIDENCE.

I have never believed in luck, but against some opponents my faith that skill always receives its full reward has been strained close to the breaking point. The better you play the better he plays. If you put an approach dead he will follow with a shot almost as good. Generally, however, he beats you not by good golf but by making you play badly. On the score of luck it often seems that he is outrageously favored. If he tops a drive it is at a hole where he can afford to lose the distance. All that it means, provided he has kept out of the bunkers—and goodness knows he always does that—is that while you are taking a mashie for your second he gets home with an iron. Again—confound the fellow!—you may be inside him all the way to the hole, and he will finish by running down a long putt.

You may think that these things happen more in imagination than in fact, but it is not so.

Possibly you consider that his faulty shots ought to magnify the other fellow's luck and to be more severely punished, but it is still true that the game is running in his favor. He is so brimful of confidence that all the shots appear easy to him.

Confidence, of course, is the secret of t all, and you can trace it back to that first match in which he got in the first punch.

JIMMY OCKENDEN—DANGER IN OVERSPIN DRIVES

It is a generally accepted principle among golfers that the nature of the spin imparted to the ball has a great deal to do with the length of the shot. Other things being equal, the ball with over-spin will run further than the ball with back-spin or under-spin. The discovery of this fact has had a marked effect upon the present-day striver for length. He has deliberately cultivated the art of hitting his ball with over-spin.

When I say this, I speak from my own personal experience. As a youngster I wanted length at all costs, and, of course, I developed the draw shot to something of a high art.

But I have learned since that I was working on a highly dangerous principle—a principle which, while delightfully effective on nine occasions out of 10, was sure to let me down badly on the tenth effort.

HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—"Padlocked" is the second Rex Beach story in which Noah Beery has an outstanding role.

One of the performances in which Beery is still remembered is "The Spoilers," in which he played with Milton Sills, taking the role of McNamara, the politician.

In "padlocked" he has the powerful part of Henry Gilbert, considered one of the outstanding fiction characterizations of the year. Rex Beach's story is appearing in a magazine.

It is a story of strong denunciation of the attempted repression by the narrow-minded members of the older generation. The younger generation, with its ideas of individuality, freedom and accomplishment is glorified.

HOLLYWOOD, April 21.—Fitting into American and foreign film productions as a romantic figure equally acceptable to diverse audiences on two continents is a distinction which Victor Varconi, Hungarian actor, shares with few, if any, screen personages.

Varconi's latest two roles will probably be presented simultaneously in this country to confirm the above assertion, that of the menace lead in De Mille's "Volga Boatman," and as the heroic "Glaucus" in the Italian-made "Last Days of Pompeii."

Because of his wide experience, his training, and his globe trottings, the gifted Hungarian knows perfectly how "to do as the Romans" when in Rome, and how to be an American when in Hollywood.

Varconi represents that as yet rare type of world actor, at home in any land and familiar with many folk ways and folk ideals, which the screen will have to secure before it can succeed in its attempted universal appeal. He accounts himself a pioneer in this endeavor to fuse the superficial difference of many races in entertainment and a get-together medium that will please all.

"The whole world recognizes itself kin at one true touch of life and art on the screen, a medium all can understand," says Varconi.

He is scheduled to appear in C. B. De Mille's projected specials for the coming year.

'PHONE OFFICIALS HEARD YESTERDAY

In Support of Appeal For Rates Increase.

OTTAWA, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Oficials of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company were on the witness stand before the Railway Commission yesterday giving evidence in support of the contract between the two companies.

The case before the Commission is the application for increased telephone rates. The contracting question involves the payment by the Canadian Company to the American of approximately 1 1-2 per cent. of the Canadian company's revenue. Last year this payment amounted to $390,000. In return for this payment, the A. T. and T. Company supplies the Canadian firm with expert engineering advice and the advantages of scientific research.

The American officials on the witness stand told at length of the research carried on in their laboratories, and the Canadian officials testified that the benefits of the contract were more than justified.

N. M. Lash, consulting engineer of the Bell Telephone Company, said that the advantages to the Bell Telephone Company would justify the continuance of the contract and that it was cheap at "any reasonable price."

The vital statistics for Quebec are not available.

THERE IS A LIMIT TO A STAR'S SIZE

One More Than Fifty Times the Mass of Our Sun Would Burst, Says Science.

To most of us the sun, which for millions of years has been lighting and warming the earth day after day, seems quite the greatest and most important body in the universe. Yet actually our sun is a relatively unimportant little pinhead of fire compared with some of the vast flaming stars swinging through space so far distant from us that they can scarecely be detected with the powerful instruments of astronomy.

The diameter of Antares, the largest star we know of, is estimated at more than 273,000,000 miles, or more than 300 times that of the sun. And Antares is only one of a number of giant suns. Betelgeuse and alpha Hercules are almost as large. They are so huge that not one of them could find room in the vast circle described by the earth in its path around the sun.

Balls of fire so enormous as these stagger human imagination. Quite naturally, says Popular Science Monthly for May, they lead us to ask whether there is any limit to the size of a star, and if so how large it is possible for a star to be.

Answers to these questions recently have been given through remarkable measurements by A. S. Eddington, noted British scientist. A star whose mass is fifty times that of our sun, he found, has reached its limit in greatness. Stars of greater mass than this cannot exist; they would burst of their very enormity. Their own pressure from within, combined with the centrifugal force of rotation, would overbalance the force of gravitation, and they would fly apart in billions of fragments.

Eddington learned that in the centre of a star whose mass is one and one-half that of our sun the heat reaches the tremendous temperature of 8,550,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The pressure at the centre is 21,000,000 atmospheres, or more than 300,000,000 pounds to the square inch—at least 10,000 times as great as the breech pressure of Uncle Sam's largest coast defense gun.

Eddington learned, too, that just as there is a limit to the greatness of stars, so also there is a limit to their smallness. A star less than one-seventh the mass of our sun, he discovered, would cease to shine. For the temperature at its surface could not reach 5,400 degrees Fahrenheit—the lowest temperature at which a star can remain visible by light radiation.

HAPPINESS

What are you looking for—happiness? Sure! Men who are shy of it, really are poor. Show me the soul who can say he cares not as to the things that are born in his lot.

Living is one thing we all hate to lose. Long days, and happy ones, all of us choose. Brightness that seeps in to last on for aye, only can seep if you make it that way.

Wise is the man who knows right things from wrong. Playing them safely, he travels along, never to wonder what life is about. Doing your best make the best side come out.

Age makes you learn that to give is to get. Always, returns come to givers—and yet, soon you will learn that the happiest plan, is give, quite regardless as much as you can.

Do just a little bit more than your share. Show all the world that you really do care. Make others happy—that's getting the hang, of spreading the thing that's a real boomerang.

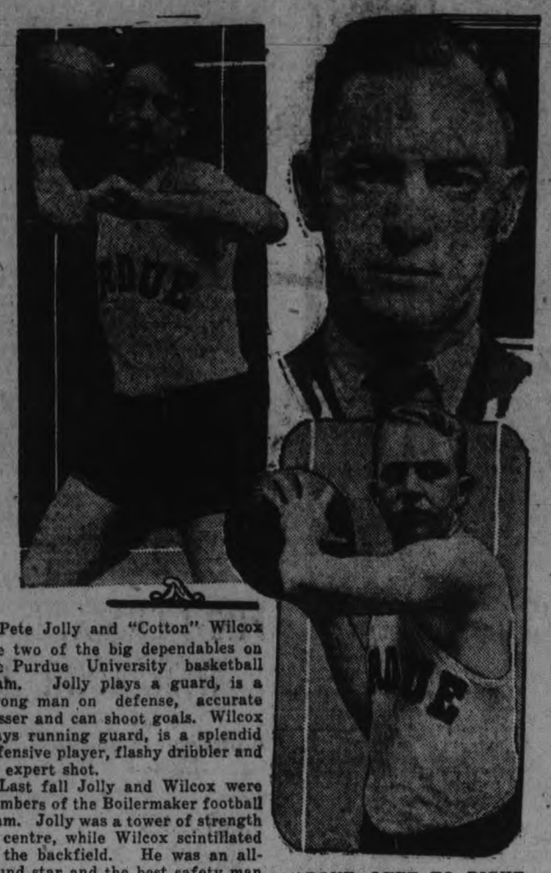
WARD LAMBERT, PURDUE COACH, AND PAIR OF STARS



Pete Jolly and "Cotton" Wilcox are two of the big dependables on the Purdue University basketball team. Jolly plays a guard, is a strong man on defense, accurate passer and can shoot goals. Wilcox plays running guard, is a splendid defensive player, flashy dribbler and an expert shot.

Last fall Jolly and Wilcox were members of the Boilermaker football team. Jolly was a tower of strength at centre, while Wilcox scintillated in the backfield. He was an all-round star and the best safety man Purdue has had in many years.

On the basketball court the two make a great combination. And it is doubtful if any other team in the Western Conference can boast such a stellar defensive pair.

Working with Capt. Spradling, Harmeson and Cramer, Jolly and Wilcox form a quintet that is expected to give several of the Big Ten outfits a great chase for conference honors.

WHOLE OPERA ACT STAGED IN STUDIO FOR NEW PICTURE

Music of "Carmen" Played and Sung for Scenes of "Ibanez' Torrent"

RESULTS ARE REALISTIC

Convincing Effects Obtained by Using Real Orchestra and Real Singing Chorus

Operatic tradition, motion picture technique and impressionistic art vied for ascendancy, then blended into a harmonious whole that made a colorful spectacle in a gigantic reproduction of the last act of the opera "Carmen," with huge orchestra, several hundred singers, and one of the most elaborate settings ever given Bizet's musical classic.

And—the opera won't be heard at all.

Intead, it will be seen on the screen, as one of the spectacular details of the big Cosmopolitan production of "Ibanez' Torrent," coming tomorrow to the Capitol Theatre, with Ricardo Cortez, Greta Garbo and a huge cast.

Intensive research and many rehearsals preceded the big scene, in which the music of the opera was actually played and sung, and in which Greta Garbo makes a spectacular entrance as the opera singer heroine of the Vincente Blasco Ibanez romance. A chorus of three hundred voices was carefully trained for the production, and operatic orchestra of fifty pieces was engaged, and the actual performance given before the camera. So genuine was every detail that the sharpest eye of an opera conductor could not detect an incongruity.

According to Monta Bell, directing the big spectacle, which was filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, most opera scenes are not convincing because it can be readily seen that they are not really opera. To overcome this he had the opera act sung and rehearsed until a perfect presentation, then photographed it with the singers intent on the music and not the camera.

A notable cast appears in the spectacular new story, a vivid tale of the life and loves of a Spanish opera singer. Cortez plays the hero and Greta Garbo, famous Swedish star, is seen as the singer, her first role in America. Gertrude Olmsted, Tully Marshall, Edward Connelly, Martha Mattox, Arthur Edmund Carew, Lillian Leighton, Maurice Kains, Mack Swain, Lucy Beaumont and other famous players appear in important roles.

The staging is gorgeous, representing famous operas in many cities, colorful bits of Spain, the royal throne room at Madrid and other elaborately constructed locales.

NEW EMPEROR

The above photograph shows Bao Dai, who recently succeeded his father as the Emperor of Annam, and who is now twelve years old. He has returned to Paris, where he is studying in a French high school to acquire an education modeled on western lines, before returning to his duties as Emperor of Annam.

AT THE GRAND

A BARBED SHAFT

A young and fussy lady with a penchant for autograph books asked the popular players to inaugurate her new book.

Martin Harvey, with the good nature always characteristic of him, consented, and on the first page he wrote his name, supplementing the inscription with the quotation from "Hamlet":

"I must be cruel, only to be kind,
"Thus bad begins, and worse remains behind."

It is said the autograph-hunter's face was a study when she received her book again.

AT THE REGENT

"THE BARRIER" A STIRRING, VIRILE TALE OF ALASKA

NO OVERDRAWN HEROICS

Film is an Accurate, Faithful Portrait of Primitive Life in Early Alaskan Days

A stirring, virile drama of the Alaskan frontier, rational in treatment and with an undercurrent of delicious comedy, has been brought to the screen in "The Barrier," the Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer photoplay from Rex Beach's widely read novel of a decade ago of the same name.

The director of this picture, George Hill, and the players, whose names are notable ones in the films, deserve equal praise for the successful photodrama.

One thing about this picture most deserving of praise is that it contains none of the overdrawn heroics customarily associated with pictures woven around the lives of men and women in primitive conditions, but it is an accurate, faithful portrayal of man's struggles against the wilds and the elements.

Thrils a-Plenty

Surely, here are the ingredients of drama, and when to these are added some wonderful photography of the snow country, a spectacular crushing of a ship in the ice floes, some hair-raising fights that eclipse in realism perhaps anything ever presented, an evening of solid entertainment is assured.

Marceline Day, the heroine, who has just stepped out of comedies and westerns into a leading woman role, is a lovely and convincing Necia. Her performance augurs well for her future in the films.

Other fine performances are given by Pat Harmon, the first mate and a villainous one; Bert Woodruff as No Creek Lee, the comical squaw man; George Cooper as Sergeant Murphy, Mario Carillo as Poleon and Princess Neola as Allura.

Altogether, "The Barrier" is a first-rate show that shouldn't be missed by anyone.

DEBTS REPUDIATED BY SOUTHERN STATES FOR 50 YEARS AMOUNT TO $75,000,000 IN CLAIM OF BRITONS

Mississippi's Defaulted Bonds Issued Long Before the Civil War.

PATIENT APPEAL.

Support By British Government Doubted in Downing Street.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Doubt seems to exist in Downing Street as to whether the drive instituted by the Association of British Chambers of Commerce Thursday for the collection of defaulted debts of a number of the southern states of the United States will get beyond the Foreign Office at the present time.

This association at its annual meeting yesterday adopted a resolution setting forth that Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and North and South Carolina had defaulted in the payment of monies lent by British subjects for industrial purposes and national development. It seeks to have the British foreign secretary and the United States ambassador to call the attention of the United States Government to the matter for the purpose of obtaining a hearing before the supreme court. This money was loaned prior to the end of the civil war and amounts to approximately $75,000,000.

The foreign office last night had not received the resolution, which was one of a score adopted on all manner of industrial, financial and economic questions, and it was, therefore impossible for anyone to say whether the resolution will be forwarded to Ambassador Houghton for the state department; that would depend on whether the moment was considered opportune.

Started 50 Years Ago

The Association of the Chambers of Commerce carries on a fight which a corporation formed of the foreign bondholders started 50 years ago and which has been revived annually in the report of that organization and by parliamentary question, diplomatic representations and letters to the newspapers.

The bondholders' corporation maintains a permanent organization to keep an accurate record of the defaults of all countries.

The money owed by the southern states is only one of its worries, but with patience and tenacity the organization keeps hammering away year after year, and says it intends to keep up the fight until there is some sort of settlement with the United States defaulters.

Six members of the London Chamber of Commerce have seats on the council of the bondholders' organization: Stanley Machin, Lord Southward, Lord Desborough, Sir Felix Shuster, H. L. Simonds, and Sir James Martin, who introduced the resolution Thursday.

Sir James enumerated the defaulted issues as follows: Alabama $13,000,000; Arkansas, $8,700,000; Florida, $8,000,000; Georgia, $13,500,000; Louisiana, $6,000,000; Mississippi, $7,000,000; North Carolina, $13,000,000; South Carolina, $6,000,000.

Not for War Funds

He declared that these loans were contracted mainly for railway and other public works, and do not include confederate bonds or the civil war debt. Mississippi's defaulted debt particularly irks the bondholders' organization, as these bonds were issued in 1831 and 1838. He avowed that he had no desire to attract attention either to himself or to the London Chamber of Commerce in introducing the resolution, because of the good will existing between the two nations, and any attempt to prejudice it would deserve the utmost condemnation.

Sir James also referred to the long standing friendship between the New York Chamber of Commerce and the London Chamber, with interchange of visits, and added: "But there is a time when one must speak, and that time is now."

Obligations to British

In conclusion he appealed to "our American cousins, who are very largely of the same blood as ourselves, to fulfill to the uttermost their obligations towards the Old Country, which in the world war maintained control of the seas and prevented supplies from reaching the enemy, supplies that might have been devoted toward the destruction of the American forces when they joined the Allies in the war."

Car Marked Greased Wool Is Found Loaded With Ale

BUFFALO, April 23. — Canadian Press. — A full freight carload of ale, shipped as "greased wool," from London, Ont., was dumped into the Niagara River yesterday, on order from Fred A. Bradley, collector of customs. The ale was seized at Black Rock, early yesterday by Federal agents. The seals on the "grease" car were found to be in perfect condition, indicating that the car had been bonded at Detroit. The bills of lading apparently were flawless.

NO AGREEMENT IN COAL CRISIS

Premier Baldwin Meets Both Sides in Joint Conference To-day.

OWNERS' PROPOSALS.

LONDON, April 23.—(Canadian Press).—Negotiations which lasted throughout the day revealed the impossibility of arranging an agreement in the coal crisis directly between the owners and miners, and hard bargaining will begin today, when Premier Baldwin will meet both sides in a joint conference at the ministry of labor.

The mine owners last night issued the draft of a new agreement with two schedules of wages, one based on a seven hour day involving heavy wage reductions, and the other based on an eight hour day with slighter reductions.

The industrial committee of the trades union congress, which has taken up the miners' case, had a long conference with the Prime Minister last night, placing all the circumstances before him. The committee told Mr. Baldwin that the new wage schedules proposed by the mine owners' association involved reductions which could not be tolerated and which were calculated to create an impossible situation. In the opinion of the committee any attempt to enforce these schedules would have a most serious outcome.

Farming Operations Are Extending Over Alberta

CALGARY, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Farming operations are rapidly becoming general throughout the whole of Alberta, including the north country where the work was somewhat held up owing to heavy snow. In many districts, particularly in the south, considerable seeding has been done already. The high winds of the past two days, it is stated, have not resulted in any damage from soil drifting. Generally speaking there is splendid reserve moisture yet in the ground.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer yesterday reached 65 degrees, an advance of 2 degrees from the preceding day. On the other hand it was very close to the freezing point last night. At this date last year the grass on the lawns had taken on its fresh green appearance, and many of the soft-wooded trees were in bud.—W.P.

Charleston For Health Advises Missouri Doctor

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 23 (United Press).—"A Charleston a day keeps the doctor away."

"The Charleston dance is healthy and should be indulged in by every youth in America," he added.

HUSBAND SAYS HE KILLED WIFE

JEALOUSY MOTIVE?

MONTREAL, April 23 (Canadian Press).—"Here is the gun. I just shot her with it, and I will speak when the time comes," said Armand Poitras, handing an automatic revolver to policemen who had been summoned by telephone to the Poitras home here Thursday.

When the officers entered the house Poitras led them to a room where Mrs. Poitras, 28, his wife, was lying on the floor in a pool of blood. In the back of the dwelling crouched Roger, 7, and Madeline, 5, children of the dead woman. They appeared to be terrified and the police were unable to get anything from them.

When killed the woman had apparently been sitting in front of a fireplace. She was shot from close range, through the forehead, and had fallen off her chair and rolled on the floor.

Jealous of Policeman.

According to detectives, Poitras was insanely jealous of a police constable who had visited the house on several occasions during the last week to investigate the theft of his wife's diamond ring. The constable visited the house on the last occasion Wednesday to return the ring which he had recovered.

The detectives further said that they learned these facts from the constable, who declared that Poitras had no cause to become jealous of him. He had reported at the house in the presence of both husband and wife on at least two occasions.

Constable Arrested.

The body of the woman was taken to the morgue, where an inquest will be held to-day.

In the meantime Poitras is being detained as a material witness by the police. After making inquiries detectives took Constable Bellehumeur into custody as a material witness.

H. LE BRUN CO'Y'S EXPANSION SALE

First Move Since the Recent Addition of W. S. Merrell to the Staff.

When W. S. Merrell severed his connection with the firm of Merrell & Meredith and became identified with H. LeBrun & Co., his friends looked for some celebration of his addition to one of Peterboro's old established clothing businesses. They had not long to wait for in their large advertisement in this issue, LeBrun's announce a drastic expansion sale, and emphasize the fact that the sale price cuts apply to everything in the big stock, including all the newly arrived spring coats and suits. The store also announces that it is going perhaps a step farther than its usual conservative policy, and will cater to the particular dressing young man. Fashions very latest cuts are among the new arrivals, and all go under the price cutting knife for the big expansion sale. 1d

PLANS MADE TO LAY NEW CABLE IN PETERBORO'

Bell Telephone Manager Learns That $12,500 Will Be Spent Here.

IMPROVE SERVICE.

Job Will Be Completed By End of September, Expected.

W. R. Northgrave, Peterborough, manager of the Bell Telphone Company, has been notified that a considerable amount of cable work, both underground and aerial, is to be done here this summer. A sum of over $12,500 is to be expended on the work, and more than 18,000 feet of new cable, ranging in size from that containing 25 pairs of wires to some carrying 400 pairs, will be used. It is estimated that if the wire carried in all this new cable were extended in a single pair, it would stretch for almost 400 miles.

The material is to be delivered early in August and work will be commenced shortly afterwards, so that the job should be completed by the end of September. A great deal of specialized skill is required in this type of work, as each wire in one section of cable must be joined to the corresponding wire in each continuing section to form a clear line from the subscriber's telephone to the switch-board. The wires are insulated from each other by fine paper, and every joint in the cable, or "splice", must be made carefully, for if it is not air-tight and water-tight the insulation will be impaired and defective transmission will result.

This cable is to be erected in different parts of the city, so that future applicants will be able to secure service without undue delay. The expenditure is part of that of some $85,000,000 planned for the next five years in the Company's territory, $17,000,000 of which is to be used this year in necessary extensions to plant.

The expenditure in Peterborough and district during this year will form a notable increase in the company's heavy plant investment in this locality and the added equipment and facilities will do much to extend the scope of the service hereabouts, Mr. Northgrave believes.

LIFE UNDERWRITERS DO HONOR TO NSURANCE GAME VETERANS

Harry Rush, D. Moore, W. H. Hill and T. Robinson Receive Tributes.

LIFE MEMBERS.

Genius Cannot Be Created, Develop Natural Endowments, Says G. Harris.

An event unique in the annals of the Peterborough branch of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada took place at a gathering in the Empress Hotel last night. The members of the Sun Life Assurance Company and those of the Confederation Life Association who had been attending conferences of their respective associations were present in large numbers, and the large gathering united to pay tribute to four of Peterborough's veterans in life insurance work — Harry Rush, Confederation Life; D. Moore, Sun Life; W. H. Hill, Sun Life; and T. W. Robinson, Canada Life.

Community singing of a competitive nature was indulged in, and finally the head table under the able leadership of His Worship the Mayor managed to take the prize.

William Boulton, divisional manager of the Confederation Life Association and president of the local branch of the Life Underwriters' Association, welcomed the members of the different companies who were present, and stated that the night marked a red letter event in the history of Peterborough.

George H. Harris.

George H. Harris, Montreal, supervisor of the Sun Life field service, said that he too joined in the tributes to the old-timers in acknowledging the work that had been done by these veterans for the cause. Difficulties are the test of strength, he said, and it was a fine thing to see these old gentlemen present who had overcome the difficulties that mark the path to success. The speaker said he was sorry to state that he had observed a growing tendency among members of the profession towards adopting methods contrary to their ethics, the main one of which was to tell old people, who had purchased policies under different conditions than exist today, to discontinue them, and, in addition, describing as useless the policies that had been sold by the older veterans. For the man who weakens at finding his own prospects and gives advice that reflects upon that given years before, said Mr. Harris, "I have nothing but contempt." Above all things in giving your advice, he said, pay respect and honor to the man who sold the first policy. Thirty years ago, the speaker said, the only equipment a man had to sell insurance was optimism. In those days they sold policies by persistence. To-day, with all the wonderful facilities, such as libraries and the press, we are living in new times—with a converted public made possible by pioneers such as are present.

Mr. Harris said that in his official capacity as a sales educator, he had observed many salesmen and was besieged almost daily by men attempting to sell him sales courses. The speaker described at some length the different types of salesmen and how easily mistakes could be made in first approaches. Talking of the salesman who prides himself on being honest and blunt, Mr. Harris said "there is no sense in thumping a man between the eyes just to convince him that one was right" when there are numerous other ways of doing the same thing.

The qualities necessary to be a successful salesman were, in his opinion, just simply "natural endowments developed under a wise tuition." To-day, he said, they are selling educations and simply putting men into moulds while, in his opinion, the very difference between men is the great asset to a company. "Don't look for genius," he urged, "leave it alone. You cannot create what the Almighty has denied you." Training, he said, will develop natural ability but it cannot create it.

Life underwriters who go into the presence of prospects and take with them their divine natures and express them are the men who get there. In seeking knowledge, said Mr. Harris, do not mix it with

Most Expensive "Carbonated Drink" Ever Made Was Cleopatra's Pearl In Vinegar, Says Chemist

NEW YORK, April 23 (United Press).—Clopatra prepared the most expensive carbonated drink in history when she dissolved the pearl in vinegar, according to Dr. Arthur D. Little of Cambridge, Mass., who has made a special study of carbons. He made his report to the American Chemical Society.

"Like all carbonates the pearl dissolves in weak acids," Dr. Little explains. 'The pearl, which in all ages has been associated with beauty and riches, is in reality no more than a brilliant sarcophagus of carbonate of lime formed around an intruding parasite by the pearl oyster."

SAFE BLOWN AND $142 STOLEN FROM CAMPBELLFORD GARAGE

Reeve C. H. Davidson Had Taken $720 Home With Him—Window Forced.

AN EXPERT'S JOB.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23. — When Clarence Williams, who is employed in the garage of Reeve Charles A. Davidson, got down to work on Thursday morning, he was the first to reach the place, and when he opened the door leading into the office he found that a burglary had been committed during the night. The safe had been dragged into the middle of the room and the door drilled and blown off.

Roy Bell, another of the staff, was the next to reach the scene, and the police and Mr. Davidson were notified of the affair. Mr. Davidson on making an investigation found that the sum of $142.95 had been taken from the safe, the door of which had been hanging by the hinges. About half of the amount stolen was in cheques and the banks were at once notified to stop payment.

Mr. Davidson was the last to leave the office on Wednesday night, going to his home, which is almost directly across the street, between 12 and 1 a.m. He took $720 out of the safe and carried it home with him, or this, too, would have been stolen.

There is no clue, as yet, to the burglars, but the job looks like the work of experts from outside the town. Entrance was effected through a rear window of the main building.

Something New Here.

It is a good many years since an affair of this kind has been pulled off in Campbellford. The last safe blowing on record occurred at the shop of the Harris flour and feed store on Tice street. The burglars on that occasion moved the safe to the depot, placed it on a hand car, and carried it to a cut on the track about a mile from town where they hammered it to pieces and made off with all the contents of value.

Mr. Davidson issues the auto licenses for this district, and his daily receipts from this source and from his regular business are large, a fact that was no doubt well known to the men who planned and carried out the burglary. He was fortunate in taking home with him a large sum of money that would otherwise have been lost.

Barrister M.P. Suspended By New Brunswick Court

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 23 (Canadian Press). — R. B. Hanson, K.C., M.P., for York-Sunbury, was suspended for a year from this date as a barrister of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, by judgment of the Appeal Division this morning, on charges of professional misconduct preferred by Dr. T. Carleton Allen, K.C., secretary of the New Brunswick Barristers' Association.

ACCIDENTAL 'MAGIC' CAUSES FARM FIGHT

Leans Over Pond To See Face—Neighbor Looks Over Shoulder.

PARIS, April 23 (Special by United Press).—A belief in black magic led a farmer named Thomasson, living near Grenoble to attack and nearly kill a neighbor for the unexplained death of a calf, a ewe, and a goat.

Thomasson had consulted a woman seer, who told him:

"Go back, lean over the pond beside your farm and you will see a face; it is the face of him cast the evil spell over your livestock."

The farmer obeyed, but a curious neighbor looked over his shoulder. The neighbor's face was thus reflected in the water and Thomasson emerged from the pond. Both Thomasson and the woman who advised him have been arrested.

BRITISH ECONOMY BILL IS ADOPTED

Vote Was 328 To 128 On Third Reading.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press)—The House of Commons last night by a vote of 328 to 128 passed the third reading of the Government's economy bill, which has been fought at every stage by the opposition parties. Their resistance forced the Government to the adoption of exceptional measures, such as dividing the Government forces into relay sections to maintain all-night sittings, and the severest application of closure.

There were many heated scenes and on one occasion thirteen Labor members were suspended. The impartiality of the chairman was attacked and a motion of censure is now pending before the House against him in the name of the Labor leaders. This will be met by a counter motion of confidence on behalf of the government.

FLOODS TAKE LIVES.

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 23. Canadian Press. — Summer rains which have been falling steadily since January over the north central plateau of Brazil, have resulted in serious floods, causing distress to more than 300,000 persons. Enormous property damage and loss of lives have taken place, according to information received by the Federal meteorological service to-day. Sao Francisco and Parnasyba Rivers have reached record flood stages, the Sao Francisco being up 33 feet from its low water level.

Decision on Question Up To Parliament Is Premier's Answer

To Three Thousand, Led By Mayor Preston, of Oshawa, Who Gather To Protest Against Reduction in Tariff on Automobiles and Parts.

LONG MEMORIAL SETS FORTH REASONS.

Speakers From Motor Cities Back Up Petition With Addresses—Say Effects Will Also Be Felt By Merchants and Farmers.

OTTAWA, April 23 (Canadian Press)—"So far as the Government is concerned we intend to abide by the decision of Parliament on this question," This, in brief, was the reply of Premier King to the great automobile delegation which invaded Ottawa today. Premier King's statement was made in the railway committee room of the House of Commons following the preliminary meeting at which Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, declared that so far as he was concerned, "We intend to stand by our guns."

In the railway committee room, Premier King touched on Mr. Robb's phrase. It was a term, Premier King said, used by men who would not be moved by demonstrations. But it did not mean that the government would not be prepared to give earnest consideration to the representations made.

Premier King expressed surprise that no amendment had been presented in the House taking exception to the new automobile duties. He emphasized that the government, in its budget proposals, had endeavored to consider the interests of all classes in the country and not the interests of any one particular industry. The reduction in the automobile duties was not the result of any impulsive act because the automobile duties had not been referred to the tariff board. It should not be assumed that the situation had not been carefully considered and expert opinion sought before the step was taken.

"The government had no desire and could not possibly have any desire," Premier King went on, "to work injury to any class in the community. We are desirous to do the thing that is going to be of the best service to the people of Canada." He repeated his declaration that the government intended to abide by the decisions of parliament and would invite the fullest possible discussion. In addition he promised that the government would give most careful consideration to the representations made.

of Oshawa, one of the leaders in the protest against automobile tariff reductions, which, he predicts, will prove calamitous to the motor car industry of Canada.

JUDGE RESENTS NO DISCRETION IN POSTAL CASE

No Alternative But To Impose Three Year Prison Term.

AN IMMORAL LAW.

Court's Compassion For Family of Postal Employees Not Permitted.

MONTREAL, April 23 (Canadian Press)—"I say that any law that takes away the judge's discretion and his power to render sentence according to his conscience and duty is an immoral law, whether it is a federal or provincial law does not matter," declared Judge Monet in the court of sessions when called upon to sentence Jules Hebert for theft from the mails while in the employ of the post office.

"I want to point out that it is not the judge who has to render sentence in this case," said His Worship. "When the Judge finds the accused guilty in a case of this kind it is all he can do. It is the legislators and the law who render sentence."

No Discretion Permitted

"The law states that the minimum sentence is three years. No discretion is given to the judge in such a case. The judge is more human than the law. I do not say that the law is too severe because the public must be protected against employees in the public confidence who are subject to temptations of this kind.

"If the legislators could have seen the touching episode that I saw a few minutes ago they might give a different interpretation to the law. The legislators should have enough confidence in the judges to let them use their own discretion in dealing with these different cases.

"This man has a wife and numerous young children. He has been eleven years in the employ of the post office. I find him guilty and must sentence him to three years imprisonment."

FRENCH FINANCIERS DUBIOUS OF MATERIAL BENEFITS OF FUNDING WAR DEBT TO U.S.A. AND BRITAIN

Intimation That Franc's Decline Due to Pressure to Speed Settlement.

DIVERGENT VIEWS.

Heavy Purchases Abroad Necessary To Meet Annual Debt Payments.

PARIS, Apr. 23 (Canadian Press) —Early settlement of the French debt negotiations with the United States, which is now accepted here as a foregone conclusion, has inspired many conflicting views among the French public.

In official and financial circles funding of the debt is considered as essential to the stabilization of the franc, but there are a good many people who see in it only the fact that France will have to buy an additional $5,000,000 yearly to send to the United States. Many also contend that settlement of the United States debt will involve immediate settlement of the war debt to Great Britain with payments that very likely will be considerably heavier.

Many critics of the proposed settlement, who ignore the moral effect, are inquiring only how an increased demand for English pounds and United States dollars, payable in francs, is going to help French money without a complete transformation of the financial situation which would place the franc on a reasonable footing with other money.

Ability to Pay.

The supposition, held here, that France is going to abandon the safeguard clause, which has to do with her ability to meet debt payments in case Germany should default in her reparation instalments, has provoked considerable criticism. It is pointed out that while the United States Government apparently has refused this reassuring provision to France, an arbitration board, headed by an American, has been set up to see that the reparation payment by Germany does not exceed her capacity to transfer money abroad.

Finance Minister, Peret, in replying to Vincent Auriol, Socialist leader in the Chamber of Deputies, avoided a question as to whether recent pressure on the franc was the result of a manoeuvre intended to influence the debt settlement negotiations. While admitting that delay in settlement of the inter-allied debts had certainly weighed upon the franc, he answered: "There are many things which I am unable to disclose to the Chamber."

"I regret," he continued, "that I am unable to bring the actual settlement of all debts before you now, but I am sure that the Chamber will approve the Government for taking all the time necessary to obtain a just settlement."

Franc Improved.

The franc showed considerable improvement Thursday, closing 19 points better than Wednesday with reference to the dollar. Finance Minister Peret was asked in the Chamber if the Government had intervened in the situation with the funds obtained through the loan from the House of Morgan. He replied that there had been no official intervention in the exchange market for some time. He added that the improvement in the franc seemed to indicate that the movement against it, which has been active in several European centres, has been partly spent.

Finance Minister Peret expressed confidence that the franc would be stabilized satisfactorily as soon as the second chapter of the Government's financial restoration plan is put through. This chapter includes measures to refund advances by the Bank of France to establish a solid sinking fund.

MAY ENTER CABINET.

Paul Mercier, Liberal M.P. for St. Henri, and chairman of the smuggling enquiry committee, may, it is rumored, enter the cabinet as postmaster-general, a portfolio now held by Senator Charles Murphy.

NEAR AGREEMENT IN DEBT PARLEYS

France To Propose $25,000 000 a Year To United States.

WASHINGTON, April 23 (Canadian Press) — The United States debt commission will resume negotiations today with France for a funding of its debt, with a motion pending in the Senate to reconsider its ratification Wednesday of the Italian agreement.

Ambassador Berenger, who has been given full power by France to negotiate a settlement, will meet with the commission. He has been in conference with Secretary Mellon for several weeks on the question, and treasury officials were confident last night that an early agreement could be reached.

Only a short meeting of the debt commission was expected today and it is probable that Ambassador Berenger will present a new settlement offer.

It has been reported from Paris that it will propose initial payments of $25,000,000 annually.

While officals here refused to comment on the reported French eproposal it was intimated that no agreement providing for less strict terms than those adavnced by the Caillaux mission last summer would be considered.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

COUNTY ROADS ARE INSPECTED

Superintendent Looks Over Highways Near Campbellford.

MIRED ON HILL.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23. — George Greer of Cobourg, county superintendent of highways, made an inspection trip over the roads in this district Thursday and acquired a practical knowledge of the work that is required to make the county highways safe for traffic. On his way from Campbellford to Hastings Mr. Greer's car was one of three that got mired on the hill near the residence of John Gorman, and the latter was hired to take his team and pull the stalled cars onto solid land. Two of the autos turned back to Campbellford, but Mr. Greer continued on the way to Hastings. This made the fourth time during the day that he met with a similar experience.

Two men with teams who were scraping the Hastings road, added considerably to their daily wages Thursday by dragging autos out of mud holes.

BANDIT AND HIS GANG AT PARTY WITNESSES SAY

Alibi Built Up in Buffalo Murder Trial By Eight Friends.

IN PHILADELPHIA.

Defense of Whittemore May Be Concluded To-day—Nearing End.

BUFFALO, April 22. Canadian Press. — Richard Reese Whittemore, New York bandit leader, was attending a birthday party in Philadelphia, at such an hour early on October 20, that it would have been physically impossible for him to have been in Buffalo to lead a gang of robbers in the killing of two bank messengers, and the theft of $93,000 from the Bank of Buffalo armoured car, according to testimony given by eight witnesses in the Supreme Court on Thursday.

Whittemore, according to their testimony, was at a birthday party in the home of Mrs. Dora Jansen, and remained there until about 4.30 o'clock on the morning of the 29th. Also at the party were Jake Kramer, Leon Kramer and Milton Goldberg, members of the bandit gang which obtained loot aggregating $800,000 in robberies in the Gotham city.

Church Choir Singer.

Witnesses who swore that Whittemore was at the party included a female church choir singer, and her husband, a pharmacist, a cafe waiter and his wife, a nephew by marriage of the Kramer brothers, a colored maid formerly engaged by Mrs. Jansen, the estranged husband of Mrs. Jansen, and Mrs. Jansen herself, star witness for the defence, who admitted friendship with Jake Kramer. All live in Philadelphia.

The defence expects to close its case early to-day with the calling of three or more witnesses. It was learned on reliable information last night that the defendant will not take the stand. It also seemed certain that his wife, known as the "Tiger Girl," will not come to Buffalo, and that Rawlings V. Wihttemore, his father, here to comfort his son, will not be a witness.

There is a probability that the case may be given to the jury late this afternoon.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23.—The members of the Mission Circle of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at their meeting Tuesday evening had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fairman, who were recently married. The members of the Board of Managers were present by special invitation.

During the evening Miss Verna Hay, president of the Circle, made and impromptu address in which she spoke of the esteem in which the young bride was held by her fellow members after which Mrs. Fairman was presented with a large and hansomely framed dining room picture. The young couple received many expressions of good will and wishes for a happy future. Lunch was then served and a pleasant social evening was spent.

NO MORE TANKS.

The action of the City Council in refusing to grant any further permits for gasoline tanks on the streets will meet with approval.

The only regret is that permission was ever granted for the installation of the pumps already in commission.

There is no more reason why the city streets should be used for the sale of gasoline than there is for permitting any other merchandise being sold in the same way, even though it may be pleaded that the convenience of motorists should be considered.

Surely it is not necessary to have gasoline tanks every half block along the street and create a condition similar to the congestion that existed when the main streets were a forest of telegraph and telephone poles.

It took many years campaigning to get rid of those unsightly encumbrances, and no sooner was this accomplished than along came the gasoline tanks to fill in the gaps.

The Council's stand in this matter will lead to more service stations on private property being established, and that is the only proper way to sell gasoline.

ELEVEN YEARS AGO.

Although the Second Battle of Ypres, in which the Canadian Army first showed the world its fighting qualities, opened in the late afternoon of April 22, 1915, it was eleven years ago this morning that Peterboro's quota in that army won fame at a very heavy cost.

In the early morning of April 23rd the 2nd Battalion, of which the infantry contingent from this city were members, were hurled forward in a desperate charge against the German hordes, and A Company, gallantly led by Major Geo W. Bennett, who was shot down at the head of his men, suffered severely, the Peterboro casualties being very heavy.

The war first came home to this community in the days that followed as telegraph messenger boys brought the fateful yellow forms, telling of death or injury to well-known Peterboro soldiers, and the shock caused by the heavy casualty list made an impression that one would thought was lasting.

That was eleven years ago, and already, apparently, Peterboro has forgotten, save only those families who directly suffered and the comrades of the men who fell.

Only a few flags flapping in the April breeze indicate that the significance of the anniversary is realized by a community which has every reason to remember the Second Battle of Ypres.

ENGLAND'S DAY.

Today is the anniversary of the birth of England's patron saint, St. George, and throughout the world Englishmen and men of English descent will wear a rose—if they can find one—and celebrate the event with the quietness and lack of exuberance that usually distinguishes the Englishman on such occasions.

Here in Peterboro the celebration will take the form of a banquet, which will bring together many of Peterboro's citizens who look across the sea to the tight little isle today with feelings of pride that they can call England their birth-place.

Well may they feel proud that they spring from such "stock"; well may they remember today the glorious history of the land that gave them birth.

And well may we in Peterboro rejoice that fate guided the footsteps of these men to this city, for they have and are taking a prominent and useful part in all the activities of this community.

"There is no land like England
Where'er the light of day be.
There are no hearts like English hearts,
Such hearts of oak as they be."

Today is not only the anniversary of the birth of England's saint, but also of England's greatest poet, William Shakespeare, who was born on April 23, 1564—another potent reason why this should be a banner occasion among all of English descent.

Of him it has been said that "in one fruitful moment the genius of England gave birth to a poet who interpreted his country to itself and the world once and for all time; his thought and language being the everlasting mind and utterance of his race at its highest."

OSHAWA'S REQUEST.

A monster deputation representing the city of Oshawa and other centres whose people believe their communities will be hard hit by the reduction of the tariff on motor cars is waiting upon the Premier and members of the Federal Cabinet today, asking that the changes announced be withheld until the newly-appointed Tariff Board has a chance to hear the representations of the automobile manufacturers.

The citizen who tries to discard his political prejudices and approach this question open-mindedly is at a loss to make up his mind.

There is a general feeling that the automobile manufacturers have had more protection than they needed, and thus a reduction, bringing with it cheaper cars, should be welcome.

Yet there is an honest doubt in the minds of many citizens as to whether or not the slash has been too drastic.

The manufacturers say so; the people of the communities where their plants are situated apparently share their opinion, and the rest of us are in no position to say one way or another.

That being so, the whole case might well be referred to the Tariff Board.

The demand for cheaper cars is not so insistent that final action could not be deferred until the new Board has had a chance to consider the question in all its aspects.

It was for just such work as this that the Tariff Board was established, and if it is not to be used in conducting a scientific and sincere investigation of the tariff upon the automobile industry, the prestige of the organization will at once be destroyed.

MR. ROBB'S INCOME TAXES.

Just why Finance Minister Robb should have said that he was reducing income taxes "all along the line" is something that those who have money invested in Canadian industries are still puzzling over. They have not yet given up hope that Mr. Robb meant what he said and that it is not true that the taxes on Canadian investments have been materially increased—more than doubled when the income from this source reaches $20,000. But they are doomed to disappointment, because Mr. Robb had in mind only the mass of voters and was speaking "politically" when he used that pleasant phrase.

This duality of taxation, this taxing dividends before they are distributed and again after they are distributed, is the only feature of Mr. Robb's income tax provisions that is the subject of criticism.

For one thing Mr. Robb does away with that series of complications concerning "normal" and "super" plus five per cent. that was a veritable morass for people liable to income tax in the past few years. The man figuring up his bill invariably made a different total of each checking. Having decided at last that he had got it right he sent in his cheque. As likely as not he received months later a demand for more, and a year hence a further call. It seemed as if the department put a new crew of totalizers to work every so often—just to keep them busy so to speak—and that each outfit got a new arithmetical result.

Mr. Robb has happily wiped out all this humbug. A man can now figure out his income tax at a glance—and that glance is, as has been said, pleasing to all but those who happen to have money invested in Canadian corporations.

Mr. Robb has done another good thing in providing further obstacles to evasion, for numerous more or less ingenious schemes have undoubtedly been in operation to avoid payment of taxes on income. It is to be hoped, however, that the fears of stock brokers that Mr. Robb's change in the matter of dividends from Canadian corporations may make these investments less popular will not be fulfilled. Canada needs for the development of its own industries all the surplus funds that Canadians may have at their disposal.

A further good word for Mr. Robb. His budget speech crowded with facts and figures, occupied only one hour of the time of the House of Commons. What a commentary on the lengthy spasms of mostly bunk and repetition that the House has so often to listen to day after day during the session. Mr. Robb is a business man, and if the politicians would only leave him alone he would be an even better Cabinet Minister than he is.—Ottawa Journal (Conservative).

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 22 (Canadian Press).—There was a fairly good enquiry from the United Kingdom for grain on the Montreal market today and as cables were firmer for oats some business was worked for May shipment, and in addition to this a few loads of wheat and barley were also sold for the same position. The demand for ocean grain room for May loading continued steady, but the market was not active.

The only busines of importance reported in cash grain was a sale of a round lot of No. Northern wheat at 9 3-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and a small lot of No. 3 Canadian Western barle, at 11 1-2 cents per bushel over the May option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The receipts of butetr were 2,007 packages, as against 1,145 for the same day last week, and 930 for the corresponding day a year ago. A firmer feeling prevailed in the market and prices scored an advance of 1-2c per lb., which was attributed to the increased demand for Canadian fresh made goods and the fact that available supplies were somewhat limited.

The receipts of cheese were 1,390 boxes, as compared with 311 for the same day last week, and 1.007 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the demand from any source and business in consequence was very quiet with fodder made goods selling on spot at 16 1-2c to 17c per lb. Recent cables received here reported the English markets weak with New Zealand cheese quoted at 90s per cwt.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 22 (Canadian Press).—Good rains over part of the United States wheat belt with predictions of showers in the Prairie Provinces had the effect of checking bullish enthusiasm in the wheat market here today.

Profit taking by longs and some short selling, and continued weakness at Chicago played a prominent part in price recession on the local market. The close was weak, ranging 2 3-8c to lower with May at $1.58 5-8, July at $1.56 1-4, and October at $1.34 3-8. Attempts were made to reach higher price levels, May touching a top of $1.61, but the gains were soon lost.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 22 (Canadian Press). — Wheat underwent sharp breaks in price today, especially in the last part of the Board of Trade session. Expected relief from drought over the spring wheat region, together with reported good rains in Kansas and other winter crop states, had much to do with bringing about selling on a big scale. Wheat closed unsettled, 1c to 3 1-4c net lower, May (new) $1.65 1-8 to $1.65, and July $1.42 5-8 to $1.52 3-4. Corn finished 3-8c to 5-8c off oats 1-2 to 5-8 to 3-4c down, and provigions at 15 cents to 40 cents advance.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.85.

Sterling cables $4.85 12.

PROTECTION AND THE MOTOR INDUSTRY

The Editor of The Examiner —

Dear Sir.—A protective tariff is, as the name implies, a system of duties levied upon imports which necessarily raises the prices of those imports to such a height that it pays better to make and buy at home. That is the economic law, apart from all sentiment in the matter, which governs Protection. If, however, home prices continue higher than foreign prices it follows that we must give up all idea of doing a foreign trade ourselves. We could not compete with other nations in foreign fields. Therefore it is necessary as is sometimes done, to sell at a loss in foreign markets, in order to keep our own factories going. But these factories do not sell at a loss at home. Hence, the home-consumer has to pay for the prosperity the country enjoys. This irritates him and strikes him as unfair, especially when what he makes himself is not susceptible of protection, and that is the objection, the great stumbling block, in arguing in favour of Protection. To obviate this objection it is necessary for protected industries to lower their home-prices to the level of the foreign price. Can this be done? It would seem contradictory and impossible. But it is not impossible. The United States solved the difficulty. Although their protective tariff is much higher than ours, their home-prices are lower. How did they manage it? By lowering their prices and thus extending their home-market. Instead of going in for combines and closing factories to increase the demand and therefore the price and the profit, the American manufacturer relied upon a smaller profit and a bigger sale or turnover. Hence, we have the extraordinary fact, as it may seem, that a protective tariff does not necessarily raise home-prices. Canadians are quite content with American prices as in such things as agricultural machinery, motivation of all kinds, etc., etc. What is our remedy? The adoption by the Canadian manufacturer of the American manufacturer's method of lowering prices to get more home-people to buy, thus increasing the volume of his own profits and greatly benefitting the public. That is what must be done in the motor industry. All cars are American, yet we pay more for them in Canada than they do in the United States. Our whole transportation system, a vast affair, is hampered by that fact. A cry is raised that some will lose employment. The remedy lies in the hands of the employers. Let them lower their home-prices as the Americans themselves do and all trouble will vanish.

More People Ride on Goodyear Tires than on Any Other Kind

FOR so many years was this true of fabric tires that Goodyear Tires became the accepted tires in practically every country in the world. Then cord tires were developed—higher-priced as well as higher-mileaged. And again we were able to say,

More People Ride on Goodyear Cord Tires than on Any Other Kind

For the same engineering skill, the same manufacturing and selling policies which made Goodyear fabric tires the world's greatest value were applied to cord tire building. Now has come the balloon tire. Again Goodyear pioneered in tire development. Again Goodyear can say,

More People Ride on Goodyear Balloons than on Any Other Kind

Inherent in every tire bearing the Goodyear name is the quality and value which has made this world-wide favor. Built into each tire is special material, special construction to meet the particular needs of some one class of motorists. In the stock of the Goodyear Selected Dealer you will find just the tire you want.

SPECIAL MEETING ALNWICK COUNCIL

ROSENEATH, April 23.—A special meeting of the Council of the Township of Alnwick was called by Reeve Mouncey on Saturday, April 17th, to authorize the clerk to put up notices for tenders for running the grader for the current year. There were also two by-laws passed, one to license Mr. Reginald Crego to install a pool table in his barber shop and the other to close and stop up the forced road crossing the south end of the north half of Lot No. 2 in the first concession of Alnwick and convey the same to Mr. Joseph Chidley.

38 BACHELORS OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT EXCLUDED "EVE" FROM THEIR BANQUET

Received Basket of Apples Inscribed, "With Compliments From Eve and the Serpent" From Women Friends.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Eve was rigidly excluded from a banquet in the House of Commons last night at which thirty-eight unmarried members of Parliament celebrated what they described as their "freedom from matrimonial shackles." Sir Robert S. Horne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, presided.

The dinner was organized by Sir James Agg-Gardner, chairman of the Kitchen Committee, who, at the age of eighty years is an unrepentent bachelor.

There was an additional writing, notifying the celebrants that this was not "forbidden fruit."

Toasts to Deserters.

Toasts were drunk in melancholy silence to the bachelors who had become benedicts since the last dinner in 1923. Five Labor bachelors were absent, and the woman bachelor of Parliament, Miss Wilkinson, was not invited.

To the question why they had remained single, many of the members gave evasive answers, but Sir Park Goff, who is fifty-five, and has been eighteen times "best man," replied: "Marriage is a lottery, and lotteries are forbidden by law; therefore, I shall remain a law-abiding subject.

Bachelor buttons which were the table decorations in 1923, are not yet in flower, so tulips were utilized instead.

ROOSEVELT URGES MODIFICATION OF PROHIBITION TO CHECK CRIME

Was Endorsed in 1925 By "Drys" Against Governor Alf. Smith.

FOR LOCAL OPTION.

NEW YORK, April 23.—(Canadian Press).—Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late president, last night urged the repeal or modification of the Volstead Act and the substitution of local option in the various states, permitting alcoholic beverages of a content legal under the constitution.

Speaking before the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the former assistant secretary of the navy, asserted that the prohibition enforcement act "has brought about law violation on a more commercialize and gigantic scale than our country has ever known before."

When Mr. Roosevelt was a candidate for governor of New York in 1925 he was endorsed by the state Anti-Saloon League as their hope against th "wet" sentiments of Governor Smith.

Opposed to Saloon.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he is opposed to the return of the saloon. "I am convinced," he said, "that the repeal or modification of the Volstead law does not predicate the return of the saloon. That can be prevented by enactment.

"Were I a member of the Federal Congress, I would vote for the modification or repeal of the Volstead law and the substitution therefor of some enactment permitting the increase of alcoholic content to such a point as constitution might permit. Delimitation would be left to the states individually. I believe this to be absolutely necessary in order to check the murder, corruption and other evils that have followed in the train of this law."

CAPTAIN NOT ON RUM SHIP WHEN LIQUOR LANDED

$600 REFUNDED.

Rum Put Ashore After Captain Promises Delivery Certificate.

OTTAWA, April 23 (Canadian Press).—How the rum schooner D. C. Mulhall succeeded in landing a cargo of liquor near Lunenburg, N.S., and escaped with a fine of $400 was told to the customs enquiry committee Thursday afternoon by Chief Preventive Officer W. F. Wilson. Mr. Wilson was questioned by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the committee. He gave the history of the Mulhall from documents on the department files.

In November, 1923, Mr. Wilson stated, the Mulhall was observed hovering off Halifax. She was seized by the customs and found to be laden with a cargo of approximately 2,000 gallons of rum. The captain, whose name was Ed. Dicks, was forced to make a deposit of $1,000 and his vessel was released on the understanding that he would later produce a landing certificate showing that his cargo had been put on shore at a point outside the Dominion of Canada.

Escaped Penalty

On his return to Halifax, Captain Dicks produced a letter signed by one Captain MacDonald, written on a small piece of notepaper in an illiterate hand, certifying that the cargo had been landed at a certain point off Gloucester, Massachusetts. The point specified in this document, it turned out, was somewhere out on the Atlantic Ocean. The sum of $600 was returned to Captain Dicks. Later, however, according to the departmental files, it was discovered that the cargo had actually been landed near Lunenburg, N.S. Captain Dicks was not prosecuted because he was able to prove that he was not actually on the vessel when the landing took place.

In answer to A. J. Doucet, a member of the committee, Mr. Wilson said that Captain Dicks had been convicted on a charge of perjury in 1911, and sentenced to serve four years in Dorchester Penitentiary. He had served one year of this sentence and then been parolled.

Letter Not Found

Earlier in the day, the committee endeavored to locate a letter said to have been presented by Miss Denise Larde to former Customs Examining Officer Bolger which had the effect of passing her trunks without examination. Officer Bolger insisted that there was no such letter. Other witnesses testified that he had spoken of such a letter in their hearing. No such letter, however, is on the files of the department and thus far it has not been discovered. Mr. Bolger, however, has been instructed to hold himself in readiness to appear before the committee at a later date.

Heard "Memo" Mentioned

A. J. Livingstone stated that he was a customs examining officer and boarded the Empress of France in the autumn of 1923 when Miss Denise Larde came to Canada. He said that he had heard Moisan, another customs officer, ask Officer Bolger if he had a letter in regard to the trunks of "a party" on the boat. Bolger replied that he had a memo. Officer Shanahan also gave similar testimony.

William D. Macworth, of the Macworth Adjustment Company, Montreal, was called in regard to the theft of a sedan automobile which was stolen from a man called S. L. Munsen. The car was found in the possession of a man called Brisebois at St. Cesaire, Quebec. Brisebois notified the owner of the car that it had been left in his possession, and that he had loaned a sum of money on the car. He stated that the owner of the car could have it on payment of the amount of the lien.

Mr. Macworth said he had gone to St. Cesaire to see Brisebois, only to find that the car had been turned over to the customs. The customs refused to release the car until Brisebois was satisfied. Mr. Macworth, who was acting for an insurance company in the matter, claimed that a letter had been written by Hon. Jacques Bureau to the member for Rouville stating that the car would not be released until the claim of Brisebois was satisfied.

HOMES BURN IN PRAIRIE FIRES

Serious Losses To Farmers Over Wide Area in Saskatchewan.

SWEPT BY GALE.

REGINA, Sask., April 23 (Canadian Press)—Residents of the Rouleau and North Portal districts yesterday recounted their losses after prairie fires had swept a wide area on Tuesday and Wednesday during the prevalence of a high gale.

At Rouleau 800 tons of hay and a house, barn, granary and two horses were consumed while 50 square miles of hay land was burned over. J. Wilton lost his clothes, $100 in cash and 350 bushels of seed oats.

Three persons lost their houses in the Souris River area near Portal beside grain and stock while F. Lees found ten of his horses so badly scorched that some were blinded. They may have to be destroyed. Frank Stringer was the heaviest loser, his house, barn, furniture, stock and 200 bushels of oats being a total loss.

CONFERENCE ON SATURDAY NEXT WITH THE RIFFS

Third Attempt of Delegates To Agree on Terms For Armistice.

POINTS IN DISPUTE.

Exchange of Prisoners and Military Occupation By French and Spanish.

OUJDA, Morocco, April 23.—(Canadian Press).—Saturday has been tentatively fixed upon for another conference of the French, Spanish and Riffian delegations in the third attempt to agree on preliminary conditions in peace negotiations.

Caid Haddou Ben Hanou again left for the Riff by airship yesterday to consult Abd-El-Krim. But this time he was accompanied by Caid Haman Cheddi, the second Riffian delegate, Si Mohammed Azerkane, the "Foreign Minister" alone remaining at Taourirt.

Cheddi's journey to Targuist is regarded as of much significance. He is one of the most popular of the young leaders of the Rif party and is reported to have much influence with Abd-El-Krim.

Delegates Silent.

The strictest silence was maintained by all three delegations Thursday, but it is learned on good authority that the manner of the exchange of prisoners and the question of military guarantees necessitating the occupation of some strategical points in the Riff by French and Spanish troops are the two points which prevented an initial accord being reached.

The natives are taking the keenest interest in the peace negotiations and the general impression seems to be that the delay in coming to an agreement and the granting of postponements to the Riffian delegates have created an unfavorable feeling among the tribes friendly to the French and Spanish, which would have preferred more energetic action in dealing with the situation.

The rioting took place in Zacaria Street, scene of the recent deadly encounters. The crowd ignored police orders to disperse and became so threatening as to compel the policemen to shoot.

The situation last night was threatening and police were patrolling the district.

Doctor's Painful Action Saves Life Of Infant

WASHINGTON, April 23. — (United Press.) — Dr. Joseph Larkin put his finger down a baby's throat, impaled it upon the point of a safety pin opened point upward and saved the infant's life.

Medical instruments had failed to remove the safety pin, because it opened in the baby's windpipe. Realizing the baby had but a few minutes to live if it were not removed, Dr. Larkin drove the pin deep into the flesh of his index finger, and then despite the pain, slowly worked it out, removing it just as the baby's pulse stipped beating.

Quick application of the artificial respiration brought the child, Albert Mack, Junior, ten months old, back to normal breathing, and he was later taken home from the hospital, little the worse for his experience.

The child swallowed the pin while playing at home.

CABINET READY FOR CHALLENGE

Home Secretary Replies To Saklatvala's Speech in House.

ABOUT FORCES.

LONDON, April 23 Canadian Press. — Sir William Joynson-Hicks, Home Secretary, in closing the debate in the House of Commons last night, on the clause proposed by the Labor side of the House, amending the army and air force bill by prohibiting the use of troops in connection with trade disputes except when a proclamation was issued declaring that a state of emergency existed, alluded to S. Saklatvala, the Indian Communist member for North Battersea: "If the honorable member (Saklatvala) or any other person inside of or outside of this House," said the Home Secretary, "thinks the time has come to challenge the right of this democratic government to maintain law and order he will find the government not averse to taking up the challenge."

The Home Secretary's reference to the challenge was in connection with the sveech made by Saklatvala in the House a week ago, when he stated that the army and navy were officered by the capitalist class, and were used only in the interests of capitalists. "The only way" Saklatvala declared on that occasion, "is to break the law."

In the course of last night's debate, Lt.-Colonel Sir Alan Burgoyne. Conservative, produced a sheaf of leaflets alleged to have been circulated with a view to undermining the loyalty of the troops.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

All that Peterborough gossips have learned about Harry Morton, in the fifteen years that he has lived there, is that he is rich, attractive, middle-aged and unmarried, and that he lives with his adopted daughter, Audrey, in an expensive house, maintaining also an apartment in Toronto, which he visits nearly every week. They never have learned what his business is.

A man, whom Morton calls Smith, appears after an absence of eighteen years. Smith claims to be Audrey's stepfather. Morton hurries him off to a job in South America.

Nona, a beautiful girl in Toronto, in love with Morton, and mad with jealousy of Lois, another girl acquaintance, tries to trap him in a "badger" game with the aid of a strange girl and man. She breaks down, confesses her part in it, and comes to his apartment to plead for forgiveness. She encounters Audrey, tells her that she loves Morton, and Audrey then confesses that she herself loves Morton, and wants to marry him. Morton stops the resulting quarrel abruptly, and makes Audrey take breakfast with Nona and him. They take Nona home, and he goes to his office, where he is informed that a man is awaiting him on important business.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

At Morton's order, a tall, sturdy, young man was ushered into his office. Morton arose and said cordially

"Hello Parrish. Your first name is John, isn't it?"

The young man assented, as they shook hands. "I was told to come here and report to you this morning," he explained. "Your secretary in Peterborough quit yesterday. Somebody telephoned me, told me about it, and said I'd better come right on here."

Morton sat down, and motioned Parrish to a chair. "Just as well," he said. "I expected you to go to work in a few days. I had another place for that chap, but possibly he couldn't have filled it anyway."

He swung around to a closed desk behind him, opened it, and took from a pigeonhole a typewritten paper. Glancing over it rapidly, he read some of the sentences aloud.

"John Parrish, twenty-four years of age—had to quit college to support his ailing father—worked daytimes and studied shorthand and bookkeeping nights—smokes a pipe." Morton raised his eyes questionably. "What kind of tobacco do you smoke?" he asked.

Parrish colored, and told him. "But if you object to my smoking, I'm willing to quit," he said.

"I don't care if you smoke," Morton said. Smiling slightly, he explained "I merely wanted to know if I would be able to borrow the right kind of tobacco from you, from time to time. But I can't. I don't smoke that stuff."

The young man drew from his pocket a tobacco pouch, and studied it interestedly. "I always thought this was pretty good," he said.

"Every man thinks his tobacco is pretty good," commented Morton. "But tastes in tobacco, and women, and climate, vary."

He went on reading the report, without quoting from the rest of it. The young man watched him attentively. When Morton was done, he folded the paper and put it back in his desk.

"Parrish," he said, "that report describes pretty much the sort of secretary I was looking for. I can't have a man that drinks, and I can't have a man that stays up too late at night, because his brains have to be in good condition. He mustn't be the petted offspring of a fond and prosperous family, because he probably wouldn't work. I see you drive a flivver, and that's all right. It will help keep your mind off your other troubles."

He paused, and with shrewd, searching eyes, looked over his new employe. Then he tapped his pencil on the desk, thoughtfully. "I have an idea, that has just come into my mind," he said. "Do you dance?"

Parrish shook his head, negatively.

"Then learn to dance, at once," Morton told him. "Do you play any iknd of musical instrument?"

Parrish again shook his head.

The young man looked puzzled. "What shall I take—a horn?"

Morton laughed. "No, I should not advise a horn. Get a guitar—that'll do all right. Get one of the best there is, and charge it to me."

Parrish's expression was divided between amusement and apprehension.

"Would you mind telling me, sir, why you want me to do these things? They aren't a regular part of a secretary's work, are they?"

Morton's eyes twinkled, but he answered the question seriously. "Here's the idea—I'm willing to tell you. You have heard of my adopted daughter, Audrey?"

The young man nodded. Morton went on

"Well, I've just concluded that I have left her too much alone. I am about the only man she ever has seen, to talk to much. That isn't good for her. She's nineteen, and ought to have some of the ordinary, innocent pleasures of youth. To tell the truth, I've been so busy buying her things, and taking her places, and thinking about her, that it never once occurred to me that she ought to have a young man friend."

Parrish's face was red. "Probably I wouldn't do at all," he protested.

"Nonsense," Morton said. "You are young, and clean living, and healthy—you might even be interested in having a few of the ordinary pleasures of life yourself." He shot a quick look at Parrish. "Are you interested in any particular girl?"

Parrish flushed more violently. There was a certain approval in Morton's eyes as he saw the young man's blush extend down his neck and into his collar.

"I've never had time to really get acquainted with any young ladies," Parrish said, embarrassed. "I'm afraid I'm not a ladies' man. I think Miss Morton probably would not like me."

"She won't dislike you."

Morton's tone was positive.

"You trot along, now, and arrange for those dancing lessons, at least twice a week. While you're out, go to a good music store and get the guitar, and find out from them a competent teacher. Make arrangements with him for lessons, as fast as he can give them to you. Audrey likes music."

The young man, much discomposed, arose to his feet. Despite his confusion, however, there was a little humorous quirk at the corner of his mouth, as he addressed his employer.

"I can swim, and skate—when I can find any ice—box a little bit, and play some baseball," he ventured.

Morton laughed aloud. "The swimming and skating may come in handy, on occasions. But I doubt very much if Miss Morton will want to box. She might play a little baseball, though. We'll find out. Get back here before I leave this evening, and I'll take you out to dinner with me, at my home."

Parrish cleared his throat, hesitantly. "Well, you see, Mr. Morton, I've been sending all my money to my father, and I've only got this one suit of clothes."

"Darn the clothes," said Morton, briskly. "Come with the ones you have on. Miss Morton isn't fool enough to judge a man by what he wears. however, I have an idea you'd better have some other things made, to wear when you go out with her. She won't care, but I imagine you will."

Turning to his desk, Morton wrote a few lines rapidly on a sheet of his letterhead. "Take that down to my tailor," he said, "and tell them to make you up an evening suit, a dinner suit, and a suit with knickerbockers. You play golf, don't you?"

Parrish said he didn't.

"You'll have to learn that, then, too," Morton told him. "Miss Morton can give you enough lessons so you will know what you're doing. You don't have to play golf well to enjoy it. When you learn to play it well, you don't enjoy it any more. You only worry about it."

Parrish took the paper, but entered a word of protest. "Mr. Morton, I really can't afford to buy those clothes."

"Fair enough," Morton said. "What salary did you expect when you came here?"

"They told me you would pay me thirty-five dollars a week," Parrish said.

"Well, I'll pay you forty-five," proposed Morton. "That's a raise of five hundred and twenty dollars a year. The clothes will cost you about five hundred and fifty dollars. It'll be worth the extra thirty dollars to you to have them on hand. They won't wear out, right away."

He considered a moment, and then went on "I'll pay for the dancing lessons, and the music lessons myself. It'll be worth it, when I first hear you strumming on that guitar. It ought to be worth a laugh, anyway."

"I don't think I'd ever have nerve enough," Parrish assured him, as he retired. "I could play to myself, maybe, but never to Miss Morton. I've seen her picture."

Morton raised his eyebrows. "Ah?" he said, with a rising inflection.

He smiled with some satisfaction as young Parrish went out, and closed the door. Turning to the telephone, he called Audrey.

"I'm bringing a young friend out to dinner tonight," he said. "Just hired him as my secretary. Nice chap. Stranger in the city. He only has one suit of clothes, so don't put on an evening gown. I suppose he would like beefsteak."

He hung up the receiver, and lapsed into a brown study.

When Parrish reappeared, toward evening, he bore under his arm a large guitar case. He opened the soft leather envelope, and displayed the instrument to Morton.

"It looks pretty, and it is pretty loud. Listen!" He twanged the strings.

Morton took the guitar, glanced over it with the eye of an expert, examined the sigh of the maker, brought the strings quickly into tune and plucked a chord or two.

"Do you play it, sir?" Parrish asked, with deep interest.

He replaced the guitar in its case, and handed it to Parrish. "We'll take it with us over to the house," he said. "Audrey will like to look at it, anyway."

Obediently, the young man huddled the case under his arm, and followed his employer down the elevator, and out to the waiting town car. Morton saw that he had been freshly shaved, and shampooed, and that he had changed his shirt, collar and necktie.

"Youth," said Morton.

"Sir?"

"I said 'Youth'."

He made no further explanation, but talked of travel, and business, and sports, until they reached his apartment.

"Audrey," he said, "here is a young man who is probably going to be lonesome while he is in Toronto. He is my new secretary, Mr. Parrish. John, this is Miss Morton."

The young man's face was red as the girl greeted him. His hat and guitar case were held in one arm, as he reached out his other hand to take the fingers that she extended in greeting.

The butler relieved him of his burden, and Morton waved him to a chair. He sat down. Then, observing that Audrey was still standing, he arose again confusedly. She took a chair, and he subsided once more, with a sigh of relief.

Audrey was dressed in a little black silk frock, of elbow length, and rather high about the neck. Morton caught her eye, and nodded approval toward the dress.

"Parrish came here, with almost none of his baggage at all," he said. "He had to come on short notice, because my other secretary got discouraged yesterday, and quit."

Parrish shifted uneasily. "That isn't the real reason why I'm wearing this suit," he blurted. "It's the only suit I have."

Audrey's face wore a puzzled look, and she made a little gesture of inquiry toward Morton. Morton answered, as if actual words had passed between them.

"Miss Morton wants to know," he told Parrish, "if she ought to sympathize with you about your clothes. I just lifted my eyebrow at her to tell her that she need not worry."

"I don't worry," Parrish said, "but I didn't want her to think that I was used to going around any other way than this."

After the manner of young men, he was floundering in the depths of an argument he hadn't wanted to start, and from which he didn't know how to escape. Audrey came to his rescue.

"Didn't you bring a guitar, Mr. Parrish?" she asked.

"I brought one, but I can't play on it. I just bought it this afternoon. That is, Mr. Morton bought it, for me to practice on."

"Are you going to play to him in office hours?" she asked, merrily.

Parrish looked helplessly at her, and then at Morton. "He said I ought to learn to play the guitar," he explained.

"Go ahead and tell her about the rest of it, Parrish," he ordered. "Tell bout the dancing lessons, and all the rest of it. No—I'll tell her."

His face was serious when he resumed, "Parrish will be telling about it, if I don't. You see, Audrey, I think you have not had enough company, aside from me. Parrish is going to be with me, practically every day. I told him that he ought to be equipped to take you to the theater, and to dances, and to places like that, and I suggested that he learn to dance, and to play the guitar, because you like both of them. That's why I asked him out here tonight, and kept him busy all afternoon shopping."

Audrey's lips were tightly compressed, and she arose quickly to her feet.

"May I speak to you a moment, daddy?" she said, and led him to the far end of the room.

"Are you offering him as a candidate for my hand?" she demanded, in a fierce little whisper.

CUT WORMS IN ALBERTA.

Serious To Farmers In Southern District.

EDMONTON, Alta., April 23. — Canadian Press. — Reports of serious trouble from cutworms are reaching the city from southern parts of the province. The Lomond district seems to be particularly affected, and the news from that section is that some of the farmers have stopped seeding because of the damage the insects are doing. The central and northern parts of the province are mostly free of the pest, so far as known, and while stray cases of cutworm have been reported locally at various points they are not thought to be in sufficient numbers in Northern Alberta to occasion any alarm.

REDUCTION OF AUTOMOBILE DUTY KEY NOTE FROM GOVERNMENT AS GUIDE TO THE NEW TARIFF BOARD

Ruinous To Canadian Industry if Carried Out, Edmund Bristol Says.

BUDGET DEBATE.

Gen. Clark Declares Estimates Do Not Include Several Large Items.

OTTAWA, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Debate on the budget was resumed in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Hon. Edmund Bristol (Conservative, Toronto East Centre).

He was glad that the Government had made the reduction in taxes on small incomes, which he recommended last year. He could not approve of reductions in tariff, however. The Government having appointed Rt. Hon. Geo. P. Graham and other members of the Tariff Board to investigate such matters, Mr. Bristol thought that the Government's action in reducing the tariff right away showed a lack of faith in their own appointees. An old supporter of the Laurier policy like Mr. Graham might very well have found it difficult to make such inroads on the tariff as were effected in the present budget. Presumably, said Mr. Bristol, the Government had found it necessary to give Mr. Graham a big example of what he would be expected to do. If he carried out that example the effect on industry in Canada would be ruinous.

Appeals to Farmers.

Mr. Bristol made an appeal to the "spirit of co-operation and fair-play" which he felt sure existed in Western Canada. It should be remembered, he said, that Canada had two classes of farmers. Those who grew Number 1 hard wheat had no world competition to fear. The farmers of the east, however, had to market their product against world competition, and were as much in need of protection against the cheaper markets as were the manufacturers of the Dominion.

He hoped that Western people would bear in mind that it was much better to manufacture our own products and keep our people in Canada than to buy American goods. The present Government or any government which happened to be in power should look after the affairs of the country from a national and not a political viewpoint.

J. P. Howden (Liberal, St. Boniface) said the elimination of the receipt tax, the return to penny postage and the efforts to develop trade through Canadian ports were features of the budget worthy of commendation. The change from an adverse balance of trade to a favorable one since 1921, and the reduction in the national debt during the Liberal regime, were other matters to the credit of the Government.

Construction of the Hudson Bay Railway was due to Western Canada. The people of the West had been looking to the construction and completion of this line for years.

Big Motor Profits.

"I am by no means convinced that the proposed reduction of 15 per cent. in the tariff on automobiles is going to ruin the industry in Ontario and put these people out of employment," said Dr. Howden. He was disposed to think that motor car dealers had been reaping handsome profits from the manufacture and distribution of motor cars.

Tariff in this country was "simply a subsidy paid through the medium of Parliament." This was scarcely patriotic and certainly it was unfair for Canadian manufacturers to charge their fellow-citizens more than they charged the people of other countries for the same goods when exported, said Dr. Howden.

J. A. Clark (Conservative, Vancouver, Burrard) said the estimates for this year were $4,000,000 less than last year. But this did not include the supplementary estimates which would mean another $7,000,000 or $10,000,000 or the votes for old age pensions, rural credits, or advances to settlers on Crown lands. A very conservative estimate of the amount to be expended this year over the amount expended last year would be $20,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Manufacturers Not Helped.

The budget offered very little relief from taxation for the people earning small incomes, said Gen. Clark. People of this class were not benefitted by the proposed reduction in taxation, nor in cheaper motor cars. Another class which had not been helped by the budget was the manufacturers and corporations, who paid all except about $10,000,000 of the amount contributed to the treasury last year in income taxes. This class deserved greater consideration, and Gen. Clark wondered what the Government would do for its revenue if the tariff cutting policy resulted in their being driven out of business.

The Government was trying to blame the increase in the national debt on war expenditures. The special war taxes still imposed, Gen. Clark asserted, exceed by many millions the amount actually required for expenses arising out of the war. He doubted if Parliament was without its powers in contributing to vote money in this way.

Restore Motor Tariff.

General Clark stated that he favored the restoration of the thirty-five per cent. tariff on motor cars and the placing of the whole question and investigation of the industry before the new Tariff Advisory Board. With a low tariff, American manufacturers would just as soon return to the United States and manufacture there. It was only justice that consideration should be had for the twenty-two thousand workers and one hundred thousand dependents on this industry. The proper course, he reiterated, was to put the matter before the Tariff Board.

General Clark criticized the action of the Government in making dividends of companies operating in Canada subject to income tax. This would drive large sums of money out of Canada for investment in American securities, he said. He claimed that the industries which were making progress in Canada were what he termed the "wasting industries"—those which used up raw material which could not be replaced readily. The pulpwood industry, mining, and to a certain extent fishing, came under this head. Canada, he said, should devote herself to encouraging diversified industries so that when these were depleted, the Dominion would have built up others.

"The Government has driven 500,000 Canadian citizens out of the Dominion since it came into office because of its pro-American policy," General Clark declared. The policy of the Government appeared to be to encourage American rather than Canadian industries. The Government had pledged that no industry would suffer through tariff changes until an investigation had been made. This promise had been broken.

Answer to "Blue Ruin."

A. F. Totzke (Liberal, Humboldt) declared that the budget was very pleasing to ninety per cent. of the people of Canada. The showing that had made such a budget possible was also most gratifying, especially after the "blue ruin" speeches made by Conservatives during the campaign. If the Conservatives would only give candid expression to their opinions they would also express satisfaction with the budget. The income tax changes should be commended because they encouraged the man on a small income with a family by relieving him of some of his financial handicaps.

The people of Saskatchewan had declared themselves opposed to higher tariffs, Mr. Totske said. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen had toured Saskatchewan during the last election campaign and preached higher tariffs. The result of the election was an answer to his higher tariff policy. The people of the West objected to manufacturers making unreasonable profit at their expense.

Mr. Totzke could not agree that the amalgamation of the C.P.R. and the C.N.R. would be a good thing. Opposition was the life of trade among railways as in other branches of business.

The Store of Good Values - 370 George

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

E. B.—You have a nature that is somewhat contradictory in its elements. You are frank and outspoken in your speech, sometimes too much so for your own good, but at times also you are very cautious and suspicious. You always wish to know the worst at once and detest anything that savors of deception. Although quick tempered and impulsive, you are well meaning. You have a habit of "putting your foot in it," as the saying goes. Although you have a good deal of personal charm for others, you are apt to be vacillating and fickle and do not possess much depth of character. You should never try to decide important matters for yourself, but always seek the advice of others when you are sure that they are well-meaning and friendly toward you. You are very observant of signs, symbols and dreams and have the happy faculty of keeping a secret. You are very quick to observe, to plan and to do, and are apt to make small allowance for others who are not as quick in these ways. You often over-tax your strength by throwing your entire energy into the execution of your plans, and should be very careful of too much exertion, which will bring on varicose veins in the lower limbs. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink. As I am not a fortune-teller, I cannot answer the query contained in your letter.

Elsie.—You are young enough to correct some of the faults which will have a bad effect on your life, if uncorrected. You have a good deal of strength, physical especially, which, if undeveloped, will tend to make you coarse and material-minded. You have an aptitude for commerce and finance, which should led you to success in business. But you would also make a good nurse, as you are very sympathetic toward sickness and trouble. Your greatest difficulty in life will be a tendency toward nervous dissatisfaction. You will always be wishing that you had done something else and had gone somewhere else. You will eternally be wishing to be away, you are not quite sure where, and engaged in something else than what you are doing. It is a disagreeable trait and one that should be conquered. You are also a born whiner and scolder, and inclined to nag. You will be ideally happy when married if you can conquer this tendency. You are affectionate and unselfish, have the power to attract birds and animals to you and to promote the growth of flowers, and are also fond of beautiful things in nature and in art. Take great care of your health, as you are most disagreeable when ill. Cultivate cheerfulness and steadfastness, and try to keep your hands and feet still. Marry a man born in February or November. Yes, you were born on Monday. Your colors are blue and cream. As there are several Saturdays in July, 1919, I cannot tell which one you are asking about.

P. Y. G.—You have already had a reading given you.

P. G. V.—For some reason, intentional or otherwise, you have given me only your first name and initial of last name. I cannot give you a reading without knowing your full name.

H. Joseph—I am sorry that you neglected to give me the date of your birth, and without this I cannot give you a reading. You mentioned only the month and the year, without the date of the day.

Moses.—You have already had one reading. There are too many people waiting patiently for a turn to give more than one to each person.

V. C. H. S.—You have supplied me with plenty of initials, but no Christian name. I require at least one full Christian name and the surname for a reading.

Kay.—You have quite a strong personality, naturally endowed with a logical, creative type of temperament, inclined, however to be domineering and to overlook the rights of others. As "service" is your manifest destiny in life, you must strive to control this tendency and to think always of the fcelings and wishes of those about you. You are kind and amiable, inclined to be quite lax in money matters and very dilatory in repaying borrowed money or returning borrowed articles. You like speculation and would make a good real estate dealer. Follow out your own intuitions at all times and you will seldom be deceived. Strive for habits of order, even in small things, and place more value upon your own good opinion of yourself than upon the praise and appreciation of others. Learn patience, for fame and success usually come to your type, although they may come late in life. Learn poise, aim high, and consider yourself capable of great things. Take good care of your health. You will not be happy unless you are loved, and the recipe for securing love is to love. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March. August and December are your good months. Friday your good day. You were born on Thursday. The day you enquire about is past. Your colors are flame shades, from yellow to misty blue.

A. L. G.—You have a strong nature, logical and daring, creative and active, but inclined to domineer over others. With this, you are somewhat reserved and retired in your ways, preferring established methods of doing things rather than new ways. Shyness and introspection sometimes trouble you and you have to fight constantly against a tendency toward morbidness. You are troubled too by nervous dissatisfaction, constantly wishing that you could be somewhere else and be doing something else rather than what you are engaged in. This tendency, along with a habit of nagging and fault-finding, will have to be curbed to ensure happiness for yourself and those about you. You would make a good nurse, being very kind and sympathetic in trouble or in sickness. You are suspicious and easily offended and should try to cultivate confidence in your associates. You are not wise in your choice of friends, and will suffer from neglect and indifference, because you often choose them for external appearances, rather than for real worth. You should cultivate cheerfulness and steadfastness, learn patience and silence, keep your hands and feet still, and your conversation free of personalities. Marry a man born in February or November. April and August are your good months. Friday your lucky day. You were born on Monday. Your color is flame, in all its variations.

M. A. H.—You have a great deal of natural attraction for others in your makeup, but you lack depth of character and have a quality of vacillation and fickleness in your character that will not make for happiness for yourself or others, unless you resolve while young to control it. Changeful habits of mind are the cause of much worry to their possessor and those who associate with them. If you wish to achieve success, you will have to watch this trait more than anything else in your disposition, as the only way in which you can achieve happiness is by constantly keeping at your job, by plugging away and working hard. It is not likely that you will make much of yourself in life, because this habit of fickle behavior will rule all your days. You are not patient, you have a quick temper and become very jealous over imaginary slights. You will, when married, hold your husband to an exactness of attention that will be a weariness to him, and you will destroy many of your best chances in life through jealousy. You are large and true, but a child of caprice, and this will have a sad effect on your destiny. If you wish to improve, you should strive to conquer indecision of character, never touch strong drink or drugs, cultivate firmness, and be careful of your associates, who will have much influence over you. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink. The day you ask about, a Sunday, is one for avoiding arguments and new ventures of any sort.

Tut.—You are rather fortunate in that your destiny does not show many conflicting elements, that is, as long as you remain unmarried. You have a natural inclination toward pleasure and good cheer, with a liking for the fine arts, acting, singing, dancing and painting, and your manifest destiny is to bring joy and happiness to the lives of those about you. With your kind, cheerful disposition, this should not be at all difficult. You would be successful in any sort of commercial position, or as a teacher. You are magnetic and draw people to you by a natural law, but dislike any special demonstration of affection. You have great reserve powers and may not always use your innate gifts and splendid forces, to their fullest extent. You will be happiest and most successful when you gain self poise and strive always to control your temper. Always avoid scolders and fault-finders, who depress you and make you miserable. Change of scenery and a certain amount of excitement are necessary to your good health. Individuality should be your watchword. Do not copy others in anything. Get a good business education and study the art of personal attractiveness, especially the best arrangement of your hair. Always dress well. Marry a man born in May, July, February or November. You were born on Tuesday. Your color is black. The day you ask about, a Monday, is one for being patient and agreeable and making no important purchases.

E. S.—You are lucky enough to have been born under a star that helps you to do great things, if you will but set your mind and powers to their accomplishment. However, you have several traits of character which are not of the best. You were born with a good deal of creative, tenacious power, which, if undeveloped, and combined with a tendency toward the material side of life, will make you somewhat pugnacious, coarse and material. To develop the spiritual side of your nature more should be your constant aim. You are apt to live too much in the physical enjoyments of life, and you are also inclined to be very capricious, which will not make for happiness and success, particularly in married life. You will find success in life, as long as you remain unmarried, anyway, in hard work, in constantly keeping at your work and never shirking it. You have a certain type of explosive anger that often makes you say things you regret later, and you are not always successful in the choice of friends. You must try to cultivate forbearance at all times, and the faculty of seeing the other person's point of view. You have a very strong dislike for household work and should try to do as little of it as possible. Marry a man born in January, September or October. You were born on Friday, your lucky day. May and July are your lucky months. Your colors are green and silver.

J. F. S.—You belong to the lucky type of individual who has but to try hard to do great things in order to accomplish them. However, you will not be as happy and successful as you may be until your spiritual nature is developed, and this may not be easy, because the physical side of life has a very strong appeal for you at all times, and you are inclined to be capricious, a barrier to a happy married life. You were born with a very high type of disposition, strong and well equipped to face the circumstances of daily life. Success, especially material success, will only come to you through hard work, by everlastingly plugging away at your job, whatever it may be, and this will be the case through your entire life. You can never attain by any other means than through unremitting industry. Do not sidestep your manifest destiny. You would make a good builder, engineer, contractor or lawyer. Guard always against a liking for strong drink, for in this lies great danger for you. Marry a girl born in January, September or October. May and July are your lucky months, Friday your good day. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are red and brown. The day you ask about, a Tuesday, is one for quiet meditation. Let things take their course on this day, and do not worry.

SOCIETY BRIDE

Lady Dunne, who was formerly the Marchioness of Queensbury, was recently married to Sir James Dunne in Paris, her marriage being a great society event. This is the latest portrait of Lady Dunne.

ONE THIN WOMAN GAINED 10 POUNDS IN 20 DAYS

Skinny Men Can Do The Same

All weak men and women.
All nervous men and women.
All skinny men and women.

Can grow stronger, healthier and more vigorous and take on solid needed flesh in 30 days just by taking McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets four times a day—sugar coated and easy to take as candy.

And what a hit these flesh producing tablets have made. One druggist tripled his sales in one week.

Everybody knows that from the livers of the humble codfish comes a first class vitamine that is a wonderful vitalizer, flesh producer and health creator.

Millions of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets are sold every week and thousands of frail rundown underweight people are being helped.

A box of 60 tablets for 60 cents and if any skinny man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days — money back. Ask McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store, or any druggist.

Be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine and don't forget there is nothing on earth so good to make backward, listless, underweight children grow strong and robust.

MAKING A LIFE EVERYONE'S JOB

Must Be Careful Planning, Speaker Tells Insurance Agents.

START IMPORTANT.

The following address was delivered on Thursday by T. H. Gillespie, District Manager of the Confederation Life Assurance Co., at an educational conference in the Empress Hotel.

There is something more than making a living; there is making a life. If you were undertaking a journey to a distant and unknown country, say a hunting trip in Africa, you would give much time to planning every thing about it—the destination, the route, and the equipment you would require. You would procure and study maps and guide books with care and interest. You would be eager to consult others who had taken the same journey. You would inquire carefully about the boats on which you could sail, the difficulties to be met, the danger of missing the right route and of having to retrace your steps at great loss of time, money and perhaps strength, and you would provide yourself with the very best equipment.

Many, however, start on the irretraceable and far more important journey through life with little preliminary consideration and practically no preparation. Through failure to plan carefully in the one case, the pleasure of but a few months may be marred or lost. In the other, the long journey into the unknown years, the decision we make, may determine whether our entire future will be a success or a failure, probably involving the interest of others very dear to us.

Though the choice of a life work should be one of the most important decisions we make, yet few really select their vocation after careful thought and deliberation. Usually the result is a matter of chance. A young man leaves school or college and takes a certain "job" perhaps, because it is with some relative or friend, or perhaps his father or mother wants him to; or because he is offered an attractive salary immediately. He accepts the position possibly forgetting that many of the very occupations that pay most in the beginning offer little opportunity for advancement. The pay of the unskilled laborer often exceeds the pay of many professions at the start but in later years the story is quite different.

Many, because they are unfitted and untrained for the work they undertake, attain only mediocre success. They change positions frequently, making it necessary to start one new business after another, become discouraged, and naturally fail to attain any degree of success. Had they carefully selected suitable vocations they might have been successful. Norval A. Hawkins, whose record as a master salesman and leader of salesmen, says:

"There is a tremendous amount of time practically wasted by fellows who make false starts and have to begin over again. In the rapidity of modern business, few have the opportunity to choose wrongly more than once or twice in deciding upon a life calling.

What would happen to one who tried in succession medicine, law, teaching, the ministry, continually abandoning one and taking up another. Yet there are many striving for successful careers by trying one business after another without reflecting on the obvious futility of such a course. They suffer the humiliation of seeing those who have carefully selected one vocation by sticking to it, become successful, while they themselves failed.

The advice of Josh Billings is still good. "Consider the postage stamp, my son, its usefulness consists in sticking to one thing till it gets there."

It is true that there are exceptional cases where persons have "happened into" a business in which they have succeeded. Also, by reason of great industry and perseverance, others have succeeded in some vocation for which they were not specially fitted. Sometimes an opportunity does come to change from a vocation in which a person is not succeeding to one better suited to him, where he finally gains success.

General Grant, a poor tanner, later became a great general. Nathaniel Hawthorne, an indifferent government clerk, later became a great author. But the young man or woman who expects these unusual things to happen is taking a great chance. Perhaps it is because most people allow their careers to be left to chance that so many fail or reach only mediocre positions. Those who, because of exceptional talent, attained some measure of success in a business for which they were not best fitted, would, in most cases, have succeeded still better in doing the thing they could do best.

Before starting out on one of the roads which lead through life, therefore, consider the opportunities it offers for fame, fortune, and service; find out the stumbling blocks along the way and whether you are fitted to cope with the difficulties. Do not drift toward the path that looks easy at the outset, but which may lead nowhere. Select a vocation. Do not drift into an occupation.

In choosing a vocation it is important to consider:

1. Is it worth doing? Will it interest you and satisfy you that your life is being spent in doing something worth while?
2. Is there a reasonable probability that you will succeed in it?
3. What does it offer in honor, opportunity for advancement, development, and compensation?

How does life underwriting meet these essential considerations?

Great men and women in following their careers have overcome discouragement, difficulty, obscurity, and failure, because of devotion to some lofty ideal. Why not select a life work that constantly inspires us to do our best. Such inspiration will be found in a business essential to the well being and progress of mankind; that will continually command your interest; that will leave your community and to that extend the world, better, for your effort; that deals with fundamentals and not with things of little or no value to human happiness. An uninteresting business or one which we must feel is of little value or even harmful to society, is a handicap. One can hardly put one's whole heart into counterfeiting or the manufacture of burglar's tools. "Every man can do his best thing easiest."

Selling.

The biggest men in the world today are salesmen. They call themselves, bankers, lawyers, engineers, or ministers. As a matter of fact, they are all selling their own or some one else's services, and the man who is the best salesman gets the highest price.

Among the honorable workers in the civilized world to whom the public, as well as the insured will die indebted we give faithful and successful life insurance agents a high place.

The life underwriter is stimulated by the firm conviction that the future comfort, happiness, health, and education of his client's wife and children, perhaps the independence and happiness of his old age and the maintenance of his business, the forming of thrifty habits, depend upon the carrying out of a definite life insurance programme which the client is often reluctant or slow to see.

The successful life underwriter may well review his life work with a feeling of satisfaction at having successfully conducted a business of considerable profit to himself and, at the same time, performed a great and lasting service, not only for his clients, but for the possible widows and orphans who may have reason to be grateful for the service he has rendered.

It is hardly possible to believe that a life insurance agent can achieve a long continued success without bringing into action some of the noblest qualities of a sterling man and no other field that we know of is more inviting to an ambition that would devote the best talents to the benefit of society at large and individuals in particular.

Life Underwriting is a vocation of great magnitude, importance, and permanency. It is a high form of social service open to both men and women. With no dead line as to age where one is physically able, it requires no investment of capital or years of previous training.

It is not only a business of magnitude, importance, and interest, but a permanent business. It cannot be conceived that in any nation or age, while human life is uncertain and valuable, any device or invention can supersede or replace it. Electricity or some other fuel may replace coal, as coal has replaced wood, and in the last century of steam, has changed civilization. Livery men have had to sell their horses and carriages and turn their stables into garages, losing the value of their experience with horses and having to learn about autos. But it is difficult to conceive of any substitute being found for life insurance, after it once had taken root in civilization or that it can do anything but grow with the increasing value of human life and its enhanced uses to society. Indeed there is nothing to indicate that the growth attained by life insurance will abate. It will probably continue to double every decade for some time, while our population has doubled every three decades and our wealth every two. Life Insurance is now growing faster than ever.

Sound business policy dictates that every debt contracted should be hedged with an insurance policy, and this applies to building and loan oligations, bonds bought on installments, and all other forms of investment. A country that is spending more money for tobacco, for candies and confections, for toilet articles, and theatres, several times more for automobiles, and that spent hundreds of thousands more dollars in the inflated days of 1914 for liquors, than it is saving today, by means of life insurance is far from reaching the saturation point in life insurance. It is better to be in a business which promotes saving rather than in one which encourages spending. During periods of depression, the commissioned underwriter often maintains or even increases his earnings due to skillful work among those whose needs for insurance are greater because of increased financial hazards or obligations or unsalableness of assets. No successful underwriter need even fear losing his job. He is largely his own boss.

This is true even to the point of being a disadvantage to the person who cannot properly direct his own time and misuses this freedom.

Life Insurance has no "dead line." It is difficult for a young man or woman to comprehend the full importance of this factor; yet there are many vocations in which at middle life the value of the employee decreases steadily—teachers, clergymen, clerks, book-keepers, stenographers, nurses, bringing discouragement and a fear of "losing his job" which is described as one of the most terrifying spectres that haunt millions of workers. This is particularly true when there is no pension or income laid by for even the immediate future. In some lines of work the "dead line" comes very early. Some firms refuse to employ a man after thirty-five. It is then that the successful underwriter's earnings are the greatest. It is described "the best paid hard work in the world." Incomes of $5000 are by no means uncommon and of $10,000 not rare as is the case among physicians and lawyers. There is hardly a life insurance company in which the income of one or several of its underwriters does not exceed that of even the highest executive.

Darwin P. Kingsley of the New York Life, in speaking of the difficulty some companies were having in getting the proper class of men for effectives said: "In our business some few agents may accumulate fortunes of considerable size. Executives of the right kind, never."

Among the income tax returns for 1921 nine life underwriters reported incomes of over $100,000, and seven more of $150,000. The late Harry B. Roen had an income in some years as high as $400,000, and he was a personal underwriter; not a general agent. Of course these cases are very unusual, but one means of judging the financial possibilities of any vocation is to ascertain the maximum that any one person secures from it.

Life Underwriting should make a strong appeal to women as a profession. Women are, as a class, interested in social improvement in a very practical way. The woman's intimate knowledge of a woman's problems make it easy for her to picture the specific difficulties, which the wife and mother in a given family would face if the husband and father should die.

The field of life insurance is very attractive and profitable to women. Several thousand women are engaged in life underwriting and the number is increasing rapidly. Many enjoy incomes of from $3000 to $5000 and some even more.

Another great advantage is that they receive for their work the same compensation as men. One successful lady underwriter has aptly described life underwriting as a vocation where she "receives all she earns and not what some man thinks she is WORTH."

The funds of Life Insurance are gathered from humble home and palace, from farm and shop, from men and women of every rank and age and vocation, from huge reservoirs of money, and thence go back to the widow and orphan, the aged and to business in time of need. But, while waiting for this time of need, the funds are busy earning interest, helping to buy farms and build homes and railroads and public improvements and utilities, to assist towns, cities, counties, states, and even national governments to build schools, public buildings, parks, sewers, water works, and drainage systems and meet needs of other kinds. The funds are deposited in different banks and loans are made to the army of scattered policyholders, not at the call of the insurance company, but where repayment from them on demand cannot be required but according to the desire of the insured.

The occupation must be worth while that brings these millions together in the grand economic army, to protect itself against the calamities of life and to help prevent evil conditions of great menace to society. It is better to build a wall along the edge of a cliff than a hospital below it, to provide educations than to care for the illiterate: to keep the mother and the home together, than to build orphanages: to enable the aged to maintain their own firesides, than to build old folks' homes.

This great army of present policyholders and all whom life insurance has already served, have been gathered one by one by the many underwriters who may feel well satisfied with their life work, especially if they themselves have profited by the lessons they have taught others and have guarded their own families and old age.

The real prosperity of a country is not best indicated by its orphanages, or reform schools, or almhouses, or old folks homes. It is not best measured by the mothers' old age, or other pensions, by workmen's compensation, or unemployed funds provided by the state. It is not best reflected by the number or wealth of its charitable institutions, or by the great sums given by the few rich to the many poor, or by compulsory education furnished by the state.

The Canada we wish to see is a Canada free from poverty, illiteracy, vice, crime, war, class hatred, strikers, lockouts, and old age dependency, free from all need of orphanages, charitable institutions and free hospitals and dispensaries, free from unemployment and avoidable sickness and accident, free from slum, tenement, hovel, and gambling den, "free even from laws compelling its citizens to provide charitable helps, because its enlightened inhabitants have themselves thriftily provided against the great evils that have held back mankind through the ages.

Every force that helps to eliminate these evils is helping to make our land, and to that extent the world, really free. Religion, education, justice, temperance—every agency, institution or force that makes thrifty, self-reliant, intelligent, God-fearing and neighbor-loving men and women, who provide their own funds for the emergencies of life, helps hasten the better day. And among the great company of workers for the general good, surely those that gather and keep together the vast number of life insurance policyholders may justly number themselves among the foremost of those helping to make Canada a better land.

CLASSES FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

It was a historic occasion when the two classes for crippled children were opened at Wellesley school, Toronto, for they are the first in Canada. In the above picture the camera shows one of the first two boys to arrive, little Willie Agnew. In the other picture is shown Trustee Mrs. Groves, whose efforts are largely responsible for the establishment of the classes, receiving Robert Potter, the first boy to be taken out of the buses.

MANAGER TELLS OF DISABILITY POLICIES

W. Boulton Addresses the Agents of Confederation Life Company.

"A worse calamity than death may befall you, Mr. Prospect, in fact death would be kindness to you and your family compared with disease or accident which would incapacitate you for life." With this sentence or one somewhat similar, I usually commence my canvass for Disability Insurance. I never use Disability as an opening wedge as there is always a tendency on the part of the assured to consider it the main feature of the contract, when in reality it is supplementary to it: although I admit as an opening wedge it is without a rival. In Life Insurance, as in every other science, first things should come first. Selling the Life Insurance idea is, in my mind, the "Alpha" of Life Insurance salesmanship. Having sold my prospect a policy contract, I always ask when filling out the application, if he wishes the Disability feature included and explain as briefly as possible the nature of same. My reasons for doing so are two-fold. First, I want to give my client full coverage—no policy contract is complete without the Disability Clause, and second, I want to make my policy proof-absolute against attacks from unscrupulous agents.

The salesman who is not marketing Disability protection, is not only missing a golden opportunity of increasing his sales, but is also robbing his client of a protection which in this day and generation, is absolutely necessary.

This is the age of specialization. We are all specialists, whether we sell Life Insurance or make tags for shoe laces. A century ago, our forebears built their own homes, made their own clothes, grew their own food, in fact did everyhting to protect and maintain the lives of themselves, their families and live stock. Each and every family was independent and self-contained. Today, we are inter-dependent. We depend on the labors of the other fellow as much as on our own and vice versa. Society has become so complex that no man can afford to run the risk of being disabled either by accident or disease. Earning power is the only asset most of us possess. The Total and Permanent Disability of the breadwinner under our present social system, is a very grave peril. The loss of one's earning power is invariably more serious than death itself. It is certainly a calamity to any home when the breadwinner dies, but how much more serious if the breadwinner himself becomes a burden through accident or disease. Earning power—capital—is gone and with it, the chief asset.

Horace Greenley was never a Life Insurance salesman, but many years ago he wrote the following word-picture, which splendidly illustrates the havoc worked where no Disability protection exists

"Life is the most precious of human possessions—the most indispensable element of a business career. The bankrupt of today may, next year, be on his feet again, busy and thrifty as ever. . . . Our countrymen plunge into business, many a one with a wife and child, a strong arm, an active brain and a resolute will: gives himself up to his calling, confident of his own ability to achieve a grand success. His income is considerable. In a few years, if nothing goes amiss, he will have made enough to place him henceforth beyond the reach of want. But suppose he were suddenly stricken down by disease" . . . . There is the picture. "But suppose he were suddenly stricken down by disease" without Disability protection. Business goes, the earnings of years are swept out like a bubble on the sea. He suffers. His wife and family suffer, but their suffering is the greater.

The Disability Clause in a Life Insurance Contract is but one phase of the evolutionary growth of Life Insurance in its endeavour to keep pace with the growing needs of humanity. The Disability idea on this continent was initiated by the Fidelity Mutual, thirty years ago, although it had been incorporated by Life Insurance Companies on the European Continent, twenty years prior to this. Mr. Bruce D. Mudgett, gives the Mutual Aid Societies of Germany and Austria, of the 13th Century, the credit for evolving the idea: and the Friendly Societies of Great Britain of the 19th Century, for carrying it a stage further. It was not until 1911, however, that it was generally adopted in America. The Disability Benefits, which you and I sell today, are far in advance of anything ever dreamed of by those early pioneers. In their day it was but the tiny acorn—the idea, the seed thought—today, it is the mighty oak, the realization, giving shade and shelter and comfort by its branches and foliage. It represents one of the functions of up-to-date Life Insurance.

The Confederation Life Association was among the first Canadian Companies to issue policies containing Total and Permanent Disability Benefits—this was the end of 1912 or the beginning of 1913. A comparison of the Disability Clause of 1912 with 1926 is very interesting and illuminating. Originally it took care of the assured's premiums in case of Total and Permanent Disability. Now it does this and guarantees him an income. Originally it was issued on male lives only. It is now issued to men and women (single and married) alike, with one difference only, viz., a three-months clause for men and a six months clause for women.

1. It Provides for The Waiver of All Future Premiums falling due during period of disability. No sick and accident contract, to my knowledge, does this. Cancellation of premium during sickness is essential. It is true that a considerable proportion of totally and permanently disabled policyholders do not live many years after disability, particularly the victims of rapidly progressing diseases. Others (temporarily disabled), in a few years recover. The average disability period from Tuberculosis is three years. Insanity disability cases are on the books a long time. The average length after paralysis is more than five years. Blindness has little effect on longevity. But whether the disability period be long or short this waiver of premium clause has, no doubt, kept many policies in force which otherwise would have lapsed through force of adverse circumstances. If a man is disabled for three, five or ten years with earning power cut off, how is he going to give his family protection without such provision as this.

2. It Guarantees An Income To The Assured of $10.00 per month for each One Thousand Dollars, covered by the policy. A $10,000 policy guarantees $100.00 per month. This is a scientific contract which replaces a man's income when he is sick or hurt and unable to work. If he develops tuberculosis, paralysis, becomes blind, loses a couple of limbs, this provision in his policy keeps him on the pay-roll. Do not overlook the fact that physical disability means also financial disability.

3. It Guarantees This Income Until The Assured Recovers or Dies, or Until The Policy Matures. Endowment contracts carry disability to the end of the Endowment period. Limited Pay and All Life Contracts carry Disability for life.

4. Income Commences Immediately Disability Is Admittedly Permanent. It also provides that if a man has been continuously and totally disabled for three consecutive months, or a woman six consecutive months, from any cause, proof of disability will be accepted and payments commence from the first of the following month.

"These provisions" says Mr. Birkenshaw, "cover two distinct types of disability. The first is of an admitedly permanent nature, the second more probably only temporary. In the first case, the Association pays immediately. In the second, it is necessary to wait three months if man (and six months if woman), before submitting proof and payments begin on the first of the following month."

Occasionally a prospect raises an objection to the elimination period. This is easily met with the question, "Mr. Prospect, did you ever get anything for nothing?" He immediately answers, "No." Then why desire a piece of machinery that would make it possible for the other fellow to get something for nothing. Our Company, which is made up of policyholders, does not relish the idea of men taking their holiday at the other policyholder's expense. A man might be stuck for his payment on the phonograph or his car. With a little persuasion he would easily convince his doctor that he was sick and get him to fill out the claim papers for a temporary claim, but he could not fool the doctor month after month unless he was real sick. If you were disabled, say for a week or a month, whilst you may be inconvenienced, yet you would have no difficulty in carrying yourself for that short period, but if you were disabled for a year, or ten years, that would certainly work hardship to you and your family, would it not? Is it not a better proposition for you to finance temporary sickness and have a guarantee that anything of a permanent nature will be financed by the Company than vice versa? Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred will agree.

5. The Protection and Value of The Policy Is Not Diminished In Any Way Whatsoever. There is no lien against it because of the disability payments. At death or maturity it will be paid in full, thereby protecting the assured's family as well as himself. The Cash Surrender Value and Loan Value is unaffected. It always remains an asset to his estate.

Dividends are added to Participating Policies just the same as if no disability had occurred.

6. It Is Non-Cancellable. It cannot be restricted after issue, and it protects against every disability. It cannot be cancelled no matter how long or how many times the assured is incapacitated. Compare this with the large majority of so-called Commercial forms of accident and health policies which provide indemnity from the first days of disability and then limit the payment of indemnity to a certain number of months; which also limits the assured to a given occupation and gives the Company the privilege of cancelling it at any time. In other words, if the policyholder suffers a recurring disease, or from any cause is not physically or mentally fit, the companies invariably cancel. If, by force of circumstances, he is compelled to change his job to earn a livelihood, ninety-nine chances out of a hundred, his policy automatically becomes null and void. Therefore at best, the old form is merely a term contract. Its protection is but temporary. This is permanent. The old form disability contracts are good as far as they go, but they do not go far enough. Compared with this they are like a yearly term policy compared to All Life or an Endowment.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on this non-cancellable feature. Human nature, whilst it may appear fickle, abhors uncertainty and is always seeking the stable and permanent. This clause alone is one of the greatest business builders in the insurance world today. It instantly appeals to human imagination and secures the endorsation of the intelligent, because it cannot be cancelled, or restricted after issue. It insures insurance and provides an income if the assured becomes a victim of a living death.

The Need of Disability Protection.

The question is often asked, "Does Disability Protection Meet A Need or Is it A Frill?" Anything that indemnifies the loss of a man's earning power certainly meets a need. In an address delivered to the Rotary Club of New York, February 28th, 1924, Dr. Darlington, former Health Commissioner of New York, stated that—"The cost of sickness in the United States yearly amounts to $2,000,000,000." Ask any Actuary whether Disability meets a need or not. The very fact that some Companies fight shy of it is proof-positive that it is not a frill. Figures taken from the actual experience of Life Insurance Companies do show the need for an income and the preservation of a man's Life Insurance during the period of disability.

An analysis of the Association's Actual Disability Claims, made in January last by Mr. J. H. Birkenshaw, our Assistant Actuary, shows that 97 policyholders have received or are receiving benefits under the Disability provision; nineteen of these have died; thirty-seven have recovered and forty-one are still disabled and receiving the disability income.

They are as follows:

	Policies	Still Dis.	Rec.	Dead
Tuberculosis	24	12	5	7
Lung Trouble—(Pleurisy, Pneumonia, Influenza)	7	0	7	0
Accident	12	3	9	0
Insanity	9	5	2	2
Nervous Breakdown	3	2	1	0
Rheumatism	7	5	2	0
Heart Trouble	4	2	1	1
Paralysis	3	2	0	1
Sleeping Sickness	4	4	0	0
Blindness	3	2	0	1
Osteomyelitis	2	1	1	0
Nephritis	3	0	0	3
Leukemia	2	0	0	2
Hypertrophy of Spleen	1	0	0	1
Tumor of Brain	1	1	0	0
Pancreatitis	2	0	0	0
Hemaphigia	1	0	2	1
Ulcer of Stomach	1	1	0	0
Otitis	1	0	1	0
Sclerosis	1	0	1	0
Perintonitis	1	0	1	0
Operation	4	0	4	0
	97	41	37	19

The rate at which these claims have increased during the past five years is a study in itself. Prior to 1921 the Company had no claims on the books, but commencing with 1921, they pyramid as follows:

1921 Claims	4
1922 "	12
1923 "	19
1924 "	20
1925 "	42
Total	97

Nor is this experience peculiar to the Confederation Life Association. The Pacific Mutual, according to an article written by Mr. F. H. Small, 1922, had a list of 75 cases as follows:

Cause:	Number of Actual Claims
Tuberculosis	22
Insanity	18
Paralysis	9
Blindness	7
Accident	5
Arthritis	2
Paresis	2
Bright's Disease	1
Cancer	1
Encephalitis	1
Epilepsy	1
Sclerosis, Multiple	1
Pellagra	1
Syphilis, Cerebral	1
Skin Disease	1
Toxemia, Intestinal	1
Spinal Trouble	1
	76

In the year 1923 alone, the Pacific Mutual had 156 Total and Permanent Disability Claims, representing no less than 26 different causes of disability. The same year they had a total of 202 claims on their books. In 1908 Pacific Mutual had only 2 claims, 1912 five, 1916 nine, 1920 forty-five, 1923 total 202, and 156 in that year.

An analysis of 1947 approved Disability Claims given by the Insurance Research and Review Service tabulates as follows:

Cause of Disability:	Number of Claims	Percentage
Tuberculosis	689	35
Insanity & Parcsis	453	23
Paralysis	218	11
Accident	68	4
Blindness	73	4
Locomotor Ataxia	78	4
Cancer and Tumor	55	3
Heart Disease	34	2
Rheumatism	36	2
Bright's Disease	15	1
Other Causes	228	11
	1947	100%

A careful examination of these tables shows that "Disease Is The Prime Factor In Producing Total And Permanent Disability." This is liable to be overlooked, owing to the fact that accidental disability is usually more sudden and more sensational. We all get excited about an accident, but disease which is doing its work more slowly and subtly, is overlooked. Disability from accidental causes averages only 4% of the total clams. Our experience, of course, is about 12%. The Pacific Mutual in 1922 ran about 6%, the total examined by the Research and Review Service is only 4%. Do not overlook the fact that 88% of all the Confederation Life Claims and 96% of Total and Permanent Disability Claims eminate from disease. Disease and not accident is man's most deadly enemy.

Tuberculosis—the Great White plague—is the most important single cause of disability. The toll—35%—is rather a heavy one. Confederation Life Association shows 30% of whole. Some companies show as high as 45%.

The need for Disability protection is apparent. If disease or accident claims the toll of the breadwinner's earning power, an income is surely needed. His Life insurance, above all things, needs to be kept in force. Disability protection is the only protection I know of that will do both these things. The man who fails to sell disability protection with a life Contract falls short of the obligation resting on him.

Selling Disability Protection.

In presenting Total and Permanent Disability, common sense and sound judgment should always be used, for it is unreasonable to assume that the Association will issue this type of protection to everyone that applies. Many men are good Life Insurance risks who are very undesirable from a Disability standpoint. When disability is granted, it really means two risks instead of one are accepted. Nevertheless, whenever possible, your prospect should be sold Disability protection. He cannot afford to be without it.

Most men think that they live a charmed life which mental or physical disability will never impair and that their years of activity will be extended into the far distant future. But when you tell a prospect that the average age of disability is 42, he immediately takes notice. Statistics show that one person in every six suffers a spell of sickness each year. One person in every nine meets with some form of accidental injury each year. Disability causes scores of people each month to drop from positions of pay to labor of any kind and they finally end up as dependents on their relatives or charity because they are not prepared for these contingencies. According to Mead's Disability Table, the probability of Disability within life expectancy to every man of twenty-five is about one out of sixteen: at age thirty-five, one out of ten; at age forty-five, one out of every five: and at age fifty-five, one out of three. At age thirty-five the chances of Disability from pneumonia are two and a half times greater than the chances of death. Similarly, the chance of disability from accident are three times greater than the chances of death from accident. The chances of disability from all causes before 65 is five or six times greater than chances of death.

When you say "A worse calamity than death may befall you, Mr. Prospect, in fact death would be kindness to you and your family compared with a disease or accident which would incapacitate you for life" he instinctively gives you his attention and then you proceed. "There is a possiblity, yes, a probability, that you may be totally and permanently disabled. According to Actuarial figures one man out of every ten at your age of 35 becomes disabled and no one knows whether you or the other fellow will be the tenth and you cannot afford to pass up this service which my Company offers to you."

Then tell him the story of William Mathison, the farmer, who contracted a cold which developed into T.B., rendering him totally unfit for work, but the Association's cheque for $50.00 a month on a $5000 policy enabled him to employ a hired man and keep the farm going until he recovered four years later.

Tell him the story of Mr. A. W. MacIntosh, a business man of Regina, who in 1920 applied for and received a $5000 policy with $50 per month Disability Clause. Oct. 5, 1924, only fourteen months later, commenced receiving $50.00 per month until his death when $5000 was paid to his beneficiary.

Tell him the story of Mr. J. Morganson, farmer, of Saskatchewan. In May 1922, Mr. Morganson applied for $12,000, Fifteen Year Endowment, was examined and passed first-class risk. In January 1923, only 8 months later, he became unwell. By September, shaking palsy developed until he was unable to work. He is now receiving $120 per month under the Disability Provision in his policy.

Tell him the story of Mr. Saunders, a book-keeper in Moose Jaw. In May 1918, Mr. Saunders took out his first policy with the Confederation Life Association for $3000 and in January took a second policy for $2000, making his insurance $5000. He was examined on each occasion and found to be a first-class risk. Four years later trouble with his eyes developed which incapacitated him from work, going blind, but since April 1st, 1923, he has received every month, a cheque for $50.00 from the Confederation Life Association.

Tell him the story of Manley Denard, a farmer of Prince Edward County. When I insured Manley Denard, in February 1923, he was a great big, strapping fellow that any Company would have taken a lease of his life. When I called on him with Mr. Burgess in August 1925, only two and a half years later, because I could not believe it possible for the report given to be true, what a change! A skeleton, scarcely able to stand on his feet. What had happened? Just what is likely to happen to any man. While unloading hay he was hit with the pulley hook which affected his heart, illness followed, and finally he became incapacitated. I question whether he will ever recover. But it will always be a source of pleasure to me to know that every month this man receives a Confederation Life cheque and that his life insurance is kept intact for the benefit of his family when he passes out, through the provisions of the Total and Permanent Disability.

WHEN THE WHOLE WORLD GOES OUT

Success encourages. Failure discourages. We all know this, but the trouble is many of us forget to remember it.

When you are balancing between success and failure — when things are teetering and you cannot seem to keep your financial poise, cling to constructive thoughts, read of the things that will rouse your spirit of enterprise, associate with people who have the habit of success.

Associates either help or hinder. What you read either energizes or discourages you.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE May Now Be Obtained In Peterboro

The new product MILLER'S CANADIAN HERB JUICE, although only on the market a few months, has created a decided sensation in every city in which it has been introduced. Scores of sufferers who have secured prompt and permanent relief from stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver trouble, constipation and biliousness are voluntarily expressing their gratitude by giving statements for publication.

HERB JUICE is manufactured from a formula decided upon by prominent physicians after years of study and practice. HERB JUICE as the name implies, is prepared from herbs, roots and barks placed on earth for the healing of mankind. Indians lived to a ripe old age, kept healthy and enjoyed life due to the fact that they lived near nature and all of their medicines were prepared from herbs, roots and barks. Years of study and practice have demonstrated the fact that many of the diseases and sufferings of mankind are caused by an accumulation of poisonous waste in the body, due to stomach diseases, imperfect digestion, liver stomach trouble, constipation and many other troubles such as unsound sleep and bad blood. If the elimination organs are working properly the food is converted into rich blood, if not working properly the fermented mass generates poison that is absorbed into the blood. HERB JUICE, the new herbal remedy, acts on the organs of elimination not on the bowels alone. It gradually tones the stomach, liver and bowels and stimulates these organs to more vigorous activity, in a mild, general, natural way without discomfort or distress and the only after effect is glorious relief and benefit.

W.M.S. MEETING AT MILLBROOK

BALE FORWARDED.

MILLBROOK, April 22. — The April meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Thomas' Church was held on Monday evening at the home of Miss Annie Armstrong, the president, Mrs. (Canon) Allen being in the chair.

Owing to the amount of illness in the village at present, the attendance was smaller than usual, but an active interest in the work was quite evident.

A report from the Dorcas secretary, Mrs. C. McNeil, was to the effect that the bale, annually prepared by the women of the whole parish, had been completed and sent away since the March meeting. The bale this year goes to the MacKay Indian School at the Pas, Manitoba. It contained a complete outfit of clothing for a girl of eleven years, enough to last for an entire year, besides quilts, sheets, pillowslips, etc., and was valued at between fifty and sixty dollars. Everything in the bale was new, and its contents were on exhibition for an afternoon at the Sunday School Hall before being packed for final shipment. The MacKay School was one of the buildings thrown on the screen, and something of its work explained, during the lecture recently given here by Rev. Mr. Walters, whose parish is at Split Lake in the Hudson Bay district.

The chapter from the study book, "The Clash of Colour," was taken up by Miss Armstrong, the interest which has been manifested in the study throughout the year remaining as keen as ever. The book will be completed at the May meeting, the closing one until September.

The annual diocesan W.A. meeting will be held in Toronto, beginning May 10, and lasting for one week. The small attendance on Monday made it inadvisable to elect delegates until a later date.

The support of the women's and girls' work of the whole Dominion, in the Anglican Church, is undertaken entirely by the various Auxiliaries, the Dorcas secretary of each diocese sending word to the different parishes of the particular need which each is expected to supply. Mrs. C. O. Lucas, of Toronto, is the secretary-treasurer for the Toronto diocese, and it was at her request that the Auxiliaries of the parish of Millbrook and Cavan prepared the bale this year for the Indian girl at the MacKay School.

Y. P. S. Programme.

The boys of the Tuxis' Square had charge of the programme at the Young People's Society on Monday evening, Nelles Rowland being in the chair.

The attendance was unusually large, giving evidence of the popularity of the new plan of conducting the meetings each week when a different organization is responsible each time for the programme presented.

Following the opening devotional period, readings were given by Lawrence Rowland and Bruce Freelove, the subjects being of a missionary character and bringing items of interest from the enlarged field which the United Church now has under its supervision.

A recreational period was thoroughly enjoyed at the close of the regular service, a number of contests having been arranged which provided opportunity for everyone present to take an active part.

The Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group has charge next Monday evening, and will present a series of slides, "Indians of Our Dominion." Everyone is welcome at the Monday night gatherings.

Miss Mary Pitt is in Toronto this week, Miss May Byam taking her place in Burnham Bros. store during her absence.

Mrs. J. Gray and son, Mr. Frank Gray, motored to Orono on Thursday, visiting her daughter, Miss G. Gray, who has re-opened her millinery business at that town for the spring and summer season.

Mrs. F. P. Johnston went to Toronto last week and is visiting her daughters in that city.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. J. McKnight attended the meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Cobourg Presbyterial, held in Trinity United Church, Cobourg, on Tuesday. There were three sessions and as organization was being effected for the first time since Union, the gathering was largely of a business character.

Miss Gertrude Gray, of Orono, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gray.

Mr. A. Johnston entertained a few friends at his home, Fallis Line, on Sunday evening, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Richards, Misses Phyllis Richards and Elizabeth Russell, Messrs. N. E. Church and Gordon Reynolds.

A social evening will be held, following the regular business session of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, on Tuesday, April 26. All members are urged to attend as important business must receive attention.

TRAVEL EASIER.

Prospectors To Come Out From Red Lake By Water.

PORT ARTHUR, April 22 (Canadian Press).—The prospectors who braved the hardships of the long trail into Red Lake gold fields will soon be making their way back by the easier method of water transportation, according to George Wardrope, manager of the Red Lake Transportation Company, who is visiting here today. The winter transportation season in Red Lake district has ended, and the summer season will open some time towards the middle of May, when motor boats and canoes will be the principal method of travel.

GRAIN GROWERS' OFFER REFUSED

Manitoba Wheat Pool Declines Proposed Elevator Arrangement.

POOL WOULD BUY.

WINNIPEG, April 23 (Canadian Press).—The Manitoba wheat pool has declined the offer made by the United Grain Growers for a working arrangement in respect of the elevators owned by the two organizations, according to information secured here Thursday.

A counter proposal has been made by the pool officials, which calls for the leasing or purchase of the elevator facilities of the United Grain Growers in the province at a price to be fixed by arbitrafion. In case of purchase, the pool is ready to make an initial payment "not exceeding" $250,000.

The reply of the U.G.G. is requested by the pool for discussion at the annual meeting in July.

In declining the offer of a working arrangement between the two organizations, as submitted by Hon. T. A. Crerar, president of the U.G.G., the wheat board executive adopted a resolution, stating:

"In our opinion the United Grain Growers, Ltd., and the Manitoba wheat pool represent two systems of marketing so fundamentally different as to render amalgamation impossible."

Under the plan submitted by Mr. Crerar a subsidiary company would have been formed with an equal number of directors from the pool and U.G.G. which would have operated all elevators owned in Manitoba by the two rganizations. The U.G.G. also promised certain terminal facilities.

Y.M.C.A. DISPLAY OF HIGH ORDER

Splendid Drills and Entertainment Given By Boys Of All Ages.

REPEAT TO-NIGHT.

One of the finest displays ever witnessed by the citizens of Peterborough was put on in the Y.M.C.A. last night by the young athletes of this city.

The work on the parallel bars, the long horse and the tumbling are worthy of special mention. Each evening a special prize is given to the junior who goes the highest in the high jump and last night the prize was won by Jack Wolstenholm. The four clowns put on several interesting skits one of which was a surgical operation on one of their number which was performed behind a curtain with a spot light fixed on the scene of the operation.

All the work showed much hard training on the part of the pupils and instructors. The ladder pyramids by the seniors was very interesting to watch as was "True to Life" put on by two of the juniors in which they showed the different athletic fields of the Y.M.C.A.

A seven piece orchestra supplied the music throughout the evening and between the different numbers the clowns would put on a show. Th same program will be put on tonight and it is hoped that the attendance will be larger as the display is well worth the price of the ticket.

The program was as follows:

Opening number by the orchestra; Class work by juniors and beginners; Parallel bars, by the leaders; Wand drill, by the intermediates; High bar, by the intermediates and seiniors; Games, by the beginners; Long horse, by the intermediates; True to life, by Barclay McKone and Rayburn Cooke; Tumbling, by the class; Ladder pyramides, by the leaders; Grand finale, by the massed classes.

LARGE PAPER MILL FOR PORT ARTHUR

Thunder Bay Company's Project Looms Bigger.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., April 23—Canadian Press. — By reason of a change in the construction program of the Thunder Bay Paper Company, Port Arthur is assured of a much larger plant than at first intended by the concern as detailed in a resolution, passed at a special meeting of the city council; the company is negotiating for the purchase of 100 acres of land in the Strathcona addition on which to erect the new plant.

The new plans call for the construction of a 400 ton newsprint mill to be in operation before January 1, 1931, and to employ 750 men, in place of the 200 ton mill decided on at the commencement of the year.

The company finds the present site adjacent to Current River Park, not adequate to provide for the future extensions under consideration, and, therefore, has decided to build on the Strathcona property directly east of the Provincial Mills plant.

Increased Staff Starts Expansion

Not in years has an event of the importance of the H. Le Brun Co. Expansion Sale been announced. This long established and deservedly popular Men's Clothing store has maintained a conservative attitude of dignified reliability that has kept its volume of business on a substantial basis. Just recently Mr. W. Merrell, for many years one of the firm of Merrell & Meredith, has severed his connection with that establishment and become identified with the H. Le Brun Co. As a sort of celebration of Mr. Merrell's addition to the staff, this drastic Expansion Sale is being launched with a determination to outdo anything of the kind ever presented to the Peterboro buying public.

Get Here First and Get a Dollar Free

The first twenty people to come inside the Store when the door opens at 9 o'clock will receive a ticket good for $1.00 in goods.

Never a Sale Like This

This store has had sales before. The buying public will remember them for very good reasons. They were genuine price reduction events, with the benefit all on the side of the customer. This Sale is vastly different because the value-giving will far outdo all previous attempts. In many cases the customer gets the garment for less than the cloth alone is worth. Be among the first comers and grab some of the cream.

All new Spring Clothing, just in, and including as fine a selection of the Young Man's Spring Suits and Coats as is on the street, are on sale at Expansion Sale prices. Every garment in the place showing a substantial price reduction. No reserve.

Sale Starts Saturday Morning at Nine o'clock with a Bang

EYE WITNESS TELLS OF SHOT

Dr. M. A. Starr Close To Mussolini When He Was Wounded.

CROWD WENT WILD.

NEW YORK, April 23. — (United Press).—Dr. M. Allen Starr, who stood six feet away from Premier Mussolini when the Italian dictator was wounded on April 7, has returned from Europe with a graphic account of the attempted assassination.

"After the shot was fired," the New York physician said, "a complete hush held the thousands for several seconds. The dictator made no sound, but the smile faded and a look of disappointment, mingled with rage, spread over his countenance as the blood gushed from his nose. Not a sound was heard until the crowd saw the blood. Then Mussolini sank slowly backward into the arms of the group which quickly surrounded him. The square went wild. Mingled with shouts of rage were tears. Women sobbed silently and men wept. No one left the square. Rumor spread that the attempted assassination was a Bolshevist plot. If the gendarmes had not rescued the woman who had wounded Mussolini the crowd would have torn her to pieces."

Recalling the demonstration which occurred when the dictator emerged from the Capitoline, where he had been taken after the shooting, Dr. Starr said that only New York's celebration of the armistice approached it.

BAHAMAS MUST BE NOTIFIED FIRST

Of Intention of Call By U. S. Liquor Craft.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press).—The United States Government has been informed that hereafter specified United States liquor patrol vessels may visit Bahaman waters without formal notice, provided a call is first made at Bimini to notify the Bahaman commissioner of their intention. An announcement to this effect was made in the House of Commons yesterday by Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary.

Sir Austen said there was no agreement with the United States to extend the area for operations of United States revenue officers to the Bahamas. The action taken was purely an administrative measure, in continuance of the policy embodied in the convention between the two countries regarding regulation of the liquor traffic.

Dinner—Stuffed pork tenderloin, mashed potatoes, creamed onions, jellied spinach salad, whole wheat bread, canned cherries, cocoanut macaroons, milk, coffee.

Since eggs were served to children under school age for their noon meal no meat is necessary for their dinner. The mashed potatoes, creamed onions and jellied spinach simply dressed with lemon juice and olive oil make an adequate dinner for small persons. Remember that their beverage of milk is also a food and not a habit and mere delight like your coffee.

Baked Eggs Piquant.

Six hard cooked eggs, 1-2 onion, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup cream, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoonfuls minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 cup fine toasted bread crumbs, 1-2 lemon.

Melt butter and add onion cut in shreds. Cook until the onion is a deep yellow. Cut hard eggs in halves lengthwise. Add cream to onion and pour this over the eggs arranged in a well-buttered baking dish. Beat eggs until stiff and add parsley, salt, pepper, crumbs and the juice of lemon. Pour this mixture over contents of baking dish, cover dish and bake in a moderately hot oven until set. It will take about 30 minutes.

This can also be cooked in a chafing dish. The onion is cooked directly over the flame in the blazer, eggs and cream added and the beaten egg mixture poured over. The pan is then covered and set over hot water to finish cooking. When the eggs are "set" the dish is done.

THE FOOD VALUE OF THE BANANA.

In food value and flavor the banana takes its place at the head of raw fruits. It surpasses most vegetables in energy and tissue building elements. Perfectly ripe fruit with cream is an excellent meat substitute.

Long looked upon as just a fruit luxury, people are now awakening to its use as a staple food, raw or cooked. Now cultivated in most tropical countries, the banana comes to us in steady quantity at very reasonable prices and is without waste. This fruit, picked green, lives by drawing its final sustenance from the stalk as it fully ripens. If desired to ripen bananas a little more fully for cooking, do not keep them in the ice box, but in a moderate temperature for a day or so, turning them about occasionally. The original home of the banana is supposed to be in India, where twenty distinct species of the genus are known.

The "claret or red" banana derives its name from the color of its skin. Short and thicker fruit, but not in as great a demand as the yellow variety. In food measurement one medium-sized banana is 100 calories.

Banana Compote.

Remove the skins and cut one dozen bananas in halves. Put in a saucepan a half pound of sugar and a half cupful of water and boil gently for ten minutes, then add the strained juice of half a large lemon or a whole small lemon. Put the bananas in and let them stew very gently in the syrup for half an hour. Choose a wide, shallow pan, so it will hold them all. Then lift them and arrange them in a dish and pour the syrup over them. Chill and serve with whipped cream or serve hot when done with plain cream.

Fried Bananas.

Peel and cut in short lengths and dust lightly with powdered sugar. Have deep fat ready and drop the bananas in and fry a delicate brown. Lift to a hot plate, with a round of white blotting paper on it und dust with powdered sugar.

Baked Bananas.

Peel and lay in a well-buttered pie plate six bananas. Sprinkle with a tablespoonful of sugar, a saltspoonful Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of honey and juice of half a lemon. Bake a delicate brown. Baste with the dish gravy. Serve in the dish they are cooked in so as not to lose any of the gravy in serving.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A LOVELY SUMMER NEGLIGEE.

Yesterday I left the shop a bit early, as Mazie had asked me to go to a late afternoon fashion showing with her.

Madame gave me permission, as she likes to have us keep up on all fashions, those of other salons as well as her own.

It happened that this showing was the collection of a beautiful Russian princess who designs gowns and shows them on her own manikins in her own apartment.

"The princess started on a small scale when she first came to this country and couldn't afford even a small shop," Maizie explained. "Now she has moved into a larger apartment, but still prefers to show her gowns there because of the exclusive note."

I was much interested and asked Maizie what she intended to buy.

"Oh, I don't know," answered that blase young person. "I'd like some pretty Summer frocks, but I shall probably end up by getting something quite different."

And so it happened.

Now, Maizie has a perfect weakness for tea gowns and negligees. If she spent as many hours lounging as she has negligees to lounge in, I'm sure her day would be gone before she accomplished anything. And she doesn't accomplish much.

The apartment was lovely and the showing was in a drawing-room done in green and gold. There were a number of extremely smart-looking women seated about when we arrived. We took our place among them, and very soon the lovely mannikis began to parade back and forth, arrayed in various costumes, from sports attire to lovely filmy dance frocks for Summer evenings.

Then came a group of girls wearing negligees. Mazie took one look and whispered to me

"I'm falling fast. I've got to have one of those negligees."

I watched the manikins a minute and replied

"I'll bet I know which one you fall for."

Maizie raised an eyebrow, and I assured her it ought to be the sea-green. Sure enough, it was. The pleated, rolled chiffon collar and the filmy sleeves were more than she could resist.

A POWERFUL NEW ANAESTHETIC

The invention of efficient and harmless narcotics for anaesthesia and pain afleviation is one of the most important tasks of modern science. Recently Dr. Maurice Sandoz of the University of Lausanhe, Switzerland, succeeded in producing a substance called "tricaine," which, it is claimed, is remarkable for its rapid narcotic effects. On cold blooded creatures, such as fishes, frogs or salamanders, two to six minutes in a one-tenth per cent solution of tricaine induces total insensibility.

A solution of tricaine diluted beyond 10 per cent will reduce the rate of cell division in animal organisms, particularly the development of the embryo from the egg. By use of a very weak solution it is possible to keep frog eggs for several weeks without hatching. Untreated eggs left in pure water for the same period would turn into adult frogs.

These experiments, says Popular Science Monthly for May, have suggested a possible use of tricaine in arresting the ravages of old age.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

EARS

(Written for the United Press by Hedda Hoyt.)

NEW YORK, April 22 (United Press).—Pale hot-house ears, that have been shielded from the wind and sun by the ear-concealing bob, have suddenly bobbed into style again. We had almost forgotten that ears were a part of one's anatomy!

Every girl who feels that she is lovely enough to show her ears, or show at least the lobe of her ear, is doing so. Young flappers are painting their pale ear-lobes as red as their cheeks and lips and it gives the ear the effect of blushing at its sudden exposure. A little dancing at the Ritz, painted the entire ear a brilliant pink and with the hair brushed back severely after the true "boyish bob" manner, the effect was youthful, to say the least.

It behooves the matron to show as little of her ear as possible, regardless of style. For the first tell-tale lines of age come just in front of the ear. What looks rather cute on the flapper in her 'teens is apt to prove disastrous to one in her twenties. Very few woman can expose their ears or their foreheads, for that matter, regardless of their age.

Bobbed hair is as popular as ever and it will undoubtedly remain the style for many years to come. One no longer asks the barber if bobbed hair is going out of style because those who have bobbed hair don't really care whether it is stylish or not since it is comfortable, becoming and takes ten years off one's age.

Of course, bobbed hair requires more care than long hair since it must be continually waved and trimmed but in spite of this it is less burdensome than long hair. The head is cleaner and more comfortable.

The permanent wave is so successful these days that even hair that has been dyed or bleached may be permanently waved awithut injury. The average price for permanently waving the entire bobbed head is $20 in New York City. A few women choose to wear transformations over the short, boyish bob, since these match the exact color of one's hair and may be worn for evening purposes. Even one's closest friends are not aware of one's transformation.

30 HOMES WIPED OUT.

By Forest Fires on Long Island.

NEW YORK, April 22.—(Canadian Press.) —Thirty homes and several barns in six Suffolk County villages have been levelled to the ground by forest fires in the Long Island pine belt which raged all last night and was still burning Thursday over an area of more than 200 square miles.

Residents of Medford, Bohemia, Holtsville, Selden, Farmingville, and Centereach, stayed up most of the night with baggage packed, ready to flee if the fire should spread in their direction.

To-day dead game was strewn in the wake of the fire.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

MAKING A CLEAN BREAST OF IT

"Look here, young woman, what are you talking about? Where did you meet Sterns? Get over with it. Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Hathaway, but you don't look as busy to me as you do annoyed. All right, here goes."

I stepped over and laid the bag his son had sent to me on his edsk and then seated myself comfortably beside it.

The young woman secretary started to tell me to get up again and I remarked:

"I am sure that after I get through, Mr. Hathaway, you will have many questions to ask me. Besides I'm not used to be made to stand when I come to do someone a favor."

"Go on," put in Mr. Hathaway impatiently.

But, someway I got an idea that my bearding him in his den had given him an added respect for me. I told him the whole story. I said I came here to get work and be independent. When I reached this point, the old man interrupted irascibly.

"What did you want to be independent for? Couldn't your father take care of you?"

"He certainly could—he wanted to do so—in his own way. But his way was not to let me make one decision on my own account. I must do what he said I should do and go where he wanted me to go, but mostly I should stay at home."

"Well, wasn't that good enough for you, young woman?"

"Not the kind of home I had.

"Oh, yes, I had enough to eat and plenty of clothes—the kind he wanted me to wear—but as I told you before, I could not stand my father's domineering temper. When he found that I was going to leave home anyway, he gave me two hundred and fifty dollars and although I decided in my own mind never to ask him for another penny, yet, I knew if I got into trouble my father would help me out, giving me the devil all the time he did so."

Again the supercilious young woman secretary shuddered, but it seemed to me that the old man's face became a little softer.

TOMORROW: Coming to the Point.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

SANITARY HOUSEKEEPING.

The disposal of garbage is always a vital question and is a daily problem in every household. To establish an incinerator is rather expensive for the small family who really do not need such an elaborate solution. Many do not have the room for the extra apparatus. On a large country place, the matter is readily taken care of. Vegetable matter that decays can be put in deep holes dug in unplanted portions of the garden to be covered in after several weeks of sun drying.

Now for the question of elimination! Tin cans and papers are not garbage. A well cared for garbage can is never objectionable in a kitchen, if emptied daily. A can set on a back porch or even buried nearby and kept covered draws flies, and attracts stray animals. On rainy days it is also rather inaccessible.

If a little dry, slaked lime is thrown into the garbage hole frequently there will be no odor arising from it during the sun-drying process. If melon rinds are cut in several pieces before being thrown out into the hole, they will dry away much more quickly.

The bucket in daily use should be rinsed out with hot water every time it is emptied during the Summer to keep it sweet and clean. Once a week it should be boiled out with soda water.

There are many new types of bucket on the market at all prices. Remember that health waits on your decision as to the care of the waste and do not neglect the matter.

ALL SAINTS' READY FOR BIG CAMPAIGN

High Enthusiasm Fires Members and Friends in Drive For $20,000.

One member of All Saints' Anglican Church has promised to give $1,000 toward the reduction of the church debt if the congregation succeeds in raising $10,000.

That is the spirit that is animating the members of the church in the Semi-Jubilee Forward Movement. The whole congregation is fired with enthusiasm for the rally, recognizing the wisdom of wiping out entirely the $15,800 debt with its burden of $1,106 interest every year.

Enthusiasm is contagious, and many people who are not members of the church have pledged their support to the movement. With so united a front there should be no doubt of the outcome, and it is confidently anticipated by those in charge of the drive that on May 16 next when the campaign ends All Saints' will have thrown off the shackles of debt.

A history of the church, with something of its achievements, will be published in tomorrow's Examiner.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

The question of reducing the body to normal lines seems to remain an uppermost one in the minds of women who are concerned with their appearance.

And what woman is not concerned with her good looks

Now, notice that I say "normal lines." I want to stress the importance of normalcy, because I am very much against the goal of so many younger girls particularly—that of attaining a really emaciated slimness.

If these misled young persons would only realize that to overdo the question of slimness is really a grievous mistake! It is not attractive to be bony and thin, and the sooner those who are striving for this state of being realize it, the happier they will be.

On the other hand, it is really too bad to miss being as attractive as you can, simply because you are forced to carry around a few extra pounds in spots where they detract from the effectiveness of your general contour.

This question of being fat in spots presents a problem to the woman who wants to be in proportion all over. If she is fat around the hips, for instance, she may find that diet reduces hips a bit, but that at the same time, it makes her face unattractively thin.

The answer is that some way other than diet must be found. The good old idea of getting down and rolling on the floor is a very effective solution of this getting rid of fat in spots.

Still a step further is the rolling pin, and I am going to tell you here of a way it may be used with success.

If you are fat about the hips, try the following:

Stand erect, holding your chest well out, so the muscles of your stomach and hips are rather taut.

Now, take the common kitchen rolling pin in both hands and roll your hips and stomach vigorously up and down.

When you have done it for some time at the front, roll with equal alacrity at the sides and back.

Keep this up conscientiously for at least fifteen minutes every day. You may have to do it for shorter periods when you first begin, but you can increase the time in a few days, when your muscles become accustomed to the treatment.

Later, you may try ten-minute periods twice a day. This should bring quicker results.

Surplus Weight May Be Massaged Away in This Manner.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

THE 'GUM BOIL'

Your child has come running to you one day—suffering pain—and has pulled aside his lip to let you see an angry lump on his little jaw.

And, since it has just as sore as a boil to touch, you called it a 'gum boil.'

Or, possibly he had not complained of any soreness then, but one day while scrubbing his teeth, you noticed this lump with a little opening in the centre, reminding you for all the world of a miniature volcano.

And from the 'crater,' was running a thick yellowish substance, which you knew to be pus.

Now, what had caused this? Just one thing—a dead pulp.

Nor do you have far to seek for the offender, since usually you will find that the tooth just over this sore is badly decayed or broken down with perhaps just the stump remaining.

Then what should be done? For of course, this condition should receive prompt treatment.

Should the tooth be not too badly decayed, your dentist may think it wise to try to save it: but more often, it should be extracted after the inflammation has pretty well subsided.

Following this treatment, the gum heals over and you congratulate yourself that no harm has been done.

But consider already serious disturbances may have resulted, in that the disease process may have destroyed the permanent tooth germ beneath, to say nothing of the train of evils from the premature extraction of the offending tooth: and from the drainage of the pus into the system during the progress of the disease.

WELL WHY DON'T THEY?

Why don't they, somebody, anybody, ever stage "a delicate, genteel, refined lobster eating contest?" Here's a chance for a Beau Brummel or Lord Chesterfield to show the stuff that's in him! Laurels await he or she who can emerge from a gustatory bout with a lobster, still clean of jowl and yet with plenty of the lobster safely interred. Meanwhile, until someone shows us how, we look not upon the lobster when it is red!

Now they say that roller skating's wicked and the work of Satan! Poor young man trying to do right is canned from his church because he runs an amusement hall wherein the sinful roller skate is permitted to roll. They think, too, do the church elders, that the basketball suits are not altogether respectable. Next thing we know it will be sinful to ride the derby racer or shoot-the-chutes, go in swimming, play tag, or chew gum. Wotta world!

HER BEAUTY

Frauleins and matrons of Germany must wear their skirts at least two inches longer, according to a ukase of German men who complain that the knees and nether limbs of the nation's womenfolk are too plump for such succinct skirts. It is evident that the nation's women folk do not stand on the tips of their toes, stretching upward, then down, about 100 times a day. Guaranteed, they say to make shapely extremities.

HER GOWN!

The follies of fair ladies' dress have long been a favored topic of the male. But man's dress today is a fearful and wonderful collection of meaningless odds and ends. For instance, buttons and slits up the backs of their coats are simply a reminder of the day when knights rode horses and the garment was cut to fit over horse, and to be buttoned when man was afoot.

Ladies' gowns of this season are apt to be utterly untrimmed, depending on odd geometrical line for their effect.

HER TABLE!

The famous enchantress, Circe, than whom there never lived greater lurer, got her man via the stomach route, it seems. Scientists have discovered Circe's recipe which made a man forget all but Circe and her viands. The recipe runs, "red wine, and in it barley-meal and cheese and honey, and mighty drugs withal, of which if a man drank he forgot all that he loved."

Modern Circes might try cheese soup. One-third pound cheese: 1 quart milk; salt and pepper: 1 teaspoon onion juice; 1 tablespoon flour: 1 tablespoon butter; yolk of 2 eggs. Milk, grated cheese, onion juice, salt and pepper in double boiler. Butter and flour rubbed together with little cold milk, added. Beaten yolks put in just before serving. Beat it well.

HER MIND!

If not actually improved, the mind would be vastly entertained by Dame Melba's book of memoirs known as "Melodies and Memories." She tells of singing a tragic aria with Caruso, fighting to repress her giggles as the great tenor squeaked a rubber rabbit in her ear. Tells of "the boys" in the orchestra pit tryingto make the singer laugh by donning white kerchiefs as flowing goatees.

Are Your Nerves On Edge?

But, after taking just a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I was feeling excellent, my backaches disappeared, my nerves were in splendid condition and my general health was improved in every way. YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Every little while we read something which appears to upset all our preconceived ideas.

Indeed, all "knowledge" should be kept in liquid form. Then it can be poured out and replaced by something more recent and something which for the time is more reliable.

Most of the so-called "facts" of life are facts in that they fit in to the other facts. By their aid we are able to explain events and to account satisfactorily for what we see every day.

When we are all settled down and comfortable because we have formed conclusions in certain matters, then along comes somebody who overturns what we thought were established truths.

That is a long lecture to introduce the short statement that small-chested men live longest!

But I know you are astonished at this. Even your doctor friends hold the idea that big-chested, broad-shouldered men are likely to be healthiest. Everybody expects such men to live longer than the flat chested.

At the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health, Dr. Louis I. Dublin made an address on "Body Build and Longevity." In this speech the doctor applied the statistics of the great life insurance companies and promulgated the idea I have mentioned.

All I know about Dr. Dublin's speech is the brief dispatch I read the next day. I assume he has studied the great volumes I once borrowed from his office. These represented the "Medico-Actuarial Report" of the statisticians of the great insurance companies. As I recall it, a half million policies were studied, representing a survey of this vast number of persons with full details from birth to death.

It appears to be a statistical fact that thin-chested men, under "normal" weight, live materially longer than big men, above the average in weight. The thin men live longer even than those of average or normal size.

It is the lack of accumulated fat which gives the skinny chap the advantage. The heart muscles may be replaced by fat, the kidneys and liver may be clogged by it, all the organs are interfered with and weakened by such accumulations. Avoiding these evils the thin man has an advantage.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BOBBY CHATS WITH AN INTERESTING LITTLE FELLOW

When Bobby came upon the little mounds of dirt scattered over the prairie, he stopped to see what they were for.

Soon a little, wiggly nose peeked up from the mound nearest him.

"Well, little fellow, come on out and let me see you," Bobby said in a soft voice. "I won't harm you."

"Certainly not, I know you won't," chuckled the owner of the wiggly nose. "I've seen you too often with Happy Giggles and Squeekee." He came up from the hole in the center of the mound of dirt and sat up on his hind legs very politely. "As a general rule, we Prairie Dogs are very shy. We most always run when we see a boy or man."

"You say you have seen me before," mused Bobby. "Funny, I've never seen you before. You look something like Johnny Chuck, don't you?"

"Well, somewhat," replied Mr. Prairie Dog. "But if you'll notice, I have five toes on my feet and Johnny Chuck only has four. Then too, I wear this light yellowish-brown suit and I'm smaller than Johnny. Some folks think I am related to Mr. Ground Squirrel because I have pockets in my cheeks like he has."

"I'm glad you were not afraid of me," said Bobby. "Do all these mounds belong to you?"

"Goodness, no!" replied Mr. Prairie Dog. "These are the homes of my many friends." He gave a funny little squeak and out of every mound popped a furry head. When they found that everything was all right, they all came out and were introduced to Bobby. "You see, Bobby, we're very sociable; we always live in a village like this. We visit amongst our friends and have good times."

"Now how did they all know it was safe to come out of their houses?" asked Bobby. "Are you the spokesman?"

"Yes, I was on guard," laughed Mr. Prairie Dog. "But when I saw who you were I knew there wasn't anything to be afraid of. Have you ever seen inside a Prairie Dog's home?" Bobby shook his head and Mr. Prairie Dog turned around and invited Bobby into his little doorway. "Perhaps you wonder why we build the doorway in the center of the mounds. That is because it rains very hard when it does rain out here, and by having the dirt piled high around our houses the water soon runs off. That's one reason. The other is that the mound makes a nice high perch for our outlook. We can see all over the prairies and spot any enemy a good long way off."

"Why do you have this little room here?" Bobby asked as they turned into a little room a short distance from the entrance way.

"I call it my 'turn-a-round-room,'" laughed Mr. Prairie Dog. "When I'm on guard duty and hear a noise, I run in here and turn around and run up again to make sure." He showed Bobby his lovely storeroom and his comfy bedroom, then he let him out again into the sunshine.

Bobby stayed a while and chatted with his new friends. Then, bidding them goodby, he hurried back to his aunt's house to tell her what he had seen.

TRUST

What an unhappy hangout this old world would be. How filled we would be with disgust, if never the bright side of thing we could see, and no one had stock in real trust.

What pleasure would come if you doubted all men, and felt every human a cheat? With every transaction, you'd worry again. Would life, after all, be so sweet?

Each man is entitled to standing that's high—at least till he's fallen from grace. The man who ne'er trusts is a queer sort of guy. What fun can there be in his place?

There really is pleasure in feeling each man is honest, straight-forward and true. Try building that feeling, whenever you can. Most men, after all, will come through.

A house is no home unless it contains food and fire for the mind as well as for the body. —Ossoli.

WHERE CONFETTI BATTLES MARK THE MARDI GRAS

It was the Italians who started the use of confetti at carnival times. And their confetti was by no means the gentle shower of paper pellets that we know by that name. They were hard lime pellets and their impact with one's face and one's anatomy was by no means pleasant. Sometimes the sting was relieved by a wrapper of paper around the lime. But usually even that solace was missing.

When the French took over the custom, they made it a gentler and more pleasant affair. Their confetti was made of bits of paper which could cause no pain. And the paper was of many colors so that the falling shower resembled somewhat a strange rainbow.

The custom of throwing confetti on carnival days involves the gayest and merriest of moods. Nobody can be sulky or grouchy with carnival mood in the air. And if you think you can retain your dignity while pounds of confetti are hurled in your face merrily, you should try the experience.

The big feature of the Mardi Gras at Paris is the parade. But when the parade is over the fun begins. Then the confetti battle begins. From the balconies overlooking the streets, comes a great snowstorm of what looks like multicolored snow. The streets are covered with deep layers of it before the day is over. Sometimes the confetti lies five inches deep in the streets.

And down below, where the crowd surges back and forth, dozens of sham battles are taking place. A young girl, passing casually by, suddenly chokes over a pound or so of confetti thrown squarely in her face. She looks up to find the offender, but everybody looks very innocent. She looks more closely and detects a fleeting grin on the face of a man.

Immediately she reciprocates in kind and the battle is on. Back and forth the bits of colored paper fly with sure aim until one of them confesses himself vanquished, or until their supply of confetti has given out. Then one must buy more confetti and continue on one's way until the small hours of the night proclaim an end to Mardi Gras.

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER TWENTY-ONE—THE FAST TAXI WITH THE FAST METER

"My goodness alive!" said Mister Tingaling. "My pocketbook is still as flat as a pancake and as empty as a balloon! I'll never, never, never get rich this way, my dears."

Nancy and Nick felt sorry for the little fairyman, for it seemed as though he was either being tricked out of his rent money or being robbed most of the time.

It was getting very late and the thirty-second day of the month was nearly over.

"Say, Mister Tingaling," said Nick. "Why don't you hire an automobile? You can collect ten times as many rents as you can by just walking around."

"That's a very good idea indeed," said Mister Tingaling. "Do you see a taxicab around anywhere?"

Just then a tiny taxicab with a fairy driver all done up in a big coat and goggles went past.

Then Nancy and Nick and Mister Tingaling all climbed in and sat down.

"Where to?" asked the driver before he shut the door.

"To Mister Mud Turtle's house on the bank," said the fairyman, looking into his big rent-book.

The taxi driver jumped back on his seat and fixed the meter at the side until it said "00."

Then he started off so suddenly it almost jerked their heads off.

In about two jiffies and half a wink they were at the house where Mosey Mud Turtle lived.

And without any trouble in the world, Mister Tingaling got Moseys' rent in fairy money and handed him a receipt and was back in his taxicab.

The meter had changed from "00" to "20."

"Where to now, sir?" asked the fairy driver.

"To Chuck Chipmunk's house in the stone-pile," said Mister Tingaling.

This time the Twins got out. They collected Chuck's rent as nice as pie and gave him a receipt and went back to the taxicab where poor, tired Mister Tingaling was sitting.

"That's fine!" he cried, beaming with joy. "Put it right into the big pocketbook, my dears! I'll soon be rich! Things are going much better."

The taxi meter had changed from "20" to "40" by this time.

Next they went to Charley Otter's house. Charley was at home and had his rent money all ready.

But he lived pretty far away, and by the time Mister Tingaling and the Twins got back to the dogwood tree, the meter said "100" instead of "40."

Then they collected rent at about six more places. And by that time the meter said "500."

"Say," said Mister Tingaling. "What are those funny numbers for, Mister Driver?"

"That's what you owe me," said the fairy driver. "You owe me five dollars in fairy money!"

"Five dollars!" shouted Mister Tingaling. "Why that would take every cent of money I have collected today."

But he had to pay it. As the tiny taxicab rolled away, he turned the empty pocketbook upside down and shook it.

"Not a cent!" he said mournfully.

NOW YOUR WIFE CAN "TURN ON THE ICE"

Electricity or Gas Runs the Newest Refrigerator for the Home.

Extinction threatens the ice man. And all because modern science has made marvelous strides in perfecting small ice making machines for the home or apartment house.

Several types of refrigerating plants for the average home now are available. All of them operate on the same general principle. An electric motor drives a pump that compresses the gaseous freezing agent, either sulphur dioxide or methyl chloride. These gases, compressed and cooled to ordinary room temperature, become liquid, and when the pressure is gradually released in the cooling unit inside the ice box they turn into gas again. In doing so they absorb heat. In other words, they cool the tank in the ice chamber to below the freezing point of water.

The apparatus is automatic and requires no attention except oiling the electric motor at infrequent intervals. And even this small amount of attention has been eliminated by a new invention of two Swedish engineers.

"Turn on the ice!" may become a common household expression, says Popular Science Monthly for May, if this new invention works as well as experiments seem to indicate. For the housewife has only to turn an electric switch or light a gas flame to put it into operation. There are no moving parts. The proper amount of hydrogen, ammonia and water are in hermetically sealed piping of the apparatus.

The heat from the electric heating element or the gas flame in the Swedish apparatus continuously drives off ammonia gas from the water in which it is absorbed in one compartment. The gaseous ammonia is liquefied by the cooling effect of water from the regular house supply flowing slowly through a cooling jacket. Then the ammonia turns into gas again in the cooling tank inside the ice box, where it mixes with the hydrogen gas and is drawn by gravity into another chamber and there reabsorbed by the water. The water containing the ammonia is pumped by thermo-syphon action into the first tank, and the process repeats itself as long as the heat is turned on.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma.

J. P. Baumgartner, Editor and Publisher of the Santa Ana (California) Daily Register, says:—

That a good newspaper is the biggest value in the world at the price. Try to think of something that you can buy for less than a dollar that has as much real value as the delivery at your door of your home newspaper for a whole month.

THAT the newspaper is the only commodity or srevice that costs its readers no more now than it did before the war. Whatever slight increases there have been in subscription rates are more than compensated by increases in volume and improvement in quality.

THAT people are learning that there is no more economic need for two newspapers in a city of less than 100,000 population than there is for two telephone systems or two waterworks or half a dozen electric light plants; and

THAT any journalistic of civic need that ever existed for duplication of newspapers in such towns is fast disappearing with the increasing intelligence and independence of citizens in exercising the right of franchise.

The newspaper naturally is a public functionary, subject by the law of enlightened selfishness to the same regulation, self-imposed, that is imposed by law upon other public service functionaries.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SATURDAY, APRIL 24.

A day of important events is presaged from the lively activities of the sidereal forces. Following the breaking up of a long-congested condition, there may be a sudden upheaval making for a change in environment and opening up the way for new projects. These may be manipulated to good advantage despite certain hazards. The main warning is to guard against fraud or misrepresentation and to affix the signature to any sort of writing with extreme caution. Those in employment are warned, also.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an eventful year, with possible change of environment or travel, with the prospect of new undertakings. They should guard against all manner of fraud and sign all papers with unusual precaution. If in employment guard the position. A child born in this day will likely be talented and shrewd as well as industrious and fond of delving into research of nature's finer forces.

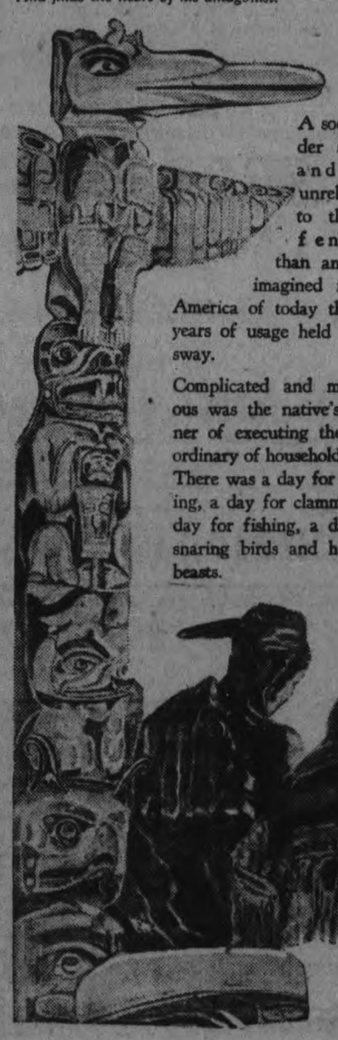
WHEN Captain George Vancouver first viewed the rich lands adjoining the present port of Vancouver, in 1792, the Pacific Coast shores rang with cries of combat—the mystic medicine dance—the friendly feast. A great nation, whose decline commenced before the coming of Cook in 1776, dwelt on the shores of the Pacific straits and islands. There was much warfare, much bravery.

"THE ARCHERS'" FABLED HEROES

Pauline Johnson—the famous Indian poetess—best expresses the war-like characteristics of her people, in her poem, "The Archers":—

Stripped to the waist, his copper-coloured skin
Red from the smouldering heat of hate within,
Lean as a wolf in winter, fierce of mood—
As all wild things that hunt for foes, or food—
War paint adorning breast and thigh and face,
Armed with the ancient weapons of his race,
A slender ashen bow, deer sinew strung,
And flint-tipped arrow each with poisoned tongue,—
Thus does the Red man stalk to death his foe,
And sighting him strings silently his bow,
Takes his unerring aim, and straight and true
The arrow cuts in flight the forest through,
A flint which never made for mark and missed,
And finds the heart of his antagonist.



A social order stricter and more unrelenting to the offenders than anything imagined in the America of today through years of usage held strong sway.

Complicated and mysterious was the native's manner of executing the most ordinary of household tasks. There was a day for berrying, a day for clamming, a day for fishing, a day for snaring birds and hunting beasts.

No reason can be found except that through the centuries—how many, we cannot tell, custom dictated the manner and the Indian with his veneration of tribal laws never questioned.

There was a most reverential respect for women, which is very difficult to understand, as it was the women who did the manual labor, the making of the cedar bark and wool clothing, the fishing and the packing. In some of the tribes, the greatest disgrace was to be miserly—the finest trait, moral cleanliness.

In their immense war canoes, the fierce Haidas of the Queen Charlotte Islands raided neighboring tribes along the Pacific Coast, as far as the Northern tip of Alaska and South through the Puget Sound and Straits of Juan de Fuca. There was constant warfare between the Haidas and the Squamish Nations—the most powerful tribes on the Northwest Pacific Coast. Pauline Johnson, in her beautiful Ballad of "Yaada," tells the story of the Squamish chief who stole the beautiful Yaada—princess of the Haidas—for his bride, and the war that resulted—

THE BALLAD OF YAADA

He was chief of all the Squamish, and he ruled the coastal waters—
And he warred upon her people in the distant Charlotte Isles;
She, a winsome basket weaver, daintiest of Haida daughters,
Made him captive to her singing and her smiles.

But the men were swift to battle, swift to cross the coastal water,
Swift to war and swift of weapon, swift to paddle trackless miles,
Crept with stealth along the canon, stole her from her love and brought her
Once again unto the distant Charlotte Isles.

The last great battle of which there is any record, took place in what is now the world-famous Stanley Park—a great National Park of several thousand acres, located within five minutes' walk of the centre of the cosmopolitan city of Vancouver, B. C.

The Squamish Nations had selected what is now Stanley Park, as their capital site. Their Indian village was located in this beautiful forest on the shores of Burrard Inlet, Vancouver's noted harbor.

DEADMAN'S ISLAND

Their village was attacked by the Northern raiders, the flower of the tribe slaughtered, the young carried away to captivity. A few of the Squamish who had fled to the forest returned to find the village a shambles, their lodges in embers. The dead were buried on the ghost-like island of the Inlet, just off Stanley Park. To this day, it is known as Deadman's Island. And, if you have an imagination akin to that of Pauline Johnson, you can stand at midnight on the shores of Burrard Inlet, with the great sleeping city of Vancouver behind you, and hear what she expressed in her poem, "Dawendine"—

A HAUNTING POEM "DAWENDINE"

You can hear the ringing war-cry of a long-forgotten brave
Echo through the midnight forest, echo o'er the midnight wave,
And the Northern lanterns tremble
At the war-cry of that brave.

Just as the fearless Haida braves swept over stormy seas to war on other tribes, they have been swept aside in the rush of civilization to the West.

Gone are the old ways of the Pacific Coast savage. Gone, too, his traditions—his fearlessness—his fierceness. And it is strange that his very relics are more prized by the white man than by himself.

PENALTY TO REMOVE RELICS

At the last session of the British Columbia Legislature, a bill was passed, penalizing those who remove the totems, canoes and stone carvings from the places in which they are found. It was the Native Sons—descendants of the first white settlers—who fostered and succeeded in having passed this bill.

Like a fantastic fairy story reads the broken history of the natives. Only snatches of it are to be found in the journals of the early explorers — the native legends — only fragments that give us very little idea of the ancient customs, religion, art, of these once mighty people.

Only a remnant of their glory remains. Museums preserve their splendid wood-carving that is said to be the most expert in the world. Of all their arts, this one stands first. The native chose British Columbia Red Cedar for his war canoes, his totems, his lodges. He worked it in a manner of which the world has never seen the equal.

THE "TREE OF LIFE"

Along the North Pacific seaboard grow the giant red cedars that the natives aptly named "The Tree of Life." In the Province of British Columbia, Red Cedars reach their greatest degree of perfection. Soil, proper rainfall and drainage, have combined to contribute to this superiority. They grow usually from three to eight feet in diameter, circumference ten to twenty-five feet, and their height is often one hundred and fifty feet. Some of these trees are centuries old. Nature has endowed British Columbia Red Cedar with a time-resisting preservative. Rot-promoting fungi, destructive insects, torrential rains, scorching suns and penetrating frosts, find no weakness in the defence with which nature has endowed the "Tree of Life."

TREES CENTURIES OLD

One fallen tree in British Columbia was proved, by scientists, to be 4,414 years old. It had lain for centuries, buried in damp earth. Three huge forest giants had grown over its trunk, and yet, a few years ago, when it was found, it was in first-class condition.

A DISAPPEARING ART

The totem poles of the Indian are splendid examples of design, color, heraldry. His hunting lodges were immense, capacious — where dwelt all the family—the sons marrying, only to return to the paternal fireside. His war canoes, sixty to seventy-five feet in length, were capable of transporting forty to sixty braves, or a like number of men, women and children, with all their household goods.

The canoes were scooped from a single immense cedar tree. Gaudy, fearsome carved figures at prow and stern, proclaimed the family and tribe of the owner. Some of the natives decorated and painted their carefully wrought paddles.

Several artists combined to work on war canoe or totem. The latter, it is said, would cost thousands of dollars to be replaced, today—were it possible.

The hideous war masks were awesome creations. The heads of birds and beasts and fabled creatures were carved from cedar, and worn over the face. At the potlatch, the war-dance, the sick bed, they were worn by the medicine men of the tribe.

THE POTLATCH

The Potlatch was an orgy of giving, feasting, dancing, singing. It lasted as long as the wealth of the host permitted. All his savings he gave to his friends, with much pomp, in a few days or hours.

"To make a Potlatch" used to be the aim of every tribesman. It established a man's power. In a way it was insurance against hard times. The Indian who gave a Potlatch was entitled to participate in other Potlatches in his neighborhood.

The great Maquinna, famous Indian Chief of historic Nootka, is still revered there. In his life, which was long and eventful, "he made Potlatch nine times."

DOCILE INDIANS TODAY

Today, the Haidas and remnants of the Squamish Nations, dwell docilely in reservations—guided, helped, advised by agents of the Government. They live peacefully, as if tribal wars, wood-carving, battles, medicine dances, hunting, were events of several centuries ago, and not just a little over one hundred years.

Just a little quip of unkindly fate, that these people—who kept slaves, were cannibals, who terrified for a time the lonely forerunners of the white population—should so lose themselves as a race, a race that would be entirely forgotten were it not for an interest on the part of the descendants of the first white settlers.

FIERCE MASKS FORGOTTEN

If the war canoe has disappeared, the Indian still breasts the waves in his commercial fishing schooner. The fierce masks of the medicine man are seen no more—the dances today by the Indians are the modern foxtrot and Charleston, and the only masks to be seen are the innocuous ones worn on Hallowe'en. Near the cities the trappers of the wilderness are to be found on farms, logging, longshoring, fishing.

One of Canada's most brilliant Indians was a former Haida tribesman. He is Rev. Peter Kelly, of Nanaimo, B. C., and he ministers to white and native on his rounds as an ordained Methodist minister.

GREAT LEADERS ARISING

The Squamish tribe which welcomed Captain Vancouver to Burrard Inlet in 1792, still lives within the shadow of the great city named for that explorer. Andrew Paul, one of the young tribesmen, recently addressed a group of scientists at Vancouver, on Indian ethnology. It is true that leaders of great intellectual ability are rising in the Indian tribes.

PRIMITIVE, UNCIVILIZED

There's tragedy and some humor in the position of being an Indian today. It seems that they are neither wholly savage, nor wholly civilized. They wear white men's clothing, they live in white men's houses, they drive white men's cars — and you will find them cooking in the most primitive manner, beside tiny fires outside their back doors. The kitchen is practically unknown. Unreal, fantastic—are the only words that will describe the sensations of the average person who sees for the first time a Ford being driven through an Indian Reservation, by an Indian—a Ford on which one reads the proclamation that the driver is a salesman for a famous sewing machine! In strange contrast is the manner of living of the Indians in the Northern Interior of British Columbia. These natives live almost entirely on the hunter' kill in winter. They are nomads growing no crops. In summer eating wild herbs, berries and fish.

In these far-off, isolated tribes, witchcraft it still practised. Unfortunate natives believed by their tribe to be infested with devils, are destroyed.

The natives do not understand when they are punished by an unrelenting law. The ways of the white man are ways of mystery for them. Superstition rules in the wilderness, and in the wilderness the Indian is vanishing.

PEOPLE OF WEST COMING TO SEE CITIES AND TOWNS HAVE PART PROVIDING THEIR HOME MARKET

Hou. R. B. Bennett Blames Tariff Stand on American Magazines.

ADDRESSES C.M.A.

E. W. Beatty Says C. P. R. Ready To o-operate With C.N.R.

TORONTO, April 22. Canadian Press. — Efforts to interpret the sentiments of the Prairie Provinces with regard to Canadian development and pressing national problems, and, secondly to indicate some of the country's transportation difficulties, were made here to-night by R. B. Bennett, M.P., for Calgary, and E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C. P. R. respectively, who were dinner guests of the Toronto branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at their annual meeting.

Referring guardedly to the reported demand in the West for tariff reduction, Mr. Bennett suggested that the inflow of tons of literature from the United States, with advertisements of the cheap articles provided under mass production, played a large part in moulding this phase of western thought. There was also the idea held in many sections of the west that St. James street and King street were imbued with the same selfish nations as Wall street. He pleaded, however, for tolerance on the part of the people of the East. The West, he said, was coming to see that the country could not go ahead merely by tilling the soil. The Westerners were gradually becoming impressed with the fact that manufacturing enterprises had a part to play and that the cities and towns they built provided a home market that was the greatest asset to farming communities. They were in fact coming to think in terms of Canada as a whole.

Mr. Bennet warned the manufacturers that a tariff that placed a premium on inefficiency would not be acceptable to the country and that they could expect only a tariff that would enable them to live in competition with the world when operating under modern and up-to-date methods.

Dealing with transportation problems in Canada, President Beatty of the C.P.R. declared that his company was ready to co-operate to the fullest extent with the other great transportation system in order to reduce loss now being carried by the country through the operation of the C.N.R.

As for the nationalization of all the railways in Canada, Mr. Beatty said he hoped that it would never come in his time and he did not believe it would be advantageous to the country. He was not opposed to fair competition, and it was the opinion of his directors that whatever the future held in store, the C.P.R. would at all times receive a fair deal from the Canadian people.

Hon. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, in a brief address, declared that the C. P. R. had been the greatest factor in the development of Canada so far. Mr. Ferguson also put in a word for a tariff that would assure to the workers of Canada an adequate standard of living.

In his address A. T. Thom, retiring chairman of the Ontario branch of the C.M.A., took the government to task for inaugurating lower duties on certain articles without giving the newly-created tariff board an opportunity to investigate the problems attending the production of those articles.

Prices Advance When Discount Rate Is Cut

NEW YORK, April 23. Canadian Press. — A sweeping advance in prices took place in to-day's stock market as a result of a reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank rate of discount from 4 to 3½ per cent. Gains ranged from 1 to 12 points and encompassed a wide variety of issues. Professional bear traders apparently were caught napping by the reserve bank's action. Many of the large blocks of stocks appearing on the tape representing covering of short commitments "at the market."

Fairly Heavy Trading Stocks Show a Firmness

TORONTO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Moderate but numerous advances were made on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, when the list showed firmness in fairly heavy trading. International Nickel, the active leader, touched 37, but closed the morning at 36¾, a loss of an eighth. Brazilian and Brompton each advanced three-eighths, at 89 3-8 and 31 7.8. Canada Bread firmed a half at 61½, Kelvinator a half at 17, and British Columbia Fishing one at 64. Consolidated Smelters sold up to 202 during the session, but closed only a quarter point higher at 200½ at noon. Noranda Mines was five cents firmer at 15.85.

Lull In Wheat Export Prices Receive Setback

CHICAGO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Despite a show of firmness at the start, wheat quickly underwent a material setback in price today. Free selling on the part of Chicago holders led to the decided drop in values, the indications meanwhile point to a lull in the export buying of Canadian wheat.

Chicago opening prices 1-2 to 3-8c up, May (new) $1.65 to $1.65 3-8, and July $1.42 3-4 to $1.43, were followed by fractional gains all around and then by a sudden drop in which the market touched $1.63 3-8 for May and $1.40 7-8 for July.

Corn and oats were easier, sympathizing with wheat weakness, after opening unchanged to 1-4 higher, July 78 1-8 to 78 1-4, corn receded to slightly below yesterday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to 3-8c down, July 42 1-2 to 42 1-2 and 5-8. Later the decline became general. Provisions were firmer. There was a reflection of an upward trend in hog values.

Mining Exchange Easy Teck Hughes Advances

TORONTO, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Marked by light trading and conflicting price movements, this morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange had few features. Teck Hughes was outstanding for strength and activity, advancing another four points at 343. Noranda gained 20 at 15.90, and McIntyre 25 at 25.25. Weaker stocks were Argonaut and Columbus Kirkland, each of which lost a point and a half at 27 and 4 respectively.

Dr. John J. Craig Is First To Sign For New Service

President John J. Craig of the Kiwanis Club was the first person in Peterborough to sign on the dotted line for the new emergency road service and legal defence service of the Ontario Motor League. Kiwanian Harry Huffman, on the executive of the Motor League, secured the first recruit, and the signature was witnessed by Kiwanian Art Blade, President of the Motor League.

The new service provides for assistance to members in case of breakdowns; delivery of gas or oil at market prices anywhere in the district covered by the service; starting cold or frozen motors, where possible; changing tire from rack to wheel for a lady unaccompanied; towing to the nearest public garage if repairs cannot be executed by the roadside; towing a car out if stuck in mud or snow; and delivery of new tires or tubes.

The new scheme is being pushed by the executive of the local branch of the Motor League.

KIWANIS CLUB BOOSTING CITY TOURIST TRADE

Proposes To Distribute 15,000 Folders Describing District Charm.

AT CONVENTION.

Aid of City Council To Be Sought in Preparing Literature.

An effort to boost Peterborough district and Kawartha Lakes as a holiday pleasure ground will be made by the thirty representatives of Kiwanis Club at the International Kiwanis Convention in Montreal from June 7 to 10 next. The publicity committee of the Club last night approved a draft prepared by Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the committee, and this morning the committee interviewed Mayor W. T. Holloway to learn his views.

It is proposed to distribute about 8,000 pamphlets at the convention, under personal direction of the members from Peterborough, and also to circularize every Kiwanis Club in New York, Ohio and Michigan. It is believed that these circulars, going to the business men and executives of the neighboring states, would do a great deal of good missionary work in boosting this ection.

The folder, as it is designed, would give representation to Kiwanis Club, the Trent Waterway Development Association, the Motor League, and the Chamber of Commerce, the text being tastefully set off by pictures of the tourist district of Peterborough.

The immense amount of money left in this sector last year by tourists seems to Kiwanis Club to warrant the effort, and a unique opportunity is afforded by the gathering in Montreal of ten thousand Kiwanians, four-fifths of them from the United States. It is believed that the merchants of Peterborough, and everyone who draws his revenue from this district, will benefit directly or indirectly by the influx of tourists, and for this reason an appeal will be made to the City Council for a grant toward the expense of producing the pamphlets.

While His Worship was, of course, unable this morning to pledge the Council, he promised sympathetic consideration of the request, remarking that he sees a wonderful future for this district in the development of its tourist trade possibilities. A deputation from Kiwanis Club will visit the Council at its next meeting.

CANADA'S HERITAGE MAY FAIL OF FULL UTILITY IF FORESTS ARE NOT SPEEDILY REPLACED

W. A. Peacey, of Toronto, Delivers Splendid Address at Kiwanis Club.

NEW MEMBERS.

Joseph John Fittingly Introduces Jack Comstock and Charles Saunders.

To-day's meeting of Kiwanis Club was marked by a splendid address on forest preservation delivered by W. A. Peacey of the staff of The Mail and Empire, and by the introduction by Kiwanian Joseph John of two new members. There was a good attendance of members, whose ranks were swelled by several visitors. John Seels, immediate past president of the Rotary Club, and Reg. Turner were guests of John Turner; Claude Rogers, new president of Rotary, was the guest of President John Craig; C. Addleman was the guest of Willard Welbourn; and Kiwanian James W. Jubb, of Riverdale Toronto Club, was also a visitor. Isaac P. McNabb, vice-president, presided.

The booster of the day was Ray Scott, who urged Kiwanians to get behind the new arena project and also to support the purchase of a car for the nurse of the Peterborough Health Association. The prizes went to John Allen, Pete Lang and Jim Doran, but because Jim has won so many prizes in recent weeks a fine of ten cents was imposed on him.

Joseph Wearing tendered the thanks of the Club to the speaker of the day. Rev. J. Doug. Paterson, chairman of the Programme Committee, announced that a Ladies' Night will be held on May 14, at which a special programme will be presented. Riverdale Kiwanis Club is sending a party by car, and the District Governor may also be present.

New Members.

In a wonderfully clear and concise address, Joe John introduced two new members, Jack Comstock and Charles Saunders. Explaining the objects of Kiwanis, the speaker said the aim of the organization is to enlarge the vision, deepen the sympathies of the members, and make them ready and willing to accept the ever present opportunities for community service.

Two tiny tots from the Y.W.C.A. appeared to boost the coming pageant, reciting the poem that was printed in The Examiner a few days ago. They had a hearty reception, and John Turner paid fifty cents to the flower fund for the privilege of holding them in his arms while he introduced them to the chairman and visitors.

Save the Forests.

Mr. Peacey, speaking in connection with "Save the Forests" week, gave a very comprehensive outline of the work that had been done by the Government, but remarked that not half enough has been attempted. His address was as follows:

In referring to the annual meeting of the Empire Forestry Association last month, The London Times published a statement to the effect that Canadian forests, if economically managed, and protected against fire, could keep the whole empire supplied with soft woods, but, as things are, the accumulated growth of centuries, is being dissipated, and the continuance of the excessive drain will bring about the disappearance of all accessible stands of soft woods from Canada, within twenty five years.

That this condition of affairs is recognized by our Government is evidenced by the fact that under date of January 20, 1926, by Royal Proclamation, this present week, commencing Sunday, April 18, was appointed as "Save The Forest Week."

As a matter of fact, it has been quite evident for some time that at the present rate of consumption and destruction, unless immediate, adequate, protective measures are taken, it will be but a few short years, until our great forests shall have become a thing of the past.

Our magnificent forests are a great national heritage, a sacred trust, passed on to us by our forefathers, to sustain, not only the present, but future generations.

The value of a farm to its owner is not only in the production of a single crop, but in the ability of the land to yield crops, year after year. Likewise, the value of the forests to a nation is not only in the stately trees that grow there today, but in the ability of the land to yield crop after crop, century after century, for all time to come.

Forests should not be treated as mines are treated, that is to be gouged out once and then abandoned. There is, however, too much of a tendency in that direction under existing conditions.

It has been stated that in Norway one is compelled to plant half a dozen seedlings for each tree cut down. It should be made compulsory in Canada. We have been so prodigal and wasteful in regard to our forests that we find it hard to comprehend why even the pressing necessities of the Great War were not allowed to mar Germany's famous Black Forest.

Let us for a moment consider a few brief facts relative to the contribution of the forests to the commerce of our country, and to the comfort and prosperity of our people.

In Canada we are, at the present time, manufacturing 5,000 tons of newspring paper daily. It requires about 1½ cords of wood to the ton and approximately eight trees to the cord, or a total, for paper making alone, of over 60,000 trees per day—trees that have taken forty years to a century to mature. The yearly output of our mills is worth about 115 millions.

We also exported in 1925, 800,000 tons of ground wood (or chemically prepared pulpwood), for paper making. This used up nearly 10 million trees and sold for 38 to 39 millions.

In the same year the export of pulpwood amounted to 1,431,503 cords, requiring over 11 million trees, and valued at something in excess of 14 millions of dollars. If manufactured in Canada, sold for 65 millions.

Turning to the lumber industry, we find that there are over 3,000 sawmills in Canada, employing some 30,000 hands and having an output of upwards of three billion feet, board measure, per year.

Every foot of railway, from Halifax on the Atlantic, to Vancouver and Prince Ruper on the Pacific, is resting on wooden ties. One telegraph company uses over 50,000 poles in renewals and extensions each year. You cannot mine a ton of coal (which in itself was wood originally) without the use of timber to make the mining operations safe.

The manufacture of fibre silk from wood is, comparatively speaking, an infant industry, but a rapidly expanding one, and one that depends entirely on the forests for its raw material.

The forests are Nature's reservoir, they regulate drainage, preventing spring floods and summer drought. Destroy the forests and the feeders for our streams are gone. Our great inland waterways would become practically useless to commerce, and our wonderful Hydro-electric enterprises an impossibility. Fish and game would practically cease to exist.

When you consider the interior decorating and furnishing of the modern home or office, and study the beautiful effects obtained with walnut, mahogany, oak, maple, etc., you wonder how a people could get along without it.

With the growing scarcity of wood, however (which Nature intended should be inexhaustible), metals and other materials (which are exhaustible) are already being used as substitutes.

Generally speaking, however, when we first come into the world, we are laid aside in a wooden cradle or cot, bed or basinette, and when we pass out to the great Beyond, our remains are again laid away in a wooden coffin or casket, and so, all through life's journey, we depend on wood, the product of the forest, at every turn.

In building a house or chicken coop, a railway coach or a baby carriage, a great ocen liner or a row boat, wood is indispensible.

The question arises as to how are we using (or abusing) this great national heritage, this sacred trust that has been left in our keeping—let me tell you.—

In Canada, over 600,000 square miles or two-thirds of the great forests we once possessed have already been destroyed by fire, and it has been estimated by competent authorities, that fire and insect pests are annually destroying several times the number of trees that are being cut for commercial purposes.

During the past five years, we have had an average of 6,400 forest fires per year, about 5,900 of which, each year, were attributable to human carelessness.

Notable among the disastrous forest fires in our history is one that occurred in New Brunswick in 1825, which destroyed some 3,000,000 acres. In 1916, in Northern Ontario over 200 lives were lost and 800,000 acres destroyed. The wood consumed in these two fires alone would feed our paper mills, even at the present terrific rate of consumption, for over seven years.

If it is humanly possible, and in the great majority of cases, it is, such tragedies as these, must, in future be avoided.

A single match or lighted cigarette, carelessly tossed away, may at any time, cause a greater conflagration than has been. Thousands of square miles of beautiful trees may be burned to ashes in a few days and the worst of it is, that the very seeds in the ground are destroyed. Furthermore, it is difficult and costly to re-plant a burned area, there being no shade the young trees are burned up by the sun, and, experience teaches, about seventy per cent destroyed.

Conservation.

As to measures of conservation—In a letter received a week ago from Mr. Robson Black, Manager of the Canadian Forestry Association, he says: "It would be a great thing, if in your talk at Peterborough, you would emphasize the superlative importance of educational propaganda, in bringing about a forest conscience in the Canadian people, what the rangers are actually doing, is guarding the forests against the wanton acts of their owners—namely, the Canadian public. The most important need of the day is educational publicity."

Dr. C. D. Howe, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry, University of Toronto, advocates that field men of proved ability, be given greater latitude in the care of the forests, he says that such men would understand conditions better than departmental officials, sitting at their desks, possibly hundreds of miles away. There are, he states, large areas in the Dominion, where the limits of the fire season are set by departmental decision at Head Office, so that if the Lord is so ungracious as to create a danger period, before or after the "official" season, the fires go unattended.

During "Save The Forest Week," last year, while Government officials throughout Canada were preaching forest protection, fires were raging in certain localities, inadequately attended because the "official" fire season had not opened.

Another very necessary measure of conservation is, that on all limits, whether they are private or crown lands, Government agents should mark certain sound trees on every acre that are not to be cut, as, at the present time, after cutting over an area, the only mature trees left standing are the diseased or unsound ones. This policy is equivalent to allowing only consumptives to reproduce the human race, and, unless the policy is changed, our forests will continue to deteriorate. In Sweden, a man may not even cut a tree on his own farm until it has been marked by an agent of the Government.

Having reached a position where destruction and consumption are greater than natural growth, we are now, as it were, drawing on capital account, and I maintain, that, until the situation is improved, all Government revenue derived from the forests should be turned back into forestry work—for instance—the Quebec Government are in receipt of an annual income from their forests of about five million dollars, were this amount spent in protection and to assist natural reproduction and regeneration, it would go a long way towards solving the problem which we are facing.

There should of course, be other regulation of operations, to bring about the utmost possible natural reproduction

The proposed pulpwood embargo, has received a great deal of attention from the public, but, as a measure of conservation, would serve no purpose, as those who advocate it, expect the same quantity of wood to be cut as at present, the only question being as to where it is to be manufactured.

There are those, however, who have given close study to the situation, who are of the opinion that the United States is at present conserving its own pulpwood supplies at the expense of Canada, and that if nothing is done by our Government, the situation will eventually be reversed and Canada will be in the position of looking elsewhere for wood, while the United States will have an abundant supply.

No Decrease.

To sum up.—Notwithstanding all that has been done in the matter of increased expenditure on forest protection and resultant increased efficiency in detecting and fighting fires, owing to the increased hazards due to extension of settlement, tourist traffic, etc., there has been no noticeable decrease during the last ten years in the acreage annually destroyed.

If, however, pressure of public opinion could be brought to bear on the various provincial governments for legislation along the lines suggested, to the same degree, as with reference to the proposed pulpwood embargo, something worth while might be accomplished.

In conclusion may I emphasize the idea that the forests are a sacred trust, and that the present generation is entitled to use only the increment, leaving the capital unimpaired. This thought is very nicely expressed by Guiterman in these words —

Then, though we pass from the land that our Fathers bequeathed us
Mountain and river and wood shall our message renew
This is the land that we loved, oh be faithful our children
Fair was it left to us, fairer we leave it to you.

AROUND THE CITY.

A letter which was carried by the first aerial mail from Seattle to Chicago arrived in Peterborough addressed to a local citizen.

One of the very oldest landmarks in the city is being torn down today. It seems difficult to find out how long the old blacksmith shop at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer Streets has been standing, but one old resident of this city told The Examiner that he was 78 years old and the building has been there as long as he could remember. In a few days a new gasoline service station will be built on this property.

The fire department was called to two chimney fires yesterday, the first at 12.10 p.m. to 29 Rubidge Street and the second at 12.14 p.m. to 149 Rutherford Avenue.

Oft and oft our hearts do wander,
To a grave so far away,
Where we laid our darling brother,
Just seventeen years ago to-day.

Amid pleasures we feel blue,
A smile on your face and a heart-ache—
Aching, and longing, for you.
Friends may think we have forgotten you,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow
Which that smile hides all the while.

PETERBORO CHOSEN BY LINDSAY PRESBYTERIAL W. M. S. FOR NEXT CONVENTION AT FINAL SESSION

Miss E. Dunoon, of Lindsay, Elected President—Demand O.T.A. Efficiency.

MISSION REPORT.

Progress in India and China Reviewed By Returned Missionaries.

LINDSAY, April 23.—The first annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial W.M.S. came to a close Thursday afternoon. Peterborough was selected as the centre of the next annual convention.

A large gathering attended the second session on Wednesday evening, which was presided over by Rev. E. T. Holling, of the First United Church, Cambridge Street, Rev. F. H. McIntosh, assistant pastor, led in prayer for the success of the great united undertaking.

Rev. Mr. Holling, in closing his brief address, said that great results have already come from the unification of the three great churches through the increased equipment and broader vision and he bade the W.M.S. Godspeed in all its activities.

Greetings were extended to the delegates by Mayor Wilkinson.

Messages From Missionaries.

The convention was highly favored by the presence of two missionaries, Miss Marion Coon, daughter of Mrs. Coon, of Peterboro, who was a delegate. Miss Coon is a missionary on furlough from West China. The other missionary was Miss Banks from Central India.

Miss Coon brought a very interesting message from that portion of China which she represents. The missionaries love to think of their homeland, but far greater was their love for the meetings of the missionary mothers. There were many things to discourage the missionaries in their work, still there was so much for which to be grateful. The Chinese girls are so willing and ready to learn and to do, that the missionaries feel they cannot do too much for them.

Miss Banks brought greetings from Central India and expressed her delight at the union of the three great churches for the extension of Christ's kingdom. The natives of India cannot understand the different religions, and often dwell upon the divisions existing.

Central India, said Miss Banks, was a land of great contrasts — majestic palaces, mud huts, flowers, beauty and filth. The people are careless of the existing evils, of which the condition of woman, caste and especially the sad plight of the girl-widow are the greatest. Girls in India marry at an early age, and childhood has a speedy termination for them. Miss Banks described at some length marital conditions in India and the deplorable condition of the woman, especially the widow. A curse is said to be laid upon a man who does not have his daughter married off before they are twelve years of age.

Christ has wrought a great change in the lives of men in India. They realize that He is their only hope. Christ alone will break down the barrier of caste in the country.

The United Church is responsible for three million women, and for these there are only five doctors. These women thoroughly appreciate love and care. Miss Banks teaches in a High School at Indore, where the students do all the work in English. The girls learn to sew and cook with their other studies, and they spend forty-five minutes a day on Bible study. Some of these girls are training for nurses and others for doctors.

Thursday Morning's Session.

Thursday morning's session was presided over by Mrs. A. J. Langford of Peterboro. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Jull, of St. Paul's United Church, Lakefield. Mrs. Jull concluded the exercises with an earnest prayer for the success of the convention.

The election of the officers of the Presbytery resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents—Miss M. Dixon, Peterboro; Mrs. E. B. Weldon, Oakwood; Mrs. J. K. Moore, Peterboro; Mrs. A. Horn, Lindsay.

President—Miss E. Dunoon, Lindsay.

First Vice-President—Mrs. Coon, Peterboro.

Second Vice-President — Mrs. Gould, Uxbridge.

Third Vice-President—Mrs. McIntosh, Fenelon Falls.

Fourth Vice-President—Mrs. McKinnon, Cannington.

Fifth Vice-President—Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, Peterboro.

Sixth Vice-President—Mrs. Walls, of Beaverton.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. H. Morrison, Lindsay.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Morton, Peterboro.

Treasurer—Mrs. Brandon, Cannington.

Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance—Mrs. H. B. Feir, Haliburton.

Secretary Young People's Auxiliary—Mrs. E. A. Bailey, Lakefield.

Secretary for Missions—Mrs. F. Riches, Cambray.

Secretary for Mission Bands — Mrs. Rowland, Omemee.

C.G.I.T. Secretary—Mrs. Harston of Woodville.

Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. Denike, Havelock.

Secretary for Associate Helpers—Mrs. Jull, Lakefield.

Secretary for Missionary Monthly—Mrs. McGillvray, Oakwood.

Finance Committee—Mrs. Brandon, Cannington; Mrs. Feir, Haliburton; Mrs. Rowe, Peterboro; Mrs. Kindred, Keene; Mrs. McLennan, Lindsay.

Nominating Committee for 1926—Mrs. Dr. Irvine, Lindsay; Mrs. R. G. Lawler, B.A., Norwood; Mrs. W. G. Duncon, Lindsay; Mrs. I. D. Campbell, Woodville; Mrs. John, Peterboro.

The officers were afterwards installed by Mrs. Langford.

The delegates to the branch meeting were appointed as follows: Mrs. Lawler, B.A., Norwood; Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine, Lindsay; Mrs. John, Peterboro; Mrs. Edwards, Cannington; Mrs. Prouse, Lindsay; Mrs. Porteous, Peterboro; Mrs. (Dr.) Gould, Fenelon Falls; Mrs. Dudgeon, Sunderland.

The survey of the work of the Lindsay Presbyterial by representatives of the United societies told a story of progress all along the line.

A discussion on the problems of Auxiliaries, Circles, Y.W.I., C.G.I.T. and Mission Bands proved most profitable to the delegates.

The Courtesy Committee thanked all those who had contributed to the success of the convention, to the accommodation and entertainment provided the delegates, etc. It was also decided to send a letter to Miss M. Dickson, of Peterboro, expressing the regret of the Presbyterial at her inability to be present.

Oppose 4.4 Beer.

A resolution in opposition to 4.4 beer and any other attempt made to weaken the efficiency of the O.T.A. was unanimously endorsed. The resolution will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

In bringing the convention to a close, Mrs. Mackinnon of Peterboro said the present was a serious time in the work of the Presbyterial, as they were beginning a new venture. New dangers were facing them. They were united and must learn to get along lovingly together. The dangers and difficulties may be their salvation, as they will lead them to turn to God for help. The challenge gave them an opportunity to develop that which was needed. Talk of the beauty of patience, charity and long suffering, but this would not tone up the fibre of their spiritual being. There was more power in the spiritual realm than in the physical. Power was revealed in the exercise of faith and hope. Jesus took the more quiet way of revealing His power. In order to get this power they must decide whether or not they are keen to do God's will as Jesus did. Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith and self-control will be evidences of God's power.

"Let us be willing," said Mrs. Mackinnon, "to surrender to God and show such a spirit of love that the world will surrender. Think of the privilege of saving even one life! This is the work of the W.M.S."

DR. M'GIBBON LEADS ATTACK ON ROBB BUDGET

Only Clause He Endorses Is Return to Penny Postage.

ATTENDANCE SMALL.

Less Than 40 Members in House During Most of Debate.

OTTAWA, April 23. — Canadian Press. — In yesterday's continued budget debate, Dr. Peter McGibbon, (Muskoka, Ont.) an ardent exponent of Conservative principles in the Commons, declared that the Robb budget reflected the King government's antipathy towards Ontario, for that province's failure to support the Liberal candidates in the last election.

Aside from expressing pleasure over the return to penny postage, Dr. McGibbon had not a good word to say for the financial statement. He denounced it as largely a bookkeeping showing of prosperity, claimed that a man of $25,000 income paid $1500 income tax, instead of $740 as formerly; heralded a deficit next year and declared himself for immediate return to the previous 35 per cent. tariff impost on automobiles.

Supporting him in the day's debate were Hon. Edmund Bristol, Toronto, Conservative, and J. A. Clark, Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard, while on the other side of the argument were J. P. Powden, Liberal, St. Bonaface, A. F. Totski, Liberal, Humboldt, Sask., and John Millar, Progresive, Qu'Appelle, all of whom supported the budget provisions as moves that were definitely in the interests of the common people rather than of corporations and interests.

The Progressive spokesmen, Mr. Miller, declared that ninety per cent. of the common people of the Dominion were in favor of the budget and Mr. Trotzke made a stronger statement, that if the Conservatives in the House would candidly express their opinion they would also approve of the new budget.

Mr. Clarke, Mr. Bristol, and Dr. McGibbon, however, all accused the administration of a breach of faith with the electorate in enacting the tariff change in the face of its tariff board appointment.

The House attendance shrank to remarkably small proportions. When Dr. McGibbon was speaking there were just 39 members in their seats, 26 of them Conservatives. During Mr. Millar's address the number of members in attendance dwindled to 31 of whom 18 were Liberals.

FIRST SESSION OF NEW TARIFF AND TAX BOARD

Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham Hopes To Deal Impartially With All Questions.

READY FOR DUTY.

Commissioners Express Desire To Aid Canada By Their Advice.

OTTAWA, April 23 (Canadian Press).— Meeting Thursday afternoon, the advisory board of tariff and taxation formally constituted itself and announced its readiness to place its services at the disposal of the country. There were present the chairman, Rt. Hon. George P. Graham and both commissioners, Messrs. Alfred Lambert of Montreal and Donald G. McKenzie of Winnipeg, as well as Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, and the deputy ministers or their representatives, of the Departments of Finance, Trade and Commerce, Agriculture, Customs and excise, Immigration and Colonization, Labor, Railways and Canals, and the Income Tax and Statistical branches.

In speaking briefly regarding the scope and functions of the board, Hon. Mr. Robb stressed the hope that its labors would be such as to commend it to all classes and all parts of the country.

Impersonal Attitude

Rt. Hon. Mr. Graham, as chairman of the board, stated that he was entering upon his duties with the hope that he could "Pass up any preconceived ideas as to tariffs and arrive at decisions only after a full, impartial and thorough investigation of the facts." Like himself, his fellow commissioners were trying to forget that they had held any particular fiscal views.

"If we are to be of any real assistance, ours is to be a very serious task," said Mr. Graham. "We must attempt to help to ascertain the proper fiscal policy for Canada we must so work as to make Canada such a place that people will want to come here."

The work of the board would be one of growth, based upon its own efficiency and the regard in which it came to be held by the public and its duties were to advise in respect of the making of new laws rather than in the enforcement of existing statutes.

Seek Impartiality

Commissioners Lambert and McKenzie expressed sentiments similar to those of the chairman, each declaring it his intention to dispossess his mind of all prejudice and work solely with a view to giving fair, just and impartial decisions. Through the chairman, the commissioners expressed the hope that their advisory labors might assist in fostering a spirit of unity and co-operation, not only among the various sections of Canada, but among the various interests—agriculture, industrial, financial, commercial and social.

MISSOURI MOB LYNCHES WHITE

"Swamp Terror" Hanged From Framework of Bridge.

ACCUSED OF CRIME.

GULFPORT, Miss., April 23.—Harold (Doc) Jackson, white, "the Swamp terror," was removed from the county jail at Poplarville, Miss., by a mob of 25 men and hanged to the frame work of a bridge near Pleyaune, according to reports received here Thursday.

Jackson was held for action of the grand jury which Tuesday failed to indict him in connection with the murder of John McClemore and William Mingee, federal entomologists.

The mob gained entrance to the jail by using blow torches on the steel doors, according to the reports. Rushing to Jackson's cell, they bound his hands and feet, tied a rope around his neck and rushed him to the bridge.

Jesse Favre, alleged moonshiner, sentenced to life imprisonment for the double murder, accused Jackson of the crime while on the witness stand.

MISSION REPORT.

Progress in India and China Reviewed By Returned Missionaries.

LINDSAY, April 23.—The first annual meeting of the Lindsay Presbyterial W.M.S. came to a close Thursday afternoon. Peterborough was selected as the centre of the next annual convention.

A large gathering attended the second session on Wednesday evening, which was presided over by Rev. E. T. Holling, of the First United Church, Cambridge Street. Rev. F. H. McIntosh, assistant pastor, led in prayer for the success of the great united undertaking.

Rev. Mr. Holling, in closing his brief address, said that great results have already come from the unification of the three great churches through the increased equipment and broader vision and he bade the W.M.S. Godspeed in all its activities.

Greetings were extended to the delegates by Mayor Wilkinson.

Messages From Missionaries.

The convention was highly favored by the presence of two missionaries, Miss Marion Coon, daughter of Mrs. Coon, of Peterboro, who was a delegate. Miss Coon is a missionary on furlough from West China. The other missionary was Miss Banks from Central India.

Miss Coon brought a very interesting message from that portion of China which she represents. The missionaries love to think of their homeland, but far greater was their love for the meetings of the missionary mothers. There were many things to discourage the missionaries in their work, still there was so much for which to be grateful. The Chinese girls are so willing and ready to learn and to do, that the missionaries feel they cannot do too much for them.

Miss Banks brought greetings from Central India and expressed her delight at the union of the three great churches for the extension of Christ's kingdom. The natives of India cannot understand the different religions, and often dwell upon the divisions existing.

Central India, said Miss Banks, was a land of great contrasts—majestic palaces, mud huts, flowers, beauty and filth. The people are careless of the existing evils, of which the condition of woman, caste and especially the sad plight of the girl-widow are the greatest. Girls in India marry at an early age, and childhood has a speedy termination for them. Miss Banks described at some length marital conditions in India and the deplorable condition of the woman, especially the widow. A curse is said to be laid upon a man who does not have his daughter married off before they are twelve years of age.

Christ has wrought a great change in the lives of men in India. They realize that He is their only hope. Christ alone will break down the barrier of caste in the country.

The United Church is responsible for three million women, and for these there are only five doctors. These women thoroughly appreciate love and care. Miss Banks teaches in a High School at Indore, where the students do all the work in English. The girls learn to sew and cook with their other studies, and they spend forty-five minutes a day on Bible study. Some of these girls are training for nurses and others for doctors.

Thursday Morning's Session.

Thursday morning's session was presided over by Mrs. A. J. Langford of Peterboro. The devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. Jull, of St. Paul's United Church, Lakefield. Mrs. Jull concluded the exercises with an earnest prayer for the success of the convention.

The election of the officers of the Presbytery resulted as follows:

Hon. Presidents—Miss M. Dixon, Peterboro; Mrs. E. B. Weldon, Oakwood; Mrs. J. K. Moore, Peterboro; Mrs. A. Horn, Lindsay.

President—Miss E. Dunoon, Lindsay.

First Vice-President—Mrs. Coon, Peterboro.

Second Vice-President — Mrs. Gould, Uxbridge.

Third Vice-President—Mrs. McIntosh, Fenelon Falls.

Fourth Vice-President—Mrs. McKinnon, Cannington.

Fifth Vice-President—Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, Peterboro.

Sixth Vice-President—Mrs. Walls, of Beaverton.

Corresponding Secretary — Mrs. H. Morrison, Lindsay.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Morton, Peterboro.

Treasurer—Mrs. Brandon, Cannington.

Secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance—Mrs. H. B. Feir, Haliburton.

Secretary Young People's Auxiliary—Mrs. E. A. Bailey, Lakefield.

Secretary for Missions—Mrs. F. Riches, Cambray.

Secretary for Mission Bands — Mrs. Rowland, Omemee.

C.G.I.T. Secretary—Mrs. Harston of Woodville.

Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. Denike, Havelock.

Secretary for Associate Helpers—Mrs. Jull, Lakefield.

Secretary for Missionary Monthly—Mrs. McGillvray, Oakwood.

Finance Committee—Mrs. Brandon, Cannington; Mrs. Feir, Haliburton; Mrs. Rowe, Peterboro; Mrs. Kindred, Keene; Mrs. McLennan, Lindsay.

Nominating Committee for 1926—Mrs. Dr. Irvine, Lindsay; Mrs. R. G. Lawler, B.A., Norwood; Mrs. W. G. Duncon, Lindsay; Mrs. I. D. Campbell, Woodville; Mrs. John, Peterboro.

The officers were afterwards installed by Mrs. Langford.

The delegates to the branch meeting were appointed as follows: Mrs. Lawler, B.A., Norwood; Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine, Lindsay; Mrs. John, Peterboro; Mrs. Edwards, Cannington; Mrs. Prouse, Lindsay; Mrs. Porteous, Peterboro; Mrs. (Dr.) Gould, Fenelon Falls; Mrs. Dudgeon, Sunderland.

The survey of the work of the Lindsay Presbyterial by representatives of the United societies told a story of progress all along the line.

A discussion on the problems of Auxiliaries, Circles, Y.W.I., C.G.I.T. and Mission Bands proved most profitable to the delegates.

The Courtesy Committee thanked all those who had contributed to the success of the convention, to the accommodation and entertainment provided the delegates, etc. It was also decided to send a letter to Miss M. Dickson, of Peterboro, expressing the regret of the Presbyterial at her inability to be present.

Oppose 4.4 Beer.

A resolution in opposition to 4.4 beer and any other attempt made to weaken the efficiency of the O.T.A. was unanimously endorsed. The resolution will be forwarded to the proper authorities.

In bringing the convention to a close, Mrs. Mackinnon of Peterboro said the present was a serious time in the work of the Presbyterial, as they were beginning a new venture. New dangers were facing them. They were united and must learn to get along lovingly together. The dangers and difficulties may be their salvation, as they will lead them to turn to God for help. The challenge gave them an opportunity to develop that which was needed. Talk of the beauty of patience, charity and long suffering, but this would not tone up the fibre of their spiritual being. There was more power in the spiritual realm than in the physical. Power was revealed in the exercise of faith and hope. Jesus took the more quiet way of revealing His power. In order to get this power they must decide whether or not they are keen to do God's will as Jesus did. Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith and self-control will be evidences of God's power.

"Let us be willing," said Mrs. Mackinnon, "to surrender to God and show such a spirit of love that the world will surrender. Think of the privilege of saving even one life! This is the work of the W.M.S."

DR. M'GIBBON LEADS ATTACK ON ROBB BUDGET

Only Clause He Endorses Is Return to Penny Postage.

ATTENDANCE SMALL.

Less Than 40 Members in House During Most of Debate.

OTTAWA, April 23. — Canadian Press. — In yesterday's continued budget debate, Dr. Peter McGibbon, (Muskoka, Ont.) an ardent exponent of Conservative principles in the Commons, declared that the Robb budget reflected the King government's antipathy towards Ontario, for that province's failure to support the Liberal candidates in the last election.

Aside from expressing pleasure over the return to penny postage, Dr. McGibbon had not a good word to say for the financial statement. He denounced it as largely a bookkeeping showing of prosperity, claimed that a man of $25,000 income paid $1500 income tax, instead of $740 as formerly; heralded a deficit next year and declared himself for immediate return to the previous 35 per cent. tariff impost on automobiles.

Supporting him in the day's debate were Hon. Edmund Bristol, Toronto, Conservative, and J. A. Clark, Conservative, Vancouver-Burrard, while on the other side of the argument were J. P. Powden, Liberal, St. Bonafice, A. F. Totski, Liberal, Humboldt, Sask., and John Millar, Progresive, Qu'Appelle, all of whom supported the budget provisions as moves that were definitely in the interests of the common people rather than of corporations and interests.

The Progressive spokesmen, Mr. Miller, declared that ninety per cent. of the common people of the Dominion were in favor of the budget and Mr. Trotzke made a stronger statement, that if the Conservatives in the House would candidly express their opinion they would also approve of the new budget.

Mr. Clarke, Mr. Bristol, and Dr. McGibbon, however, all accused the administration of a breach of faith with the electorate in enacting the tariff change in the face of its tariff board appointment.

The House attendance shrank to remarkably small proportions. When Dr. McGibbon was speaking there were just 39 members in their seats, 26 of them Conservatives. During Mr. Millar's address the number of members in attendance dwindled to 31 of whom 18 were Liberals.

ROBB DECLARE WILLINGNESS TO HEAR ARGUMENT

But Government Will Stand To Guns, He Tells Delegates.

CAUSES UPROAR.

King and Robb Appear Suddenly as Delegates Organize at Opera House.

When the great deputation which came to Ottawa this morning to protest to the government against tariff changes, as applied to motor cars, was meeting in the local theatre just before noon to organize an advance on Parliament Hill, Premier King and Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, unexpectedly appeared on the stage. The premier explained that he had come to welcome the delegates, and to find out the size of the delegation. The railway committee room, in which the meeting would be held, he said, would only hold 500, so he advised that the representatives be selected to attend, and were to be ready with all their arguments, because arguments counted in parliament rather than the size of a deputation.

The audience applauded the Premier and the Finance Minister, but the feeling of the meeting turned to a demonstration of disapproval when Mr. Robb said that while they were ready to hear arguments, the government would stand to its guns, so far as he was concerned, referring to the proposed tariff changes.

This statement started an uproar, and shouts of "So will we stand by our guns," and "You never had to work for a living," "We will go on with our scheme as previously arranged," said the chairman, after the Ministers had left. "Three thousand people did not come here to be turned aside."

The meeting in the theatre was an impressive one. The audience filled every nook and corner, and on the platform were Mayor R. D. Preston, of Oshawa; Mayor Frank J. Mitchell, of Windsor; J. A. Woodward, representing Mayor H. Horsfall, of Leaside; C. N. R. Fuller, City Manager of Chatham; Alderman W. A. Baird and Alderman W. A. Davidson, representing the Mayor and council of Toronto; J. M. Wilson, Mayor of Gananoque; R. C. Parker, Mayor of Woodstock, A. J. Graves, representing the Great War Veterans in Oshawa. W. D. Brill, Mayor of Waterloo; R. E. Trimble, representing the industrial workers of Toronto; F. F. Treleaven, Mayor of Hamton; Alderman J. D. Wright, representing the Mayor and Council of St. Catharines; Hugh Laid Baird, of St. Catharines, representing the G.W.V.A. and Workers; A. T. St. Pierre, Reeve of Ford City, representing the council; W. C. Smith, secretary to the committee; John D. Hastings, Mayor of Merriton, and Johnny Gravers, the worker chosen by the committee to present the petition to the Prime Minister.

Mayor Belh rie of Ottawa, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city, and hoped that the government would find a way to avoid injuring any section of the country.

Mayor "Bob" Preston of Oshawa, impressed upon the audience the necessity that the march to Parliament Hill, and the actions there, be orderly. "The more quiet it is the more impressive it will be; in the interests of our families, our homes, our cities, and our country," he urged them to be careful in this respect.

The meeting unanimously approved of the memorial which was ready for it. The early portion of the meeting and before the speeches got under way was occupied with singing and good natured banter.

LIFE UNDERWRITERS DO HONOR TO INSURANCE

attainment — develop your ability rather than knowledge—the value of things rather than the price—don't put yourselves in the category of persons knowing everything and yet knowing nothing. Having developed your faculties, he said, try to apply them through the channels of feeling, recognizing the fact that while few men have heads, all men have hearts.

Life Membership.

At this juncture, Mr. Boulton, the chairman, called upon His Worship the Mayor to present certificates of life membership in the Life Underwriters' Association of Peterborough to the following veterans who had served the cause in the past and some of whom are still in action—D. Moore, Sun Life; T. W. Robinson, Canada Life; Harry Rush, Confederation Life; and W. H. Hill, Sun Life.

In making the presentation to the "old timers," the Mayor said that while he did not claim to be a brilliant writer of insurance, he had written one policy during his life and the gentleman is still living. He extended the greetings of the City Council to the whole gathering and expressed the hope that all present would live to be as old as the honored guests.

Harry Rush thanked the members of the association for the great honor they had bestowed upon him, while Mr. Robinson said that although he was at a loss to see what was going on, due to his being blind, he was pleased at being able to hear the proceedings. He expressed his pride in having one of the visitors coming up to him and shaking hands and telling him that he had been in his Sunday school class over twenty years ago. David Moore said that life to him had its compensations, and this event was one of them. W. H. Hill, the remaining veteran, was unable through illness to be present.

William Wallace.

William Wallace, Toronto, manager of the sales service department and editor of the Bulletin of the Confederation Life Association, in a witty speech, said "after dinner speakers are born, not made." In his small way, he said, he wanted to pay tribute to the veterans who had received life memberships in the Peterborough association. The speaker stated that he was an old newspaper man, and told of how he used to sit through tiresome meetings, and then away far on in the evening a toast was proposed to "The Press." Never being a speaker, he said, the reply occasioned him much worry, so one day he went to a man who had a great reputation as an after-dinner speaker and was told by him that the first thing he should do was to study his subject and the second thing was to get inspiration and get it quick. The subject of salesmanship had been so eloquently discussed by Mr. Harris that it had been an inspiration to him, he said. The greatest force in the world is an idea which had come into its own, and for many years life insurance was a slow and painful process. There was doubt and failure in the early days, and only lately has this idea come into its own. It has brought to men the world over, he said, a great and a glorious opportunity. Twenty-five years ago there were ten million policy-holders on this continent—today there are fifty-five millions. Twenty-five years ago 150 million dollars was the total sum paid to policy-holders and beneficiaries, while last year the amount was $1,500,000,000. They are tremendous figures to grasp, he said, but last year alone there were $15,400,000 written on this continent. It is undoubtedly the greatest economic force in the world to-day—there is over $72,000,000,000 of insurance in force at present, said the speaker.

"That's what you men are building," he continued, and the point of saturation has not yet been reached—we have a long way to go yet. Life insurance will never be supplanted by any other scheme for the benefit of humanity, and you should be proud that you are in a business that presents such possibilities and a business that is constructive and one that will endure long after you are dead and gone. No man alive to-day will live to see completed the final construction of the structure of life insurance. If as time goes on you individually get a vision of the possibilities of the business you cannot fail in your duties to the companies you represent."

Isaac P. McNabb and J. F. H. Wallace, both past presidents of the local branch of the Life Underwriters' Association, moved a vote of thanks to all those who had contributed to the success of the gathering.

DECISION ON QUESTION UP TO

parliament buildings, to the waiting crowd outside.

Noon saw the parliament buildings invaded by representatives of Ontario business interests that came to protest against the tariff changes proposed in the recent budget statement. The deputation numbered about 3000 and filled all the space in the corridors and lobbies where not held in check by ropes, and overflowed over the lawns.

Mayor Balharrie of Ottawa, who introduced the visitors to the Cabinet in the railway committee room, said it was the largest delegation that had ever come to Ottawa. Premier King and all the cabinet ministers were present. The memorial from the Ontario communities protesting against tariff reductions at once was read by W. C. Smith of Oshawa.

Mayor Mitchell of Windsor then spoke. He said that tariff changes of this kind were bound to injure the Border Cities. Speaking for the largest manufacturers of trucks in Canada, he said the factory would most certainly close down and go to Detroit if the reduction was allowed to stand, It could not exist under the new tariff. The American manufacturer had the advantage under the revised duties because he was being protected. It was unfair that the United States manufacturer should be permitted to ship into Canada under a twenty per cent duty. The men of the Border Cities wanted to stay in Canada, and were willing to compete with the Americans on a fair basis, but this was not such a basis.

J. A. Woodward, representing Mayor Horsfall of Leaside, said that he doubted whether the government realized the far reaching effect of this reduction. Not only would it throw men out of employment, who were formerly in the motor factories, but it would throw those employed in the accessories plants on the streets. The merchant, and finally the farmer, would be adversely affected. "I want it thoroughly understood that were this appeal for the motor manufacturers, I would not be here," Mr. Woodward said.

Mayor Preston of Oshawa, said the size of the delegation should indicate to the government the tremendous importance of the matter. The manufacturers in Oshawa were not bluffers. He thought they were sincere in their statement that the automobile factories would close their doors if the reductions were maintained. The reductions in duty were not going to make the prices of motor cars much lower. If motor cars were a necessity, the sales tax should be removed.

A. J. Graves, speaking for the G.W.V.A. of Oshawa, stated that a large portion of those in the delegation were returned men. They did not come to hold a club over the head of the Government. But they wanted to emphasize the "great tragedy that stares us in the face." Millions of dollars had been spent in trying to re-establish the returned men, and now a great many of them were threatened with disaster. He hoped that the government which had rewarded so many of these men for their efforts in a great cause, would not now sweep away their means of livelihood.

The memorial presented to Premier King on behalf of the various manufacturing cities in Ontario represented in the big delegation which interviewed the Dominion Government to-day in regard to the recently announced tariff changes of automobiles and automobile parts, was as follows:

"The sudden, drastic and unexpected proposal of the Finance Minister as mentioned in his budget speech to reduce the duty on automobiles 41 per cent. and 21 per cent. respectively, fills us with feelings of gravest concern, and if the bill is made effective in its present form, we fear it will have such a disastrous effect upon our respective communities as to seriously impair their financial status, and will impose such a serious burden upon our ratepayers as to jeopardize our present and future prosperity. Kindly permit us to present the following facts:

"1. That the tariff rate of 35 per cent. in operation prior to the introduction of the present budget, was inaugurated about a quarter of a century ago by the Liberal Government, of which the late revered Hon. Sir Wilfred Laurier was leader and Prime Minister.

"2. That it has remained at that figure ever since and has not been disturbed by either Liberal, Conservative or Unionist Government.

"3. That during the life of the preceding Parliament, of which you had the honored distinction of being leader, no change was made nor has any notice been given of such contemplated reduction.

"4. That during this twenty-five year period of time the automobile has come into existence, has been developed, and to-day forms the most important link in our economic development; that immense sums of money have been subscribed by individuals and companies and expended in Canada in plant and equipment, both in primary automobile factories and the multitudinous accessory supply concerns.

"5. That the initiation and development of this great industry which is to-day one of the prime industries of Canada, has necessitated the expenditure of vast sums of money by various municipalities in the Dominion in order to properly house, educate and care for the great number of workmen and their families who have been attracted to its centres of activity.

"6. That in presenting his budget to the House the Hon. Minister of Finance said: 'There is pronounced sentiment throughout Canada that the automobile industry enjoys more protection than is needed to maintain it on a reasonably profitable basis and in deference to that sentiment we propose a downward readjustment, etc.'

"We most respectfully submit that when dealing with a complicated question so vital to such a large percentage of the population of the country, that sentiment is not always a wise counsellor or a safe guide, and that a thorough examination into the economic conditions surrounding the entire industry should be made before such a drastic action as is proposed, becomes the law of the land.

"7. In some quarters the opinion is expressed that the automobile manufacturers have a protection of 35 per cent. We believe that careful investigation into the ramifications of this great industry, by such a board of experts as you have suggested, would beyond a shadow of doubt reveal the fact that the real net protection enjoyed by the automobile manufacturers does not now and never has exceeded 12 to 15 per cent. In making this statement we use the word protection in its proper perspective and true manner.

8.—That after the most mature consideration, it is the settled conviction of our respective communities entirely independent of party affiliations that should such a drastic reduction become effective in the manner at present proposed, a staggering blow will be dealt our communities, grievous wrong inflicted upon thousands of working men and great injustice done to millions of invested capital throughout the Dominion as the ramifications of this, one of Canada's primary industries, effects the life of the entire Dominion at almost every point.

"We therefore humbly pray that before the blow falls your Government will refer this entire matter to the tariff board which you have set up in order that all the interests affected may have the fullest opportunity of presenting their views to the said board, so that it may effectively acquaint itself with the entire setting of the industry, and have in its possession expert knowledge as to what effect the proposed legislation would have on the development of our Dominion.

"Our hearts are encouraged to hope for your acceptance of this suggestion by reason of the following facts in addition to others:

The Prime Minister himself when appealing to the electorate of the city of Oshawa prior to the election stated that if the Liberal government were returned to power no act of theirs would in any way injure any industry of the city, and further in referring to the Government's policy for the handling of such tariff matters he on October 19th, 1925, used the following words: "There must be great care and caution used in adjusting the tariff to safeguard the industries of the Dominion. . . The only way to handle the matter of the tariff is that a board of advisors, containing officers of different departments of the Government, gather information that will be of service to the government in determining the tariff policy. In our opinion, this is the only fair and just way to deal with the question."

"We most humbly submit that, if prior to the election, this was the only fair and just way to deal with the question, after the election it still remains the only fair and just way to deal with it. And further, the Government's policy was outlined in the speech from the throne on January 8th, 1926, referring to tariff matters, in the following language, as per Hansard.

"We believe that in the interests of industrial development, every effort should be made to eliminate the element of uncertainty with respect to tariff changes;

"That changes in the tariff should be made only after the fullest examination of their bearing upon both primary and manufacturing industries and that representations requesting the increase or decrease of duties should be made the subject of a most careful investigation and report by a body possessing the necessary qualifications to advise the minister with respect thereto.

"A tariff advisory board will accordingly be appointed fortwith. This board will be expected to make a careful study of the customs tariff, the revenue to be derived therefrom, and the effect of tariff and allied factors on industry and agriculture."

In conclusion we are not appealing for the welfare of any individual or company, but for the life and future of our communities and in accordance with the best traditions of British fair play and justice, respectfully ask that an opportunity be given to submit all the evidence before a final decison is rendered.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CONRAD'S "LORD JIM"

Sea Tale of Coward Who Redeemed Himself Comes to Screen as Paramount Picture

A man's courage and faith, put to the sternest test by hardships confronting those who sail the treacherous seas, is the theme of Joseph Conrad's "Lord Jim," which Victor Fleming produced for Paramount.

In the production the scenes shift from colorful Oriental ports, to ship deck on the burning Indian seas, to the mysteriously frightful jungle of a tropical isle where men live in all the exotic charm of a flowery paradise with women of rare primordial beauty.

The story opens at a parsonage in rural England where Percy Marmont (Lord Jim), bids farewell to his father and goes aboard his first ship.

High-Sea Thriller.

Launched on the high-seas of adventure Marmont is eager to find romance, to meet dangers, impatient to stand in the face of death and defy it. His flaming imagination conjures up vivid pictures of the perils he itches to encounter.

He sees himself saving people from sinking ships, cutting away masts in a hurricane, swimming through a surf with a line—always an example of devotion to duty and as unflinching as a hero in a book.

His first opportunity to display his bravery comes even before the ship weighs anchor. A boat upsets—sailors struggle in the water—a rescue. But Marmont plays no part in it. He is not ready. He will wait for better luck, a bigger scene of action. At last the great opportunity arrives. He is a mate on a rotten ship filled with helpless Chinese passengers. A snag from a submerged derelict—rusty bulkheads leaking water—no hope to repair the hole—hundreds of shipless miles of scorching Indian sea—seven puny life boats for eight hundred human cargo. To make matters worse a typhoon strikes—blackness—slashing winds—torrential rain like the fiends of hell.

Deserts Ship.

Noah Beery, the captain, deserts the ship. Marmont's great moment has at last arrived. Before he had prayed for this test. Now it is strangely unwelcome. He had not dreamed it would be like this—sordid—futile. Somehow his vaunted valour fails him. The sea yawns for his life.

He jumps!

Once in the drifting life-boat with the cowardly captain it is too late. There is now way to turn back. Fate has fixed his destiny of failure and demands his atonement.

"Lord Jim" goes on to tell in a gripping manner just how Marmont goes about redeeming himself—how he falls in love with a beautiful girl on a tropical island, how he meets death heroically and wipes out forever the "stigma" of coward from his name.

Shirley Mason, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton are featured with Marmont in the principal roles of the production, which comes to the Capitol Theatre for a three days' run on Monday next.

AT THE REGENT

A PERFECT CAST IN "THE BARRIER"

Distinguished Aggregation of Players Interprets Rex Beach Story

Overlooking any or all of its other numerous qualities, "The Barrier," by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which opened Thursday at the Regent Theatre, would be worth seeing because of its notable cast, as distinguished an aggregation of screen players as ever presented a photo-drama.

Such players as Norman Kerry, Henry B. Walthall and Lionel Barrymore, have leading roles, while the principals include Bert Woodruff, George Cooper, Marceline Day, Mario Carillo, Princess Neola and Pat Harmon. Rex Beach's famous story of the Alaskan frontier has been indeed given actors whose popularity is in ratio to the popularity of the novel.

Norman Kerry, as Lieutenant Meade Burrell, the haughty scion of an artistocratic Virginia family who is sent to an army post in Alaska, where he meets and falls in love with Necia, the half-breed girl, played by Marceline Day, whom he believes, as does she, that she is all white, gives a splendid performances of a role eminently fitted to his romantic appeal.

True Dramatic Artistry

The sound sense of giving to such sterling screen artists as Kerry, Walthall and Barrymore, the principal roles, is best evident in one of the big emotional scenes of the film, where Burrell is told by Stark Bennett (Barrymore), in the presence of Gale (Walthall), the girl's stepfather, that the girl is part Indian. Here ensues a piece of dramatic artistry that might have suffered in less capable hands, but in this case stands as one of the outstanding performances of the screen.

As the brutal, bloodthirsty skipper of the whaling ship, Barrymore is seen in a characterization unlike anything he has ever before presented to the screen. It is probably the most powerful "villain role" in which he has ever been seen and his admirers will get a distinct shock and thrill from seeing him portrayed as such a vicious scoundrel.

CUP TIE TEAM SET FOR FIGHT

Bolton Wanderers and Manchester United Ready For Battle.

GAME AT WEMBLEY.

LONDON, April 23 (Canadian Press Cable)—The coal crisis, the birth of a royal princess and such other matters of great public interest are beginning to recede temporarily to the background, and Englishmen are turning their attention in real earnest to the most momentous event of the week, the battle that is to be staged at the Wembley stadium on Saturday afternoon to decide the possession of the English Cup. The eyes of the fans at the moment are rivetted on the Lancashire seaside resort, Blackpool, where Bolton Wanderers are putting the finishing touches on their training, and also on Buxton, the health resort in Derbyshire, well-known to thousands of Canadians who recuperated there during the war, where Manchester City, the other finalists are rounding off into condition.

Those teams have already met in a cup-final—as far back as 1904, and on that occasion the honors went to Bolton. Three years ago Bolton again found themselves battling for the blue riband of the world's soccer, and once more they were victorious, defeating West Ham United. On Saturday, Bolton will field the same team that won them the cup three years ago, with the solitary exception of Finney, the left back, who is being replaced by Greenhalgh. Finney is at present in a nursing-home and will not be available for the game.

The Wanderers team then, will be:

Pym, goalkeeper;

Nawroth and Greenhalgh, backs;

Nuttall, Seddon and Jennings, half-backs;

Butler, Jack, John Smith, Joe Smith and Vizard, forwards.

The eleven to be fielded by Manchester City is still in doubt, but the fans here feel that it should be as nearly as possible the same as that which defeated Manchester United in the semi-final at Bramall Lane. The City leave Buxton for the metropolis on Friday night, and the team will be selected on Saturday morning.

Goodchild, goalkeeper;

Cockson and McCloy, backs;

Pringle, Cowan and McMullen, half-backs;

Auston, Browell, Roberts, Johnson and Hicks, forwards.

With respect to Bolton Wanderers line-up it is noted that John Smith goes into centre replacing David Jack who played in that position against Swansea Town in the semi-final, and that Jack takes the position of inside right, replacing Bagget, who will not appear on Saturday.

CLUBS OPPOSE BIGGER LEAGUE

Would Mean American Domination of N.H.L., Say Clubs.

FOUR ALLIED.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23 (Canadian Press) — The Journal says: "Authoritative hockey sources state that there is a definite swing in the National Hockey League to hold the league down to eight clubs, and that four clubs have allied themselves together to this end. It appears there has been a meeting of some of the interested clubs, and a decision has been reached to fight the entry of new clubs. Ottawa and Toronto are openly opposed to enlargement and are said to have convinced two other club owner that expansion at this time owners that expeansion at this time tion of the game."

FIRST WORK OUT OF THE BALL TEAM

Manager Johnston Issues a Call To All Players For To-morrow.

The first baseball practice of the season has been called by Manager Shiner Johnston for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Riverside Park, and all local players are asked to turn out for this work-out. Everybody will be welcome. The warm weather of the past few days has left the park in good shape and if the conditions overhead are as good as today, Manager Johnston's crew should get away on the right foot.

Red Will Be Back at Third Base For Central Leaguers.

PRACTICE SATURDAY.

KINGSTON, April 23 (Special to The Examiner).—A report was sent out from Toronto which stated that Harry "Red" Batstone would play ball with the Toronto Hillcrests this year, but Red stated today that he would be back on third base for the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League.

The local team will get down to its first practice on Saturday, providing the weather keeps warm. The diamond is being put into shape.

BILLY EVANS SAYS.

FRESH ROOKIE

Compelled to pass judgment on a score or more minor league recruits prior to the opening of the season, they are often hard put to reach a decision.

While chatting with Manager Eddie Collins of the White Sox at Shreveport, La., and watching his rookies perform, he remarked

"That fellow is either going to talk himself back to the bushes or into a big league berth.

"I can't quite make up my mind whether I should call him down, tell him his place, or should pat him on the back for his spirit.

"Yesterday I took one of the young players aside, believing no one could hear our conversation, and explained to him why he had made the wrong play.

"Apparently this player has 'rabbit ears,' because I had hardly finished when he broke into the conversation thusly

"'I got everything you said manager and it's all O.K. Why even a busher ought to be wise to that stuff.'

"A little later I made some critical comment to another player and once again I heard the 'rabbit-eared' rookie cut in with the following

"'Tell it to him, manager, we don't want any boneheads on this ball club'."

I guess Collins is still trying to make up his mind as to what disposition he should make of the rather chesty recruit.

CORRECT SOLUTION

Recently Joe Stecher, world's champion wrestler, I believe, ran out of a match with Joe Malcewicz. The heavyweight wrestling title changes so often it is hard to keep up with the schedule.

Since hopping from the ring in Boston and leaving Malcewicz to wrestle himself, Stecher has offered at least a dozen alibis for his failure to go on with the match.

No doubt there was a reason. The promoter of the bout accuses Stecher of quitting cold.

The only way Stecher can clear up the tangle is to consent to a match with Malcewicz. He probably won't.

POPULAR IDOL

Babe Ruth continues to be baseball's biggest drawing card. Despite his reverses of last year he is packing them in at every game as the Yankees wend their way north.

Each year the Yankees make an effort to schedule new cities in the south for exhibition games and the Babe always makes the promoters hang out the standing-room-only sign.

All of which proves there is no one quite like the original Babe. He started the home run orgy and a Babe Ruth circuit swat carries with it more color than a like drive by any one else.

Other home run sluggers are mere imitators with fandom.

FIVE REVERSES

For several years Glenna Collett, national woman golf champion, has held much the same place in the feminine ranks as does Walter Hagen among the men.

Miss Collett has been rated the class of the field among the fair sex.

When so great a player as she is meets defeat in five important matches in the short space of one month, something must be wrong with her game.

Glenna Collett certainly has been a much beaten champion in the southern tournaments during the winter. Possibly she is overgolfed.

JOYCE WETHERED—MASTERY OF SWING

It is the commonest thing to see the greatest players playing shots from the fairway up to the hole with monotonous precision, and yet to find them at times strangely crooked from the tee. Probably two chief reasons exist for this rather perplexing fact. It is quite possible that the ball, when it is teed up, free from direct contact with the ground, is peculiarly sensitive to various spins which arise from any divergence from a perfectly true swing; and to support this theory, it is a noticeable fact that some players when they find themselves hitting their drives amiss, discard the tee altogether and play the ball directly off the ground. The contact may have a steadying effect on the stroke.

Another reason may be that the harder a player hits the more he eccentuates the slightest error in striking.

A lady, or a man with only moderate height, may be rarely in trouble simply because they do not get far enough to matter. But prolong the direction line of their shots and they may soon find themselves in very serious difficulties.

SILVER WEDDING PRESENT GIVEN

Friends Gather on Anniversary To Honor Mr. and Mrs. Hogan.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. O'Rielly, when a number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hogan gathered together to present them with a case of Hampton Court silver, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

The address, which was read by Mr. Frank Kearney, Jr., was as follows:

Swiftly the passing years
Imparted joy to you
Leaving no tears,
Verdant, endearing,
Ever fond memories
Rise for your cheering.

Wedding bells chimed for you
Each bringing its happy dream,
Dreams have come true.
Dear friends you have everywhere
In every heart a prayer,
Now is their prayer for you,
God bless you two.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Hogan:

On this the 25th aninversary of your marriage, we, your friends and neighbors, have come together to offer you our hearty congratulations on the happy event.

Twenty-five years seems a very long stretch of time as we look forward to it, but as we look back it is but as a mist that rolls away, and especially does the time seem short when it has been filled with happiness such as has been yours.

During those 25 years, you have endeared yourselves to us all by your kindness and good fellowship. You have always been good neighbors and true friends, and as a little demonstration of our regard for you, we ask you to accept this gift of silver on this, your silver wedding day.

May the silver of your 25th anniversary, ripen into your golden 50th, in the same peace and happiness you have always enjoyed.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

F. Kearney W. Devlin.

Although taken very much by surprise, Mr. Hogan was equal to the occasion, and thanked his friends and neighbors for their kindness in the following reply:

We feel so overcome by such evidences of friendship and generosity, that we are unable to thank you as we ought, and can only say that we appreciate your kindness more than we can say.

Such a manifestation, however, should not surprise us for you have, on so many occasions, proved yourselves valuable friends and neighbors.

We take this opportunity of thanking you for the many proofs of the true friendship which you have shown to us and to our children, during the many happy years we have been in your midst.

And now this valued gift shall often remind us of you and of this anniversary which you have helped to make so happy.

Thank you again, and may God bless you and reward you for all your goodness.

The remainder of the evening was spent in a pleasant game of cards, after which a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. O'Rielly.

SEVEN NEGROES BURNED TO DEATH

Fire in Philadelphia Tenement Believed To Be of Incendiary Origin.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23 (Canadian Press).—Seven negroes lost their lives here to-day when fire swept through a four-storey tenement house. Six, including four children, were burned to death, while a 45-year-old woman was killed when she jumped from a four-storey window.

The four children, their mother and a man tenant were trapped on the fourth floor by flames which spread swiftly through the structure. The blaze is believed to have been incendiary.

NEW YORK SERVES 7 MILLION LUNCHES

Food Condemned in Year Would Fill a Train Four Miles in Length.

The amount of food consumed in New York City in a single year would fill a freight train extending from Havana, Cuba, to Alaska! With its population of nearly 6,000,000 residents and—to follow a very conservative estimate—of 1,000,000 commuters, every day at lunch time 7,000,000 persons are eating in the largest city on the continent. Fifteen thousand restaurants serve 3,000,000 persons daily.

These figures, says Popular Science Monthly for May, give but a slight idea of the vast quantities of food New York City needs, and the herculean task it faces to safeguard that supply. In a greater or lesser degree the same problems confront every city in the country.

From the time it gets to the terminals until it reaches the table food in the giant metropolis is closely scrutinized by an army of inspectors. They board the trains at the stations and the ships at the piers. They follow it through from the wholesale markets to retail establishments, pushcarts, bakeries and restaurants. For some foods, such as milk and some kinds of shell fish, the inspection begins outside the city. A net of inspectors is spread through nearby States, examining foods at their sources.

Last year these inspectors condemned food enough to fill a train of cars four miles long. Spoiled, adulterated and poisonous foods are quickly discovered by the vigilant health guardians. All doubtful foodstuffs are analyzed in two municipal laboratories, one for detecting impurities and adulteration, the other for examining milk. Both are maintained by the city under its bureau of food and drugs.

Protecting the people from impure milk is perhaps the city's biggest task. About 3,500,000 quarts of milk are consumed daily in New York. Samples of all milk are carefully tested for fat content and purity. The city also consumes 55,000,000 dozens of fresh and storage eggs yearly. Besides these, other millions of frozen and powdered eggs are used for baking. More than a million pounds of frozen yolks and whites come into the city every year from China alone. These are tested by smell and taste, while the whole eggs are carefully candled.

New Yorkers eat 15,000,000 gallons of ice cream a year, or two and a half gallons per person. The fat content of all this ice cream must be at least 8 per cent., a fact determined by weighing samples.

EIGHT out of ten bicycle users in Canada have a C:C:M: That is pretty nearly unanimous, isn't it? There is but one reason — value has been built into them. All through 27 years of manufacturing, C:C:M: bicycles have given unquestioned value. A C:C:M: is beautifully balanced — a thing of speed, lightness and beauty, responding immediately to the minimum of physical effort.

An Easy Riding Bicycle

There is no more easy riding bicycle than the C:C:M: To begin with it is light, though the English seamless tubing gives it more than the needed strength.

As soon as your feet touch the pedals of a C:C:M: Bicycle you know you are on a good wheel. The action of the wonderful Triplex Hanger is so smooth, so firm, so quick and responsive, so full of what motorists call "pep" and "pick-up". The Triplex Crank Hanger is made in a special three-piece design, different to the hanger of any other bicycle. It gives the C:C:M: speed and power. The Hercules brake—"the little fellow with the giant grip" — gives you perfect control in "pinches."

You Don't Have to Wait Under C·C·M· Payment Plan

An examination of the C:C:M: models at the dealer's will reveal why eight out of ten bicycle users ride C:C:M:'s. The dealer will gladly demonstrate the smooth working of all parts. You do not need to wait to become a C:C:M: bicycle user. Be one of the majority bicycle users. Ride a C·C·M·

PREMIER ABANDONED PROMISE OF TARIFF BOARD MADE IN ELECTIONS NO NOTICE TO THE AUTO INDUSTRY

G. B. Nicholson Says Protest of Motor Employees Was Not Anticipated.

BUDGET DEBATE.

Progressive Says No Intention of Injuring Any Industry By Tariff.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press). — Frequent interruptions marked the resumption of the debate on the Budget in the House Friday when John Millar (Progressive, Qu'Appelle) made reference to the deputation visiting Ottawa protesting against the reduction in the tariff on motor cars.

Mr. Millar said he favored the reduction. He had observed many members of the delegation in the course of the morning, but while he believed they were sincere, he wished to point out that the question on the tariff on automobiles had been engaging the attention of many members. For his part, he had decided that the decrease was a proper one "and we have not taken action hastily," he said.

"I thought the Government took action," again interrupted Mr. Chaplin.

"This is the Government," shouted a Conservative member, motioning his hand in the direction of the Progressive group.

Mr. Millar explained that he meant that the Progressives had "taken action" through its support of the Budget. "The time for negotiations has passed," continued Mr. Millar, referring to the request from the morning's deputation to restore the former duty of 35 per cent and refer the question to the tariff advisory board.

"Is this the announcement of the Government?" asked Mr. Chaplin.

Squeeze Out Water.

Mr. Millar said he did not think there was a single member in the Progressive corner of the House who would vote for the reduction if he believed that, after the water had been squeezed out of the stock and efficient methods instituted the motor factories could not continue to operate. When the tariff on agricultural implements was reduced, he said, a number of the implement manufacturers felt that they were injured. They had found that the condition was not as serious as they had anticipated. He believed that the motor car manufacturing industry would continue in Canada even though the reductions went into effect. The argument that the East was paying for reduced freight rates on Western grain, Mr. Millar did not agree with. It semed very strange that if this argument was sound, the best net profits of the railways should be made when carrying grain. Freight rates on other commodities than grain were considerably higher in the West than in the East, he said.

No Intimation Given

G. B. Nicholson (Conservative, Algoma East) thought Mr. Millar's

American Senator Would Make War Illegal in U.S.A.

WASHINGTON, April 24 (United Press). — A proposed constitutional amendment to make all war illegal has been offered in the Senate by Senator Frazier, apparently without a loop hole for defence in the event of an attack from without. "War for any purpose shall be illegal," the resolution said, "and the United States shall not prepart for, engage in, or raise funds for any armed conflict."

The resolution was referred to the judiciary committee.

AMATEUR JOB IS POLICE THEORY OF SAFE THEFT

Provincial Officer Assisting Campbellford Police—Finger Prints Taken.

DOOR PTIED OPEN.

Evidence That Premises Were Familiar to the Burglar.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — Provincial Constable T. W. Cousans of Cobourg arrived in town Friday to investigate the burglary that had been committed early Thursday morning in the garage of Charles H. Davidson, when the sum of $142 was taken from the safe after it had been broken open. Accompanied by the local police, Officer Cousans looked carefully over the premises and took the finger prints that had been left by the burglar when he gained entrance to the building through a rear window. It is now thought that the job was done by one man. Once inside the main building the burglar got into the office, where the safe was, by climing over the low partition that separates that room from the working premises.

The officers have arrived at the conclusion that no explosive was used on the same, but that the visitor gained access to it by drilling a small hole through the door and, inserting a crowbar into this opening, pried the door almost from its hinges. The crowbar used was one which the burglar found in the workshop and this is taken as evidence that he was familiar with the premises and knew just where to lay his hands on everything that was required to open the safe. The cement that was packed in between the outer and inner walls of the door, was not discolored, as it would have been if an explosive had been used.

The police now appear to be working on the theory that the job was done by a local amateur and not by an outside expert as was at first supposed. The handiwork of the novice is in evidence everywhere. An expert would not have left a damaging trail behind him in the shape of finger prints on everything that he touched, but would have covered up this important clue by wearing gloves.

Whoever committeed the burglary was at least fairly familiar with the premises and must have known that on that particular day a large amount of money hd been taken in, but was probably unaware of the fact that Mr. Davidson had taken the most of the day's receipts home with him when he closed the premises for the night.

Copper produced this year in British Columbia will weigh 100,000,000 pounds, says estimators.

Ontario Liquor Officials Seize 200 Cases In Car

BELLE RIVER, Ont., April 24 (Canadian Press) — Two hundred cases of choice liquor valued at $10,000 were seized here by officers from the License Inspector's Department last night. The consignment, consisting of Quebec Liquor Commission varieties was found in a freight car.

OSHAWA MAN IS HURT IN OTTAWA

Falls Down Station Steps While Hurrying To Catch Train.

ONE OF DELEGATION.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The condition of Charles Metcalfe, who was injured when running to catch a train for Oshawa last evening, showed improvement in the hospital to-day. Doctors now believe his skull was not fractured and that he will recover. He is 60 years of age.

Metcalfe, one of the members of the delegation which came to Ottawa yesterday to protest to the Government against the proposed tariff decrease on autos, was hurrying to catch one of the homeward-bound special trains. He slipped on the Central Station steps and fell down half a flight of marble stairs. He was unconscious when picked up, and was rushed to a hospital.

A. G. WATSON HAS SOLD BUSINESS

Campbellford Furniture Dealer and Undertaker Retires To Farm.

FRIDAY HOLIDAYS.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — Allan G. Watson has disposed of his furniture and undertaking business to Dwight Bennett of Brockville, who will take possession on August 1st or earlier if he can arrange his affairs in the town which he is leaving. Mr. Watson has been obliged to give up active work on account of his health, and for the present, at least, will live quietly on his farm.

Mr. Watson has always been one of the most popular and courteous business men in Campbellford. He was born in the Burnbrae district, and lived on a farm there up to about four and a half years ago, when he bought the business which he has just disposed of. Last summer he purchased the Free Homestead on the Hastings Road, near the town limits, as some of his young sons wished to learn farming, and has resided there with his family ever since.

W. J. Dalgliesh, who has been associated with Mr. Watson as salesman and funeral director, and who has been connected with the establishment in the same capacity for over 17 years, will remain with the new proprietor.

Friday Half Holiday.

An agreement was circulated among the merchants of the town on Friday, by J. M. Ferris and J. Linton, providing for the usual half holiday every Friday afternoon, beginning with the first Friday in May, the agreement to remain in force for six months. This is the same compact as that which has been entered into by the merchants for years past.

Some of the business men were in favor of having a clause inserted in the agreement providing that the weekly half holiday be suspended any week in which a legal holiday occurred. Such a clause was actually in the agreement when the canvassers started out with it, but it proved so unpopular with a majority of the merchants that it was decided to eliminate it.

BALDWIN NOT NEAR SOLUTION OF COAL CRISIS AFTER CONFERENCE

Government May Be Faced By Deadlock To Continue Subsidy For Maintenance of Present Wage Scale in Coal Industry.

UNIONS PREPARING FOR STRIKE.

LONDON, April 24. — Canadian Press. — Meetings throughout Friday under the auspices of Premier Baldwin to settle the controversy between the miners and mine owners, with regard to wages and working hours, did not bring a solution. Last night it seemed as though the government might be driven to adopt the line of least resistance, namely, partial continuance of the subsidy to the owners, to enable them to continue the present wage scale as the only alternative to a stoppage of all work in the pits. This belief was held despite the fact that the premier has been untiring in his warnings to the parties to the dispute that they must not expect continuance of the subsidy.

After hearing statements from both sides in a joint conference yesterday which revealed the incompatability of the opposing view points, Mr. Baldwin remarked: "It is quite plain that you have tied yourselves into a pretty knot. What I have to do is to get the knot untied, or something."

The premier then invited the two sides to form small commitees for negotiations with him. These committees presented a part of their case, and the negotiations will be continued on Monday.

Drafting Loan Scheme.

In the meantime the mines department of the government is engaged in drafting a scheme embodying the government's idea of a temporary loan to assist in the organization of the industry, the interest on which would be provided by each of three parties—government, owners and miners—paying one-third.

Definite re-organization would be made a condition of the loan, and this draft, if approved by the cabinet is likely to have an important part in the negotiations.

Emergency Meeting.

A special delegate conference of the miners' federation has been summoned for next Wednesday to prepare for an emergency. This meeting will hear various reports and decide on the miners' policy. Another indication of the serious outlook is seen in the fact that a conference of executives of trade unions affiliated with the trade union congress has been called for Thursday. Such conferences are never called except in the event of a crisis, and should the negotiations break down, it is expected that this conference will decide on the action to be taken to support the miners in their struggle.

ENGLISHMEN GATHER TO HONOR FESTIVAL OF THEIR PATRON SAINT

H. R. H. Kenner, Joseph Wearing and E. A. Peck, M.P., Address S.O.E. Banquet.

TRIPLE ANNIVERSARY.

St. George's Day, Shakespeare's Birthday and Ypres Day.

The anniversary of St. George was celebrated by the local lodge of the Sons of England in the Paragon Hall, last night. About seventy guests sat down at the festive board and in true English style enjoyed the repast. The speakers of the evening were men who hold prominent and responsible positions in this city, but who were born in England.

R. J. Devey played several very much appreciated piano selections and G. Chandler rendered in his usual fine style several solos which were suitable to the occasion.

J. J. Turner occupied the chair and the principal speakers were H. R. H. Kenner, B.A., principal of the Collegiate Institute, Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, and E. A. Peck, M.P., of West Peterboro.

J. J. Turner, in his address, stated that April the twenty-third, was not only the anniversary of St. George, who killed the dragon, but it was also William Shakespeare's birthday, and the anniversary of the Battle of St. Julien, so it was very fitting that the sons of England should be banquetting to their home land on this particular occasion.

A man once said "that a country was as great as her people, but no greater," said the chairman, "and Canada's greatness in the future will be measured by the culture and life of her people. That is the kind of message that people ought to expect on a day such as the one being celebrated."

H. R. H. Kenner.

Mr. Kenner said he was born in England and lived in Cornwall and Devon until he was four years old, when he came to this country with his parents. Since then he has been back to England twice, once in 1898, and again when the late King Edward was crowned.

Mr. Kenner then gave an outline of the patron saint of England, William Shakespeare, and a synopsis of a trip around the world, at which British possessions were stopped at. He then spoke briefly of Scotland, Ireland and England, showing that the great need of England and the world at large was peace. "To-day," Mr. Kenner said, "we stand between two worlds, the grave of the pre-war world, and the world to be, and all Englishmen should put themselves out to bring about an international good will between all nations. Each nation has always helped the other when need arose, as in the last earthquake in Japan, the famine in Russia, and a few years ago, when the city of Halifax was partly destroyed by that terrible explosion; relief was organized all over the Dominion, but the first re-

40 Deer Driven By Wolves To Haliburton Settlement

LINDSAY, April 24.— Mr. John Boyd, of Hindon Hill, Haliburton, is authority for the statement that a few days ago he was privileged to view a sight of a life time—one that would provide a thrill for the most seasoned hunter. He came upon a herd of forty deer quietly marching along the top of a ridge not far from Brady's Lake settlement in the township. There were deer of all sizes, from big bucks down to last year's fawn. Driven out by the wolves, they had come down into the vicinity of the settlement where instinct seemed to say they would be protected.

Mr. Boyd states that the wolves have been making havoc with the deer this spring, due to the crust which has existed on the snow, and it is quite common to hear their howls at night, coming from various directions as they surround their prey. On recently six deer came in full view of Mr. Boyd's home, and played on Brady's Lake until frightened by the dog.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press).—After having receded ten inches during the early hours of the day, the flooded waters of the Rideau River showed a sudden raise late Friday afternoon, and at six o'clock had exceeded its high mark of Thursday night. A whole district in the low-lying portion of Ottawa south is flooded with four feet of water in the cellars, and in some places householders have to use boats to reach dry land.

In the Eastview and Overbrook district conditions are serious, with water reaching the ground floors. In Hull, the sucker hole creek which drains two small lakes north of the town, flooded its banks Friday, carrying away two bridges and doing damage estimated at $2,500. Columbia Park, noted for its baseball diamond, is completely under water.

ITALIAN ARTIST IS AT ST. PETER'S

Sanctuary Walls Being Decorated in Preparation For Centenary Celebration.

Scaffoldings are up in St. Peter's Cathedral for the decoration of the sanctuary walls that is in progress in preparation for the centenary celebration in June and also as a completion of the finishing of the new portion which was put in about three years ago.

The work of decoration of the sanctuary, which will extend to the side doors leading to the vestry, is in the hands of Signor Ilario Panzironi, an Italian artist from New York City, who has had charge of the decorations of some of the finest cathedrals on the continent. It will be carried out mainly in white and gold, with either four or six paintings on canvas included in the general scheme of decoration. Two of these will be quite large and will depict "St. Peter in Chains," and "Christ giving the Keys to St. Peter," while the smaller pictures will represent angels.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Men From Head Office and Members of Field Force Speak at Banquet.

Reasons why there is now ten times as much life insurance in force in Canada as there was in 1899, formed the subject of an address by George H. Harris, Supervisor of the Field Service Bureau of the Sun Life Assurance Co., at the banquet which would up the fourth conference of the agents of the Central Ontario Division. The occasion was marked by a presentation from the agents to the Division Manager, J. F. H. Wallace, and the Cashier, T. H. Taylor, and their ladies, and by addresses by W. Stuart Penny and George Bourke of the head office, by D. H. Moore, and by Mrs. R. A. Armstrong. Mr. Wallace acted as chairman.

The programme for the banquet was unique, being written in the form of a policy, calling for as much as the holder could eat. The banquet was held in the Empress Hotel and was followed by an informal dance. There were about 60 present, consisting of agents and their wives and the staff of the division office at Peterborough.

The First Insurance.

Mr. Harris commenced his address with a short history of life insurance. The first policy, he said, was issued in the 16th Century when 13 men agreed, for a premium of 8 per cent, to pay certain sums, amounting in all to £383 6s 8d, if the holder died during the next year. From this policy arose the title "Underwriter," as the men signed their names under the amounts which they guaranteed, and it also gave rise to the first lawsuit, owing to a dispute as to whether the man's death occurred during the time of the policy.

This first policy was followed by others of the same character, but these were trafficked in, with the price fluctuating according to the health of the insured, until a great feeling of disgust and resentment was allowed. At the beginning of the 18th Century the Amicable Company was formed which carried on business on a sound basis until a few years ago, when it amalgamated with another company. This company accepted anybody between the ages of 21 and 45 in the first years of its existence, and the premium was the same at every age. When the insured reached the age of 45 he was no longer accepted, the policies being simply yearly agreements.

The Present System

The present system of level premiums was formulated by a mathematician, who was refused by the Amicable because he was 46. He used mortality tables made on a German system as a basis for his premiums, and his sytem wa taken up by the Equitable Company, which is still in existence, and which transacts a great amount of business without soliciting any of it and has never paid an agent a commission.

The general trafficking in policies brought the busness into such disrepute that when the present companies began to be formed, in the 1830's and 1840's, the policies were drawn up with so many clauses and

AMERICAN COMMENT ON TARIFF CHANGES

Willingness To Lower Barrier Commended By New York World.

NEW YORK, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Under the caption, "Canada Lowers Barrier," The New York World says editorially: "To American manufacturers who have no factories in Canada the prospect for increased sales there will be welcome, but in a larger sense it is gratifying to note Canada's willingness to lower her tariff barriers against American products at a time when our own tariff policy embodies the quintessence of selfishness."

She Could Hardly Do Her Housework Nerves Were So Bad

Mrs. I. M. Parks, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"I had heart and nerve trouble, and became so short of breath I could hardly do my daily housework, and was so nervous I could not think of staying alone, as every little sound I heard felt like a shock to me.

I Saw MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS recommended, so I tried a box, and after taking the second one I am now feeling like a different woman."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 32 years and has achieved a wonderful reputation for the relief of all heart and nerve troubles.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

ADULLAM. What strange memories of a far-off day are associated with that name. What emotions it stirs within the hearts of those who have some knowledge of its history. Far-removed from us though it may be in a geographical sense, yet in another sense it is near us. It stands as the symbol of certain experiences which are not confined to any land or time, and in these it has come near us at some of the most interesting moments of our lives. But it is not so much of the ancient Canaanitish city of that name that we are thinking now as of the hiding place known as, 'The Cave of Adullam.' If your walls could speak what tales they would tell; for, if it be true that walls have ears, what tales you must have heard.

STRANGE COMPANY

You would tell us of that time when you gave shelter to a king, who, in jeopardy, did not dare to expose himself to the jealousy and power of another king. You would give us a wonderful description of those who were with him in that period of his forced exile. We should learn from you of their peculiarities. And it would be one of the most romantic stories ever told. For we know now that there came to him every one that was in distress, and every one that was in debt, and every one that was discontented, to follow him as leader in reaching out after better times. Driven by force of circumstances over which they had no control, for all of them there was the lot of the exile, the path of the wanderer and stranger, and the fear of death while the love of life was strong upon them. What is it that in some men that is so attractive for other men? Whatever it is it is an element of strength, and makes either for glory or for shame. For you will find it in bad men as well as in good men.

THE CURSE OF A BAD MEMORY

During one of Britain's wars on the continent, a chaplain visiting one of the field hospitals found one man who never would give him a chance to speak. Invariably, when the chaplain drew near to his bed, the wounded soldier would turn away his head and show in the most unmistakable manner that he did not wish any conversation. The chaplain could not understand his unwillingness to speak or to be spoken to. At last there came a day when the dying soldier was too weak to turn away his head at the approach of the chaplain. Seeing the man's condition the chaplain tried to engage him in conversation to which he replied: "Don't waste your time on me. There's no hope for such as I am. Let me tell you something. There came into our company from a splendid home a young man as innocent as such a young man could be. I determined that I would make him as bad as myself. There was no wickedness that I did not try to teach him; and I succeeded only too well. The last words he uttered before he was shot down at my side were as vile as could be; and he had learned them at my lips."

UP AGAINST IT

David's fortunes were at a low ebb. He is a fugitive from the wrath of Saul. The road before him is rough, and it is skirted with a hedge of thorns which is both tall and sharp. What used to be a rose garden is now a desolate wilderness, and where springs of water used to be the ground is parched and thirst-provoking. His native Bethlehem is in the hands of the Philistines and there is something there he wants to get more than anything else at this time.

The narrative has an interesting and suggestive touch. We are told that it was 'the time of harvest.' The sun is hot. There is not a touch of greenness anywhere in sight. He is thirsty and desires a drink. Memories crowd in upon him. In his mind's eye he can see the well at Bethlehem, and there is nothing that he desires so much as a drink of its cool, refreshing water. But lying between his thirst and that well are obstacles that he cannot surmount. What shall he do? He begins to live the past all over again. He is once more a young man shepherding his sheep and with them he has come to Bethlehem's well. He can almost hear the patter of their feet as if it were all taking place now. He is drinking—and the more he dwells upon the past the more intense becomes his thirst, till he cries out, "Oh that one would give me to drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem."

BRINGING BACK THE PAST

How like something else this all is. You cannot limit these words to the cry of a thirst that seeks water that it might be quenched. There is a far deeper meaning than that in his cry. It is like the cry of the present for the return of the past. It is the man of to-day wanting to live over again the experiences of yesterday. Exile that he now is, hemmed in by forces too strong for him to overcome, he remembers how pleasant those old days were as he compares them with the present which seems to have brought nothing but sorrow and care; and he wants to escape into the past.

David is not the only one with such longings. For there is scarcely a life that has not at some time or other wanted to bring back the past. Oh if we just could begin all over again!

Out in the great north-west the immigrant has toiled through the long day. Again and again, although others knew it not, he has been looking and longing. The day has now drawn to a close, but the curtain will not fall over his memory as he sings softly to himself:—

"Across the pine tree forest,
The red sun sheds its light,
But my heart is oh so weary
For one home face to-night
For one home voice to sing to me
The songs of bygone years,
To bring the old loves back again
And wake life's truest tears."

What does it mean? It is David's desire expressed in different words; for the thirst that craves for water is not the only thirst known to mankind. The Psalmist says, "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God." And twice happy the man who has felt this thirst and can now sing:

"I heard the voice of Jesus say,
'Behold I freely gi-e
The living water; thirsty one.
Stoop down, and drink, and live!'
I came to Jesus, and I drank
Of that life-giving stream;
My thirst was quenched, my soul revived
And now I live in Him."

JUST TO BE A BOY AGAIN

The Policeman of the Passing Years says to each of us, "Move on!" and whether we like it or not we've got to obey. But who has not seen the children come from school at the close of the day and failed to find the sentiment of these words surging through his soul!

"Give me back the boy eyes,
The seeing-naught-but-joy eyes,
The pleasure-cannot-cloy eyes,
With which I used to see,
Take away these old eyes,
Give back the boyhood-bold eyes,
The all-that-gleams-is-gold eyes,
That brought such bliss to me.

Oh, to have the clear eyes,
The naught-in-sight-that's-drear eyes,
The never-shed-a-tear eyes,
That served me as a boy,
Give me back the bright eyes,
The every-soul-is-white eyes,
The things-must-come-out-right eyes,
That brought me only joy."

What is it but another version of the cry that was heard that summer afternoon in the long-ago, when the exile king cried, "Oh, that one would give me to drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem."

The sunny skies of romantic Greece cannot silence it in the soul of Byron as he gives to the world words that stir the hearts of Scotsmen the world around:

"Oh for the crags that are wild and majestic,
The steep frowning glories of Dark Lochnagar."

NO ACHE LIKE A HEARTACHE

There are times in the experience of all of us when memory goes back to the earliest scenes of life. We see the old school, and those who played with us in the rosy time of life's young days. We had no worry and were free from all care then; and often wish now that we could go back and be as we were. Again and again we can see the old church, with its memories so sacred and its influences which have followed us down through the accumulating years. What would we not give to be able to go back and live through these days again! But it cannot be! Could you bring back the old surroundings, you would accomplish nothing but pain and disappointment unless you could bring back the child that moved amongst them. And that cannot be done.

"There's a hope for every woe,
And a balm for every pain.
But the first joys of our heart
Come never back again.

Our yesterdays are all done with till the day of judgment. Therefore, if we are wise, we shall make the most of to-day that there may be no vain regrets tomorrow. It will always be true that every sunrise is a birthday, and every sunset a day of judgment. Take care of your beginnings in every venture in life and you will have little cause for lamentation when you have reached life's end.

Allan Fairbairn.

Go-To-Sunday School Day

Is sufficient attention being given to the religious training and development of the children and youth of to-day? Are parents guiding their children aright, or are they shirking their duty? If they are shirking, why is it? Is home life ideal? Are parents trying to save themselves trouble and responsibility?

The establishment of a home brings with it a great responsibility to parents and to their children, to the world around them and to future generations. Schools, churches, Sunday schools and society cannot take the place of the home or assume the parents' duties, but they should be allies of the home in securing a better citizenship and in producing a higher type of moral character.

To give prominence to these questions so that they may receive more careful consideration than is now being given, a day has been set apart throughout the Dominion to be observed as Go-to-Sunday-School Day. It has been felt that in the Sunday school we have an institution working definitely and effectively for the development of moral character and the training of Christian citizenship, and it should have the wholehearted co-operation of every parent and every home. An effort is being made on this day, SUNDAY, MAY 9, to secure a greatly increased attendance at the Sunday school and to enroll a membership which has as its ideal every last member of the community.

During the preceeding week, May 2-9, special attention is being drawn to the religious welfare of little children by the observance of Children's Week, and in this way by visitation of the homes, a Children's Story and Play Hour, and a Parent-Teachers' Meeting, the homes and the Sunday school are brought into closer co-operation.

As the observance of Go-to-Sunday-School Day coincides with Mother's Day, a special program for use in the Sunday school has been prepared, and is issued free of charge by the Ontario Religious Educational Council, to all co-operating Sunday schools. While it is deemed worthy and admirable to pay tribute to the memory of the mothers who have passed away, it is surely desirable that attention be devoted to the mothers of the present and the future, for upon them depends in a large measure the character of the citizenship of tomorrow. Every loyal citizen should seriously ask himself whether he does not owe it to his country, his community, his church and himself to give his support, both morally and financially to the observance of Go-to-Sunday-School Day, MAY 9, and in this way help to make the Sunday School a strong factor in the building up of a better home life, and in creating a higher Canadian citizenship.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

One of the bravest of African pioneers was Francois Coillard. Although he was not so well known as David Livingstone, he worthily followed in Livingstone's steps.

As a little boy in France, Francois started under grave disadvantages. He was the youngest of seven children, and when he was only two years old his mother was left a widow. She was quite destitute. Her farmstead, her lands, her stock were all sold by her husband's creditors when he died. She took a post as housekeeper, and when only six years old little Francois was sent out into the fields to herd turkeys. There was in the village a Protestant pastor's daughter who charmed the village children with stories. Those who could gave their pennies for the work. Francois had none to give. His family was too poor. He often cried bitterly about it.

One day, he noticed his school-master was planting cabbages. He had swept up manure from the road for this purpose. Perhaps if I do it for him, thought Francois, he may give me a copper or two and then I can give something to mademoiselle's collection The school-master seemed to understand something of the boy's purpose. He made his barrow over to Francois and when the work was done, he gave him some coppers. For the first time the boy was able to give to the work of which mademoiselle told. It was a great day for him. He learned in that hour the happiness of giving and in later life wrote about it. "That joy of giving shines in my boyhood amid all the mists of far-off memories with a purity which I still delight to look upon and, let me confess it, which I envy."

The giving of those sous ended in the giving of himself to the service of those less fortunate in the dark places of the earth.

One of the best discoveries a boy or girl can make is that, "It is more blessed to give than receive." No greater joy can be entered into than the joy of giving to help those who are in need.

WHY GO TO CHURCH

1. In this actual world, a churchless community, a community where men have abandoned and scoffed at or ignored their religious needs, is a community on the rapid down grade.

2. Church work and church attendance mean the cultivation of the habit of feeling some responsibility for others.

3. There are enough holidays for most of us. Sundays differ from other holidays in the fact that there are fifty-two of them every year—therefore on Sundays go to church.

4. Yes, I know all the excuses. I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or in a man's own house just as in a church. But I also know as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship.

5. He may not hear a good sermon at church. He will hear a sermon by a good man who, with his good wife, is engaged all the week in making hard lives a little easier.

6. He will listen to and take part in reading some beautiful passages from the Bible. And if he is not familiar with the Bible, he has suffered a loss.

7. He will take part in singing some good hymns.

8. He will meet and nod or speak to good quiet neighbors. He will come away feeling a little more charitaby toward all the world, even toward those excessively foolish young men who regard church-going as a soft performance.

9. I advocate a man's joining in church work for the sake of showing his faith by his work.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE STORY OF CAIN AND ABEL

Text: Genesis 4:1-12.

And Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord.

And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord.

And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel, and to his offering:

But unto Cain, and to his offering, he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.

And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.

And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground.

And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand:

When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 25. The Story of Cain and Abel. — Genises 4:1-12.

By WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

If we would rightly understand the early chapters of Genesis and appreciate their full historical and spiritual significance, we must divest ourselves of much of the modern atmosphere and knowledge, and put ourselves far back in the position of those who were contemplating the beginnings of things, and who were seeking, in an age that had not developed philosophy and science in any high degree, to account for the universe and their own lives, and to develop some sense of the meaning of life and its right relationships.

If we could wipe out from our minds all that has come to us through the teaching of accumulated thought and experience of the centuries, we should be able to understand both the reality and the greatness of the ideas that are expressed in these early records of beginnings in Genesis.

Here, for instance, we have the story of what is represented as the first murder. Out of this comes the strong emphasis upon the sacredness of life. How did that idea of the sacredness of life originate? How should we estimate the spiritual vision of the writer of this record who perceived with such clearness the fact of the sacredness of life?

Many, even in this modern age of supposed progress, do not have this keen sense of the sacredness of life expressed by the writer of this narrative. Science itself, that ought to be the great servant of progress and construction, has been in recent years the handmaid of the most destructive and diabolical purpose. Not only has this been seen in the destructive powers of guns and explosives, but even the very benefits of chemistry have been turned to the developing of poison gasses and destructive agencies.

Life's Sacredness.

A world which sees these destructive forces manifested on such a wide scale in the twentieth century of the Christian era should hesitate before it regards as old-fashioned and out of date a simple record like this that lays such profound emphasis upon the sacredness of human life.

Nor is this the only profound emphasis valuable for modern life that comes to us from this ancient story. Here is the conception of brotherhood and the idea of life relationships that insists that a man is in some sense his brother's keeper. Where did that idea come from?

Was it not a product of this spiritual vision of an ancient saint and seer in a very deep and real sense inspired of God?—Not in a formal, conventional, mechanical way, but in a real and vital way that brought into his own life and vision this noble conception of man's life and man's highest relationship.

Here was a man who had not back of him generations of the teaching of brotherhood, asserting with great clearness and definiteness this principle that lies at the very heart of all true social life and organization. Think of how much the modern world has to learn still from such simple narratives as this in the Scriptures! Such a story emphasizes how in its very earliest pages, the Bible is a book of life in which men may still read and learn.

The voice of thoughtlessness, and selfishness, and greed, and ambition still says, as it said through Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?" This selfish philosophy is today, as it was in that ancient time, too often little more than an effort to cover up the dastardly and abominable nature of its own deeds.

Applying the Story.

Possibly the application of this ancient story ought to be made today in new ways. Certainly the application ought to be made clear enough and widely enough in relation to individual men. Murder and violence are just as damnable things today as they were long ago, but there is need likewise of the social application of this teaching. All the murder and violence of this modern world do not arise from individual action.

There are social customs and practices, social carelessnesses and greeds that are murderous in their affect upon human life. As some one remarked the other day, you can kill a man, or whole families of people, with a tenement in a slum district, or with poison and impurity in the milk supply of a city.

The challenge, "Am I my brother's keeper?" is one that must be brought into the wide range of all modern social relationships, and it is only in a society in which the strong care for the weak and in which all the relationships of life are safeguarded by love and justice that we come far from the spirit of Cain into the spirit of godliness expressed by this ancient writer. He had discovered the sacredness of life and the great means of emphasizing and expressing that sacredness in human society.

Men who know the real sacredness of life instinctively assume toward those who share a common life the attitude of brotherhood.

Nature has given to us one tongue and two ears, that we may hear more than we speak.—Epictetus.

THE ROAD QUESTION.

Although no extensive programme of paving has been contemplated by the City Council for the present year, it is evident that if the motor bus system of transportation is here to stay the maintenance of the non-permanent roads is going to be a serious problem.

In this connection there seems to be a growing conviction of the value of concrete as a road surface, and this for a number of reasons, one of which is that the use of concrete ensures the employment of local labour on the work.

Again, more roadway can be taken care of for the same amount of money as is needed for other types of road construction, and this will be a material factor in a consideration of the whole question.

The advent of heavy motor buses has undoubtedly increased the troubles of the Board of Works, and how long some of our present roads are going to stand up under such traffic is problematical.

Certainly they were never designed for such traffic, and before long the problem may have to be considered in its entirety by the Council.

SHORTAGE OF FARM LABOUR.

The farmers of the district, and doubtless farmers all over the Province, are encountering their usual difficulty in securing the help they need for the season's work that is just opening.

The office of the local branch of the Ontario Labour Bureau has already applications from some 45 farmers for help, and each day adds to the list.

The farmers are offering as high as $40 a month for farm labourers, but there is the greatest difficulty in securing the right kind of help, although there are some 125 applications for work on the office books at the present time.

The city's unemployed are most reluctant to consider farm work, and on the other hand the farmers naturally want experienced men so that it is almost impossible to meet the situation.

How the problem is to be handled might form the subject of investigation by the Special Committee of the Legislature when it is next called together to consider farm questions.

It is of very great importance in the interest of production that there should be no shortage of labour on the farms of Ontario, yet despite immigration and the efforts of the Labour Bureau very little is being done at the present time to remedy the situation.

ADVERTISING PETERBORO.

The publicity scheme announced by the Peterboro Kiwanis Club by which the advantages offered by this city as a paradise for tourists will be brought to the attention of thousands of members of the Kiwanis Club at the annual convention and to Kiwanians in the States from which most of Peterboro's summer visitors come, sounds like a good proposition.

The Chamber of Commerce, the Trent Waterways Association and the Peterboro branch of the Ontario Motor League are co-operating with the Kiwanis Club in this most promising piece of propaganda, which should advertise Peterboro extensively and among a class of people most likely to visit this district once their attention has been attracted to what is offered them here.

Utilizing the Kiwanis convention and making use of Kiwanis Clubs for the distribution of the attractive booklet that is being prepared, the local club will be able to place its publicity matter in excellent hands.

In fact, the field open to such a scheme offers the greatest chance of success.

The tourist traffic has become one of the greatest industries of Ontario, and there is no reason why Peterboro should not get an even greater share of it.

It is all a matter of advertising, and the Kiwanis Club seems to have hit upon a cheap and at the same time most effective means of providing publicity for Peterboro.

THE TARIFF BOARD.

The statement of Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Chairman of the Advisory Board of Tariff, that he was entering upon his duties with the hope that he "could pass up any preconceived ideas as to tariffs and arrive at decisions only after a full, impartial and thorough investigation of the facts" has the right ring.

Unless the members can sit in judgment on tariff matters, unprejudiced by their own personal views on the tariff question generally, the Board is not likely to accomplish the results claimed for it.

A lot of nonsense is talked about the tariff on all sides of the question, and what is needed is a calm, impartial and judicious investigation of cases that come before the Board.

The present controversy over the reduced tariff on motor cars furnishes an example of how useful the Tariff Board may be.

Had the matter of duty on automobiles been considered in all its aspects by the Board with the manufacturers given an opportunity to state their case and the facts carefully sifted, the decision ultimately arrived at would have been accepted by the great mass of the people as fair and just.

There is a great field of useful service for the Tariff Board if it is utilized as it should be by the Government responsible for its existence.

IMPROVING THE LANDSCAPE.

Mr. E. Peter Jones, an English man of business, has been travelling in the United States, and comparing British with American scenery. For one thing, England being smaller, you can see more in a short journey, and the Old Country is richer in scenes made interesting by history. Mr. Jones says:

"The American countryside is naturally plain, and nowhere else in the world that I know of does man disfigure nature so much by his handiwork. One never sees a pretty village in America—instead an assemblage of wooden houses without gardens and without much plan and character, and where industrialism rules dirt and untidiness make a sad mess of things.

"The farm buildings are the result of mass production, like our County Council efforts, but worse. Wild birds are scarce, and our friend the rabbit does not seem to exist. The railways offend by their ugliness, and the main roads are made hideous by motor car and the advertiser. I generally enjoy a train journey at home, but not in America."

This traveller must have been rather unfortunate in his choice of a route through the United States. A run down the Hudson, for instance, shows a good deal of scenic beauty. But no doubt the village architecture and landscape gardening is open to improvement. There is no reason why a cottage should not be beautiful in its way.

Coming to our own country, one need not leave the older settled parts of Ontario in order to find very beautiful scenery. Man can do a great deal to mar the beauty or to build houses and plan gardens that will be worthy of a picturesque setting. A field full of stumps might be cleared and replanted with trees. Few of us can paint on canvas, but most can help to make pictures on land. A white frame cottage with green Venetian blinds and a little garden is always a pleasing sight. It is in the power of almost everybody to be a landscape gardener in a small way, by using paint, mending fences, clearing away rubbish and planting trees and flowers. And the sum of all this will be a beautiful country, even if it lacks cathedrals and castles.—London Advertiser.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL STATEMENT.

Annual railway statements, like annual Government budgets, appear to be compiled by statisticians for statisticians. From the 30 odd pages of figures which constitute the financial story of the Canadian National Railways for 1925, however, the following can be deduced:

From what is called Operating Income, and which, roughly, includes the actual profit on haulage of passengers and freight, the Canadian National earned a surplus of $27,877,342.

From what is known as Non-operating Income, and which include returns from rental of cars and locomotives, as well as income from securities, etc., there was a further return of $8,402,044.

This left a gross income, over and above all operating costs, of $36,279,387.03.

There remain, however, the fixed charges, or, in other words, the interest on what the Canadian National owes, both to the Government and to the public. There remain, also, what are known as non-operating expenses, to wit, hire of cars, rent of locomotives, rent for leased roads, rent for other equipment, etc.

When these two items are added together—interest on debt and non-operating expenses—they total $77,724,151.45—the fixed charges alone being $71,933,617.23; the remaining items $5,790,544.22.

Therefore, to get the deficit for the year, one must deduct the gross income—$36,279,387.03—from the interest and non-operating total of $77,724,151.45.

It leaves the deficit at exactly $41,444,764.42—an improvement over 1924 of $13,415,654.80.

This, however, does not mean that the Canadian National has an actual cash loss of $41,444,764.42. And for this reason. Of the annual interest charge—the fixed charges—of the road, namely, $71,933,617.23, over $40,000,000 is payable on outstanding securities in the hands of the public. The balance, $31,400,000, is a bookkeeping and not a cash item, representing the railway's liability for interest on Government advances. This interest, however, is not paid by the railways but is held in abeyance by the Dominion as an overdue account.

Therefore, the way to arrive at the actual cash loss to the railways for the year is to deduct the operating earnings, or surplus, of, roughly, $30,500,000, from the $40,400,000 that has to be paid in interest to the public. This leaves the loss at approximately $10,000,000.

* * * *

This, everything considered, is not a bad showing. All the more so, seeing that it has been achieved under conditions which, apart from a good crop, were by no means favorable to railway profits. The inescapable truth, indeed, is that it is being demonstrated that public ownership of railways can be made a success, that there is nothing but private ownership bigotry and politics in the clamor to the contrary, and that, with a return to prosperity, with anything like vigorous action promoting immigration and industrial development, the Canadian National will speedily enter upon an era when it can earn a net surplus over everything—except possibly old debts that should (and would in the case of any privately-owned road) have been written off years ago. When that day comes, it will be a magnificent asset to the people of this country.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Oshawa may not have sent a man down to the Government on Oct. 29th, but it certainly made up for that yesterday.

Just a final reminder. "Save-the-Forest" Week ends today, but its spirit should be carried throughout the year.

The prophet who is most unpopular just now is the fellow who croaks that we are not yet through with the winter.

The proprietors of Ottawa's hotels and restaurants have won one virtue in the Budget that was not at first apparent. It supplied them with a great day's business feeding the Oshawa deputation.

Premier King promised yesterday's deputation that their requests would be considered, but he was careful not to say "by the Tariff Board."

Mr. Ferguson may have an election up his sleeve, but he defeats all attempts to make him acknowledge that fact.

The anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, which is to be observed on Sunday, should be marked by a record turn-out of ex-service men.

Save-the-Forest Week will be useful only in proportion to the effect it has upon the people of this country. The remedy lies in the hands of Canadians

Wanted—To rent one or two furnished rooms. Will be gentleman for first two weeks and then man and wife.—Chicago Tribune.

Ottawa despatches indicate that there will be a Federal election if the Budget proposals are blocked by the Opposition, which is equivalent to saying that there is going to be an election.

HEARING OPENS IN MURDER CASE

Norma McDonald Appears To-day Before Magistrate Floyd.

MEDICAL TESTIMONY.

BRIGHTON, April 24 (Special).—Norma McDonald, the 17-year-old girl, charged with the murder of her infant, whose mangled body was found near her home here under a dismantled house, was given a preliminary hearing to-day before Col. Floyd, County Magistrate.

The entire morning session up to one o'clock, when court adjourned for lunch, was taken up with the hearing of the medical testimony. Doctors Randle, Wade and Clark, all of Brighton, were on the stand. The first two inclined to the opinion that the death of the infant was caused by the fractured skull. Dr. F. M. Dure, the coroner who conducted the inquest, and Dr. Clark, said that the fracture might have occurred even after the child was dead.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

All Saints' and 5th Peterborough Troops.

The weekly meeting of the All Saints' and 5th Peterboro Troops was held in the Troop headquarters at 7.30 last night. The meeting opened with the flag break, and it was followed by the investiture of three new Scouts into the All Saints' Troop. The patrols retired to their corners for a fifteen-minute instruction period. Several games were then played and formations were practised.

Dr. Fraser and a member of The Examiner staff came down to arrange about distributing the tags. The meeting adjourned by saluting the colors.

Afterwards a short court of honor was held, in which several matters were disposed of.

ENGLISHMEN GATHER

lief train to arrive came from the City of Boston in the United States.

"Then again, 'Are our children fed with the right kind of literature about other nations?' Our histories have been improved along this line, but it is the outside reading that is not of historical value to the child's mind," said the speaker.

"Our Federal authorities in the past have not practiced good-will with the United States when ships loaded with liquors are given clearance papers to Mexico or some other distant port.

"The question is often asked," said Mr. Kenner, "if nations can carry on in the best of terms for years," and his answer is that Canada and United States have; for "when we cease to be friends we cease to be Christians."

Then if people look beyond the narrow limits of their own sphere they find that they have great reason to be proud of their Motherland, and they should see that their Motherland has reason to be proud of them.

Joseph Wearing.

Mr. Wearing, on proposing the toast to "The Land of our Adoption," also stated that he was born in England, and last night he was speaking on behalf of those who consider themselves Canadians in every sense of the word, but really cannot boast that they were born in Canada. Proud is the man who in future can boast that he was born in Canada, he said, but prouder still will he be if he can say that his parents came from England. To-day those who were born in England cannot help but think as Browning did, "Oh to be in England now that April's here," said Mr. Wearing.

"Our laws and religious freedom" said the speaker, "are a heritage which have come across the Atlantic from Old England. The things that have made England great are, humanity, liberty, justice and truth, but we are greater to-day because of the greater outlook in this country. In England man's outlook is too limited, and thus he has not as great an opportunity."

In conclusion, the speaker said that everyone should thank God for the great opportunities, the outlook and real achievements that are to be had in the land of their adoption.

E. A. Peck, M.P.

Mr. Peck responded to the toast and said that quite a number of years ago he came to Canada, and is to-day one of the oldest, if not the oldest, members of the local lodge. Thirty years ago he was the worthy president of this lodge, and the same lodge has always stood for much that is precious to Englishmen. Mr. Peck stated that he was proud to think that he was born in England, but he was prouder to know that he had lived in Canada.

Canada is a country which has immense room for development. She has great problems to face, but will be able to overcome these if there is a little give-and-take by the people in the east, centre and west of the Dominion.

He said it was a pity there were not more women in Parliament, for Miss McPhail does little talking, and what she does say is to the point, and in this way sets a good example to plenty of the men there.

LOCAL MEN PASS FIRST AID TESTS

Nineteen Win Certificates of Twenty Who Took the Course at Y.M.C.A.

TO BE PRESENTED.

The results of the examnation of the Y.M.C.A. First Aid Class have just been received from the Canadian Branch of St. John's Ambulance Association in Toronto.

The Y.M.C.A. conducted a very successful First Aid Class during the winter season, made up in large measure from men of the various industries of the city. The classes were well attended and the men deeply interest in their work under the direction of Dr. H. M. Yelland.

The interest shown by the men in their work was evident; when the results of the examinations were received, and it was found that 19 out of the 20 men who worked on examinations receive certificates. A presentation of these certificates will be made at the Y.M.C.A. early next week. Dr. A. W. McPherson was the examiner of the class. The association and the men of the class appreciate very much the services of Doctors Yelland and McPherson.

The successful candidates were as follows:

Just WHY is OAKLAND WINNING and HOLDING GOOD WILL?

Why are so many motorists everywhere so genuinely enthusiastic over this car? Why are they favoring it above all others?

Is it because the Oakland Six is more beautiful—because it possesses more advanced features, including Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Full Pressure Oiling System, Four-Wheel Brakes and the Harmonic Balancer? Or because it reveals greater speed, power, acceleration and smoothness of performance?

Each of these features plays its part; but there is an even stronger reason for Oakland Six popularity.

Oakland combines—not just one or two of these advantages, but all of them—and yet prices are

BUSINESS MEN HAVE PROPOSAL

Inventor of New Alloy Wishes To Start Up In Campbellford.

CALLS IT ARGOID.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24.—The monied men of the town are considering an important proposition that was recently presented to them, the organization of a company for the manufacture of a new kind of metal which is designed to take the place of nickel-trimmed brass which is now so extensively used for trimmings in bathrooms, automobiles and the like. This metal is known as argoid, a Latin term meaning "like silver" and it is claimed by the man who invented it and by those who are now promoting its sale, that it will not tarnish but will retain its polish indefinitely.

The proposition referred to was submitted to a largely attended meeting of business men by A. L. Fitzgerald, of Penetanguishene and R. H. Forsyth of Toronto, the former being the principal speaker. After he dealt with the merits of the new metal Mr. Fitzgerald unfolded his proposal. The men who hold the patent rights on the metal will dispose of these rights and the equipment that they have prepared to manufacture samples, for the sum of $10,000. Campbellford business men would be required to form company with capital stock of about $25,000 and of this one-fifth or $5,000 would be turned over to the present owners of the manufacturing rights. If for any reason this town should cease manufacturing this metal then the patent rights would automatically revert to the present owners.

Mr. Fitzgerald did not attempt to minimize the difficulty of floating a company or of getting a new industry on a paying basis. His statement was regarded as a fair and sane explanation and at the request of the meeting he agreed to submit his proposition in writing when it will be considered in detail by the citizens.

The proposed new industry would not employ more than two men in the factory, at least at the start. These would be the inventor and an expert helper. It would be necessary to send out two or three travelling salesmen to bring the merits of the new metal to the attention of manufacturers.

MONTREAL, April 24 (Canadian Press). — The Canadian National Railways yesterday placed orders for the following equipment: sixty 40-ton freight cars from the Eastern Car Co., New Glasgow, N.S.; forty 10,000-gallon tank cars from the Canada Car and Foundry Co., Montreal; 50 express refrigerator cars from the Steel Company of Canada, Hamilton.

NEW CONTRACT SOUGHT BY C.N.R.

Skyscraper at Corner of King and Yonge on Better Terms.

MONTREAL, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The Montreal Star yesterday carried the following in its new columns:

"Information gathered from Canadian National headquarters indicate that a definite step forward in regard to the construction of the skyscraper at the corner of King and Yonge Streets is now being taken at the head office here. The old agreement that was in effect last year has been cancelled between the Government and a man named Borgie, who was to have constructed a skyscraper in which the Canadian National Railways would have had the use of the ground floor and some other floors.

"Now the company is negotiating a new agreement with another person, which they hope will be on improved terms, but about which they decline to make any comment at present. Gerald Ruel, of the Canadian National Railways head office who is handling the matter at this end, stated: 'We are negotiating for the same site and improved terms. If satisfactory, we will take a lease of the ground floor and one extra floor. If they meet our wishes the negotiations should not take long—perhaps a month, but we want to get under way because we are losing business by staying away from that corner, and we hope to get it started within a month. The new agreement will be for the Home Bank site and our own site, and we started to make a draft of the new agreemen this week'."

SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH DEBT IS BELIEVED NEAR

LIKELY TO PASS.

Resistance Expected To Break Down When Final Decision Reached.

PARIS, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The members of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, after hearing Premier Briand explain the status of the war debt settlement with the United States, were divided in their opinions last night. The irreconcilibles, led by M. Franklin-Bouillon, chairman of the committee, declared that the debt accord would not be accomplished if "the safeguard" clause, protecting France, should there be default by Germany in her reparations payments, were omitted.

The majority of opinion, however, was in favor of approval of an accord on the general lines indicated by the French press, that is complete liquidation of the debt in sixty-two years, with initial annual payments of $25,000,000 — whether the safeguard clause was incorporated or not.

Will Be Ratified.

In official quarters it is thought that the debt agreement will be ratified by Parliament if it is along the lines indicated by the newspapers.

Premier Briand told the Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that it was imperative that some agreement should be arrived at.

"What is necessary," he declared, "is to reach an agreement at all costs. It must not be expected that the safeguard clause will be maintained in its entirety. The French Government, through its representative in Washington, is making a great effort to obtain conditions making the payments by France proportionate to her capacity for payment and to the receipts from Germany. But it is essential that we reach an agreement."

Resistance Weakening.

Resistance by the Conservative opposition is expected up to the last minute should there be an agreement without the safeguard clause, but political circles believe that when it comes to the final decision whether to approve such an agreement, or re-open the entire question and allow it to weigh indefinitely on French exchange, the resistance will break down all along the line.

The Radical-Socialist press is favorable to a prompt settlement, but these papers expect the accord will involve an implied understanding that France's capacity to pay depends upon the receipts from reparations payments, and that the French installments may be suspended in case unforseen circumstances make them impossible.

INSANITY DEFENSE IN MONTREAL CASE

Man Charged With Murder of His Mother.

QUEBEC, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The first intimations that Eugene Bigaquette was mentally unbalanced at the time that he is alleged to have murdered his old mother, made since the present trial has begun, were made Friday in the Court of Assizes.

One of the principal witnesses swore that the accused had posted all over a little garden in his back yard, notices in both French and English, warning cats that they must not trespass, that they were not allowed to cross the ground after a certain hour at night. Bigaquette also had placed an armchair in the garden and had set up a "phoney phone" near the chair. He had planted a stick in the ground and had attached to it an empty tin can to which were fastened several bits of string and which he would hold to his ear, pretending he was "'phoning" to different parties. He also referred to this contraption as his "private radio." At the entrance to the plot of land he had converted into a garden, he had erected a sign, reading "Millionaire's Private Club." The case is proceeding.

BID SUBMITTED FOR WHITE STAR FLEET OF SHIPS

Famous Liners May Pass To Control of Cunard Company.

$35,000,000 OFFER.

Final Approval Expected in a Week From London.

NEW YORK, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The famous White Star fleet of trans-Atlantic liners, including the world's largest ship, the Majestic, probably will pass to the control of British interests who have submitted an offer for the line to the International Mercantile Marine Corporation. The transaction, it is understood, will involve approximately $35,000,000 and will eventually place the White Star ships under the operation of the Cunard Line, although the Furness-Withy interests also were reported to be bidders.

Directors of the Marine Corporation considered the offer yesterday, but J. H. Thomas, vice-president, announced after the meeting that there were no developments which called for comment.

Final approval of the deal, it is expected, will be announced next week in London, where P. A. S. Franklin, president of the corporation, has been negotiating with the bidders.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT OF JURY

Employee of Bobcaygeon Fell Off Balcony.

LINDSAY, April 24.— A verdict of accidental death was recorded Friday by the jury of Bobcaygeon which enquired into the cause of the death of the late Mrs. Effie Grace Harlow, an employee of the Rockland House in that village. The deceased on Friday, April 16, went out on the east balcony of the hotel, presumably to shake some floor mats, when she fell against the railing, breaking it away from the verandah. She fell to the ground, a distance of nine fet, breaking her neck.

Coroner Dr. Logan, presided at the inquest and the witnesses were Dr. Kelly, George Potts, proprietor of the Rockland House; W. G. Grant, and Mr. Kimble. No evidence was adduced as to how the accident actually occurred. Some doubt existed, however, as to the strength of the railing, it being brought out in the evidence that it had been repaired two years ago, and that investigation had disclosed the fact that the nails which connected the section of the broken railing with the balcony post had become quite rusty.

The late Mrs. Harlow was in her fifty-fifth year, and had been with the hotel a couple of years. She had been married twice, her first husband being the late Archibald Brandon, former C.N.R. station agent at Kinmount. She is survived by one son and two daughters, one sister and three brothers.

"More rope" wanted

Some years ago a heroic girl gave her life in rescuing women and children when a tidal wave overwhelmed her home city.

She could have saved many more victims and probably her own life if she had had more rope. As it was, her body was found later with those of seven little children lashed to her's. But her rope was not long enough to enable her to reach safety.

The Salvation Army is engaged in rescuing the souls and bodies of men and women and children who have been caught in the raging waters of sin and misery. The Army throws its rope to as many as it can reach, but there are always more to be reached. The work of rescue never ceases.

Money is The Army's rope. Won't you give The Army "more rope" by contributing to the Self-Denial Fund?

The Soldiers of The Salvation Army are themselves givers according to their means. They give their lives to the work. You can give your dollars.

Some little child or some poor heart-broken mother will benefit by your money. You can put money to no more practical and helpful use than by giving to the work of The Salvation Army. Its work never ceases, night or day.

RESISTANCE

ALL the world knows of Atilla. This towering figure in early Christian times, with his hordes of followers, over-ran Eastern and Central Europe, burning, pillaging and killing. He was called the "Scourge of God." A fearless fighter, he cut his way through every foe with his allconquering axe and wonderful, protecting shield. His Shield was famous for its power of RESISTANCE. Swords, spears and battle-axes glanced from its burnished surface. Warriors, whose lives depended on their shields, well knew the value of the material and workmanship that gave such RESISTANCE and such protection. The power of RESISTANCE possessed by Atilla's Shield is fittingly compared with the Power of RESISTANCE in "Gutta Percha" Tires,

EVERY tire that survives long travel on the streets or roadways has to be a fighter. There are hundreds of bruising, scratching, bludgeoning, chafing things that a tire has to fight against every day. To come unscathed through these skirmishes with the would-be tire destroyers, requires a toughness and RESISTANCE in the tire material that only recent research has brought to perfection. Add to that the newest cord reinforcements and the "insulated" rubber protection, and the result is the "Gutta Percha" Tire, that, with a Resistance like Atilla's Shield, protects the owner against tire loss by road wear and the discomfort of tire troubles so frequently experienced with the weaker makes of tires.

WHEREVER you go in Canada, you will find "Gutta Percha" Service has been ahead of you, anticipating your possible needs. In every city, every town, and thousands of villages, the traveller will find dealers who carry assorted stocks of "Gutta Percha" Tires, and "Gutta Percha" Accessories, which will supply him with just what he needs. The dealers' signs in red and black are easily distinguished. The traveller who asks for "Gutta Percha" goods, shows a familiarity with the best that is made. The RESISTANCE to wear built into "Gutta Percha" Tires, is the result of the accumulated experience of over 20 years in building automobile tires and over 40 years in making the finest rubber goods.

YPRES

Thursday was the anniversary of the second battle of Ypres, fought by the Canadian First Division eleven years ago, and held in sanctified memory of the very gallant originals of the Old First. They were plunged into an excruciating ordeal but their courage was heroic. They were citizens of a young country which knew next to nothing about war, but they fought with the dogged mastery of veteran troops. Their achievement won the admiration of the relieving British troops, always generous in their appreciation; for the Canadians had saved an Empire, and in doing so had laid imperishable laurels on the valor of their nationhood. They are saluted to-day, the dead and the living, as troops who suffered heinously, and whom a nation will continue to honor till it perish.

To be imbued of the deep-seated significance of Ypres you have to conceive of it as did the Germans. For them, it was their key to the Channel ports, to secure which meant practically the destruction of France, the immolation of Belgium, and the isolation, if not the overthrow of Britain. Ribbons of splendid roads and related railways coursed over the industrial plains from the east, converging into Ypres, and from there led in direct line through St. Omer to Calais, but 30 miles distant from Ypres. "Take Ypres or die," the all-highest among the Germans commanded his generals. They did take it in the onslaught of August, 1914. They pushed beyond it, overwhelmingly with their admirably equipped hordes, and even entered St. Omer. Calais, the Channel ports, but a day's march ahead, were theirs. But not quite. Far south, in the marshes of the Marne in France, the flank of their tremendous front was crumpled, and in exigent sympathy their right flank in Belgium was forced to retire before British and French troops. These pushed the enemy behind Ypres, east of it by some four miles, and there both armies entrenched for the winter of 1914-15. The enemy spent the winter planning to "take Ypres or die," and in the outcome of events, as they read them, the Allies were delivered over to them.

The Canadian First Division of three brigades, with their brigaded artillery and auxiliary troops, left Salisbury Plains on February 7, 1915, and were in billets in northern France six days later. After several movements, in which their only material experience of trench warfare was obtained in a somewhat observing position taken up in the front line in the battle of Neuve Chapelle, they entered Ypres on April 11.

Almost immediately they relieved two French divisions who had been holding some 5000 yards in front of Ypres. The Canadians then had, on their right, British imperial troops, the 28th Division, and on their left, French colonials, Algerians and Turcos. These French troops were holding some four miles, reaching from the Canadians' left to the Yser-Ypres canal. From there on, north-west, the line was held by French, with the exception of the short sector at the coast held by the Belgians. But attention to-day is centered upon the 5000 yards held by two brigades of the Canadian First Division, the other brigade being in supporting reserve. Never could the Germans have imagined that circumstances should so resolve to the perfect convenience of their strategical intentions. The one mesh in the chain they so ardently desired to break was caught with two links so brittle they had only to be struck to be shattered. There was the weakness, so they thought, of the junction between the Canadians and the Imperials, junctions between troops which often were susceptible to penetration. There were the Canadians, an unruly mob of unimaginably unversed troops of sod-breaking half-breeds from the primitive areas of a sparsely populated western land. And, to cap all, to the left of this mongrel force were the volatile, semi-civilized, fetish-ridden Algerians and Turcos, preposterously imagining they could hold a front of four miles. Every circumstance was propitious for the enemy's march on to the Channel ports; they had only to knock, and the gate would swing open. Their troops were massed, four divisions against the Canadians. Their artillery was in overpowering support. All they awaited was the favorable wind to turn on the taps that would emit inhuman poisonous gases floating down upon the Algerians and Canadians; and that gentle breeze blew on the sunny afternoon of Thursday, April 22nd, 1915.

The poison of the yellowish-green vapour settled down upon the uncomprehending Algerians, who, choking, asphyxiated, affrighted, broke and rushed headlong. Many fell dead as they stood to their breastworks; many died by the road as they tore back to Ypres. They were ghastly. This exposed the left of the Canadian front, past which a horde of Germans waged slaughter in the four-mile wake of the fleeing French colonials. The terrible battle was on, and the Canadians were faced with holding five miles where they had had only 5,000 yards. This is not the place to describe that hellish conflict; words will never convey its horrors or reveal its heroisms. It began with appalling suddenness for the Canadians that Thursday afternoon, the 22nd, but their final withdrawal was not till May 5.

They fought without reinforcements till Friday night, except for a mixed detachment of Imperials hastily conscripted by Colonel Geddes who helped stem the Germans toward the Yser-Ypres canal. Sections would be encompassed, and yet fight their way out, saving the division from absolute extinction, which would have meant only conclusion, too terrible to envisage. Platoons vanished, as death swept them. Companies were without officers, without non-commissioned officers but led themselves, fighting on till some form of reorganization could be established. Fronts disappeared; units were bereft of supports sometimes on both sides. And still they fought on. Gas was emitted over them, followed by massed attacks, which were countered by exhausted men who seemed possessed of inexhaustible powers from which to renew their resistance. As their positions went they advanced to the attack. They retreated to positions that were as untenable as the positions they evacuated, and still the enemy could neither surround them nor get past them. Late on Friday they had effected a shortening of their line, and were encouraged by fresh supports of Imperials. Still the Canadians could not get out, but fought on. All they did was fight and die. If a phantom platoon managed to retire to another position, the ghost of itself that covered the movement resisted to its last man. The battle had joined on Thursday afternoon; the Canadians were still in it Sunday afternoon. Then, no sooner had they got out than they were rushed in again, to fight side by side with the Imperials who had relieved them. Not till May 5 were they finally withdrawn: what was left of them.

This is not any attempt at description of the second battle of Ypres, to essay which would be a garrulous presumption. All parts of the Dominion to-day have resident in them some men who were in that battle. All parts of Canada have resident in them to-day many, many men and women to grieve over the thousands of brave Canadians who that day gave their lives to prevent the Germans attaining to the Channel ports. Those dead and their living comrades were not esteemed as soldiers in the loving atmosphere of their simple homes in this peaceful land, but at Ypres proved themselves dauntless in battle. And because of Ypres, if of Ypres alone, they would beseech that that which they were called upon to endure shall never have to be undergone by their sons and sons' sons, Ypres day is the day of the old originals of the Canadian First Division: they were magnificent.

IN MEMORY

Of Peterborough Soldiers w o fought in the Ypres salient, and died, this page is dedicated by The Examiner s a tribute from the people of Peterborough

The despatch of the Commander-in-Chief after the Battle of Ypres read:

"In spite of the danger to which they were exposed, the Canadians held their ground with a magnificent display of tenacity and courage, and it is not too much to say that the bearing and conduct of these splendid troops averted a disaster which might have been attended with most serious consequences."

Rt. Hon. Sir Robert L. Borden, G.C.M.G., said in 1915: "On more than one stricken field the record made by the First Canadian Division has held good. No Canadian can ever look forth unmoved upon that valley where Ypres lies shattered in the distance, and the sweep of the hills overlooks the graves of more than 100,000 men who fell there."

The stars shall fade away, the sun himself
Grow dim with age, and nature sink in years,
But thou shall flourish in immortal youth,
Unhurt amidst the wars of elements,
The wreck of matter, and the crush of worlds.

The Order of Service is being tastefully printed in sufficient numbers to supply all who attend, and no books will be used.

Open to All

All Veterans of the Great War are invited to join in the parade, in uniform if possible, but they are welcome in mufti. The service, while held under the auspices of the veterans, is a civic service, and all citizens are invited to join in it.

Reveille

Reveille, the call of the dawn, sounding its old familiar notes in St. Paul's Church tomorrow morning, will bring a message of resurrection to many an aching heart in the audience gathered te honor the glorious dead. It is the occasion of the annual Church Parade of Peterborough Great War Veterans, always held on the Sunday nearest to the anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, and is one of the best attended of the memorial services of the soldiers. Last year's parade was to St. Luke's Church, which could not hold the crowds that attended, and in 1924 the veterans attended St. Peter's Cathedral.

How Canada's soldiers saved the day at the Second Battle of Ypres is told in detail in another column. It was a glorious victory at great cost, a victory that caused Canada to grow in stature in the eyes of the world and made for her citizen soldiers a name that shall live for ever. And, as Principal Taylor of Queen's University said, quoting the fiftieth Psalm, "Gather my saints together unto Me, those that have made a convenant with Me by sacrifice", the men who paid the supreme sacrifice in the salient and all through the four long years of war come within that text. People of today who were untouched by war's alarms may ask "Was it worth while?" With these men that never was a question. Duty called, and Ypres was held.

Division after division of the German army hurled its might against the thin line of Canadian troops, until twenty thousand invaders had lost their lives in the effort to win through to Calais—and England. "Take Ypres or die" the war-lord told his troops. They died.

Not Only For Soldiers.

Tomorrow's service is not only for soldiers, who know just what the fighting meant to their comrades. It is a great civic memorial service, for Peterborough lost many sons in the struggle. The glory of war was upon us when the first reports of heroism of Canadian troops came over the cables, but war's sorrow followed swiftly in the long tale of casualties. This city gave unsparingly of its sons at the first call, and if it flinched when the the terrible reports came in, it swiftly rallied and followed up with renewed offerings.

"The paths of glory lead but to the grave", the poet said, but tomorrow's service is a declaration of faith, by those who lost sons and husbands and fathers in the great conflict, that they are not dead. No ignominious death—no shell-hole grave or marble tomb—could be the finale to their efforts. In their glorious stand for liberty they perished, and so passed from the finite to the infinite.

Now, our boys will live forever!

Reveille, the call of a new day, the triumph-call of hope, bids us cease our mourning.

Tomorow, let us show how immortal is their glory by standing with their comrades in silent reverence to the unfading memory of Peterborough and Canadian soldiers who fell at Ypres and on all the battlefields of Europe which they made forever sacred soil of Canada.

Hand to hand, and foot to foot;
Nothing there, save death, was mute;
Stroke, and thrust, and flash and cry
For quarter or for victory,
Mingle there with the vollying thunder.
—Byron.

'Carry the word to my Sisters—
To the Queens of the East and the South.
I have proven my faith in the Heritage
By more than the word of the mouth.
They that are wise may follow
Ere the world's war-trumpet blows:
But I—I am first in the battle,'
Said our Lady of the Snows.
—Kipling.

'BE PREPARED' Is the Boy Scout Motto

OUT-OF-DOORS BECKONS PETERBOROUGH BOYS TO ENJOY IN OPEN THE ARTS THEY LEARNED IN WINTER'S STUDY AT TROOP HEADQUARTERS

Five Troops Are Active in City at Present — Another Troop of Scouts and a Pack of Wolf Cubs To Be Formed—Numbers Are Increasing Rapidly.

WOODCRAFT, TRACKING AND NATURE LORE GIVE REAL SPORT AND MAKE MANLY BOYS

Movement Gives Expression to the Religious Teaching Imparted in Home and Church, But Does Not Replace It—Scouting Has Its Own Special Sphere.

(By. J. R. H.)

"Boy, be a Scout" is the advice given today to every lad who would progress in manly arts and realize to the full the joys of living. It is a great game, this Scouting. Like a sugar-coated pill that does a lot of good while still tasting sweet, Scouting instils many lessons in life under the guise of clever and pleasant sport. Scouting IS sport—that is why it appeals to the boy and the boy-man.

There are six troops of Boy Scouts in Peterborough at present, and a seventh is contemplated with a Pack of Wolf Clubs (junior Scouts) to follow in the near future. Five of the existing troops are active, and the sixth is under process of re-organization. The numbers of Scouts are increasing rapidly this year under well-trained and enthusiastic Scoutmasters, and though the enrollment in any one troop is carefully kept within bounds where the Scoutmaster can best handle it, there is still room for all the boys who wish to join the movement

The fundamental requirement in a boy is that he be willing take the Scout Promise and obey the Scout Law, both of which are given and commented on elsewhere in this article. Community standing and creed have no place in the Scout scheme of things. Scouts are not snobs, but are trained to take a fellow at his true worth. And while they are encouraged and required to attend religious worship in the church of their parents, there are no religious observances in the Scout Troop that would bar any boy of any religious persuasion.

Peterborough is fortunate in having an outstanding body of men at the head of the movement here. The District Commissioner is John J. Turner, ex-Mayor of the city and prominently identified with every good work. The District Scoutmaster is Dr. J. Murray Fraser, in charge of the Peterborough branch of the Provincial Health Laboratories. Dr. Fraser has had many years' experience in the Boy Scout movement, and has the rare faculty of managing without "bossing," and of inspiring the Scoutmasters in his District to their best efforts in conducting their troops.

The Local Association is headed by Fred L. Roy as President; Rev. Paul Costello as vice-President; W. H. Dickin as Secretary-Treasurer; W. F. Morris as Finance Chairman; and John A. McKone as Property Chairman.

Splendid Progress.

In conversation with The Examiner this week the District Scoutmaster, Dr. Fraser, reported that splendid progress has been made by all active Peterborough troops since the beginning of the year. Number one troop was organized toward the end of January at All Saints' Church under the Scoutmastership of Frank Hully, and has now 22 members.

Number two troop is connected with St. Luke's Church in East City. It was previously under Frank Taylor, but, owing to his association with the Y.M.C.A. troop requiring a great deal of time, it was handed over to W. L. Hepburn, who is doing wonderfully good work.

Number three troop, at the Y.M.C.A., has George Roper as Scoutmaster but the actual Scouting work is done by Assistant Scoutmaster Frank Taylor. This troop, which combines the old numbers three and seven, is progressing splendidly.

Number four is a community troop which meets at the old Westclox building on George street under Scoutmaster Clarence Corbet. The building is provided for the boys, free of all charge, and with heating and lighting supplied by the owner, also free. The boys have very comfortable rooms in which to meet, and are making good progress.

Number five is another community troop, at present without a permanent club room and meeting with Number one at All Saints' Church. Mr. Walker did good work as Scoutmaster of this troop, but has been compelled to resign. The work will be taken up next week by George Gimblett, a son of Fire Chief Gimblett.

Number six troop, which met at the Lyceum, is at present inactive, but it is expected that vacancies will be filled and the work will be under way again this summer.

The formation of a seventh troop in connection with St. Andrew's United Church is now under arrangement, and an announcement will be made soon.

A Wolf Cub Pack, for boys who are too young to join the Scout movement, is to be formed at All Saints' Church in the near future with A. Hope as Cubmaster.

Scouting is Practical.

One of the things which a Boy Scout promises is to endeavour to do a good turn to someone every day. He is not allowed to accept any reward for this, and it must not be a piece of work which is his everyday duty. He must voluntarily, cheerfully, and freely do this good turn every day—or if he misses a day he must do two good turns the next day.

Peterborough Scouts were out on the streets today, distributing free tags for the "Save the Forest" campaign. The boys were not paid for this, but did it to help the country preserve the forests which they are taught in their scouting to value and understand.

Started in 1908.

The Boy Scout movement, which is progressing so well in Peterborough this year, was organized in Great Britain in 1908 under patronage of His Majesty the King and the active leadership of General Sir Robert Baden-Powell. It grew out of a plan previously launched by Sir Robert for the training of boys for citizenship.

Today, the movement has spread all over the world, and has won for itself a total membership of between seven hundred thousand and a million lads of all nationalities, creeds, and colors. Parents and teachers are as enthusiastic as the boys themselves, for the aims of Scouting are to develop the best that is in boys.

The three-fold promise of the Boy Scout comprises a whole creed. The boy takes no oath, such as is administered in grown-up societies, but promises on his honor: To do his duty to God and the King; To help other people at all times; To obey the Scout Law.

The Scout Law.

The Scout Law is as follows:

A Scout's Honor Is To Be Trusted. If a Scout says "On my honor it is so," that means that it is so, just as if he had taken a most solemn oath. Similarly, if a Scout Officer says to a Scout, "I trust you on your honor to do this," the Scout is bound to carry out the order to the very best of his ability, and to let nothing interfere with his doing so.

A Scout Is Loyal to the King, and to his officers, and to his parents, his country, his employers, or to his employees, and his comrades. He must stick to them through thick and thin against anyone who is their enemy or who even talks badly of them.

A Scout's Duty Is To Be Useful And To Help Others. And he is to do his duty before anything else, even though he gives up his own pleasure, or comfort, or safety to do it. When in difficulty to know which of two things to do, he must ask himself: "Which is my duty?" and do that one. He must be prepared at any time to save life, or to help injured persons. And he must try his best to do at least one good turn to somebody every day.

A Scout Is A friend To All, And a Brother To Every Other Scout. Thus if a Scout meets another Scout, even though a stranger to him, he must speak to him, and help him in any way that he can, either to carry out the duty he is then doing, or by doing him good or, as far as possible, anything that he may be in want of. A Scout must never be a SNOB. A snob is one who looks down upon another because he is poorer, or who is poor and resents another because he is rich. A Scout accepts the other man as he finds him, and makes the best of him.

A Scout Is Courteous. He is polite to all, but especially to women and children, and old people, invalids and cripples. He must not take any reward for being helpful or courteous.

A Scout Is A Friend To Animals. He should save them as far as possible from pain, and should kill no animal unnecessarily, for it is one of God's creatures. Killing an animal for food, or an animal which is harmful is allowable.

A Scout Obeys Orders of his parents, patrol leader, or Scoutmaster without question. Even if he gets an order he does not like he must do as soldiers and sailors do, he must carry it out because it is his duty. After he has done it he can come and state any reasons against it: but he must carry out the order at once. That is discipline.

A Scout Smiles and Whistles under all difficulties. When he gets an order he should obey it cheerily and readily, not in a slow, hang-dog sort of way. Scouts never grumble at hardships, nor whine at each other nor swear when put out, but go on whistling and smiling. When you just miss a train, or someone treads on your favorite corn—not that a Scout ought to have such things as corns—or under any annoying circumstances, you should force yourself to smile at once, and then whistle a tune, and you will be alright.

A Scout Is Thrifty. He saves every penny he can, and puts it in the bank, so that he may have money to keep himself when out of work, and thus not make himself a burden to others; or that he may have money to give away to others when they need it.

A Scout Is Clean In Thought, Word, And Deed. He looks down upon a silly youth who talks dirt and he does not let himself give way to temptation to talk, or to think, or to do anything dirty. A Scout is pure and clean-minded and manly.

Aim of Scouting.

Scouting is far from being a classroom business where the boys learn rules and regulations. The aim of the movement is to develop good citizenship among boys by forming their character, training them in habits of observation, obedience and self-reliance, inculcating loyalty and thoughtfulness for others, teaching them services useful to the public and handicrafts useful to themselves, and promoting their moral and physical development by true comradeship and by healthy open air pursuits and games. The motto of the Association is "BE PREPARED," which means that the Scout is to be always in a state of readiness in mind and body to do his duty and meet any emergency.

Here in Peterborough there are upwards of a hundred boys banded together in this great fraternity of boys. They are learning the Scout Law and Scouting games, and they are being inspired with the ideals that have led the boys of yesteryear to the highest pinnacle of success as men of today. The Scout program does not supplant religious instruction or school training, but it is supplemental to both. The movement is not sectarian, though emphasizing religion; it is not military, though not anti-military; it is not connected with any political body.

In Peterborough there are two church troops, at St. Luke's and at All Saints'; three community troops, at the Y.M.C.A., at the old Westclox building, and one meeting temporarily at All Saints' Church but not attached there; one troop at the Lyceum; and another Church Troop is under contemplation, to be formed at St. Andrew's Church. But because these troops are attached to certain churches does not mean that boys from other churches, or boys of different religious training, are refused admission. The ranks of the Boy Scout movement are open to all boys, the only condition being that they prove themselves real Scouts.

Scouting means to the boy a solid foundation for true religion applied to daily life. It is not a substitute for Church and home influence in matters of religion, but it supplements Church, home and school influences with wholesome and interesting forms of recreation during leisure hours that are at once uplifting and educative in their effect. No attempt is made to interfere wit the prerogative of parents and pastors by giving religious instruction, but Scout officers properly insist on the observance and practise of whatever form of religion the boy professes. Through Scouting virtue has won its way to many a boyish heart.

Scouting is Non-military.

There is nothing military about the Scout movement. Long hours are not taken up in drilling. There is no military meaning attached to the things Scouts do. Peace Scouting comprises the attributes of resourcefulness and self-reliance and the many other qualities which make Scouts men among men. Drill is reduced to a minimum, and instead are substituted the games and lessons which develop the ego of every individual boy.

Training is Progressive.

Boys between the ages of 12 and 18 are admitted to the Scout ranks on probation. To become a Tenderfoot Scout every boy must pass certain tests. He must know the Scout Law, signs, and salute; the composition of the Union Jack and the right way to fly it; how to tie six useful knots; and he must take the Scout Promise. He is then entitled to wear the uniform and badge.

After one month's service as a Tenderfoot the boy may pass his Second class Scout tests. He must have a knowledge of elementary first aid and bandaging, and show his ability to render help in case of fractured bones and various kinds of bleeding. He must know the Semaphore or Morse signalling alphabet. He must follow a track half a mile in twenty five minutes and travel a mile in twelve minutes at "Scout's Pace." He must lay and light a fire in the open, using not more than two matches, without using paper, and cook on it a quarter of a pound of meat and two potatoes without cooking utensils other than the regulation billy. He must know the sixteen principal points of the compass.

His next step upward brings the boy to the First-class Scout tests, in which he is required to swim fifty yards (unless physically unfit, when he must take certain alternative tests); have at least one dollar in the savings bank; send and receive signal messages at certain speeds; go on foot or row a boat alone or with another Scout to a point seven miles away and return again, and write a short report of the journey, showing observation, self reliance and initiative; describe the proper way of dealing with accidents such as fire, drowning, gas escape, ice breaking, electric shock; bandage an injured patient or revive the apparently drowned; have a knowledge of first aid to the injured; cook over a camp fire two dishes, such as porridge, bacon, or hunter's stew; make a "damper" of half a pound of flour; read the conventional signs of a map correctly and draw a rough sketch map; produce an article of carpentry or joinery or metal work made by himself; judge distance, area, capacity, numbers, height and weight within 25 per cent error; and bring a Tenderfoot Scout trained by himself in the points required for the Tenderfoot badge.

Vocational Training.

Probably one of the best phases of all Scout work is the training the boy receives in various lines that may be to him the opening up of a life work. There are about sixty proficiency badges open to the First Class Scout. The Second Class Scout may obtian six.

These badges are for almost every imaginable business and trade, and while expert knowledge is not required, the boy must know enough to show that he is acquainted with the practical aspects of the business. The badges are:

Ambulance	Airman
Artist	Basket Worker
Bee-Keeper	Blacksmith
Boatman	Bugler
Camper	Carpenter
Citizen	Clerk
Cook	Cyclist
Dairyman	Electrician
Engineer	Entertainer
Farmer	Fireman
Fisherman	Forestry
Friend to Animals	Gardener
Handyman	Healthy Man
Horseman	Interpreter
Laundryman	Leather-worker
Marksman	Master-At-Arms
Mason	Metal-Worker
Miner	Missioner
Musician	Naturalist
Pathfinder	Photographer
Pilot	Pioneer.
Piper	Plumber
Poultry Farmer	Printer
Prospector	Public Health Man
Rescuer	Signaller
Stalker	Starman
Stockman	Swimmer
Surveyor	Tailor
Telegraphist	Textile Worker
Watchman	Woodman

King's Scout.

When a boy gains his First Class Badge, his Pathfinder Badge, and three of the following, he is a King's Scout, and wears a special badge with a crown: Ambulance, Cyclist, Marksman, Signaller, Fireman, Rescuer.

Other insignia showing various rank are: All-Round Cords of three grades for various numbers of proficiency badges, and the Silver Wolf Order for King's Scouts of two years' standing who have gained twelve proficiency badges and have performed some special piece of Scout work.

Medals are also given for valour.

Not much can be said here, in the limited space available, of the tests for the various badges, but more will appear in a weekly column devoted to Scout news which will be conducted for The Examiner by the District Scoutmaster. It may be pointed out, however, that the experience the boy gains in taking his tests for the various badges that appeal to him is a wonderful aid in choosing his vocation. If he is adapted to the medical profession, his study for the Ambulance badge will bring it out. If he leans toward electrical engineering, the study required for the Electrician badge will show it.

The other badges, such as Entertainer, Cyclist, Fireman, Musician, Friend to Animals, Gardener, Missioner and Handyman, are of very apparent usefulness. Many a man, thanks the study he had for his Handyman badge for his ability to cope today with the emergencies that arise in the best conducted household. And the time spent in preparing for the Missioner badge, requiring a knowledge of invalid nursing, cookery and sick-room attendance, is never wasted.

Life in The Open.

Woodcraft — camping — nature lore; what visions these conjure up in the minds of all he-men! The out-of-doors is calling. Let us go on a hike with a party of Peterborough Scouts.

The boys muster, in their trim, made-for-hiking, uniforms. Every boy has his luncheon packed in his haversack. In his head are the theories he has learned in the club-room during the winter, and in his arteries courses the blood of Scout ancestors from the times of King Arthur and his knights of the Round Table—from the Crusaders who made open the way to religious freedom—from, maybe a soldier father who carried the Scout principles into and through the Great War.

Scoutmasters do not know everything. They are really only grown-up boys who are leading troops. Perhaps this Scoutmaster with whose troop we are going on a hike is not experienced in nature lore. Then he arranges to have a man who knows woodcraft accompany the boys.

The troop falls in and marches off. Military precision is not demanded, but only enough discipline that traffic is not held up and to give a good impression of the boys' bearing. Out on the country road even this is abandoned, and the boys cluster around the instructor as he tells them of different kinds of trees, birds and flowers. The boys are taught to observe for themselves, to notice small signs and link them together into a story. No Scout ever allows anyone who is not a Scout to observe anything before he does, far or near, large or small.

Here is a side road, with a single automobile track. Which way was the car travelling? At what speed was it going? What make was it? Did it have a good driver? A Scout can tell these things from the track, and he can probably, after a little practice, tell how long ago the car passed.

Here is a track of some animal. Is it of a deer or of a sheep? Mink or Cottontail? The Scout will know—and he will tell you an interesting story from the track—whether the animal was frightened or at ease; eating or sunning; going home or leaving it.

The troop has been wandering around a large field, surrounded by trees, examining rocks and listening to the lessons the instructor has been drawing from them. It is time to move on—but where is the road? The Scout knows. He has trained himself to keep track of locations, even when moving apparently at hap-hazard. A glance at the sky tells him the direction. Sun, stars, scudding clouds, shadows on the ground, his watch—all are open compasses to the Scout. And if he is a really first-class Scout he will tell you the time by merely glancing at the Sun. If, on his upward glance he sees the clouds arranging themselves in long parallel rows and massing into sheets he will tell you there is bad weather coming.

Variety in Scouting.

One of the thrills in Scouting comes to the boy when he first draws a rough sketch map of the country, understood and recognized by another. And after the troop has studied knot-tying, distance judging, and roping during the winter months in the confines of the troop meeting room, the greatest collective thrill comes when the first bridge is built and the troop walks safely across. Theory and lesson have proven their worth.

If bridge-building is not indulged on this hike, the boys may make a sod hut, or patrol bivouacs of branches and twigs; they will certainly improvise drinking cups when they come to a clear spring, and they may even make their own dishes from leaves or bark. They may make baskets in which to carry back specimens to be mounted and hung in their club room, or they may make bows and arrows for the practise of archery, or improvise hooks for fishing.

And all the time they are learning of nature—rocks and minerals, birds, animals, trees, flowers and weeds, fish and insects.

Camping.

When a halt for luncheon is made the boys show their prowess as cooks and learn the joy of cooking their meals over wood fires in the open. This is the supreme moment in the day for many, as they sit around the camp fire in jolly fellowship.

Scout camps, whether for an hour or for a month, are always carefully conducted. The boys are divided into patrols, under patrol leaders, and the patrols are usually the units for camp life. Every patrol will light its own fire and cook its own meal. Perhaps there will be a friendly contest to find which patrol can light the fire and cook the meal in the shortest time. Or one patrol may cook flap-jacks while another makes an oven and bakes biscuits. One may cook meat on a spit while another roasts it in hot stones. On a short halt perhaps only tea will be made, and a prepared luncheon eaten.

Camping is the big thing in the appeal of Scouting to the boy. There is a charm about it that can only be known by experience. And the boys return well set up and full of health and happiness outwardly, and morally improved in points of practical manliness and comradeship.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Scoutmasters of Peterborough troops a plan was brought forward for troop camps this summer, and although it has not been perfected it is expected to offer every Scout in the city an opportunity to enjoy life in the open for a week or ten days or two weeks at a very reasonable cost and under the very best supervision.

Health and Endurance.

Camping and hiking are closed books to the boy who is physically unfit, and there is therefore a great incentive in Scouting to keep in shape. Boys are taught in the Boy Scout Association to become personally responsible for their physical well-being. Cleanliness, exercise, care of the eyes, ears, nose, throat, teeth and feet are emphasized. Cheeriness under all circumstances is an item in the Scout code. Right living and right thinking are the key notes in Scout training. And better boys and better men are the result.

Scout games, while they always remain just games, are still wonderfully efficient in encouraging health and increasing physical efficiency. Some games lead to general healthy conditions; some increase the strength and efficiency of the eyes. All have definite objects, and all maintain the character of Scouting.

The Patrol System.

The patrol system has been found to be the best for the training of boys. It develops leaders, encourages friendly competition, and gives every boy individual training.

A patrol consists of from six to nine Scouts, with a patrol leader and his second. The leader is responsible to the Scoutmaster for his patrol, and this responsibility at the particular age of most patrol leaders is a wonderful character builder. It is up to him to take hold of and develop the qualities of each boy in his patrol. Every boy in the patrol realizes that he is, in himself, a responsible unit and that the honor of his group depends in some degree on his own efficiency in playing the game. The Scoutmaster sets the aim and the several patrols in a troop vie with each other in attaining it, raising their standard of keenness and efficiency all round.

Every patrol is known by the name of some bird or animal, the choice being made by the boys themselves. The bird or animal is painted on the patrol flag, and every boy can summon his comrades by giving the call of this bird or animal.

The Curlew patrol, for instance, whistles "Cur-ley" to call its members; the Otter patrol cries "Hoi-oi-oik;" the Coyote patrol howls shrilly "Oup-oup-oup-o-o-o-o-oe;" the Wild Goose patrol calls "Honk-honk;" and the Bear patrol growls "Booorrr." There are about fifty birds and animals from which to make a selection, all linking the boys with the great out-of-doors.

Court of Honor.

The Court of Honor, or, preferably, the Troop Council, is composed of the patrol leaders and their seconds, with the officers of the Troop. The Court of Honor manages the affairs of the Troop, decides the programme for meetings and hikes, and deals with breaches of the Scout Law. Every patrol leader, through this Council, and every Scout, through his patrol leader, has direct control of the internal affairs of the Troop, encouraging self-reliance, the power of debate, and confidence in one another.

Patrol leaders are encouraged to lead their Scouts, not push them. The leader must display his ability to gain proficiency badges. He must show that he can obey orders.

Great Moral Force.

As great an authority as Lord Roseberry has said of the Scout movement: "If I was to form the highest ideal for my country, it would be this, that it should be a nation of which the manhood was exclusively composed of men who had been or who were Boy Scouts, and who were trained in the Boy Scout theory. Such a nation would be the honor of mankind. It would be the greatest moral force that the world has ever known."

One of the most striking pictures of Scout work is that painted by the late Lieut. Ernest S. Carlos, entitled "If I were a boy again." A father is shown seated by a table in a middle-class house, his paper neglected in his hand while he watches his son. The boy is standing, sturdy and strong and clean, fastening the last buckle in his Scout uniform.

The next best thing to being a Scout is to have your boy a Scout.

Do You Know How To Signal? It's Part of the Scout Game

The following is the Morse signal code used by Scouts. There are two codes—the Morse, used with one flag, and the semaphore, used with two flags. All Scouts learn both.

District Commissioner of Peterboro Boy Scouts

First Aid Is First Lesson Taught the Embryo Scouts

After a boy becomes a Tenderfoot Scout he is expected to commence training for his Second Class badge, and one of the first things he is taught is how to give first aid in case of accident. Scouts are not trained to set up as doctors indeed the reliance upon themselves in serious cases is discouraged. But they are taught to act in emergencies so as to preserve life and avoid more serious injury.

Rescue of the drowning is a lesson by itself, but under "first aid" the boys learn how to restore the apparently drowned. They know what to do in case of bleeding, bruises, burns, scalds, choking, concussion, convulsions, cramps, dislocations, ear-ache, fits, fainting, fractures, frostbite, gassing, poisoning, shock, sprains, strangulation, sunstroke, and a dozen other eventualities. They are taught how to remove a fish hook that has become imbedded in the skin—a serious accident that may happen at any time. They know how to carry a wounded man and when to avoid moving him.

And there are hundreds of cases reported where a Boy Scout rendered invaluable service in saving life under these circumstances.

STUDIES STARLINGS.

In an earnest endeavor to probe the possible danger of a starling scourge in Canada H. F. Lewis, of the department of zoology, at the University of Toronto, has spent almost six months in research and study upon the problem. He believes that this bird may cost Canada several million dollars in damages during the next few years if their increase is not curbed.

CHILD IN SHELTER.

George Dwyer, Junior, To Stay There Until Trial of Parents.

A Court of Enquiry held under the Children's Protection Act, and presided over by Justices of the Peace Vincent Eastwood and Harry Rush, was held in the Police Court yesterday afternoon. The court committed George Dwyer to the care of the Children's Aid Society until after the trial of his parents, George and Mary Dwyer, who are present awaiting trial on charges of neglect.

TOWN WIPED OUT.

Only School Remains at Crow's Nest, B.C.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 24.—(Canadian Press.) -The little town of Crow's Nest, on the Alberta-British Columbia boundary on the Crow's Nest branch of the C.P.R., was practically wiped out Friday by fire. Starham's store and post office, a Chinese restaurant and two residences were destroyed. Only the school remains standing on the Alberta side of the border. The fire started in the restaurant.

700 FOR CANADA.

Sailed From Liverpool On Friday.

LIVERPOOL, England, April 4.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— The trek of settlers to Canada continued Friday when 700 migrants left here for Quebec and Montreal on the liner Alaunia. This number included a party of young women of good education who will take employment as domestics and also a party of 30 boys, ranging in age from 13 to 19 years of age, who are travelling under the auspices of the Salvation Army and will take up land work in Canada.

CAMPBELLFORD OWES UTILITIES TO PUBLIC SPIRITED CITIZENS WHO STARTED THE WORK IN 1889

Robert Cochrane Donated Site of Waterworks Building—By-laws Passed.

ON SMALL SCALE.

Little Light Plant Was Operated Only in Evening—Rates Still Low.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — Back in the eighties there was in Campbellford a number of public-spirited citizens, business men of vision who could see far into the future, who recognized the natural advantages that the town enjoyed and who worked with unselfish devotion to make the most of them for the general good and not for their own interests alone. Nearly all of these local patriots, whose civic spirit was pre-eminent, have passed away, but their works live after them. The best monument to their memory is the municipal lighting plant which was made possible by their foresight and energy.

First Steps Taken

The history of electric lighting in the town of Campbellford dates back to the year 1889. In the month of March of that year the Council had a discussion relative to the advisability of securing the services of an engineer who could prepare plans and give estimates for a water works and electric light system for what was then a village. In April the Council decided to call in an assisting or consulting committee and the following business men were selected: J. M. Ferris, Robert Cockburn, Charles Smith, J. W. Dinwoodie, and C. L. Owen. Of this committee there is only one member now living, C. L. Owen, who in his capacity as a private citizen, as reeve of Campbellford, as a member of the Federal Parliament and now as postmaster, has always given his adopted town faithful and efficient service.

The Council and the special committee met and after considerable discussion it was decided to hold a public meeting and to place the question before the people. To make matters easier, Robert Cochrane donated to the village the lot on which the town's water works now stands.

Work is Started

The estimated cost of the water works system was $15,000 and of the electric light system $10,000. These debenture bylaws were prepared and submitted to the people and were carried. Work was commenced immediately on the systems and the installation was as follows:

The combined systems of pumping equipment and electric light generation were placed in the same building on the lot donated by Robert Cochrane, and it was so arranged that all the power could be used for pumping water or the pumps could be shut down and the entire power used for driving the dynamos. It is claimed here that this was the first electric light plant, municipally owned, established in Ontario.

The original electric light plant consisted of one 500 16 candle power lamp incandescent dynamo and one 24 open arc direct current machine, these being driven by two water wheels of 90 horse-power. The electric plant was operated from dusk until midnight and was then shut down.

At this time there was only one lamp for inside lighting, the 16 candle power carbon lamp, and the lighting charge for each of these was at, the outset, $6 a year, but this was later reduced to $4.

The capacity of the 500 machine was soon taken up and the lighting was poor on account of the overload and the trouble that was caused by anchor ice. As a result of these difficulties it soon became apparent that something would have to be done.

Plant is Expanded

Thomas Ford, a man of wide experience, was in charge of the water works system and the electric light plant and he saw that there was little or no use in trying to develop more power at the pumping station. He believed that the town should secure the property of the Gilmour Company, on which there had been a saw mill that had been burned down. As the lumber industry was nearly at an end on the Trent River, it was apparent that the Gilmour people would not rebuild the mill but would dispose of the site if a purchaser could be found.

Mr. Ford called these facts to the attention of the late Charles Smith and of Charles S. Gillespie, the latter being reeve of the village at the time, and these two gentlemen started out to see what could be done to secure this valuable power site. Mr. Gillespie took the matter up with the directors of the lumber company and ascertained that they would dispose of their property, including the buildings for $2,500.

Even after this offer had been secured it was a difficult matter to convince the taxpayers that the property was a bargain and for a time it looked as though Mr. Gillespie would have to secure the money himself to buy it. It so happened, however, that a sum of money had been raised by the municipality to bonus the proposed Cobourg and Northumberland Railway, but nothing ever came of this proposition. The bonus money, which was on deposit in the bank, was used to purchase the Gilmour property which was situated at the Middle Falls at the foot of Crow Bay. In July, 1898, a debenture bylaw was passed for the sum of $8,000 for a new electric light plant and this plant with the site cost around $12,000.

The first water and light commission board went into office in January, 1891, and was composed of the following members: Reeve W. W. Armstrong, W. B. Archer, Dr. John Macoun, James Benor and W. H. Ashton.

Shortly after the purchase of the Gilmour property a power promoter, a Mr. Culverson, appeared on the scene. The late Charles Smith was far sighted enough to see that it was in the interests of the town to acquire the power site at Middle Falls on the west side of the river, directly opposite the town's new property. Mr. Culverson was doing his best to secure an option on this land from the owner, Mr. Campbell, but Mr. Smith beat him to it and succeeded in making a purchase outright for the sum of $1,000. This gave the municipality control of the water power on both sides of the river.

The new plant at Crow Bay went into operation in 1899 and consisted of one 2000 16 candle power generator or at present rating, 120 kilowatt. This machine was driven by two water wheels of about 140 horse power and was operated from dusk until sunrise.

In order to arrive at some idea of the capacity of the machine required, the Commission had engaged M. A. Hawley to make a canvass of the village to ascertain the probable number of lights that would be ordered. Mr. Hawley reported that 500 additional lights would be required. When the 2,000 light machine was installed the Commission believed that ample provision had been made for the future, but the cost of electric light produced in the new plant was so cheap that the number of customers increased rapidly and the machine was soon loaded up to capacity.

Council Takes Control

Early in 1906 the Commission went out of office by vote of the people and the town council assumed control of the plant in January of that year. In the following year the Council engaged John S. Fielding to prepare plans for the development of power at Middle Falls.

In September of 1907 the Council agreed to forego any claims for lands that might be flooded with water and to give the Government a deed of the land required. In return for this concession the Government contracted to give the town all the surplus power produced at Dam 12 and to excavate the entrance to the head race.

Commission Restored.

In 1911 the commission system was restored with three instead of five members, the new commissioners being the late Dr. John Macoun, C. W. Smith, and the late W. J. Doxsee, the latter being at that time Mayor of Campbellford. Mr. Smith, a son of of one of the promoters of the system, was only 21 years old when appointed a member of the commission and he served for over 16 years, part of the time as chairman.

Rates For Power and Domestic Light.

Fractional horse-power up to and including one horse power motor: Single phase service lighting rates which is two cents for the consumption charge up to three kilowatt hours per month for each 100 square feet of floor space.

One cent for all remaining consumption and a service charge of three cents per 100 square feet of floor space, with a minimum of 1,000 and a maximum of 3,000 square feet.

Three-phase power and single phase power over one horse power and up to seven and a half horse power: $15 per horse power per year. No discount.

For seven and a half horse power and over: Service charge of $1 per horse power per month, plus consumption charge of, for the first 50 hours monthly use of connected load at 1.33 cents per kilowatt hour.

For second 50 hours use of monthly connected load, at .867 cents per kilowatt hour.

For all additional consumption, .1 cent per subject to class discount, a local discount of 25 per cent. and a prompt payment discount of 10 per cent.

Consumers of domestic light, by a recent order of the commission, will now receive a discount of 20 per cent. for prompt payment.

Commercial Rates.

For all consumption up to the first 30 kilowatt hours four cents per kilowatt hour and two cents for all additional consumption up to 70 hours.

For all consumption above this amount the charge is .4 cents per kilowatt hour.

A Money-Maker.

Even with these low charges for light and power the municipal plant last year earned a surplus of $11,181.28, and the commission now has a total balance on hand of over $30,000. Last year the commission turned over to the Council the sum of $1,000, which was used in a reduction of the tax rate, and a similar sum has been handed over this year. On different occasions the commission has been in a position to loan the town money at a rate of interest of three per cent. as against the six per cent. that would be charged if the money was obtained from a bank. The large surplus on hand is maintained to provide for the debenture payments and to make repairs or improvements as these may be required.

The municipal power and lighting plant is the town's most valuable asset, and it is estimated that its present actual value is greater than the total debenture debt of the municipality.

PREMIER ABANDONED

argument implied lack of faith in the submission of the Minister of Railways that the Western lines were not making a profit on grain handling. If there was a profit, the Government should be paying dividends to bond holders of the subsidiary companies of the Canadian National Railways. If there was a profit, then the Progressive members were supporting a government which was defrauding the bond holders. Mr. Nicholson dealt at some length with the visit of the delegation of people interested in the motor car industry. He wondered why the Government had not invited the opinions of such a delegation before the tariff was reduced.

Mr. Millar interjected that there was nothing to prevent such a delegation coming to Ottawa at any time during the present session.

Mr. Nicholson retorted that the motor car industry had no means of knowing the Government's intention to single it out for tariff cuts. The motor car industry like every other industry, had had the previous assurance of Premier King that no such drastic tariff reductions would be made before the tariff board had considered them.

The Minister of Finance had, in effect, told the delegation "I stand by my guns." This frank attitude on the part of the minister was a "rebuke" to the evasive stand taken by Premier King, said Mr. Nicholson.

"If his words were not designed to deceived that delegation, then his words had no meaning at all," he said, referring to the Prime Minister's remarks to the deputation. The Premier had stated that the Government was in the hands of Parliament. Did the Prime Minister wish to give the impression that Parliament had anything to do with the preparation of the Budget? This financial statement had been prepared, said Mr. Nicholson, "at the dictation" of the Progressive leader. Premier King had also told the delegation that no member of Parliament had moved for the restoration of the tariff. Had not the Conservatives moved to have this whole question referred to the tariff board?

Transfer Tax Burden

The Budget, said Mr. Nicholson, did not reveal the actual financial conditions of the country. Announcement of changes in the Income Tax Act, instead of being a reduction, was a transference of the burden of the tax from one class to another.

"The Government in making this change, has not furnished Parliament with any information respecting the basis on which it reached its conclusion," said Mr. Nicholson, in discussing the tariff reduction on motor cars.

Mr. Nicholson added that the Prime Minister had declared at Kingston and Oshawa, during the election campaign, that no industry would be injured by tariff changes without careful investigation and expert advice. Today, Mr. Nicholson said, the Prime Minister had assured the delegation that the Government had obtained expert advice before making their reductions in the tariff on motor cars. Were the men employed in the factories given any opportunity to state their case before the reductions were made? he asked. The "expert advice" referred to by the Prime Minister had been obtained from the leader and members of the Progressive party.

Fielding's Policy.

Mr. Nicholson stated that Rt. Hon. W. S. Fielding had always insisted on the importance of tariff stability. His successor in the office of finance minister, however, had not given the country this much needed thing. The result was industrial stagnation all over Canada. Mr. Nicholson challenged any member of the House to show him a place from North Cape Breton to Vancouver where a dozen of the men who had been thrown out of work by the reduction in motor car tariffs could go and obtain profitable employment.

"As a cold matter of fact, we are now vassals of the United States commercially and economically," declared Mr. Nicholson.

"United States manufacturers and United States citizens, instead of Canadians, are the beneficiaries of the policy of this Government," said Mr. Nicholson. The policy of the Government could not be continued if Canada was to maintain its "national entity."

More than 100,000 ex-soldiers had found it necessary to leave Canada and make their home in the United States. In Toronto 100 people per day for a time, andan average of 70 persons, had obtained their birth certificates for the purpose of taking out naturalization papers in the United States.

"The man who stands up in this House and says that the steel industry had not been practically ruined, gives evidence that he knows nothing about industrial conditions," said Mr. Nicholson in condemning further the Government's policy since 1921.

The Government, he believed, should take steps to encourage the development of Canadian magazines. Canadian publishers should, at least, be placed on an equal footing with American houses.

Listen to Quebec

A. M. Edwards (Conservative, Waterloo South) said that if there had been one automobile factory east of the Ottawa River, the story of the Budget might have been very different. While it was hearkening to the influence of Quebec, however, the Government should keep in mind the fact that there were a great many tax-payers in Ontario. It should realize that there was a danger of killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. In Ontario about 100,000 people paid income taxes, while in Quebec only about 43,000 paid taxes. In money the figures were: for Ontario about $11,000,000, and for Quebec about $3,000,000. Relatively a very high percentage of income tax revenue came from Ontario, said Mr. Edwards. The prosperity of that province was of very vast importance to the Dominion apart from any political consideration.

"Boiling Over" means nothing to SPEEDIRON

IN the days of old-fashioned "open" elements, boiling over was a serious matter. Liquids dripping over the sides of the cooking pot and into the exposed wires and grooves frequently caused coils to burn out—a source of much inconvenience and expense.

NOW all that is changed. McClary's wonderful, new Speediron element enables you to cook with your mind at complete ease because you know nothing can injure the element. Your preseryes, your soups, your kettle—they may boil over a dozen or a hundred times without doing the slightest damage. The coils in McClary's Speediron are protected by a smooth, cast-iron surface—a surface so durable that hard knocks, falling pots, leaks and drips cannot possibly harm it.

Coils Easily Renewed and Repaired

If a coil burns out you simply lift out McClary's Speediron Element. With little effort and expense you can have the coil replaced by your dealer—while you wait. It is just as easy and simple to replace the unit as it is to plug in your iron or toaster.

Lasts as Long as the Range Itself

That's the amazing thing about McClary's Speediron. It lasts for years and years. And you have a range that cooks at great speed and saves current. The contact heat principle on which the Speediron operates eliminates waste by radiation—the heat goes into the pot, not into the kitchen. This means increased speed and exceptional economy.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Harry Morton, rich, handsome and unmarried, has an adopted daughter, Audrey, with whom he lives in Peterborough, but whom he takes with him on frequent trips to Toronto where he has an apartment. The town gossips never have learned his real business.

A man whom Morton calls Smith, and who claims to be Audrey's stepfather, appears after 18 years' absence and Morton ships him hurriedly to South America.

Nona, Toronto girl, madly in love with Morton, falls into a jealous rage and seeks to humiliate him with the aid of a man and another girl. He laughs at the plot and leaves. She comes to his apartment to plead for forgiveness and is overheard by Audrey, who declares her own love for Morton and asks him to marry her. He refuses. He hires John Parrish as his secretary and tells the young man he must undertake to be a companion to Audrey. He takes him to his apartment to dinner. Audrey whispers to Morton, asking him point blank if he has introduced Parrish as a candidate for her hand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

Morton touched the girl lightly on the arm.

"I'll tell you everything you want to know after Mr. Parrish has gone, but child—don't embarrass the poor boy by holding whispered conferences in corners."

He turned away and Audrey followed him. Her manner was subdued and she took little part in the conversation until after dinner. When they left the dining-room she took a chair by a window and looked absently into the dark street outside. The two men chatted at the other end of the room, Morton's eyes seeking from time to time to catch those of the girl. Then, at length, she looked up. She caught the slight frown upon his brow. In quick understanding she arose and walked slowly toward the organ console.

"Do you care for music, Mr. Parrish?" she asked.

Parrish's face lighted with pleasure. Morton watched him in an effort to determine whether the pleasure arose from the girl's question or from his receiving any notice from her at all.

"I do like music," Parrish said.

The girl sat on the organ stool and arranged the stops on the instrument.

"This organ can do double duty," she said. "It plays by electricity when I'm lazy; when I'm feeling energetic I do the playing myself. There's a Wagner roll in here now."

She thrust the starting lever and the organ throbbed into the "Wedding March."

The music stopped abruptly.

"I thought that was another roll," the girl said, busying herself with the mechanism. Her face had colored.

"I like that," said Parrish. "It's pretty."

She did not answer, but taking out a perforated roll, she placed it back in its container.

"I think I'd rather do the playing myself," she said at length.

She swept into the "Dead March" from "Saul." Parrish listened, happily enough, and Morton was smiling a little as he studied the bowed head of the girl. When she had finished, and without pause began the tremolo of a Scottish dirge, Morton interrupted.

"Shush!" he exclaimed. "Let's postpone the funeral service."

She let her hands fall to her lap. "I'll play whatever you want me to play," she said, obediently.

"Try some ballad music or something lively," he urged.

There was a pucker of mischief about her eyes as she answered. "All right. I'll play 'Oh Promise Me.'"

She kept her eyes on him and sang the words lightly as she played: "Oh promise me that some day you and

Morton's face was rather grim as he signaled to her that he understood. At the end he stood up and said: "Parrish doesn't know how to dance. Let's give him a lesson. I'll strum on his guitar and you try him out on the two-step."

The girl arose and obeyed without demur. While Morton was tuning the instrument she instructed Parrish in the proper positions for his hands and feet.

He was a willing pupil. With knit brow and clenched jaw he followed her instructions carefully. In time to the "plunk, plunk" of the guitar he ventured forth on the dance. He was by no means awkward, and, after five minutes of serious effort, gained confidence in himself enough to speak as he tripped laboriously around the room.

"I'm trying not to step on your feet now," he told Audrey.

She gave a quick smile. "Really you're doing very nicely," she assured him.

He fell out of step at this and there was a moment's confusion until she had him started on his way again. Morton played more rapidly. Parrish swung the girl with a little more assurance. She was light on her feet, as only girls in their 'teens can be. It became apparent that Parrish was enjoying himself.

"Try him on a foxtrot, Audrey," directed Morton.

There were further instructions. Parrish listened and presently became involved in a hopeless effort to combine the foxtrot and two-step. Morton took his place for a moment and showed him what to do. When the older man had returned to his guitar Parrish made a fresh attempt.

"It's like trying to learn French and German at the same time," he commented breathlessly.

At the end of another half hour Parrish was beginning to make progress in his new art. They were interrupted by the butler.

"Gentleman to see you, sir."

Morton laid down the guitar. "Show him into the book-room," he directed.

He turned and excused himself to the young people. "Good thing for you to rest now, anyway," he told Parrish. "You and Audrey talk a little while until I come back."

Morton's book-room was a small apartment, with shelves filling the entire wall space. Few of his books were in "sets." There were volumes of history, and travel, and science, and verse, with several hundred novels, most of them by older writers. All showed marks of use. There were a few works of new writers and one section, separated from the rest by a glass door, which was fastened by a padlock, was filled with volumes by those authors who delight to tell of the midnight aspects of sex. These were less worn than the others; some appeared not to have been read at all. Their backs were stiff and fresh.

Morton greeted him with a quick handshake. "Got those papers?" he asked.

The man took them from his pocket and stood them on the table.

"Those fellows offer to settle at seventy cents on the dollar," he said.

With an exclamation of interest, Morton took up a typewritten sheet. He glanced over it and then read more carefully a bulky document, bound in one of the wrappers that lawyers use.

"First-rate," he said. "Is everything legally airtight?"

The other man nodded. "All it needs is your acceptance," he said. "If you want to sign now I'll have the notary down at my office attest your signature in the morning and we'll shoot these papers back to them."

"I never made a million any easier," Morton said, seating himself at the table and picking up the pen. "I didn't expect them to offer more than twenty or twenty-five cents on the dollar at most."

The other man pointed with his finger at a line on which Morton was to sign. "You have too big a reputation down in that country for winning lawsuits," he suggested.

Morton signed his name in the three or four places indicated by his attorney and laughed. "Do you know how much actual money I've put into that scheme?" he asked.

The other man shook his head.

"It was exactly two hundred and sixty-one dollars," Morton laughed. "But—" his face grew serious—"I put in five years of the hardest work I ever did in my life. And that money was as big to me then as five million would be now."

"They're getting a bargain," his visitor said, as he buttoned his coat preparatory to leaving.

Morton let him out by a door leading directly to the main hall of the building. For a few minutes Morton leafed over the carbon copies that lay on the desk and then put them away with an air of complete content.

He returned to the drawing-room, but one pace inside the door he stopped and looked around.

Audrey was sitting there alone.

"Where's Parrish?" he demanded.

The girl arose, and coming to him, laid her hands on his breast.

"I asked him to go because I said I had a headache," he said, her eyes lowered. "I couldn't stand talking to him for some reason."

Morton took her hands in his and moved away from her a step.

"That was not well done," he said, his voice kind but firm. "You had no headache and you shouldn't have treated him that way."

"I wanted to talk to you," she said.

"Audrey," he said, "little white lies are as mean as any other lies, actually. They are not mean to the people we tell them to; they are mean to ourselves. They get us in a habit of mind where we automatically tell falsehoods—and I don't want you ever to tell falsehoods, dear."

He went to his arm-chair and sat down, leaning slightly forward with his finger tips together and his elbows on the arms of the chair. She stood where he left her, her eyes still upon the floor and her hands clasped before her.

"My dear little girl," he went on, "you were being unkind to him and he knew it. It is all right, if you desire, to be unkind to people who are powerful. They can take care of themselves—they're not easily hurt.

"But he is helpless. I am his employer and you're a beautiful girl. He is poor and you are rich. You have the means to hurt him and he cannot strike back. It is up to you and me to be considerate and helpful to everybody who is humble and weak. If he were a rich young man, with an assured social position, you could have him thrown out doors on his ear. I wouldn't care. But don't ever attack those who are defenseless, Audrey dear."

He made an ejaculation of concern. The girl had begun to cry. He arose hastily and took her in his arms.

"There, there! I didn't mean to be cruel!"

She was sobbing with her cheek against his coat.

"You weren't cruel," she said. "You're never cruel. I know I was a little beast, but oh—daddy dearest—my mind was so full of what I wanted to say to you that I could not talk to him at all. I wanted him to go away so I wouldn't be rude to him."

He patted her cheek and smoothed the ringlets back from her ear.

"Come over and sit down," he said, "and tell me what it was you wanted to say."

She wiped her eyes and dabbed at her nose with a tiny pad of silk that she drew from her vanity box.

As he seated himself she drew a chair beside him and sat leaning over and embracing his forearm.

"Daddy," said she, "you are trying to marry me to that young man!"

Morton temporized. "What makes you think so?"

"When a woman's in love she has an intuition about these things," she said.

She took his hand and thoughtfully separated his fingers, one by one. "I always have felt your thoughts, just as if you had spoken them, ever since I was a little girl," she went on. "But there is one thing I don't know—one thing I'm not sure about. I want you to tell me, daddy.

"Are you in love with Nona—are you going to marry her?"

Tries In Vain To Get a Real Baby: Is Foiled And Guesses Her Dolls Will Do For a While

NEW YORK, April 24 (United Press).—Dolls are fun, but not half as nice as a real baby, believes 10-year-old Muriel Hausner of Yonkers, who attempted ingeniously to acquire an honest-to-goodness infant.

A baby was found abandoned at a subway station here and due notice accordingly was given in the newspaper. Commissioner of Public Welfare Coler soon received a letter signed by "Mrs. Muriel Hausner," claiming the foundling as her own.

The letter was written on a portable typewriter and was more legible than might have been expected from a girl of ten.

"Mrs. Hausner" said she was sending her little sister for the child. "Don't feed him too much as he won't get so fat so my sister will be able to carry him home. She will bring $5 for his board," wrote Mrs. Hausner.

Welfare workers investigated, and Muriel admitted having written for the baby. She said she guessed she could make her dolls do for a while.

TRAIN DERAILED.

WOODSTOCK, April 24 (Canadian Press)—A defective rail is believed to be responsible for a wreck on the St. Thomas branch of the C. P. R. this morning. The accident occurred between St. Thomas and Ingersoll and ten freight cars were derailed. No one was injured. The line has been cleared and traffic resumed.

ONLY ONE ONTARIO CABINET MINISTER

Mr. Meighen Sees No Hope For Government.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 24—(Canadian Press.)— The question of more cabinet representation from Ontario came up again in the House of Commons Thursday. Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen had asked a question which affected the Postmaster General and was promised that Senator Murphy would be apprised of it.

"He is in the Senate I believe," said Mr. Meighen ironically. "How much longer is Ontario to be represented by one cabinet minister and one in the Senate? When is the government going to appoint a Minister of Trade and Commerce?"

Premier MacKenzie King replied that he was surprised at the question. Whenever the government suggested a by-election Mr. Meighen hastened to declare his opposition to it.

The leader of the Opposition retorted that if the government could not distinguish between opposition to the return of a member of parliament and opposition to an election being held, then there was no hope for this government.

SHOWER OF GIFTS TO MARMORA BRIDE

Closing Meeting of Young People's League.

MARMORA, April 24—On Tuesday evening a large number of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Wright, Crowe Lake, to tender a shower to their daughter, Margaret, who became Mrs. Bert Anderson that day. The bride was the recipient of many useful presents, and both newlyweds received congratulations and best wishes from the many assembled. The evening was most sociably spent, adjournment for a dainty lunch taking place at the midnight hour.

Mr. Anderson has been appointed cheesemaker at the Champion Cheese Factory in Madoc Township where, for the present, they will reside.

Sleep is Nature's Nerve Restorer

"THAT may be very true," you say, "but that is just the trouble I cannot sleep."

And that is just why we are going to tell you about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which is generally conceded to be the greatest of nerve restoratives.

It is not a sleep producer in the sense of being a narcotic. But it does naturally and gradually restore the wornout nervous system and in a few days you find yourself enjoying sound, restful sleep.

Sleeplessness is, perhaps, the most outstanding symptom of nervous exhaustion. Without sleep there is no chance of replacing at night the nerve force used up during the day in the activities of life. Without such aid as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food affords you are doomed to physical bankruptcy.

By using this treatment and taking as much rest as possible you will very soon find yourself on the highway to health. But a little patience is necessary. A condition which has been years in developing cannot be overcome in a day. Of one thing you can be certain and that is that with each dose of the nerve food you are supplying to the blood and nerves the elements of nature which are essential for the restoration of the human system. JUMPING TOOTH-ACHE

You have been fortunate indeed if you have never experienced that worst of all dental pains—the 'jumping toothache.'

But perhaps you have listened sympathetically to your little chap as he tried to tell you, between sobs, how something just seemed to be jumping up and down inside the tooth that pained more and more intensely as he lay with his cheek against the pillow.

Almost instinctively, perhaps, you had him sit up, and he found, happily, that it did not hurt nearly so much as when he was lying down.

Now, you thought perhaps that it was because he stopped thinking about it so much when sitting up, that made the pain more bearable—but just why it "jumped" you were not so sure.

Well, no doubt you have had a cut finger with an area of inflammation around the wound, and you noticed that the pain was of a throbbing character, that with each pulse beat there was a sharp little stab, so to speak.

Now, the same with the tooth—with each heart-beat a new supply of blood is forced into the pulp tissue, which, being inflamed and already engorged with blood, is subjected to an increased and severe pressure (at each beat), and a consequent response on the part of the nerves as they are subjected to the abnormal pressure. This, we call pain.

Then, with your little chap sitting up, the flow of blood to the head was lessened resulting in a milder rush of blood into the tooth pulp which caused a decreased pressure, with lessened pain.

THINGS WOMEN DO

"What the flapper really means when she says 'I've a right to my own life!' is really, 'I want to make a hog of myself'." Quoted from an eminent eastern divine.

When the tired housewife means "If I only didn't have to cook on Sunday!" she is but rebelling at a social custom much at odds with nature. Out in California there is a huge lion farm. The keeper explains that Monday is Blue Monday to his lions because on that day they are fed only water. "Their stomachs should rest one day," he says. "They would not make a kill every day in the jungle."

That blondes are passive, brunettes agressive, has long been taught us. Now real scientific investigation says that all this stuff is "the bunk." The psychology department of the University of Minnesota assigned for study two brunettes and blondes each to the 94 students in the department. Each student reported the possession of the same characteristics with the same intensity in both blondes and brunettes.

MOTHERS' DAY

This day falls on May 9 this year.

YOUR HOME

How many newlyweds buy bookcases? Mighty few in this day of small flats and circulating libraries. But there are always the few books to be disposed of. Shops are full of charming hanging book shelves. Lovely ones of lacquer and red liven up the right room.

THE MEAL

When the Japanese cook a meal they insist that the menu contain the five different tastes—sweet, sour, salt, bitter, acrid. Here's an appetizer that will answer the "sour" bill. Chop and mix 1 cup cabbage, 1 tablespoon chives, 1-2 pimento, 2 olives. Chill and cover with French dressing.

THE BEAUTY

If you are a blonde use flesh or pink powder, clear rose rouge, and light, bright lipsticks. If in the brunette class, use peach or ochre powders, orange rouges and lipsticks.

A BLEMISHED SKIN

Cannot Be Relieved By Salves and Ointments.

Irritating sores, pimples, eczema, salt rheum and other skin disorders are all signals of distress, telling that your blood is weak or impure. You cannot get rid of eczema and other skin troubles with ointments and outward applications, because the trouble is rooted in the blood and can only be removed by purifying and enriching the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills banish these troubles because they purify and build up the impoverished blood. This has been proved over and over again. Among those who have thus benefited is Mrs. Chris F. Hummel, Castor, Alta., who says:—"I was troubled with eczema for years and although I tried many remedies I did not find permanent relief until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Whenever I did a little work my hands pained me greatly, especially my fingers and joints which were swollen and cracked, so that I could scarcely move them. Finally as the result of a statement I read, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I had not been taking them very long when I found they were helping me. I then got a dozen boxes, and before they were all gone every trace of the trouble had disappeared. Had I known of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills earlier I might have been spared the suffering I endured, and saved the money spent for other treatments that did not relieve me. I hope some other sufferer will benefit by my xperience."

If your blood is out of order begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today and note their speedy beneficial results. Sold by medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CATTLE STARVED MEN TO BE TRIED

Two Men Face Charge of Neglect To Supply Food.

FOUR CALVES DEAD.

The trial of H. R. Spratt and Frank Grant, of Manvers township, will be held in Millbrook on Tuesday at 1.30 o'clock.

The men face a charge of neglecting to supply food to cattle, thereby causing unnecessary suffering.

Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker and Inspector R. C. Smith, of the Peterborough Humane Society, visited the place a few days ago and found four dead calves, one of which was lying in the barn, while the other three were in a field. They also found six cattle in a starving condition and a team of horses in a similar plight.

Nude Village Belle Leads Men Against Dacoits; Routs Invaders And Is Decorated By Government

(By Bernard Beilby, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

CALCUTTA, India, April 24.—A village girl famed among the natives for her beauty was decorated by the Bengal Government for spectacular heroism reminiscent on a miniature scale of Joan of Arc in France.

Instead of arraying herself in armor, however, as did the Maid of Orleans, the Indian Joan stripped herself bare of clothing and led her fellow villagers in a charge which routed a force of Dacoits, as a certain class of murderous gangsters are called in India.

Dressed in the uniforms of native policemen whom they had murdered the Dacoits entered the girl's village. As soon as they had gained the centre of the collection of huts, the invaders organized for looting. The natives were terrified. With them ran the dark Joan. Their flight took them to the river bank where were kept the village fishing spears. Joan stopped by the spears and called her friends around her. She exhorted them to resist the murderers. In the midst of her exhortion she tore her clothes from her body, set them afire and gathering a bundle of spears in her arms and distributed them among the men.

With the nude girl to lead them, the men charged the Dacoits. The gangsters were armed with rifles, but they could not prevail against the leadership of the unclothed girl. There was a short engagement and the Dacoits fell back. Subsequently five of them were arrested.

A MEDICINE THAT ALL MOTHERS PRAISE

Baby's Own Tablets Banish Babyhood and Childhood Ailments.

Mrs. H. Oakes, Sarnia, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my home for the past fifteen years and I believe the good health my children enjoy is due entirely to this medicine. The Tablets are helpful at teething time; relieve colds and are always beneficial in the minor ailments of little ones. I have recommended Baby's Own Tablets to other mothers whose experience with them has been as satisfactory as my own."

Baby's Own Tablets do one thing only, but they do it well. They act as a gentle laxative which thoroughly regulates the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus banishing constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fevers and turn the cross, sickly baby into a well, happy laughing child.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SHE FOUND THEM A GREAT HELP

Ontario Lady Now Free From Kidney Trouble After Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Miss M. Dykeman Suffered With Pains in Her Back and Inflammation of the Bladder.

THAMESVILLE, Ont., April 23.—(Special.)— Once more Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved their inestimable value to suffering women. Miss M. Dykeman of this place suffered from kidney trouble. She writes: "I had a terrible pain in my back and had inflammation of the bladder. I saw your advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought I would try them. I found them a great help. I took several boxes and have not had any trouble with my kidneys since."

The reason why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular is because of the good work they do.

Ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak or diseased kidneys. They are the organs which must be kept strong and healthy, otherwise they will fail to do their work of straining the impurities out of the blood. Safeguard yourself against the complications which follow kidney disorder, by taking Dodd's Kidney Pills.

COMEDY PRESENTED BY YOUNG PEOPLE

Stewart Hall Society Puts on Play at George Street.

There was a very good attendance last evening in the Sunday school room of the George street church, for the sparkling three-act comedy, "The Colonel's Maid," presented by the Young People's Society of Stewart Hall, under the auspices of the Welcome Bible Class of the Church. The play was splendidly put on by the group of talented young people and was enthusiastically received by a pleased audience. The element of humour in the comedy was well brought out, and the entire production, well staged with suitable furnishings, was interesting from start to finish.

"The Colonel's Maid," a comedy in three acts, revolves about the difficulties of two Carolina gentlemen, enemies on principle, whose children become involved in a romance, and also in a case of mistaken identity. Colonel Rudd has an establishment whose servitor is a Chinaman, "a Celestial bonfire," as his employer terms him. The arrival of unexpected visitors, including an old flame of the Colonel's, causes complications in the household, and the visit of Bob Rudd's college friend, with a habit of mixing everything up, also adds to the interest and humor of the plot, which finally straightens itself out in a most satisfactory manner.

The direction of the play was in the capable hands of Miss Vera Squire and the scene is laid in Robert Rudd's bachelor establishment.

The cast, all of whom acquitted themselves admirably, and went through their separate parts in clever, capable fashion, included Lyn Stewart as Colonel Robert Rudd, a widower of North Carolina. William Dawson, as Colonel Richard Byrd, a widower of South Carolina; Miss Grace Stewart, as Miss Marjory Byrd, and Harold Dawson, as Bob Rudd; Miss Edith Thorn, as Mrs. John Carroll, a widow, and Colonel Rudd's sister-in-law; Miss May Thorn, as Julia Carrol, her daughter; William Hutchinson, as Ned Graydon, a young gentleman of exceedingly faulty memory, Fred Chambers, as Mr. James Baskom, Colonel Rudd's lawyer, and Richard Stewart, as Ching-ah-ling, the Chinese cook, and the most important individual in the cast.

Between acts, the George street church Sunday school orchestra, rendered several pleasing selections, and Mr. Stewart Dawson of Stewart Hall, gave violin numbers in splendid style.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

COMING TO THE POINT

As though he were afraid that I would think he had a kindly thought in his brain, Mr. Hathaway drew his brows into a frowning straight line over his nose. I knew he was thinking about his son and how the younger generation had some strange ideas in regard to what they called their independence.

I went steadily on with my story.

He did not again interrupt until I said I had gone the first night to his restaurant.

"Why did you pick on the Beaux Arts?" he asked suspiciously. "Did you not know it was the most expensive eating place in all the town? It certainly was not a place where a girl who had to work for her living would eat unless someone else paid for her meal."

"I didn't know anything about it, sir, except that it looked like one of those stylish restaurants I had read about and I determined that for once in my life I would see what was inside. I would taste what kind of food they served and look upon the beautiful ladies I had heard so much about."

I stopped a moment.

"Go on." He seemed satisfied with my explanation.

"You see, sir, I was foolish enough to have all that money my dad had given me in my bag." He looked toward the bag I had placed on his desk.

"It was not that bag, sir, but I am coming to that one later. I left my old bag lying on the table while I was ordering my dinner. I expect I became so interested in the people about me—I had never seen so many women with their backs all showing in my life—that I forgot my money.

"When I came to pay my bill I had none. My bag was gone."

"Gone!" exclaimed Mr. Hathaway incredulously. "Had there been anyone at your table?"

"Plenty of people had brushed by me. You see, the head waiter, finding out that I was alone, had given me a table which would not have been acceptable to his better patrons. Your waiters and other service men set their dirty dishes on one side. Mr. Hathaway, young women alone are not treated very kindly in your restaurant."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite Shawnee Oklahoma.

N. W. Reay, Publisher of The St. Paul (Minnesota) Daily News, Says

THAT the newspaper of the present day has made probably the most remarkable progress of any one phase of our business life. It has gradually assumed an importance so that it might today be termed the dominant influence of civilization.

THAT in a few hundred years the newspaper has advanced from a minor to a foremost position, and a place in the minds of the people which is more important than many of the national governments, and in actual dollars and cents volume of business competes with many of our leading industries.

THAT coupled with the modern newspaper there has also come a development of advertising which has made possible new modes of merchandise that were unthought of a century ago.

THAT no selling influence in the civilized life today is as powerful and as effective as the columns of the newspapers. As a group, newspapers reach practically all the homes in the United States regularly as a welcome visitor. Messages that it carries, whether of news or advertising, finds the reader in a receptive mood. It is a wonderful asset to the progressive merchant, and without the aid of newspaper advertising it would not have been possible to build up the tremendous retail organizations that are found in the metropolitan cities in this day and age.

Newspaper advertising has seen a tremendous development, and the thinking man realizes that it has a further way to go. This development, I believe, will continue, as it is one of the most important advancements of modern times, along sound economical lines.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I am writing this on a train between New York and Washington. Across the aisle from me are two girls, on their way back to school, I imagine, after a week-end at home.

They are fine specimens of the so-called "flapper" type and I have observed them with considerable interest. In the first place, they are fair to look upon, but we expect that of all womenkind.

But what pleases me about these young women is their industry. Tomorrow there will be classes and I venture to say they will be well prepared. For two hours they have been just as busy as I have. One has written a story, for which I heard her say she had considerable trouble to decide on an ending. The other has solved endless problems in mathematics.

They have minded their own business. They are on their way and are not taken up with the affairs of the other passengers.

They indulge a bit in rouge and powder, but, bless their hearts, they don't need either and won't be damaged one bit by that little foolishness. They give evidence of having good appetites. They haven't spent their time and undermined their normal stomachs by eating candy all the afternoon.

I am not disturbed by present-day activities of the young people. Somebody said the other day that the "herd principle" predominates—that the inherited and home formed ideals are being wiped out by the "herd" practices.

When, pray, was the time young folks didn't run in "gangs" and "crowds" and "sets"? It always was so, but the boundaries or limitations of these groups were never fixed. There was a "run out" here and an addition there. New stock is being added and fresh idealism is poured in every day.

I'd rather have the free limbed, unencumbered bodied, athletic girl as she is today, than to have her return to the tight, high corsets, long dragging skirts and over weighted conditions of olden times. She is, deeper chested, stronger spined and harder muscled than the girl of several generations ago was. With equal care in home and church instruction, I am confident the modern girl will travel the line of life as closely as her predecessors did.

Every girl should be taught how to cook, or at least how to select a meal suited to give health and vigor. She must not depend on the soda fountain and the sandwich-wagon for her nourishment. Her freedom of dress gives her a swing through the streets that will develop an honest appetite. This must be satisfied by the eating of real food.

When she is properly fed, the cheeks are pink, the lips are red and the eyes bright. With bodies abounding in health, their minds think good thoughts and they are likely to be the joy of their parents.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SUNDAY AND MONDAY, APRIL 25, 26.

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of adverse conditions in affairs generally. Under the circumstances it is enjoined that the fitting celebrations of the Sabbath engage the attention, with a guard on the tongue and temper.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of anxiety in which their own contentious spirit may play a part. Shun law and speculation. A child born on this day may be active, aggressive and combative.

Monday's astrological forecast shows a day in which effort should be directed toward fulfillment of the ambitions. It is a time for growth and expansion in all desired lines, with the prospect of flourishing and happy culminations. The finances may be strengthened and new undertakings should thrive.

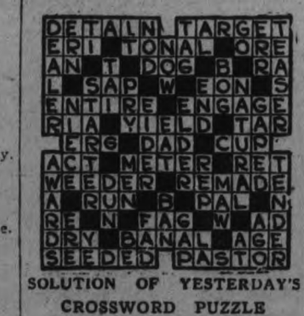
Those whose birthday it is may have a year of fulfilled ambitions and should push their affairs to expansion and financial success. Especially should new undertakings flourish. A child born on this day should be ambitious and happy and should attain to a good position in life through its own merit. It will likely be kind, free and popular with the public.

PHOTOGRAPHS

Why is it folk are fussed ta death, when having pictures taken? What makes ya kinda catch yer breath? Has self-control forsaken? Ya stand before the camera and there's no real thought of fear. And yet you ne'er can understand just why ya feel so queer.

You're togged out in the best you've got, and oughta feel real fit, but when you're posin', like as not, it's that way—not a bit! The camera man suggests a style of view ta make ya proud, and when ya try to slightly smile—ya want to laugh out loud.

The photographs are taken and they're ready in a week. And all that time you're achin' fer the proofs—to get a peek. At last, when they're submitted—it's a strange thing, still it's true: The best one is a dandy—but it doesn't look like you.



SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER TWENTY-TWO—MISTER TINGALING CAN'T BELIEVE HIS EARS

"We must go and collect Mister Beaver's rent next," said Mister Tingaling. "I completely forgot about it when I made my last trip to Ripple Creek."

"We'll have to put on our swimming clothes then, won't we?" said Nick.

"You know better than that, Nick," said the fairyman landlord. "Even if we do have to go under water to get there, we can't get wet with so much magic along."

"I know, Mister Tingaling," said Nick. "I was only joking."

"Well, then, let's be going," said Mister Tingaling.

It wasn't more than five minutes and fifteen seconds before the Twins and the little fairyman found themselves in the underground hallway of the Beaver Warren. For that's what the Beaver family called their house.

It was a big house made of sticks and mud, with a rounded roof. Inside, it was pretty dark, but glow-worm lamps made it look very cozy and homelike.

There were Grandma and Grandpa Beaver sitting on splint chairs and dozing comfortably.

And there were the Beaver children playing tag with their little flat tails, all over the place.

And there was Papa Beaver whittling some sticks with his sharp teeth to get the bark off for soup.

And there was Mama Beaver cooking dinner, or supper, or whatever it is that beavers have at night.

"Come right in and make yourselves at home!" said Mrs. Beaver hospitably, when she saw them." I was just thinking it was time you were coming around, Mister Landlord. See here, Mister Beaver, here's company! And Ma and Pa Beaver, can't you wake up long enough to bid our guests good-day? Here, children! Come and shake hands with these nice people who have come to visit us. Billy, you go and get chairs for everybody."

Really it wasn't two minutes before Mrs. Beaver had each person feeling as though he or she was the finest person on earth.

In about three minutes Mister Tingaling was saying, "I came to see if there was anything I could do to fix up your house a little nicer, Mrs. Beaver."

"Oh, no! No indeed!" said Mrs. Beaver. "You don't need to do a thing for us, Mister Landlord. Our rent is so low for this beautiful place, and everything is so convenient, we couldn't think of asking you for anything."

Nancy had noticed a bad place in the wall. "I think you need new wallpaper," she said.

"Oh, no," said Mrs. Beaver. "My husband will fix that up nicely with a little glue."

"Wouldn't you like your floors painted?" asked Nick.

"Goodness, no! They would only wear off again!" said Mrs. Beaver.

"Don't you need your roof fixed, or your pipes mended or anything?" asked Mister Tingaling, with a bewildered look.

"Not a thing," declared Mrs. Beaver. "Do we, Daddy Beaver?"

"No, sir!" said Mister Beaver. "Not a thing, thank you. And here's your rent money, Mister Landlord. It's little enough for such a nice house."

Mister Tingaling blinked and blinked when he got outside again.

"Children," said he, "will you please pinch me to see if I am awake or dreaming? I've never been treated like that before in all my life."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY MEETS A WISE LITTLE DADDY BIRD

Peggy spotted the gay-colored warbler up among the branches of the oak tree, singing his merry song.

"What a beauty he is!" she mused. "Oh dear! I just wish I——"

"Could understand him," interrupted a merry voice, and Peggy glanced down into the smiling face of her little elfin friend, Happy Giggles. "I'll bet that was what you were going to wish, wasn't it?"

"Well, yes, Happy Giggles," Peggy answered. "I really would love to know that beautiful bird. Why does he pick out that high perch for his merry song? So it will be heard all over the meadows?"

Happy Giggles winked his merry black bird eyes and before Peggy knew what was happening, she found herself perched upon the limb of the tree beside one of the prettiest birds she had ever seen.

He was a wee bit smaller than Mr. Robin, dressed in the most brilliant scarlet suit, with lovely jet black wings and tail.

His merry black eyes sparkled when Happy Giggles introduced him to Peggy as Mr. Scarlet Tanager.

"I saw you watching me," he chirped merrily. "And I was wondering what you were thinking about."

"Isn't that funny?" laughed Peggy. "I was wondering why you perched so high to sing."

"Well, you see, I dress very gayly

"I Saw You Watching me."

at this time of the year and if I sang too close to my mate while she is nesting, I'd cause too much comment," laughed Mr. Scarlet Tanager. "Some hunter would pop me for my gay suit. By the way, Happy Giggles, come and see what we have." Then he sailed to the tree next to the one in which they were sitting, calling the elfin and Peggy with him."

Mrs. Scarlet Tanager, a modest little bird, dressed in olive tones, was quite pleased to meet her mate's new friend and she hopped off the rude next so Peggy could get a peek at her lovely bluish green eggs.

"Well, no wonder Mr. Scarlet Tanager doesn't sing over your nest," laughed Peggy. "Tell me, will the baby birdies look like you and Mr. Scarlet Tanager?"

"Of course, when they are full grown they will," replied Mr. Scarlet Tanager. "But when they first come from the shells, they are dressed in very dull colors. Shades that fall in with the tones of the leaves. But you just wait. By the time they begin to fly, they'll have bright touches of scarlet scattered over their suits. Then when they are old enough to moult they will dress just as we do."

"And would you believe it," chirped up his wife, "in the Fall Mr. Scarlet Tanager changes his bright suit for one very much like mine."

"I don't blame him," declared Peggy. "For a scarlet suit like his among the Autumn foliage would be seen too plainly."

Mrs. Scarlet Tanager climbed back on her nest, and then Peggy and Happy Giggles went on through the woods in search of new adventure.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Canned cherries, toasted shredded wheat biscuits with hot milk, broiled cottage ham, rye muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Stuffed onions with white sauce, bran bread, prune whip, boiled custard, milk, tea.

Dinner—Baked shad with raisins, new potatoes in parsley butter, beets in orange sauce, graham bread, pineapple sandwiches, milk, coffee.

The housekeeper who likes to serve meals just a little bit "different" may find something new in this dinner menu. The pineapple sandwiches use shredded fresh fruit well sweetened between thin slices of sponge cake or angel food. The "sandwich" is then mashed with whipped cream.

Baked shad with raisins is not an everyday dish but is quite delicious and worth while.

Baked Shad With Raisins.

One good-sized shad, 4 or 5 thin slices salt pork, 3 tomatoes, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-2 cup seedless raisins, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup cold water.

Have the shad split and cleaned. Place slices of salt pork on the rack on a roaster and put fish on them. Cut tomatoes in slices and arrange through the center of the fish. Spread each slice generously with butter. Sprinkle with raisins and parsley. Add salt and pour around the water. Cover roaster and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes. Serve on a hot platter and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Plenty of Cheap Substitutes—only one Alabastine

SINCE Alabastine—the beautiful interior wall finish—was offered to the public many years ago, numerous cheap substitutes have been placed on the market. These substitutes are inferior in every way. They are not as sanitary, as easy to use, as wearable or as attractive as Alabastine.

MONTREAL BRIDGE HISTORY IS GIVEN

P. L. Pratley Tells of Various Plans Advanced For Bridge.

A history of the south shore bridge across the St. Lawrence river at Montreal since it was first planned in 1876 was given by P. L. Pratley, M.E., M.E.I.C., at the regular meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada Thursday night. Mr. Pratley is one of the engineers who designed the bridge which is now in the course of construction and he gave an interesting account of the work already done.

The first bridge planned, in 1876, was to be known as the Royal Albert Bridge. It was to occupy the site originally selected for the Victoria Bridge, which was completed in 1856, and was to provide for other railway traffic (The Victoria bridge being owned and operated solely by the Grand Trunk) and for highway traffic. The main span was to be 550 feet long and to have a clearance of 130 feet.

Other bridge plans followed this, crossing at different angles and at different points on the three small islands in the river. Then the C.P.R. constructed the Lachine bridge, which was later double tracked, and the Victoria bridge was double tracked by the G.T.R., so that the reason formerly advanced for building the bridge, that of railway accomodation, ceased to exist. The war started and all plans were put aside.

After the war the great increase in the use of automobiles made a road traffic bridge necessary. At present the only provision is the ferry and a narrow roadway on one side of the Victoria bridge. Plans were made by different firms but the Montreal Harbor Commissioners stepped in ahead of private enterprise and obtained a charter from the Federal Government. They laid down conditions to be fulfilled by the bridge and the plans of Mr. Pratley's firm were adopted. This bridge crosses from St. Lambert on the south shore to Delorimier avenue in Montreal, touching on Isle Ste. Helene and Isle Ronde.

The main span is of cantilever construction, and approaches and stretch over the southern part of the river of deck construction. The total length is two miles. The plans include a means of access to Isle Ste. Helene, which it is hoped to make into a public park.

Work has been started on the piers and some design work has been done on the steel work, for which the contracts have been let. The total cost is estimated at about $10,800,000, and the work is to be finished in 1931. The bridge is expected to pay for itself in a few years, as an income of several hundred thousand dollars a year from the tolls is expected.

The name of Molsons' Brewery was prominent in the discourse. One of the difficulties met with in all bridges in this location has been the fact that the brewery buildings are in the way, and an attempt is being made to have the malt storage building removed as it will create a fire hazard under the bridge. Another difficulty is political. The Montreal authorities want the approach to go as far inland as possible so as to keep the traffic off the water front, but the farmers of the south shore are bringing pressure to bear so that they can get off the bridge right near the water front, where the markets are located.

The lecture was illustrated by slides, showing not only sketches of the bridges proposed and plans of the harbor, but different phases of the actual work being done and the technical points provided for by the engineers and contractors. Many points of interest were mentioned. One was the fact that the contractors for the north end piers were French Canadians and all their workmen were of the same race, no Poles, Galicians, Italians, or men of other races usually associated with such work being engaged. The stone for the masonry on the south end of the bridge comes from quarries near Ivanhoe owned by the contractors, Quinlan Robertson Co.

A. E. Caddy occupied the chair and a hearty vote of thanks was moved by R. B. Rogers.

Complete muscular relaxation essential for healthful sleep

At "rising time" comes the test as to whether your night's sleep has given you the renewed vigor and vitality so necessary to the busy activities of this modern age.

If certain muscles of the body remain tense for lack of resting support no amount of sleep will renew their energy. For instance—if the muscles enclosing the vital abdominal organs are allowed to sag and assume unnatural positions due to improper mattress support, they are under a strain, and cannot relax. Sleep therefore, doesn't rest this part of the body as well or healthfully as it would if proper support relieved the strain and allowed the tense muscles to relax.

The Marshall Spring Mattress, built with many hundreds of highly resilient, independantly working springs, fits the natural contour of the body, giving even, gentle support to every muscle. This kind of body support ensures true muscular relaxation and health-building sleep. It is this Marshall principal of new sleeping comfort that is changing the sleeping habits of generations.

PRINCES OF CHURCH TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Papal Secretary and Ten Cardinals Will Participate in Great Gathering.

For the first time in history the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in the United States. In 1910 the Congress was held in Montreal but with this one exception all former congresses have been held in the capitals of Europe. Chicago will be the scene of this vast cosmopolitan assemblage, June 20 to 24, and the proximity of Toronto, and through Toronto practically the whole of Ontario, to this city will enable many thousands of Canadians to participate in the inspiring ceremonies and witness what will be the greatest religious demonstration in the history of the continent.

Organizations of the prospective visitors to the Congress from the district of Ontario is in the hands of the officers of the Holy Name Society. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union has already circularized the societies of the diocese inviting them to attend the Congress and arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway for special train accommodation. Special trains originating in Toronto will leave on the night of June 19, arriving in Chicago in time for the opening. Through the same agency arangements have also been made for suitable accommodation for the Ontario visitors in Chicago, and Mr. Smith anticipates that being assured of ample train and hotel accommodation, the Ontario party will number many hundreds.

Featuring the opening of Congress will be the reception of Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of State for the Vatican, who will attend, with ten cardinals, and a retinue of the most important ecclesiastics of the Church, as the official Delegate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Cardinal Gasparri will carry the message of His Holiness. Special services will be held this day in all the churches of the city with a million confessions and communions as a spiritual bouquet to His Holiness the Pope. General and sectional meetings will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and will be addressed by prominent church men and laymen from foreign capitals. In the case of the sectional meetings the audiences will be addressed in their native tongues. Fifty thousand school children will sing the Mass of the Angels at the general meeting on Monday.

The Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress will be brought to an end by a Eucharistic Procession at Mundelein, twenty-six miles from Chicago.

SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL APPEAL

Will Be Made From May 2 To 16—Objective is $3,000.

The Salvation Army is making its annual appeal to the public in the interest of the self-denial campaign from Sunday, May 2, to May 16. Each year has seen more and more liberality on the part of the public and increased co-operation in the great effort which has been very encouraging to those who are engaged in this great work.

The fact that the public in all lands is becoming more liberal toward the work of the Army each year is that its work must be of growing interest. That this interest has long found a place in Peterboro gives those who are in charge of the work here special pleasure. The Army is deeply grateful to the friends in Peterboro for the help rendered to the work in the past efforts and ask that they will co-operate in making this year's effort a decided success. The objective for this year's campaign is $3,000.

There are three things the Army is especially seeking to accomplish and which all will agree are good and Christ-like and worthy of support:

(1) To relieve the temporal needs of those in suffering, in sorrow or in want,

(2) To spread the knowledge of Jesus Christ, especially among the neglected and outcast in every land, who know him not.

(3) To organize a force of Godly men and women to fight against vice, for the honor of God and the happiness of men, both in this life and the next.

It is on behalf of this work that the Salvation Army is making its self-denial appeal.

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTENDED TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER.

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest, and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National route, on radio equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the Granary of the Empire, is always interesting. Then there is Jasper Park Lodge, of continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky-piercing giants, snow-capped, massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never ending succession of mountain—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and [illegible] waterfalls until you reach the coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips as mapped out by Canadian National Railways are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer Tourist Fairs are effective between May 15th and September 30th, with a return limit of October 31st, at a minimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets. 2d-10 24 conditions that they were ironclad, and Mr. Harris expressed some wonder as to how they could be sold. They did, however, he said, restore confidence in the business, so that it could be raised to its present position. These companies put the business on a scientific basis.

ANNUAL DINNER ENDS CONVENTION

Big Increase Made

There is at present, said the speaker, $4,158,000,000 insurance in force in Canada, whereas in 1899 there was $404,000,000. In 1925 Canadian policy holders paid in premiums $145,000,000, of which about 60 per cent went to Canadian companies, while in 1899 the premiums amounted to 13 millions. In 1899 between seven and eight millions was paid in claims, of which 60 per cent went to the beneficiaries of deceased policy holders. In 1925 twelve million was paid to the heirs of dead people and 40 million to living policy holders. Now, said the speaker, life insurance can satisfy life aspirations as well as death loss.

The policies have increased in liberality, said Mr. Harris, and now most of the document is made up of options and privileges, instead of containing lists of actions that rendered it void.

The speaker referred to the fact that no Canadian life insurance company had ever failed to pay all its obligations, and said that no other line of business could make this claim.

Reasons for Gains

The change in the home and industrial life in the past 50 years was given as the first reason for the increase in life insurance. Where a widow in a small community was helped by her friends and kept herself by means of her garden, accepting her sad lot in piteous resignation, the widow of the present, living in a city where she doesn't know the next door neighbor, has to have money, which the policy provides.

The recent war was a great factor. With many men cut off in the prime of their lives, and others taken suddenly by the influenza epidemic which followed, the uncertainty of life was brought home to the people of Canada. The return of men with injuries which partly incapacitated them showed the people of Canada the balance of pensions and helped that class of insurance.

The innovations made have helped. Group policies, non-medical policies, and similar developments have led people to take out insurance who would have been turned down in 1890. Thirty per cent. of present policy-holders, said the speaker, would have been inacceptable a quarter of a century ago.

Better agents, properly trained for the work, have also helped increase the amount of insurance in force. Mr. Harris illustrated this by the story of the Duke of Wellington, who wrote the War Office, after he had inspected the raw recruits sent him, saying that they might not frighten the enemy but they did frighten him. He compared these troops to the raw recruits who flocked into the Canadian army and who, when trained, proved superior to the veteran soldiers of Germany.

The tradition of the insurance business in Canada, and especially the Sun Life Company, said Mr. Harris, was something to honor. The agents of to-day, he said, are following mighty men, and must prove worthy, keeping the ideals of the business and the company ever before them.

Mr. Harris' address was punctuated quite frequently with the applause of his audience. His use of humorous stories, always to the point, added to the interest of his lecture.

The Presentation.

Arnold Platt, Picton agent of the company, obtained from Mr. Wallace permission to take up a few minutes time immediately after the toast to the King, and then asked for the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Taylor. He then proceeded to express to them the appreciation of the agents for the work done by them and the assistance given, and for the hospitality tendered on the occasion of the annual conventions. Other members of the staff presented Mr. Wallace with a mantel clock, Mr. Taylor with a Duofold pen and pencil set, and Mrs. Wallace and Mrs. Taylor with candlesticks and baskets of flowers. Mr. Wallace and Mr. Taylor made short replied in suitable terms.

The Company.

M. E. Hartley of Oshawa proposed the toast to the Sun Life Insurance Company, stressing the assistance given by the head office and district offices to the men in the field. The toast was replied to by W. Stuart Penny, inspector of agencies, and George W. Bourke of the actuarial department.

Mr. Penny said that he would confine his remarks to the home department, or the work of the company in Canada and Newfoundland. With $54,476,000 in paid-up business he said, the Sun Life led the insurance companies doing business in Canada during 1925. Between thirty-five and forty per cent. of this was insurance sold to people already holding policies, which he took as an indication of the trust they had for the company. In the whole world, he said, the company is progressing, and expects to write a total of three hundred million dollars worth of new business in 1926.

The sympathy of the head office departments with the agents formed the burden of Mr. Penny's further remarks. He said that the records of the men were closely followed by everybody, and the development of the individual men was sought. By getting these men on a solid basis so they could live well on their commissions, the company would get the production, which he said some of the men thought was the sole idea of the head office.

Mr. Bourke talked of the stand of the Sun Life Co. all over the world, speaking of a letter received from the Lord Bishop of Bombay, India, in regard to service given a policyholder as an evidence of its good standing. He said that all the company's force should talk Sun Life and believe Sun Life.

The Ladies.

D. H. Moore of Peterborough proposed the toast to the ladies. After some interesting comments on his gray hair, which he ascribed to caring for the ladies, and some comments on the styles of to-day, of which he expressed approval, he spoke in a more serious vein on the relationship of life insurance to the ladies. He said that each lady represented a potential loan to her husband of an amount twenty times his income, and that she should see, as did other lenders, that the article on which she lent her potential value was insured to the full extent of the loan. Thus, he said, if she lost her security, the income, at five per cent., would be equal to the income which her husband had had. He urged the ladies present to see that their husbands were thus protected.

Mrs. R. A. Armstrong replied for the ladies, and her speech was described by the chairman as a good insurance selling talk. After thanking the proper for his kind words and Mr. Wallace for the hospitality provided, Mrs. Armstrong spoke of the part of the ladies in their husbands' profession, of which she said they were the foundation. She referred to the smiling countenances and cheery dispositions of the Sun Life Agents, which were assets in their business and took credit for them to the wives for their care.

Mrs. Armstrong said that the ladies all looked for the comforts of which Mr. Penny spoke when he said the agents should be able to live well on their commissions, and that they would be disappointed if they didn't get them. She said that she also looked forward to the trip to St. Andrew's, N.B., where the leading agents meet in convention, and that she and the other ladies should keep their husbands full of ambition to reach this goal.

During the evening songs were rendered by Mrs. V. E. Walker and Miss Grace Phillips, while Mrs. A. S. Ross played a piano solo, as well as accompanying the singers. These numbers were well received and encores demanded.

WHITE STAR FLEET FOR BRITISH FIRM

Offer To Purchase Ships Will Probably Be Accepted.

NEW YORK, April 24 (Canadian Press).—The famous White Star fleet of trans-Atlantic liners, including the world's largest ship, the Majestic, probably will pass to the control of British interests, who have submitted an offer for the line to the International Mercantile Marine Corporation.

The transaction, it is understood, will involve approximately $35,000,000, and will eventually place the White Star ships under the operation of the Cunard Line, although the Furness-Withy interest also were reported to be bidders.

All Saints' Has Made Wonderful Progress

HISTORY OF ALL SAINTS' CHURCH IS STORY OF STEADY PROGRESS FROM VERY HUMBLE BEGINNING

Sunday School on Dalhousie Street Was Cradle of Present Church.

PARISH SINCE 1902.

Rev. W. L. Armitage First Rector After Separation From St. John's.

All Saints'—the congregation of which is now conducting a drive to raise $20,000 to pay off the debt and provide funds for much needed improvements—had its birth in very humble circumstances in 1875 or 1876, when Rev. J. W. R. Beck, Rector of Peterborough, opened a mission in the southern part of the town. In the latter year both Church services and Sunday School were conducted in a little red brick building on Dalhousie street, near Rubidge, which is now an apartment house. Not much was accomplished then in the way of organization, and Rev. W. C. Allen, Curate of Peterborough, now Canon Allen, Rector of Millbrook, records in his diary: "Lower School (mission) in great state of disorder." Such entries are alternated with others in which it is said that the attendance was good.

After apparently lapsing for a time the work was renewed in 1882 by the then Rev. Rural Dean Beck and four ladies—Mrs. Archer, Miss Rubidge, Miss Barlee and Miss Sherwood (Mrs. Quartermaine). The last named was not only teacher in the Mission School that was re-established but also organist.

W. H. Sherwood was the first superintendent, and the first attendance was 15 of the religiously uncared for children of the neighborhood. Twenty years later the attendance was 200 children and there was a congregation of 300. Today the enrollment is about 600 in the Sunday School and the congregation has some 625 families connected with it.

Shortly after the revival of the school in 1882, Miss Chamberlain and Miss C. M. Rubidge associated themselves with the work, the latter assuming the duties of treasurer on the death of Miss Barlee, whose removal lost to the south ward mission one of its most faithful and efficient workers. Others who took up Sunday School work on an influx of members were Miss Watt, Miss Cairns, Miss Evans, the Misses White, Miss Claringbold (Mrs. W. E. Conway), and others.

These workers, who gave time and money in unsparing efforts for the good of the hitherto unattended south ward, laid well and truly the foundation of what is now one of the numerically strongest congregations in Peterborough, and one that is without peer in the good work done.

Other denominations were using the building on Dalhousie street—it was there that Knox Church also had its birth—and a move was made to the south ward school, where accommodation was granted by the school board. Later, Miss Chamberlen, whose benefactions are remembered to this day, donated for the use of the Sunday school a property at the corner of Bethune and Dalhousie streets, which was used until the erection of the new building in 1891. At this time the weekly offertory amounted to about thirty cents, and great rejoicing was indulged when it reached the munificent sum of one dollar. Religious services were conducted by Herbert Hammond, a lay reader of St. John's Church.

Among others prominently identified with the work at this time were Mrs. Buller, C. H. Sheffield, A. V. R. Young, Charles Beck, F. R. Yokome, and Sergt. Major Rundle. Rev. Mr. Beck died in December, 1889, and his successor, Rev. J. C. Davidson (now Archdeacon Davidson) took a most active interest, being Sunday school superintendent for several months. The advent of Rev. W. M. Loucks gave fresh impetus to the work.

An Excellent Example.

A Peterborough newspaper of the day said of the work in 1891: "The ladies of the Sunday school not only faithfully performed the duties of the present that confronted them, but with a large faith wisely provided for the future. By a series of entertainments from time to time, and by other means, they accumulated a substantial building fund, and their zeal, and energy were practically recognized by other residents of the south ward, especially by the venerable Rev. V. Clementi, who has been, in its days of struggles as well as triumphs, a most staunch and substantial fried of the Mission, giving the benefit of both his ripe experience and means, with no sparing liberality."

Concrete shape was given the desire for a new building in 1890, when Miss Chamberlen exchanged the old site for the far more valuable and desirable one upon which the present Church of All Saints' is situated. The new building, now the Sunday School and Parish Hall, was opened by a service at which the Bishop of the Diocese preached, on January 22, 1891.

In 1909 further expansion was necessary, and the present Church edifice was erected.

Good examples were plentiful in the early days. The foresight of the ladies who provided for expansion was equalled by the enthusiasm that marked the opening of the new church in 1891, when so good a response was given that the offertory was large enough to clear off all outstanding debt. Twenty-four children were baptized in the first fortnight.

Bright, Happy Days.

The Parish Magazine of 1902 describes the early days under Rev. W. M. Loucks as Curate as "bright and happy days." On January 3, 1892, the first morning service was held and the first celebration of Holy Communion was on Christmas Day, 1892, when there were 42 communicants and the celebrant was Rev. C. B. Kenrick. Rev. Mr. Loucks was ordained Priest in St. John's Church, on February 26, 1893, and celebrated for the first time on the following Sunday at the Mission.

The Communion vessels, which are still in use, were dedicated and used for the first time on June 4, 1893. The organ which is now used in the junior room of the Sunday School was dedicated on October 8, 1893, to the memory of Miss Barlee.

Before leaving for Ottawa, Rev. Mr. Loucks presented the Mission with a brass Cross, and the brass vases which still adorn the Communion Table, and are a memorial of his work in the Parish. The brass desk and service book were the gifts of Rev. V. Clementi, and the Bible and Prayer Book were given by Miss Florence White (Mrs. Morrow). These were all dedicated on October 29, Rev. Mr. Loucks' last Sunday as Curate in the parish.

The work was carried on by Mr. Davidson and Mr. Kenrick until Rev. E. W. Pickford arrived in April, 1894. He was succeeded in February, 1895, by Rev. V. C. H. Andrews, who was in turn succeeded by Rev. Carl S. Smith in October of the same year. Rev. Mr. Smith resigned on November 2, 1896, and was succeeded by Rev. W. L. Armitage on December 16.

Extensions Made.

Extensions had been long talked of, and on Easter Day, 1896, a special collection was taken up, totalling $102.45. In 1897 another hundred dollars was raised, and by October of that year the extension, gratuitously planned by J. E. Belcher, C.E., and built under contract by Enos and Harry Evans, was completed. The extension consisted of the Chancel, the finishing of the basement for Sunday School purposes, and the seating and painting of the Church.

A picture of "All Saints' Church, 1897" appearing in the Parish Magazine of 1902 shows the Parish Hall and Sunday School as it appears today. It measured 30 by 70 feet, with the Chancel 25 by 45 feet, and had seating accommodation for 305 worshippers.

Donations on the opening of the new Church and extension were: two silver offertory plates, by R. H. Shepherd; two and a half dozen Prayer Books, by Mrs. Stevenson; felt for the Chancel screens and aisle matting, by Mrs. G. J. Lundy; the Credence Table, by Mrs. Bamford; vestry looking-glass by Mrs. Sheffield; Litany Service by Rev. J. C. Davison; carpet for the Chancel, by R. Fair; brass Pulpit lamp by Mr. Alexander. The tuck-pointing through out the Church and Chancel was the work of Mr. Sabin and Thomas Sabin. Mr. Burritt gave a lawn mower, and book marks and an Almsdish were given by friends.

Many Improvements.

On November 1, 1900, a memorial window to Rev. Mr. Beck was erected. This was placed in the Chancel, and in January, 1925, it was removed to the side of the Chancel of the new Church. Mrs. A. Stevenson, at present teacher of the senior ladies' Bible Class, is a daughter of the late Rev. Mr. Beck.

In 1901 a new organ was built—the one which it is now proposed to replace if the funds received in the campaign warrant the expenditure.

There were several congregational meetings held in the Mission during 1901 for the purpose of forming a new Parish. After several meetings were held, it was finally moved that W. B. Bamford, (who now is a high official in the C.P.R.) and W. H. Buller were appointed to meet the members of St. John's church in their school house, which was largely attended, and where a lively discussion took place as to whether a new Parish should be formed in the south part of the city, and separate from St. John's Church. It was decided at this meeting that this should be done, and all final arrangement as to the separations were made, and a petition was forwarded to the Bishop of the Diocese at Toronto, to be sanctioned by him.

In January, 1902, a Parish Magazine was first issued under the name of "All Saints' Magazine 'Church and Home'," edited by Rev. W. L. Armitage, who then resided at 300 Rubidge street. The first issue gives the following list of officers of the newly-formed Parish. NOW THEREFORE, be it known to whom it may concern that we, ARTHUR, by Divine permission Bishop of Toronto, do hereby, in accordance with the Canon of the Synod of the Diocese in this behalf made and provided and entitled "Canon No. 5, Erection and Division of Parishes," declare that that portion of the before named Parish of St. John's, Peterborough, which lies south of Charlotte street, shall henceforth constitute a new and separate Parish, by the name of the Parish of All Saints', Peterborough.

Given under our hand and seal, this first day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and two, and of our consecration the twenty-third.

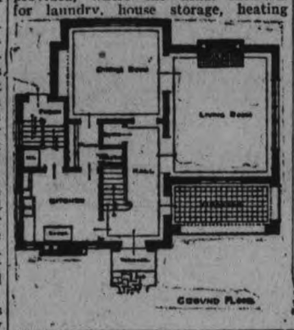
The above is a copy of the Bishop's declaration making All Saints' a separate parish, and was received by the Wardens early in January, 1902.

Moderate Cost of Seven Room House

By E. G. Wilson Architect.

This plan shows the possibility of building a compact seven room house, without the usual cluttering of entrance doors and stairs, and also providing unusual cupboard facilities,—two very important items.

Entering at the centre of the house the roomy hall gives direct access to both main rooms, that of the dining room being by a wide archway, another arch connecting the dining room with the living room. A well lighted kitchen, with easy access to the front door, and with properly planned locations for sink and other kitchen equipment has also a china pantry and refrigerator, and pot cupboards close at hand. Direct covered access to the basement is provided, where the usual facilities for laundry, house storage, heating boilers, and coal are arranged for.



The master's bedroom and two family rooms of ample sizes, and each provided with large cupboards, are shown on the first floor.

The exterior is clearly dominated by a well-designed typical Colonial entrance door, and the grouped windows of the living room giving added grace to the elevations: the bold treatment of the chimney is unusual and adds interest.

Regarding construction, the house is built of stone basement walls, lower story of brick, using "rug" brick for facing the first floor: gables are of stucco on brick, the stucco being finished with a small eave moulding—so characteristic of the Colonial style.

Roofs shingled, pre-dipt in a brown stain. The bricks are warm buff, laid with a dark brown joint: woodwork painted putty gray, and blinds of gray-green. The roofs and dormers are protected from heat and cold with poured insulating asbestos mixture.

Note that the terrace brings the ground line well up to the main floor level, freeing the entrance and verandah from the usual cumbersome steps. The plastering on the interior has been finished in a fine sand stucco—which is alike serviceable for either paint or paper finish.

Floors are of hardwood throughout stained dark. The woodwork in the main hall, living and dining rooms is of oak: the remainder of the finished woodwork of the house being pine, for paint finish.

Bathroom fittings are of good design built-in type, floors and dado of tile Heating throughout by hot water.

The cost of this house, according to the above description, would be about seven thousand five hundred dollars.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address Mr. E. G. Wilson, 2 Bloor St. W., Toronto, Ont. Copyright 1926, MacLean Building Reports Limited.

Biographical Sketches

MR. DAWSON KENNEDY

Biographies, long or short, should begin with an introduction, a series of introductory remarks as it were, leading up to the opinions of the subject of the sketch.

A life is what a man thinks not what he does or eats. That is the universal practice amongst those who have made a study of the art of biography, and it is just as well for us to imitate them as far as it is possible for us to do so. For example, while a man's actual life dates from his birth to his death, and comprises his routine of living, such as his occupation, acts which occur in the exercise of that occupation etc., the best part of a man is the thoughts, the opinions and the mental driving power of the man himself, together with a reference to the nobility or otherwise of his disposition commonly called his virtues or his shortcomings.

Mr. Kennedy is pre-eminently a fundamentalist, clinging to the firm belief that God has sent mankind a message called the Bible and that the truth of it is not got at by trying to pick holes in it but by going to God and finding from Him the actual fact of the case and that assurance of the truth which we call faith. Believing not that God may be, but that God is, and not that God may hear prayer but that He does and not that He may touch the heart of man with the divine fire, but that He does so; and not that He does not walk in the spirit with man and guide him, but that He does walk in the spirit with man, that He does hearken to him, and that He does guide him, we have in Mr. Kennedy, as in Mrs. Kennedy, two people who expect shortly to see God and the Saviour just as they expect to see the sun tomorrow.

Now the present age is one of evolutionary scepticism, hence it is fitting and proper to introduce this "life" with a short discussion of evolution, of scepticism, of modernism or of any of these latter day tendencies, which are a contrast to Mr. Kennedy's way of thinking because all things are best shown by contrast, especially where the thing itself and the contrast exist side by side, and represent two opposing forces. The life of Mr. Kennedy represents the triumph of the believer while the reference to modernism shows what he does not believe. It is only, therefore, by turning up to the situation as it is called, that we can fully appreciate what a man's life really means and if the introductory remarks do not always immediately disclose their object they ought to do so when we come naturally to step aside and hear about him who has been thus introduced. Hence we propose to give a paragraph or two to modernism and evolution to illustrate the fact by the ancient artifice of "lucus a non lucendo," that Mr. Kennedy is a believing Christian.

It is related of a doctor that on a recent occasion he asked his fair patient if she had obeyed his instructions as he had given them to her. With charming naivete she admitted that she had done as she pleased about that.

"Yes, you have!" the doctor exclaimed, "and I'll do as I please about doctoring you. Do you think the few dollars I get from you will pay me for the loss of my reputation by failing in your case, in your whole neighbourhood? Do you think, as a professional man, with some respect for himself and his profession, I take no interest in having things done right? Do you think that I care so little for your life and welfare that I will sell it for a few bawbees?"

"No! No!" cried the fair one:

"Then be good enough to throw overboard the lawlessness that seems to characterize everybody to-day, the reaction, no doubt, always arising from unjust and violent measures and get down to the facts of your case which are serious, I assure you."

The lady swore by her husband's purse-strings that she would obey in future. Now that incident is only one instance of the hooliganism which, in the case of the young, set the American continent agog a few years ago. It is still with us amongst their elders.

The whole storm centres about the word "Duty." People have ceased to regard it as their bounden "duty" to respect the rights of others, or to obey anything but the outrageous lawlessness of their own sweet will. It has extended to the Bible. It is the excess of liberty balancing the excess of law. That has produced the storm. Violence of the most alarming character always follows the brutal disregard of the fundamental rights of those who demand the reward of a good life which, if in all justice they do not receive, turns them to hate and in time upsets all law and order. Fundamental principles are the basis of our lives and if we ignore them in favour of some fad or whim of our own the whole fabric of social life will come down with a smash, as it is doing now in the United States and Ontario. It is these principles which, before all else, we must obey, and one of them is Duty. Now duty to ourselves comprises our religious views and practices; our duty to others comprises their freedom as dear to them as to us and our desire to help them if necessary (or social service), which, notwithstanding the attempt to exalt it to a first place is only one of many of the virtues. By and by we shall emerge from this stupid era of fads in religion, morals, legislation and otherwise and then we will do as those did who realized that above all things they must show that they had faith in and wished to be loyal to the higher things of life such as a reliance upon God rather than upon themselves. It was more so formerly than at present. In that particular, at any rate, we have gone back. Our conceit has betrayed us. Strange as it may seem to our little, puffed up minds, there is actually a Higher Power than we are and we are not the saviours, or at least the makers, of the world. But the relegation of Christianity and the Bible to second place and the putting of our own ideas in first place may yet wreck us altogether.

The whole of thought comprised in the ethics and speculative philosophy of the Greeks up to and through that of the mediaevalists and on into the present age of science or fact is culminating in a tremendous conflict which is to determine whether there is a human soul, the especial gift of God to man, or merely that man is an animal, in mind as in body, to be driven like other animals and to die like the proverbial dog.

Is God unknowable, and out of conscious touch with us or does He recognize man and deal with him as something higher than the brute? That is the question which is being fought out as never before. If man is merely an animal in mind as well as in body, then the strong will come to have their way and day and let us go to it, but if he be the "child and care of God" with a talent called the soul entrusted to him by God, then compulsory human laws affecting the moral conduct and opinions of the normal healthy man or woman are a straight denial of the soul's intimate relationship to God. When the lives of the new-timers or modernists come to be written they will differ sadly from the sublime if humble lives of those who preceded them. It is characteristic of this age and surely a thing that must give all thinking people pause that many think that God is at the back of the Bible in some way, but that when He moved men to write His message He selected a lot of incompetents who put down things He did not say and who misrepresented Him in other ways. If that is our idea of an Infinite God, the sooner we revise that idea the better. We must believe either that the Bible is God's Word and therefore the actual message of God to man, showing man to himself as in a glass, (in the original manuscript), or else that the Bible is a hoax. There is no half-way course. To show how tremendous a change has come over people it is only necessary to say that criticism of the Bible in the old days of Mr. Kennedy's youth would have been regarded as an unpardonable sin, while to-day it is a matter of general discussion. No one, of course, would presume to criticise a work which they really believed to be the Work of God. That would be to criticize God! Hence we see how general is the decay of faith and nowhere more than amongst those who imagine that it is they who can save the world.

John Kennedy of Coothill, in County Cavan, Ireland, married Miss Dawson, of County Monaghan, and one of their little family was Dawson Kennedy, the subject of our sketch, who was born at Coothill on July 9th, 1839, the date of J. D. Rockefeller's birth. Mr. Kennedy laughingly says that it is customary for star-gazers to affirm that "like constellations in the ascendant at birth give like fortunes," but in this case they are clearly wrong, if a vast amount of money is to be taken as the measure of a man's good luck. Otherwise Mr. Kennedy has been most fortunate.

He married Miss Sherin, daughter of Mr. Henry Sherin and they have had an ideal married life for sixty years.

John Kennedy, his wife and their little family of three, came to Peterborough in 1841 from Ireland, after the usual long and weary journey. It was a small place then and the people such as one might expect in an outlying settlement. He was immediately besieged by real estate agents and soon parted with his money for a hundred acres of land two miles east of Nassau. At this juncture a friend came to the rescue, Mr. James Matchett, of Otonabee, the forefather of the Matchetts of Otonabee and looking up John Kennedy's title for him he found that he had been defrauded of his money. They consulted a Mr. Armour a lawyer then practising in Peterborough and a relative of the late Chief Justice Sir John Armour, and of Mr. Armour Peck, M.P. In Mr. Armour's office was a student, J. B. Hall, afterwards County Judge of Peterborough. Mr. Armour had the culprit arrested and lodged in goal, but as he would not disgorge and as it cost Mr. Kennedy 3 shillings and nine pence per week for the culprit's board while in goal it was decided to let him go. The farm was then purchased directly from the Government. About this time Dawson Kennedy's father died and as they could not work the farm, his mother rented it with the help of Mr. Matchett, and went to keep house for her brother. George Dawson, who had rented the Hunter farm which included Crawford's grove. Meanwhile, though Dawson Kennedy was never at school a day in his life he was learning by his own exertions to be what the writer of this article affirms one of the best educated and best informed men to be found anywhere with a well-trained, logical mind. This is our first lesson from his life. As he grew to manhood, the Douro farm was sold and he was settled on a farm in Otonabee, which, with additional land he occupied till his removal to Peterborough. Douro had been settled by the immigrants brought out from Ireland by Rev. Father Crowley. Not feeling that his finances were strong enough to enable him to begin farming with a prospect of success, Dawson Kennedy decided to go elsewhere but neighbours begged him not to go and promised him financial help, while the late Robert Nicholls of Peterborough offered him ample credit at his great store on Simcoe street. Thus encouraged he remained and fully justified the confidence of his friends in him. Farming in those days was quite different in many ways from the farming of the present There were no cornborers and but very little corn and no potato-bugs. There was also no money. Wolves in plenty, bears, foxes, etc. supplied the places of the former in the early forties, even close to the town, while produce was exchanged for implements, clothes, groceries, etc., a surplus being rewarded with a due-bill, which if cashed rarely, brought its face value. There was one form of cash however, which was peculiar. People who like Mr. Kennedy, had two grandfathers at the Battle of Waterloo had a stock of military buttons on hand and these passed as cash everywhere, the value or buying power varying.

Mr. Kennedy's public life was confined to societies connected with agriculture. He was an early member and a president, of the Dominion Grange, which is still in existence. Its offshoots, such as the Patrons of Industry, which went into politics, went down and out. He has also been a Director of the Peterborough Exhibition, which he considers now to be on pretty sure footing and likely to do well.

No Wonder This Man Smiles

WOULDN'T you smile, too, if you had taken out a ten thousand dollar straight life policy contracting to pay premiums every year for the duration of your life, and then to be handed a paid up policy for the ten thousand dollars at the end of the eighteenth year?

That is the happy experience of Mr. Lawrence this year. The generous profits earned by his Mutual policy have caused his straight life policy to be paid up by about eighteen and a half premiums. And from this date on he will draw profits annually.

The Mutual principle of life assurance plus sound, progressive management is responsible for the generous profits earned for the policyholders of the Mutual Life of Canada.

The Mutual Life agent will be glad to explain the type of policy mentioned above and show you his little book giving actual results, not promised results of Mutual Life Policyholders for the past 45 years. Invite him to call.

CHILDREN PARADE FOR GYM PRACTICE

March To Opera House To Drill For Y.W.C.A. Pageant.

There was a splendid practice at the Grand Opera House last night and another this morning, of the various dances and drills which will form the programme of the Pageant to be given by the Young Women's Christian Association at the Opera House next Friday and Saturday evenings.

Each year these "Y" pageants are looked forward to with much interest by the public, who know that, under Miss Littlefield's expert direction, and with her habit of garnering new and original ideas through the year for presentation at the annual event, that the programme is certain to be pleasing and novel.

Several interesting features will have prominence this year. There will be especially difficult Swedish exercises, in the physical work which is always so well done, the children's numbers will include some unusual drills by small dumbell artists, and a miniature circus by little boys, and there will be the regular exhibition of proficiency in wand and drill and Indian club exercises.

The dances are particularly lovely and the Seniors on the stage last evening showed what progress has been made in the graceful art during the year. The Brahms' waltzes, a series of three pretty dances, will be outstanding, also a Russian dance and a tennis dance, straight from New York, with the young ladies in suits of red and white.

This morning, a parade of the children and Juniors took place to the Grand Opera House, nearly two hundred of the members of the smaller classes marching down in gym suits and carrying dumbells.

Get your tickets marked early for this event. The plan opens at the Grand on Wednesday morning next.

BASEBALL LEAGUE WILL HOLD MEETING

District Teams Will Meet in Community Hall, at Warkworth.

ROSENEATH, April 24. — The Northumberland Baseball League will hold its annual meeting in the Community Hall, Warkworth, on Wednesday, April 28th, at 3.30 p.m. Whether this league will operate again this season depends on the number of teams who affiliate. Brighton and Colborne have cast their lots with the D. and O. League and it is doubtful if Roseneath has a team this year. Hastings and Frankford are sure members, and Campbellford will likely be in the fray. Any other teams desiring to enter will almost certainly be admitted. They may send delegates to league meeting or write the secretary, Mr. Davey, Roseneath. This league has operated successfully for the past five seasons and it would be a shame to see it cease to operate for want of teams.

Personals

Mrs. Archie Campbell, who has been ill, is on the road to recovery.

Mr. Harold Harper is very ill.

Mr. Bert Thickray, who has been confined to his bed is able to be around again.

Mr. James Clark of Brackbridge is visiting friends in the vicinity.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

When this is being written Mister Shiner Johnston has just announced the 1st baseball workout of the season for Riverside Park Sat., so unless they is a foot of snow or a thunderstorm the ball season locally can be said to be officially started. A lot of birds which has been saying scandalous things about the weather has begun to take a new interest in life, and from now on the Petes will occupy a big share in the public gaze. They ain't much to be said yet about the team, but I propose to give them the once over Sat. and may have something to say about them next week. Anyway, the boys is taking their outfits out of the mothballs, and if the weather is at all kind and the Otonabee doesn't take a notion to go spilling over Riverside Park and making it look a Florida town site, the gang should oughta to be in fair shape when Mister George Sullivan barks out "Play ball" in Kingston on May 19th. Mister Red Legon has arrived home from the pursuit of knowledge at Queen's, and is all primed up to pursue line drives in the Petes' outfield, and several newcomers is preparing to show their wares.

Pitchers around the Central loop which has been shaking hands with themselves because of the report that Mister Harry Batstone was going to play with the Toronto Hillcrests, got a jolt when the red-topped 3rd baseman declared he liked Kingston so much that he couldn't tear himself away this summer. So Mister Batstone and his big bat remains 1 of the big threats of the season, and right off the reel I can name a score of birds in this league that I'd rather see stepping up to the plate when the enemy has the bases all loaded than the same "Red."

NOT SO BAD AFTER ALL.

I see, Mister Sporting Editor, where a 18-year-old Canadian win the Boston Marathon in record time, thus kinda upsetting the dope that the young folks of today lacks the stamina and pep and courage of the generation what preceeded them. Sometimes when you take a look at them drug store cowboys in the fashion parade on Sun., measuring 30 inches round the bottom of their trousers and 6 inches round the top of their bean, wearing side-burns and dangling a loud colored kerchief from their breast pocket, you begin to give up hope for the future of the race, but just when you have came to the conclusion that young Canadians is hopeless along comes a guy like this Mister John C. Miles of Nova Scotia and trots the marathon distance faster than it has ever been done on a pair of dogs before. So them sweet men you see on a Sun. can't be as soft as they look any more than the girls can't be as bad as they is painted. And again, when you're speaking of nerve and endurance, it must take a lotta both for a bow-legged girl to take the air in them kilts they is wearing instead of skirts these days, but you gotta give them credit, Mac, they ain't none of them, so far I can see, that's flunked. Their under-pinnings may not be firsts, but if Fashion says show 'em, they shown 'em. And all a mere man can gasp is, "Ain't nature wonderful?"

JINXING THE SENATORS.

Them other clubs in the American League oughta pass me a vote of thanks, Mister Sporting Editor, for the way I jinxed the Washington Senators. No sooner did I call them ivy-covered relics to go out and win the American League bunting for the 3rd time and mentioned how swell a start Mister Walter Johnson and Mister Covaleski got, than somebody put a banana peel under Mister Bucky Harris and his men, Mister Johnson got nearly murdered by the New York Yanks and the Athaletics sloughed Mister Covaleski right in the solar plexus and knocked him for a row. However, I'm still picking them to bring home the pennant, although I'm willing to string along with Mister Tommy Hooper and root for them Cleveland Indians, seeing as how Mister Tris Speaker comes to see us every fall.

I suppose a lotta Peterboro folks is going to find business calling them to Toronto about the middle of next week. Funny the call should come just when Mister Solman is going to open his new ball park, and I for 1 shouldn't be at all surprised if the boys from here was able to get their business all finished so as to get to the new stadium just in time to invest a nickel in peanuts before the umps announces the batteries.

They tell me that softball is going to be as popular as the only doctor in a country town this summer. It is 1 of them games that don't call for much equipment, nearly every 1 can play. Guys what is barred out of regular baseball by sun-porches just about their belts or ring-bone or spavins or any of them complaints can limp out on a softball diamond and get away with it. It'll be funny to see birds what wouldn't run ½ a block to catch a street car doing the Ty Cobb stuff round the bases, but anyway its good fun, plenty of exercise and don't cost much, so that the pastime'll likely have many friends.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, by next week they may be something to tell the customers about the year's senior ball team, and in the meanwhile I'll just drop off here. Thanks for the buggy ride.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

SKIERS RETURN WITH TROPHIES

Two Montreal Men Arrive Home From Norway With Honors.

ROYALLY TREATED.

MONTREAL, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Leonard Lehan and Paul Gravel, the two Montreal skiers who have been jumping in various Scandinavian ski jumping competitions during the past winter season have arrived back in Montreal. Lehan brings with him three cups. Both did some of the best jumping of their careers.

Commenting on the trip Lehan said: "From what we saw this past winter in Norway and Sweden, I am positive that Canada should make a wonderful showing in the ski-ing at the next Olympic games. I do not see why Canada should not take first or second place."

It was on the big jump at Snuda that Lehan achieved the greatest jump of his life. He took the honors of the meet. On his first jump he made 163 feet and 183 on the second. His third jump was 183, but he fell. He won the exhibition jump of the national meet in Norway, clearing a distance of 133 in splendid style. In the Norse games, Lehan drew second place, while Gravel took 24th place from a field of 100 competitors of international fame. In the combined jumping and running aggregate, Gravel took 26th place. Gravel did some fine jumping at the Norse games. Lehan drew number one in the jumping competition, which is a handicapping number for a ski-jumper. The holder of number one must break the track to the take-off, and has no mark set for him to beat. He was followed by some of the best jumpers in the world, and did not know what they could do. He took second place. His first jump was 34 metres. He overjumped the hill at 37 metres and fell. The hill at Holmenkollen was the worst Lehan had ever seen. There is a tremendous drop, with a take-off 17 feet high. The jumpers were shot high in the air, to land in ankle-deep soft snow. Lehan was amongst the 44 to qualify for the big competition, but he fell and was disqualified in the regular jumping. He was presented with two loving cups by two Norwegian ski clubs who were his hosts. The cups are a token of their esteem for him as a jumper of the first division. He also received a special silver trophy for his exhibition jump at the Norwegian national meet.

"They sure treated us fine over in Norway," said Lehan. "They simply couldn't do enough for us. They entertained us royally throughout the season, and let us participate in their competitions in a fine sportsmanlike manner."

HAMILTON FOUR LOSE IN RELAY

Robbed of First Place By False Starts in Penn. Races.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24. — Canadian Press. — False starts in the quarter mile relay robbed Hamilton Collegiate Institute of first place in that event of the Penna Relay Carnival Friday. Hamilton Collegiate declared winners when the contest had been run off in heats, with time as the deciding factor, lost out in the re-running, finishing in a tie for fourth place as Mercerburg academy's quartet race to a new world's record in 43 2-5 seconds.

This was better by 1-5 second than the previous inter-Collegiate mark established by the same team.

Seven other carnival marks were established, and the brilliant victory of Anthony J. Plankay of Georgetown in the decathlon championship furnishd the remaining feature of the first day's events in which nearly 3000 collegiate athletes took part.

Plankay, football half back, and track athlete extraordinary, scored a record shattering triumph in carrying off the crown of all around intercollegiate athletic supremacy for the second successive year. He conquered five rivals in the all-day, ten-event contest with a point total of 7169.160, which eclipsed his own previous high mark set a year ago. In the course of this gruelling struggle, six records for the decathlon carnival fell while a seventh was tied.

Pennsylvania's quarter mil. team accounted for the remaining carnival record by winning the college championship at this distance in 42 seconds flat, eclipsing the mark of 42 2-5 set by Princeton last year, and coming within one tenth of a second of the world's record.

THEATRE

That modern playgoers can still get a thrill out of romantic drama has been doubted by many students of the theatre but judging from the following review of Sir John Martin-Harvey's production of "The Corsican Brothers" it only needs the master touch of a real artist to make the ultra-sophisticated theatregoer of 1926 flock to see it as their fathers did in the oft spoken "good old days."

"Truly there is a place—a large place—on the modern stage for romantic drama; that was proved conclusively last night at the Walker theatre by the reception accorded by an enthralled audience to Sir Martin-Harvey's presentation of the old-time play "The Corsican Brothers", and whether that romance be established on the tenuous theory of mental telepathy, mysticism or spiritualism, or on the more substantial basis of up-to-the-minute affairs, if it be well staged, well performed by high class artists, there will always be room for it. This is a play of the mid-Victorian era, most emotional, rather running to the heroic, possessing a power of appeal that seems not to have diminished with the passing decades. No, romantic drama is not dead, though it has been quiesent for a time; it still can be quickened into vivid life by the power of a master-actor. So Sir John has quickened it last night, carrying with him an audience that hung breathless on the subtle play, the obvious but enthralling plot, and such an exhibition of acting as is all too rarely witnessed these days.

Sir John takes two roles, those of twin brothers, similar in appearance and in many other things, making each susceptible to the emotions and feelings of the other, whether together or apart. Sir John really gives us a dual portrait of the two brothers, one, Louis dei Franchi, sophisticated and a graceful man of the Parisian world, the other, Fabien, lover of sports and devoted to his Corsican mountains and home. His delineation of these two characters was accomplished with a finesse and finish that were remarkable, an easy thing, doubtless, for such a past-master of the histrionic art. But it amazed the onlookers. The change, or perhaps one should say the differentiation, was as marked in the physical attributes as in the presentation of the mental and spiritual qualities, and, Louis and Fabien, so much alike, each received its just portion of the delightfully limned picture. Another thing that was noticeable was the marvellous manner in which he made known the existence of a bond between the two brothers, a bond that bridged time and space in the twinkling of an eye. The duel scene in the last act between Sir John and Gordon McLeod was excellently executed, Sir John's sword play giving one a glimpse of his genius in that regard in "The Breed of the Treshams." The supreme tragedy of it all held the audience by its sheer realism. Yes, we can stand romantic drama when it is nearly perfect and not puerile, and perfection is not far away in this old time stage favorite.—H. E. S., Winnipeg Free Press.

Sir John brings his entire London Company headed by Miss N. de Silva (Lady Harvey) to the Grand Opera House, one performance only, Monday, April 26th.

"THREE BAGS FULL"

Most persons directly or indirectly connected with or interested in the theatre in Canada are frequently asked the question, "How long will the Dumbells continue to hold their position as the premiere attraction in the Dominion?" Personally we have been asked this question every week or so for the past five or six years. The answer is that they will continue indefinitely, or as long as Captain Plunkett continues to dig up fresh material in the way of songs and sketches and holds together a staff and organization of the same splendid quality and variety that has made The Dumbells famous throughout Canada and the United States for the past seven years.

In a sense The Dumbells have little or no competition, for they are the only "all-man" aggregation of established prestige before the public of this continent. Their revues are unique on this side of the Atlantic because in the main their material is entirely fresh both to Canadians and Americans.

The English music halls have attached to them staffs of writers and composers who are constantly turning out new material, good, bad and indifferent, which has a stronger appeal to the Canadian audiences than to the populations of American cities. The yearly visits of Captain Plunkett to London enables him to acquire the cream of the English songs and sketches, which, because they are less suited to the taste of New York audiences, reach America through no other channel. In their own light and genial way The Dumbells are ambassadors linking up the Empire, and their management have not been slow to introduce the Imperial touch without stressing it.

There is no limit to the life of an organization conducted on these lines, if their performances are kept fresh, speedy and vital.

That Captain Plunkett has lost none of his keen insight into the requirements of Canadian audiences and still retains his remarkable ability to pick winners, has been amply demonstrated by the overnight success of his latest revue, "Three Bags Full," which comes to the Grand on May 7th and 8th.

AT THE REGENT

"THE CAVE MAN"

Kind Providence has at last sent Matt Moore a great part, the numerous possibilities of which, it is said, he has taken advantage of in a truly accomplished fashion. It is the title role of "The Cave Man," in which he and Marie Prevost divide the stellar honors.

In Warner Bros. productions of "How Baxter Butted In," "His Majesty, Bunker Bean," and "Three Weeks in Paris," Matt won much fame and popularity as a backward, bashful, awkward, embarrassed, thin-chested young fellow with an inferiority complex. Utimately, at the crucial point of the story, his fear of fear got the better of him and with heaving chest, pounding heart, and fixed starting eyes he plunged, but—the worm has turned, and ah, how he has turned. Right-about-face!

As Mike Smagg, he will be seen as a brawny, pouter-chested, bewhiskered, begrimed, "tobaccy-chawin," horny-handed, coal-heaving son of Erin, and the best that ever trampled a lawn or dirtied a sidewalk.

As Myra Gaylord, orphaned and wealthy daughter of the effete, super-sophisticated topmost social stratum of New York, Marie Prevost, inspired by the philosophy of "Why Not?" accepts him as a welcome diversion sent by benevolent chance. So she takes him in hand, invests him with the rudiments of a gentleman, and turns him loose upon her set. By this time the fun has obtained a good start and it is said to develop into a "riot" not without serious developments, however.

It comes to pass that Mike shows an endearing adaptness with his fists, which comes as a pleasant surprise. This character, which might easily be overdrawn, is said to be portrayed with a fine restraint, whimsical humor and genuine sympathetic understanding of the type by Matt Moore.

Lewis Milestone directed "The Cave Man," and Myrna Loy, Phyllis Haver and John Patrick and Hedda Hopper complete the cast.

Based on the Gilette Burgess story, and adapted to the screen by Darryl Francis Zaunck, "The Cave Man" is opening on Monday at the Regent Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

BLASCO IBANEZ' "TORRENT."

Something rather out of the ordinary in moving pictures is the film dramatization of Ibanez' Torrent," with Ricardo Cortez and Greta Garbo in the stellar roles, featured at the Capitol Theatre yesterday and to-day. The handsome Ricardo is the hero of the tale that centres about a flaming romance of old Spain, the young Rafael, scion of a noble house, who becomes infatuated with the beautiful singer, Lenore, and then is torn between love and duty in his passion for the girl and the wishes of his stern, aristocratic mother, coming between the lovers and preventing the fulfillment of their romance.

Unlike most stories of the silver sheet, the tale does not run smoothly. Rafael, although in love with Lenore, the famous beauty and stage star, accedes, after much useless pleading, to his stern mother's wishes, and marries the daughter of a rich hog-raiser. Lenore goes on from triumph to triumph in her work, but always remains faithful to her lover. The story is screened with an eye to romantic backgrounds and surroundings.

THIS CONTINENT FAR AHEAD.

The fact that North America has twice as many telephones as all the rest of the world (the latest figures are 17,207,000 to 8,740,000) accounts for the universal use on this side of the Atlantic, of that ever-ready volume—the telephone directory. Everybody looks in the telephone book, and everybody is doing it, not occasionally but continuously! Constant revision and correction keeps the directory filled with nothing but reliable information. The title—"The Community's Most Used, Most Useful Book"—has been fairly earned by the telephone directory. 1d

C. W. L. DANCE.

One if the most successful dances of the season was held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum last evening, when nearly three hundred and fifty people attended the dance and card party put on by the Ladies' Bowling League of the Knights of Columbus, in aid of the work of the Catholic Women's League, under whose auspices the affair was held.

The decorations of the dance hall were particularly attractive and aroused much favorable comment. The ladies in charge went to a great deal of trouble in order to make them effective and succeeded admirably. The arch of the stage was arranged with sprays of artificial apple-blossoms and large palm fronds, while pots of ferns banked the front of the stage. On the walls of the hall were red-gilt shields and circles, centred with artificial flowers, and sprays of palms and dark green leaves. The same dark leaves topped the pillars in the hall and rows of lighted Chinese lanterns added to the general colorful effect.

Excellent music was provided by Ken Blood's four-piece orchestra and several novelty dances were original and pleasing, including a number with brightly colored paper caps for the men and Pierrette collars for their partners, and another dance when favors were of simulated bowling pins in bright papers and balls filled with confetti, distributed from a basket of rose pink and white paper petals.

The refreshments were dainty and plentiful and all arrangements for the evening were looked after with care by the many people assisting.

Prize winners in the card room, wher twenty tables of euchre were played, were Mrs. D. Minogue and Rev. P. Butler.

Ladies in charge of arrangements assisted by many energetic helpers, were Miss Marita Collins, (general convenor.; Miss Norah Sheelin, refreshments; Mrs. J. P. Finn and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, prizes; Mrs. N. Scully, novelty dances: Mrs. Ed. Conroy and Miss M. O'Brien, decorations; Mrs. M. Sharpe and Miss K. McDonald, cards; Mrs. G. White, convenor of Reception Committee; Mrs. M.Henry arangements for hall; Miss C. McCarthy, invitations. Messrs. A. Doherty and Wm. MacPherson assisted at the door.

Patronesses for the dance were Mrs. F. A. Shannon, Mrs. M. Henry, Mrs. G. White, Mrs. J. P. Finn, Mrs. J. J. Doris, Mrs. M. Sharpe and Mrs. N. Scully.

WINS ON A FOUL.

Vancouver Man Captures Canadian Bantam Weight Boxing Title.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., April 24 (Canadian Press).—In the Canadian boxing championships here last night, George Ainsworth, Vancouver, captured the bantamweight boxing title by defeating George Leitham, Montreal, in the second round on a foul.

AROUND THE CITY.

The fire department was called out once yesterday to a chimney fire at 284 Reid Stret, and once this morning to a chimney fire on Rubidge Street. The call this morning came in from Box 31, and the Fire Chief would like to impress on the minds of the citizens of Peterborough that when they have a chimney fire they should phone the call in, instead of sending the alarm in through the alarm box, as when the box is pulled the whole department is called out, and in the case of the chimney fires it is not necessary to send the whole department. The man on duty will take the call when phoned in, and the person will receive just as prompt service this way as sending the alarm in through the alarm box.

The mud is so bad along Downie Street that seven cars had to be pulled out during the night. The surface of the streets seems to have given out and there is no solid bottom.

Mrs. N. Doughty, of the Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, came to Peterborough yesterday by car, thus gaining the distinction of being the first to travel the still heavy road.

WEDDING BELLS

READER—LASENBY.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at the Park street Baptist parsonage on Friday afternoon, at three o'clock, by Rev. Norman McLeod, when Ivy Lasenby, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lasenby, was united in marriage to Gurth Reader, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Reader. Grace Reader, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and Charles McCoy, acted as groomsman.

After the ceremony a dainty repast was served at the home of the groom's parents. A very enjoyable evening was spent by many friends and relatives.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. They left on the early morning train for Oshawa, and on their return they will reside in Peterboro.

HESLIP—CAMPBELL.

Knox College was the scene of a wedding on Wednesday afternoon when Miss Agnes Wright Campbell, of 611 Euclid Ave., Toronto, daughter of the late Cecilia A. and George Campbell, of Minesing, became the bride of Rev. Marshall Waddell Heslip, son of the late Jane and Andrew Heslip, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. B. Winchester, of Knox church and Prof. Thomas Eakin, Principal of Knox College. To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March the bride entered the beautifully decorated chapel on the arm of her cousin, Rev. W. John Cook. She wore an exquisite gown of lace over white satin and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Eleanor Prittle, the maid of honor, wore a handsome gown of powder blue georgette with black picture hat and carried Richmond roses. Miss Elizabeth Heslip, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was in a French gown of peach georgette and picture hat and carried butterfly roses. The tiny flower girls were Miss Barbara Heslip, niece of the bridegroom, in pink, and Miss Elizabeth Cook, cousin of the bride, in nala blue. Mr. William Heslip supported his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Walter McCleary, Rev. Donald McQueen, Mr. Lavern Waldon, and Mr. Louis Fowler. Mr. Hubert R. Kempt, an old friend, presided at the organ, and during the signing of the register, Miss Isabel Kennedy sang, "O Perfect Love." The guests were received afterwards by Rev. W. J. and Mrs. Cook of India, and Prof. Thomas and Mrs. Eakin of Knox College in the assembly room, which fellow students of the bridegroom had transformed by the palms and ferns and the college colors of the bride and bridegroom. Following toasts and good wishes the happy young couple departed amid college yells and showers of confetti. During the reception telegrams were received from friends and relatives in California and Vancouver and also from Penetanguishene, where Rev. and Mrs. Heslip will shortly make their home in "The Manse," Mr. Heslip having recently been inducted into the Presbyterian Churces of Penetanguishene and Wyebridge.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., April 24.—(Canadian Press.)— Fire early this morning almost completely destroyed the Grand Opera House, which less than two years ago had been renovated at a cost of $80,000. The blaze originated in the baggage section of the property room back of the stage, and when discovered at 2 o'clock this morning, had a good start on the auditorium.

The firemen succeeded in saving the arcade entrance, the box office and the adjoining stores.

VOL. LVII., No. 97 PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1926 PRICE THREE CENTS

FRANCE WILL BEGIN PAYMENT OF HER WAR DEBT TO BRITAIN IN THE CURRENT FISCAL YEAR

Churchill Presents Budget in British House of Commons To-day.

NATION RICHER.

Existing Rate of Taxation Continues For Year 1926-1927, He Says.

LONDON, April 26 (Canadian Press)—France will begin to pay her war debt to Great Britain during the present British fiscal year. This was one outstanding announcement made by Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today, in presenting the Budget to the House of Commons.

France's initial payment will be £4,000,000.

Introducing the Budget the Chancellor of the Exchequer estimated the cost of running the British Government for the coming financial year would be 812,641,000 pounds.

This figure includes nearly 19,000,000 pounds for new expenditures including cruisers, empire marketing and other necessary expenditures.

The deadweight debt on March 31, he reported was £7,616,000. The floating debt was reduced by nearly £38,000,000 during the past year.

Coal Problem Hurt

The Chancellor told the House that during the past year the attempt to place the coal industry on an economic basis had overshadowed all other questions. The coal subsidy, he said, had turned a possible surplus of £5,000,000 into a deficit of nearly £14,000,000.

He declared that the nation is richer than a year ago, that general trade was improving, but that basic industries were depressed.

Mr. Churchill stated that the consumption of beer and spirits had decreased during the year because of high taxation.

Under the Budget as presented, the existing rate of taxation for 1926-27 would be continued. The Chancellor said that further reduction in expenditures was imperative and that the Cabinet committee on economy would continue its work. He asserted that all estimates of the three branches of military services would be considered jointly. This statement was taken by observers as foreshadowing the creation of a Ministry of Defence which would combine the fighting services.

He said that the revenue in the permanent branches of the Government was barely holding its own with a strong swelling tide of expenditures, and that therefore the outlook for them was somewhat bleak.

The Chancellor announced that a tax would be imposed on betting. He estimated the revenue for 1926-27, on the existing basis of taxation at £804,500,000, thus the estimated deficit would be £7,941,000.

Mr. Churchill made known his intention to extend the principle of ten years' guarantee for imperial preference to all the numerous articles which now form the subject of imperial preference.

RIVERSIDE ARENA RINK CANVASS GOING ON

An Important Announcement To Be Made To-morrow.

The canvass for the taking of stock by the citizens of Peterborough has been going on successfully for the past three days, and as outlined by those interested in the project it rests in the hands of the public at large whether the building of an artificial ice arena in Peterborough is an accomplished fact or not. A committee of business men and a meeting of representative citizens decided on the plans now before the public as the proper plans to go ahead with.

To ensure them being carried out the canvass now being gone on with should be enthusiastically received.

The hockey club must have larger accommodation as to ice surface, and the public better facilities for seeing the games than at present provided.

Watch to-morrow for important announcement.

GERMANS RUMOR SERIOUS SPLIT AMONG FASCISTI

Report of Movement Against Mussolini by Former Secretary of Party.

CLASHES OCCUR

Censorship News of Insurrections From Outside World.

BERLIN, April 26 (Canadian Press). — Reports from Lugano on the Swiss-Italian border, to the Vossiche Zeitung, tell of a serious split among the Italian Fascisti. A large army, it is declared, under Roberto Farinacci, who recently resigned as secretary-general of the Fascist party, is starting a movement against Premier Mussolini in the eastern provinces of Italy, especially Venice, Udine and Triest. Recently, it is alleged, tumultuous clashes have occurred between the Farinacci and Mussolini groups.

More serious disturbances are said to have been averted only because the Caribinirie were ordered not to go to extremes.

The Vossiche Zeitung asserts that it has received a report from a special correspondent "known to be absolutely reliable," attributing the ignorance of the outside world of these events, and non-receipt of news from the paper's regular correspondent at Rome, to the severity of the Italian censorship.

KINGSTON RETAINS STREET CAR SYSTEM

Arrangement Made With Utilities for Lower Power Rate.

KINGSTON, April 26.—(Special) Kingston will not lose its street car system. At a private conference held by the Public Utilities Commission, the question of the cost of power for the street railway company was considered, and while nothing had been given out officially at yet, it is understood that a rate has been agreed upon that will be suitable to the company, and will guarantee that the railway will continue to give service. The company is at present paying 1.20 cents per killowat hour, but this will be reduced considerably, as it is the desire of the commission to give power to the street railway at cost.

Mayor Angrove, who is a member of the commission, and his colleagues feel that Kingston cannot do without a street car system and are willing to do all in their power to give the company power at cost in order that the railway will not be tied up.

DELEGATION IS NOT SATISFIED

Oshawa Citizens' Committee Says Premier Wanted Facts and Figures.

REPEAT DESIRES.

OSHAWA, April 26.—(Canadian Press.)—At a meeting this morning of the citizens' committee, which arranged the big delegation to Ottawa last Friday, the following statement was authorized.

"The premier seemed to expect the speakers for the deputation to base their statements entirely on facts and figures. Before meeting the Prime Minister and Cabinet it was the unanimous decision of the speakers that it was impossible and inadvisable to attempt to present the case for the deputation in such a way as this was a matter requiring expert knowledge of the automobile industry and of the tariff, and furthermore the time at our disposal would not permit. It was the purpose of the deputation to impress the government with the seriousness of the situation from the standpoint of the working men, merchants and other citizens of the communities involved, in the hope that they would, through the tariff board, or by other expert and comprehensive means, make a thorough and exhaustive examination of the situation."

ROTARIANS TOLD ABOUT EXPRESS

SHIPPERS PRESENT.

"Express transportation", was the subject of a most interesting address given by T. E. McDonnell, vice-president and general manager of the Dominion Express Company, before the members of the Rotary Club at their luncheon today. He treated the subject of express service thoroughly, giving his hearers an insight into the many types of service and the achievements of the express companies of Canada, and the thanks of the members was well expressed by Rotarian R. A. Brown. A number of other express officials and some of the shippers of the city were present and the large dining room of the Empress Hotel was filled to capacity.

Express service, as at present understood, was started in the year 1839, when William Harnden, obliged by ill health to give up his post as ticket agent at Boston, started making regular trips with a carpet bag, taking the valuable parcels of the Boston merchants to New York, and bringing back others. He built up his busines because of the confidence placed in him by the merchants, and the express business has always continued to merit that confidence, said the speaker. Now it had thousand of employees and covers miles of railway lines over the entire world.

The express companies of Canada were highly commended by the speaker. He said that when the war broke out 25 per cent of their employees enlisted and they had to be replaced with whatever labor was available, but the service never broke down. The companies did, indeed transport over two and a half billion dollars in gold and securities across the Atlantic during the war.

In the United States, said Mr. McDonnell, the express companies are striving to reach a goal of no more than one claim per thousand shipments. While unable to speak for the Canadian National Express, the speaker said that the Dominion Express had long passed that record and had last year but one claim in each four thousand shipments.

Changes in the service, he said, are carefully considered from the standpoints of economy and efficiency before they are adopted. The most efficient methods are all adopted in an effort to improve the service.

Mr. McDonnell said that it had been ten years since his company had paid any dividends and that it looked as though the servant could not be worthy of its hire. He expressed the hope that this condition might not continue. He referred to the competition of trucks on the highways, and also to the possibility of commercial airplane service being inaugurated.

Speaking of other parts of the express companiers' service, Mr. McDonnell told his hearers that when they had money to despatch or to collect or foreign business to attend to they should go to John Seels, expressing the opinion that his local agent could read even the Chinese money orders he had on sale.

Mr. McDonnell referred to the integrity and loyalty of the employees of the company. He said that Mr. Seels had been in the service for 36 years and that the local employees had a total service of 116 years.

Mr. McDonnell referred to the work of the Rotary clubs and similar organizations and said that the company was always pleased to have its employees belong to them, as it brought them in friendly connection with business associates and aided in threshing out the problems.

Rotarian Claude Rogers, president of the club, was in the chair and announced the personnel of certain committees of the club.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST GIRL WHO CONCEALED CHILD'S BIRTH IS DISMISSED BY MAGISTRATE

Still Faces Charge of Concealment But Is Allowed Bail.

DOCTORS DIFFER.

Cannot Agree Whether the Child Was Alive When Born.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

BRIGHTON, April 26. — Norma McDonald, the 17-year-old girl, who was charged with the murder of her infant, whose body, mangled by dogs, was found under the floor of a dismantled house about two weeks ago was given a preliminary hearing before County Police Magistrate Floyd on Saturday, when the murder charge was dropped. The girl is still charged with concealing the birth of her child ,but was released on bail of $2000 with two sureties, this being furnished by members of her family.

The case for the Crown was conducted by Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr of Cobourg, and George Drewery of Brighton appeared for the defence. The officers present were Inspector E. C. Gurnett of Belleville, Provincial Constable T. Cousans of Cobourg, Police Chief Ruse of Cobourg, and G. L. McLaughlin, governor of the County Jail who had the defendant in custody. All of the witnesses called were medical men, with the exception of Officer Cousans, who took the stand to tell of the statement made to him by the defendant in the jail, in the presence of Chief Ruse a statement that had been submitted at the inquest that was held last week.

Every doctor in Brighton, four in all, were placed on the stand, and Dr. George Field of Cobourg, was also called to give testimony. As usual in such cases the members of the profession were in wide disagreement three of them taking one position and the other two a directly opposite stand.

The main question at issue was whether the child had been born alive and if so had its death been caused by violence. As the lungs had been carried away by dogs it was impossible for the doctors to decide by the test relied on in such cases as to whether the child had ever lived. The post mortem revealed a fracture of the skull and a hemmorhage of the brain. Two of the doctors were of the opinion that the skull had been fractured while the child was still living, otherwise there would have been no hemmorhage, and that it was the fracture that had caused death

The Doctors Disagree

This was the opinion of Dr. H. C. Rundle of Brighton who had conducted the postmortem at the request of Coroner F. M. Dure and who was the first witness called Saturday, his testimony being practically the same as that given at the inquest. The hemmorhage, he said, was caused by the rupture of blood vessels in the brain. The actual fracture alone would not have caused this but the blood vessels would have been ruptured by violence. If, however, the skull had been fractured immediately after death there might have been a hemmorhage. To Mr. Kerr the witness said that considerable violence would be required to break the skull.

Mr. Krr—"Would a fall cause it?"

Dr. Rundle—"I don't think so."

"Could it have been caused by the blow of a fist?"

"I don't think so."

"What force would be necessary?"

"Striking the skull against some hard substance."

Dr. R. J. Wade

Dr. R. J. Wade, the next witness called, agreed in the main with what Dr. Rundle had testified. The fracture, he said, could not have been caused by a fall; more force would be required as the bones in a child's head are elastic. He did not think that the skull was broken when the child was thrown under the building.

Dr. Harold Clarke

Dr. Harold Clarke of Brighton said that in his opinion the fracture could have been caused by a fall from a chair. The skull could have been broken either before or after death and that if it had happened after death there could have been a hemmorhage to some extent.

To Mr. Drewery the witness said that it was likly that the fracture had been caused by a fall as violence would have left an outer mark on the skull.

Dr. F. M. Dure

Dr. F. M. Dure, the coroner who conducted the inquest, said that the fracture might have been caused by a fall as that particular bone in the head was one of the most easily broken. The mother might have dropped the child to the floor without knowing it.

To Mr. Drewery the witness said that no medical man could tell definitely from the data available whether the child had been born alive.

Dr. George Field.

After the noon recess Dr. George Field of Cobourg, a practictioner of 30 years' standing, was called to the stand. He said that he had listened to the evidence given by the other doctors, and he had come to the conclusion that no medical man could tell whether the child's skull had been broken by a blow or a fall, although it might have been the latter. Owing to the condition in which the body was found it was impossible to arrive at any definite conclusion. There was nothing to indicate that the child had been born alive and injured after birth. That particular bone in the skull fractures very easily. Even if the fracture had occurred after death there would have been blood on the brain.

Dr. Field's evidence concluded with the statement that no medical man could say whether the child had been born alive or dead.

The Charge Reduced.

This concluded the case and Mr. Kerr said that after hearing the evidence submitted at the inquest, he had felt it his duty to lay a charge of wilful murder, so that the matter might be further investi-

Several Persons Reported Injured in Wreck in New Hampshire.

CONCORD, N.H., April 26.—(Canadian Press).—Several persons were injured when the Montreal-Boston flyer was derailed at 4.30 o'clock this morning at the station at Gerrish, N.H., on the main line of the Boston and Maine railroad. Seven cars left the track while the train was running at high speed.

A relief train was at once sent out from Concord with doctors, but, according to railroad officials in the chief dispatcher's office here, there was no need for the physician's service. The passengers on the train were severely shaken up and according to reports several were cut and bruised.

FRENCH BUDGET BEFORE SENATE

Adopted By Chamber of Deputies By Vote of 427 To 153.

MAY BE MODIFIED.

PARIS, April 26. — (Canadian Press.)—In a late Sunday session the Chamber of Deputies adopted the 1926 budget 427 votes to 153. The measure now will go before the Senate for action on the minor modifications made by the chamber, and it is hoped that the bill will be finally enacted in the early days of the week.

The question of France's debts to Great Britain and the United States, came to the fore in the closing minutes of the discussion, when M. Peret, the finance minister, pleading for the chamber's co-operation, said he was engaged under the most difficult conditions with the inter-allied debt negotiations and promised that the government would "defend up to the last the rights and interests of France."

With the budget and debt settlements out of the way, he would devote the forthcoming parliamentary recess to preparation of measures that would provide for final rehabilitation of the country's finances and amortization of the floating debt.

Budget Debate Likely To Culminate May 6th

OTTAWA, April 26 (Canadian Press)—May 6th is mentioned as the earliest date on which the vote on the budget is likely to take place in the House. The list of available speakers is so large that it is now believed that the debate will at least continue well into next week and may probably go into the following week.

Ramsay MacDonald Shorn Looks Like Stockbroker

LONDON, April 26 (Canadian Press). — Ramsay MacDonald has had his hair cut so short and his moustache trimmed so close that many of his friends laughingly charge him with disgusing himself.

Long ish hair and large moustaches are numerous in the Labor party leadership, and for years Britain's only Labor Premier wore his iron gray curly hair long enough to satisfy the demands of the artist colony in Chelsea. But now he is trimmed up as neatly as a city stockbroker.

CHILDREN INJURED.

OTTAWA, April 26. Canadian Press. — A number of women fainted and several children were badly crushed and frightened to a state of hysteria, when shouts of "fire" in a local moving picture theatre Saturday night started a stampede.

Emergency doors were opened and hundreds left the building before the theatre staff were able to subdue the stampede. As a result of the alarm, which was traced to a group of youths in the gallery, the police arrested three young men, who will be charged in the police court with "creating a disturbance."

MEMORIAL SERVICE IS MARKED BY BIG PARADE OF VETERANS

St. Paul's Church is Scene of Soldiers' Best Gathering—Rev. William Allan Tells of Hope of World For No More War.

MOTIONLESS MEN IN STEEL HELMETS TYPIFY SPIRIT OF BROODING MEMORY

Union Jacks bedecking the pulpit; half a dozen wreaths of poppy and evergreen; the skirl of pipes; the faint notes of the Last Post and the still fainter "Reveille"; men in uniform and men in mufti with war service medals; two motionless figures in steel helmets resting on the butts of their rifles—these formed the framework yesterday of a memorial service of which an inspiring sermon was the soul.

It was the best service the returned men of Peterborough have yet held, fully bearing out the prophecy that the farther the war recedes in time the greater will be the interest taken in these excursions into the land of memory. St. Paul's Church was well filled for the occasion, with a large congregation besides the many soldiers, and splendid arrangements had been made by the authorities for the accommodation of visitors Beautifully prepared "Orders of Service" were distributed to every one present, and no stranger to the Presbyterian service had any trouble in joining the worship.

Rev. William Allan, who is known as a forceful speaker, excelled himself in presenting an address at once appealing and appropriate. Lamenting war, he yet lauded the heroism of the men to honor whom the congregation had gathered.

Impressive Scene

Owing to some delay in mustering, the route of parade was changed from that announced Saturday, and the troops marched by Hunter street instead of by George. The order was: colors under escort; Peterborough Rangers' Band; Mayor W. T. Holloway, members of the City Council, prominent citizens, and Harry Rush, representing the Veterans of 1866; Great War Veterans and all veterans; Peterborough Rangers; Machine Gun Pipe Band and Corps; Artillerymen. Aldermen who joined in the parade were J. M. Greene and Charles H. Ackerman, Ex-Mayor John J. Turner, who never misses a Veterans' Parade, was also present, and E. A. Peck, M.P., marched with the city officials.

A short ceremony was held at the cenotaph, where the flag was run down and Last Post sounded.

At the church, the congregation was all gathered when the first troops arrived. The two men with rifles stationed themselves beside the preacher's desk on the pulpit, one representing the Infantry and the other the Artillery, and stood throughout the service at the "Reverse"—hands clasped over the butts of their rifles, and heads (with the once familiar steel helmets) bowed. This is an innovation in Peterborough memorial parades, and the tableau formed an impressive background to the splendid service. The rifles were loaned by Robert Muir, caretaker of the Armouries, on request of Lt.-Col. Gordon Hall, who commands the 57th Battalion.

The Sermon

Rev. Mr. Allan read several portions of Scripture as follows:

"He makes wars to cease."—Psalm 46: 9.

"On earth, peace to men of goodwill."—Luke 2: 14.

"The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of His Christ; and He shall reign for ever and ever."—Revelation 11: 15.

"And He hath on His vesture and on His thight a name written, King of Kings and Lord of Lords."—Revelation 19: 16.

All these Scriptures are prophetical, he said, and point to the dawn of a new and better day.

"It is an honor to have the soldiers here today, and my chief desire is that I may be enabled to say something worthy of the occasion. It is not an occasion for politics; and I have no axe to grind, either for myself or for others!

This is pre-eminently a memorial service—and our thoughts cluster around the memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice in defence of civilization. Therefore, it seems to be that there ought to be something of comfort in it—and there ought to be something constructive as well. Let us never forget:

I.—Our Debt to the Dead.

Think of the pouring out of young life on the field of battle. And try to imagine if you can what life might have been today if it had been spared. The glory of victory can never be compensation enough for their loss to humanity, their native land, and to their friends. Think of

Nine Picnickers Killed When Train Hits Coach

SECOND BLAZE IN TWO WEEKS VISITS ELK LAKE

Several Residences, Garage, and Business Block Are Destroyed.

LOSS $100,000.

Overheated Pipes in One House Believed Cause of Fire.

ELK LAKE, Ont., April 26. — (Canadian Press).—Following close upon the heels of a fire a week ago Saturday, when three buildings were totally destroyed with a loss of $25,000, Elk Lake about eleven o'clock last night was visited by a second disastrous blaze, in which approximately $100,000 damage was done and one business block, a garage, three houses and several other smaller buildings were totally destroyed. The fire started in the Cole residence, it is believed, from overheated pipes. From there, fanned by a high wind, it spread to the homes of Mr. McKee, Mr. Holburn, the Harcourt block, tenanted by the Imperial Bank, which opened its branch in Elk Lake only about ten days ago, and McKinley's Garage.

Some of the furniture in the Cole home and most of that in the other residences was saved. The Harcourt block, with the exception of the Imperial Bank offices, was untenanted.

DRUSE STRONGHOLD ENTERED BY FRENCH

Captured After Six Hour Action on Sunday.

BEIRUT, Syria, April 26. — (Canadian Press.) — The French troops yesterday captured Souedia, the principal stronghold of the insurgents in the Djebel Wruse district, after a six hour action.

Soueida lies in the Djebel Druse country. It was first captured by the Druses last August. They failed, however, in an attempt to seize the French citadel.

A French relief column entered the fort September 24 and rescued the garrison of 500 Frenchmen who had held out for six weeks, suffering much from lack of food.

The French shortly afterward withdrew from the Djebel Druse district and concentrated all forces in Damascus.

Operations intended to clear the whole Soueida country of rebellious tribesmen were started last week.

Every hour of lost time is a chance for future evil.

—Napoleon.

Barbed Wire Around Campus Arouses Ire Of Oxford Girls

LONDON, April 26.— Because a barbed-wire fence thirteen feet high had been erected around part of the campus, the girls of Somerville College, Oxford, are indignant at what they term the enforcement of strict convent rules.

"In fact, it is an insult to the university that Somerville cannot trust its own students," said one of the undergraduates. "The trouble came about when one girl stayed out rather late at night. We have to be in at 11 o'clock, an hour earlier than the men, and this girl came back from a private party with a man after midnight. With his assistance she climbed the top of the ten foot wall and dropped to the other side. Unfortunately, the incident was seen, and the next morning the whole town knew about it."

The following day spikes three feet long were stuck in the walls of the college and a wire fence was built to enclose a break in the wall necessitated by the construction of the annex to the college.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your drugist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mrs. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

A Famous Man

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as the "Favorite Prescription" for women, was Dr. Ray V. Pierce, a practising physician in Western Pennsylvania. He early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established The Invalids' Hotel, then he put up his home remedies in the World's Dispensary, where they were carefully prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and placed them with druggists all over the U. S. and Canada.

For over half a century, Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effect on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's family medicines, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for a trial package of tablets to Doctor Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

New York-London Talk Quicker Than To Coast

NEW YORK, April 26 (Canadian Press).—New York can now talk to London more quickly by radio telephone than to San Francisco by wire telephone.

SEYMOUR LEAGUE MEETING ON MAY 1

Prospective Clubs Invited To Submit List of Players.

BURNBRAE, April 26—The first spring breezes have begun to blow rumors of baseball to the ears of local players and fans, and one of these is that the Seymour township league will be in operation again. Some doubt had been expressed as to whether the league would be a success this year due to the inroads of softball. Hoards and English Line teams of last year's league have decided to take up the latest fad, but hard ball still reigns supreme at Burnbrae. Ernest (Barney) Eagleson, the popular manager and pitcher of the local nine, made inquiries among the parties interested in the league and already a number have signified their intention of entering teams. Rylstone is right behind Burnbrae in the effort to keep the league going. The team there is made up of boys who play for the games sake and are good sports winning or losing. The Rylstone team has been hard hit this winter, losing both senior and junior catchers. Ray Fry has returned to high school while Harry Owens has jouneyed to Fort William.

While the west side of the river is not just certain there will be at least one team and probabley two. Should a second team come in it will be known as Trent Bridge and will have as its foundation the famous Christie brothers. There has been a rumour that a Campbellford team would be entered but nothing definite has been heard.

Everything will be cleared up on Saturday evening, May 1st, when the league annual meeting will be held at the Seymour parsonage. The executive will have a tentative proposal to make to the meeting regarding the system of operation for the year. Each club desiring to enter a team is asked to bring a list of available players to the meeting. The teams will be allowed eighteen or twenty players each the executive have power to award any players to any team so as to make the teams as evenly balanced as possible. Once a satisfactory line-up has been arranged ofr each team no players can be added. This will prevent any surprise players as only residents of the township or those who will shortly become residents will be allowed. Exception to this is always made in the case of Rylstone which team can draw from as far east as Springbrook in Rawdon township.

The Burnbrae team is looking forward to another good year. Eagleson, the veteran pitcher and infielder, is just as enthusiastic as ever. With Hoards out, Burnbrae will be entitled to Carl Haig, a former member of the local nine who will be able to act as relief hurler as well as fill any vacancy in the infield. Hume, the reliable catcher is still going strong and will undoubtedly have another big year at bat. Kay, the second-string catcher can take his turn at almost any position. Craighead has been at Queen's University but will be back for the ball season and he is another versatile artist. Shillinglaw and Johnson, last year's first and third sackers, are still here and anxious to get into the game while Lew Little, the pivot man of the 1925 infield is eyeing the old glove and hat, ready for another big season. Frank Little, J. Rannie, O. Rannie, Linn, Anderson and a host of others are prospects for the outer garden.

With the Northumberland League non-existent the eyes o the district baseball fans will be turned on the Seymour League. It is quite probable that the winner of the Seymour group will challenge Hastings, the present holders of the Clarke Cup and with that in view every effort will be made to have strong teams lined up when the umpire calls "play ball."

LIGHTNING KILLS TEAM.

LINDSAY, April 26—During the electric storm in this district Saturday afternoon, a valuable team of horses owned by Mr. Neil Duggan, of Fenelon Falls, was killed. The horses were harnessed and in the barn on Mr. Duggan's farm when struck.

The Slight Cold Of To-day May Be Serious To-morrow

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse and becomes settled on the lungs, for once it does become deep-seated you are going to have a lot of trouble in getting rid of it.

Our advice to you is that on the first sign of a cough or cold you should procure a bottle of as by its timely use you may save yourself many years of suffering from some serious bronchial or lung troubles. "Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 37 years; so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COMMISSION GIVES $6,000 TO COUNCIL

Not $1,000 as Stated in Article—Advisory Council Suggested.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26. — It was $6,000 that the Water and Light Commission turned over to the Town Council in 1925, not $1,000 as inadvertently stated in the article which was published Saturday, and a like amount has already this year been placed to the credit of the municipality. The sum of $6,000 is sufficient to reduce the tax rate for the year by nearly 5 mills. After making these grants the Commission has still ample funds on hand to take care of all contingencies.

A Leaf from History

As stated in the article on Saturday dealing with the municipal light and power plant, when the plan was first mooted in 1889 the Council appointed an advisory committee of the leading citizens to help further the movement. It now appears likely that the present generation will take a page from the town's municipal history by repeating an experiment that proved so fruitful of results.

At a recent public meeting of business men Mayor Kingston suggested that a committee of citizens be appointed to advise with the Council in the solution of important civic problems that are now pending. One of these which the Mayor mentioned was the renewal of the agreement by which the surplus of the power produced in the municipal plant is leased to the Hydro. The agreement now in force expires this year, and the local Commission is now considering the terms on which it can be continued.

MURDER CHARGE

gated. The doctors were unable to agree but Mr. Kerr said he had done his duty in laying all the facts before the Magistrate, who must now decide whether the evidence warranted the carrying of the matter to a higher court.

Mr. Drewery said that the entire case rested upon the admission of the accused. There was no evidence of murder. Even if the Crown had been able to show that the child had been born alive, they had not shown how it met its death, and they could not connect the accused with it. Mr. Drewery said that a charge of concealment of birth would be admitted, and at a hearing the same evidence would be accepted as that heard at the examination.

The Crown Justified.

Magistrate Floyd said that the Crown had been justified in laying a charge of murder. The public have been given all the facts in the case and will now be satisfied that justice has been done. The medical men were unable to agree and he had no other course but to dismiss the charge of murder against the young mother.

The defendant was then released on bail, but later will be called on to answer to a charge of concealment. She seemed to realize that the serious accusation had fallen through and to be pleased at the prospect of being allowed to return home with the members of her family, a number of whom were in the court-room during the hearing.

MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1926.

YESTERDAY'S CHURCH PARADE.

The thanks of the community is once more due to the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association for providing a fitting observance of the anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, an anniversary that should ever be green in the memory of Canadians.

Yesterday's impressive service in St. Paul's Church, the parade of war veterans and military units, the sight of the medals, wound stripes and battalion and divisional patches worn by many of the marchers, all served their part in recalling vividly to mind the first great trial of the Canadians in the World War.

Despite the disagreeable weather conditions, the turnout was a large one, and the parade brought back many memories to the citizens who watched the men march past.

One of the first things undertaken by the local branch of the Great War Veterans' Association was to inaugurate a church parade in commemoration of the Second Battle of Ypres, and it is to be hoped that the custom will be carried on each year.

THE SALVATION ARMY CAMPAIGN.

The Self-Denial Fund campaign of the Salvation Army is to be conducted during the first two weeks of next month, and the citizens of Peterboro are asked to extend a helping hand to this movement, as they have done so generously in the past.

Leaving the religious work of the Salvation Army out of the picture altogether if you so desire, there remains a very worthy service upon which the organization is justified in asking assistance.

The social service work so splendidly done by the Army is of the greatest value to the community.

It is not necessary to dwell upon that point; every citizen has seen instances of the efficient manner in which the Army reaches out to rescue the derelicts and drifters, to salvage wrecks to whose S.O.S. call other ears are deaf.

It is the daily job of the Salvation Army, distributed over the year.

There are no special campaigns, no spasmodic charitable work.

The Army works 365 days each year, and always finds something more to do to help the unlucky and the down-fallen.

Because of these things the quota asked for from Peterboro citizens on behalf of the Army's Self-Denial Fund should be readily forthcoming.

A GROWING BUSINESS.

Health statistics indicate that Ontario is each year becoming a healthier Province, but along comes the Provincial Board of License Commissioners with a report that seems to prove the contrary.

According to the figures quoted by the board, the number of people in the Province who found themselves in such a state of health that only liquor offered them a chance for recovery and whose opinion in this regard was backed up by a physician, showed a substantial increase in 1925.

In cold numbers there were 17,611 more than the preceeding year, and the total reached the very robust figure of 830,111 prescriptions, the dispensaries receiving from the sale of liquor in this dry Province $5,665,997.44.

The report suggests that the dispensing of liquor under such a system approaches the realm of big business, and this is confirmed by the very evident desire of the commissioners to receive credit for good service during the year.

Nobody's health is to be allowed to suffer for lack of liquor if the Government dispensaries can prevent it, and thus we find the report pointing out, "We adhered to our policy of making certain, if at all possible, that the mail orders, a very large part of our business, were despatched the same day as received."

830,111 prescriptions for liquor in a year, and the dispensaries boasting of their by-return-mail service cannot be regarded as convincing evidence of the air-tightness of the Ontario Temperance Act.

CADET TRAINING.

Lt.-Col. George H. Wilkinson sends the Border Cities Star a clipping from a Canadian magazine containing this striking paragraph:

"During a recent recruiting campaign in the towns and cities of Nova Scotia, out of some ninety applicants only one recruit was accepted. In the majority of cases the cause of rejection was poor physique. It is noted that a proposal is being considered to amalgamate the Department of the Minister of Health with some other department."

"It occurs to me," Col. Wilkinson comments, "that cadet training which makes for manliness would not hurt the boys of our Province down by the sea. A little more football, a little more soccer, a little more recess with fresh air, and competitive games would tend to brighten these boys' faces, give color to them and send them along life's journey better fitted to cope with their own and their country's difficulties where met. A little cadet 'setting up' drill every day will stretch the spine and lengthen the life of all of us. Of course, it will be argued that there are other ways of getting these same results. Surely there are, if we take them. But do we? . . . . Canada is a nation of thoroughbreds, has proved it time and again, and for goodness sakes let us keep it so. Thoroughbreds are not grown in hot houses or artificial breeding pens that some would make of our public schools. For our boys' sake, someone must speak up. But don't let the fanatic 'Too proud to fight' and 'I might get hurt anyhow's' have it all their own way. They think perhaps every one is with them. They are not, I can assure you. . . . . Canadians will fight and they want to fight if they are pushed too far. They are not cowards. Then let's give them physical ability to be men."

As a citizen, a soldier and a sportsman, Col. Wilkinson appreciates the value of physical training. The instance he cites from Nova Scotia must come as a shock to most people, although it will be recalled that during the war there were many surprises of this sort. Army medical examinations revealed many physical defects hitherto unknown to their possessors. Percentages of rejections were alarmingly high. Many of the disabilities thus revealed could have been corrected by medical attention and physical training earlier in life.

Canada has heard a great deal of discussion concerning the cadet movement. It is vigorously objected to in some quarters because it is supposed to breed a "militaristic spirit." This is all nonsense. Canadians are not a warlike people. They are not looking for trouble. They are not parading around with chips on their shoulders. When emergencies arise—as has been so well demonstrated on more than one occasion—they can fight with the best of them. But that is a different thing from militarism. Cadet corps will never breed a militaristic spirit in this democratic country. But they will be of inestimable service in developing physique, character, obedience to discipline and good citizenship generally.

And who will say that we should not strive for the attainment of such excellent ends?—Border Cities Star.

CANADIAN UNITY.

The speeches that are being delivered by Baron Byng on his tour of Western Canada offer further proof, although it is not needed, that His Excellency the Governor-General has a very high conception of the responsibilities of his position, and that he is determined to make his term of office in Canada stand for something.

Wherever he goes Baron Byng preaches the gospel of Canadian unity, urging the nine Provinces of this great Dominion to stand together shoulder to shoulder, as the soldiers from those Provinces stood shoulder to shoulder against the enemy in the World War.

There is need of such speeches.

Canadians must be constantly reminded that unity is essential, because in this vast country with the interests of one section perhaps ill-served by something that benefits the interests of another there is always active a force that pulls apart, and that can only be rendered impotent by a general realization that Canadians must think in terms of Canada rather than in terms of Ontario or Quebec or Saskatchewan, as the case may be.

The speeches in Hansard offer liberal education along this line.

Here we have a member from the Maritimes who speaks for several hours on problems about which we in Ontario know little or nothing.

Then a member from the West takes the floor, and his speech deals with another set of problems altogether.

An Ontario member pleads for the industries of his Province.

British Columbia's representatives present the peculiar difficulties of the Province on the Pacific.

With such clashes of interests, such diversity of problems, it is imperative that Canadians must be continually appealed to for a national viewpoint on important questions, and the hero of Vimy does this country a fine service in keeping that aspect always before the audiences he addresses.

THE QUEBEC CENSORSHIP.

No person imagines for one moment that the motion picture trade will carry out its threat to boycott the Province of Quebec if the censorship imposed by that Province is not modified. The millions of dollars invested in motion picture houses in the city of Montreal alone render such a development completely out of the question. No group of business men, least of all those engaged in the film trade, would voluntarily sacrifice such an investment and the profitable returns being derived from it, merely for the sake of experiencing some relief from a censorship which is declared to be unduly burdensome.

On the other hand, there does appear to be some basis for the complaint of the producers and distributors. The casual visitor to a motion picture theatre in the Province of Quebec may not be able to detect any difference between the films exhibited there and those shown in Ontario, yet there is a difference. The legend, "Approved by the Board of Censors of the Province of Quebec," means that the film in question has been subjected to the most rigid censorship on the Continent. Not only that, but the police authorities make certain that every piece of advertising matter is brought into harmony with such censorship. It is not an unusual thing to pass along a Montreal street and to see a poster altered so that a revolver is blotted out by means of a sticker, or part of a young woman's anatomy concealed by the same artifice. The display of such censored posters is, of course, ridiculous, since the person beholding them knows perfectly well what has been hidden from view and his morals are not benefited in the least.

Why there should be such anxiety in regard to "movies" in a community which allows a "red light district" to operate with very little restraint is something which can only be comprehended by the person who understand the Quebec mind, one might expect that any censorship which was acceptable in Ontario, which is very generally regarded as the home of censorship, would be equally acceptable in Quebec. But it is not. The film which passes the Ontario Board of Censors is slashed, hacked and altered when it comes before the Quebec Board with the result that it is often quite impossible to repair it and to preserve the continuity of the story. That is the grievance of the trade.

Whether the Quebec authorities will see eye-to-eye with the producers and distributors is very doubtful. There may come some modification, but it may be depended upon that it will not be a drastic one since Quebec does not believe in letting down the bars as far as the "movies" are concerned, however greatly it may wink at conditions which form a much more prolific breeding-ground for immorality. — Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Well, anyway, it was a little early for summer.

The annual report of the Provincial Board of License Commissioners indicates that a Province can be both officially dry and officially wet at the same time.

This week will see tht Budgtt debate in full stride, but, alas, far from being close to the finish.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 25 (Canadian Press). — The export and domestic trade in cash grain on the Montreal market on Saturday was quiet, the demand being somewhat limited from all sources. An easier feeling prevailed in prices for spot supplies of oats and they were reduced 1-2c per bushel.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 2,643 cases, as against 3,083 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 24, 1926, were 17,045 cases, as compared with 17,919 cases for the previous one, and 22,648 cases for the same week last year. Local jobbing prices were fully maintained and show no change as compared with the previous week. The consumptive demand was fairly good and a steady business was done.

The receipts of butter in Montreal on Saturday were 1,470 packages, as against 614 packages for the same day last week and 847 packages for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 24, 1926, were 8,798 packages, as compared with 3,799 packages for the previous week and 5,342 packages for the same week last year.

Butter Price Firm

In the early part of last week the market was weak and prices declined with sales of Canadian No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter as low as 32c per lb., which was attributed to the increased offerings and the somewhat limited demand, but later it steadily gathered strength under some good buying for local account and the demand that developed from English importers for supplies with the result that prices advanced 1c to 1 1-2c per lb., from the low point, but at the close they were 1-2c per lb below a week ago.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal on Saturday were 684 boxes, as compared with 485 boxes for the same day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending April 24, 1926, were 4,341 boxes, as against 2,149 boxes for the previous one and 7,172 boxes for the same week last year.

There has been no improvement in the volume of business to note owing to the fact that English importers show little or no disposition to operate in Canadian fodder-made cheese at present for shipment by the first vessels sailing from Montreal, and in consequence the market has been dull, but the undertone continues fairly steady with prices quoted at 16 1-2 to 17c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Wheat rallied in surprising fashion today after May delivery had sold down to 10 cents a bushel under prices current at the beginning of the week. The recovery was aided by a likelihood of a liberal decrease in the United States visible supply total on Monday and also a decrease in the amount of ocean passage. Closing quotations on wheat were exactly the same as yesterday's finish, to 1-8c off; corn 1-4 to 5-8c down; oats at 1-8 to 1-4 to 3-8c decline, and provisions showing 7 to 30c gain.

GROUND ALFALFA HIGH FOOD VALUE

Mills Being Established In Various Parts of Province.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 26.—It has been proved to a demonstration by experts that the natural high value of alfalfa as fodder can be increased by grinding the stalks into meal on the same principle as that by which corn is converted into ensilage. Mills for the grinding of alfalfa have already been established, one of them being located in the southern part of this county, the farmers hauling their alfalfa to these places just as they carry grain to a mill to be ground.

John L. Hay announced some time ago that he proposed to establish such a mill in Campbellford, but he has since abandoned the idea for the best of business reasons. The manufacturers of agricultural machinery are now turning out portable alfalfa mills that can be taken among the farmers in a community like a threshing machine or a silo cutter, and this machine is likely to put the stationary mill out of business.

TREATY SIGNED.

Terms of Treaty Between Russia and Germany Not Made Public.

BERLIN, April 26 (Canadian Press)—The Russian-German amity treaty was signed Saturday. Although the terms of the agreement have not been made public, authoritative quarters in Germany represent it as an important step in safeguarding the peace of Europe.

They maintain that it does not establish an alliance between the two countries but rather parallels and complements the Locarno pact.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

USUALLY IS

A promise is an obligation, a responsibility, a pledge. Trivial, or otherwise, a promise should never be idly given nor thoughtlessly broken.

The performance of a single act, though the effort be small, is worth more than any number of extravagant promises that are never fulfilled.

Promises unkept are promissory notes that involve you in debt from which you can never escape.

Worse still, unkept promises create for you a reputation for a form of dishonesty that is labeled incurable and usually is.

UNTIL yesterday, this girl's husband had lovingly encouraged her small extravagances and boasted laughingly that his income was ample and growing.

He worked with might and main to "gather the fruits of success for his fair trinity at home"—and was succeeding.

But death, without warning, cut down his guard, and the three he loved more than his own life were now at bay to the world—alone.

Her faith was strong. Her husband she knew, would not leave her with the children to face a financial situation for which there was no solution. Yet when she tried to calculate the income she would receive from the savings he had left, a panic of fear overcame her.

The greatest and hardest of her duties now was the one she knew the least about."

If she had come to you for advice—that would have been her story.

Perhaps someone depending on you is destined some day to be left alone—at bay to the world. This is a situation so appalling that its very contemplation makes thinking men turn cold with apprehension.

That is why we have written a little work called "Her Way Out"—to make you realize how serious is the situation which may overtake those for whom you believe no sacrifice or effort is too great.

In addition it provides the one sensible solution for such a tragic problem. Would you like to have a copy? We will be pleased indeed to send you one.

NO POLAR BEARS IN ANTARCTIC

No Animals at All Found in South Polar Continent.

SAYS STEFANSSON

NEW YORK, April 26.—(Canadian Press)—Belief, even in governmental and scientific quarters that polar bears inhabit south polar regions was exploded by Vilhjamur Stefansson, explorer, in an address here.

"The most striking thing about the antarctic continent, which is bigger than Australia" said Mr. Stefansson", is that no land animals exist there despite apparently general belief that it is inhabited by polar bears such as live in the arctic seas. Not even a mouse can be found on the antarctic continent."

He told how it was announced last summer when Donald McMillan left on an exploration trip to Greenland, that one of McMillan's purposes was to ascertain whether there were ruins of European origin on west coast of Greenland, when as a matter of fact it had been known in civilized world for 900 years that such ruins existed.

"Then when McMillan came back and said he had seen the ruins", said Mr. Stefansson, "it was reported that he 'discovered' them."

SOVIET DEMANDS DRASTIC ECONOMY

Swift Punishment For Graft and Waste.

MOSCOW, April 26 (Canadian Press). — The Soviet newspapers publish a proclamation signed by M. Stalin, recently elected to the important presidium of the Communist party, and M. Kuibishev, head of the supreme control commission, calling upon the Communist party to exterminate waste, graft, incompetence, unproductivity of labor and kindred vices.

The proclamation states that in holding the course for industrialization, Russia cannot expect foreign help, but must build with her own resources; hence the necessity of the most drastic economy, severe suppression of all forms of extravagance, and swift punishment, regardless of social position.

NEW RULER OF PERSIA CROWNED AMID ORIENTAL SPLENDOR WITH FESTIVITIES TO CONTINUE WEEK

Reza Khan Receives Crown and Sceptre in Teheran on Sunday.

CITY GAY SCENE

Opening of Wireless Station Modern Touch to Ancient Customs.

TEHERAN, Persia, April 26 (Canadian Press).—The new Shah of Persia, Reza Khan Pehlivi, was crowned Sunday amid scenes of oriental splendor. The ceremony took place in the museum hall of the old Gullistan Palace. Festivities followed, which will continue throughout the week. For the most part these will comprise the ancient customs of Persia, but a modern feature will be the opening of a new wireless station.

At the top of the hall facing the entrance stood the peacock throne. Immediately below were aides-de-camp with the Imperial flag and a few feet away was the naderi throne.

Shortly before four o'clock the young Crown Prince, followed by members of the Cabinet, the Governor of Teheran, the court Ministers and functionaries entered the hall. The Prime Minister bore the Kayan crown, the chief court minister the Pehlivi crown which had been specially prepared for the occasion, the Minister of War the Jehanghosha sword, the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs the pearl crown, the Minister of Justice the Royal sceptre, the Minister of Works the celebrated Daria-i-Nur diamond brought from Dehli by Nadir Shah, the Minister of the Interior the mace, and the Minister of Finance the new Shah's portrait.

The nine commandments were carried by court officials, as well as the nadir's bow.

Groups Around Throne.

The Crown Prince stood at the right of the naderi throne, the others being in a semi-circle below. On the right of the peacock throne, and stretching from the upper to the lower end of the hall were assembled separate groups of Ulema, including representatives of the Christian Church, judges, members of the nobility and representatives of the guilds of merchants in the order named.

On the left were ranged the diplomatic corps, ladies of foreign countries, first-class military officers, the heads of the various ministries and representatives of the Persian and foreign press.

Receives Sceptre.

The Shah entered the hall a few minutes later wearing the royal mantle. With him was the court chamberlain. He took his seat on the peacock throne. The head of the Ulema gave a blessing and offered prayers for the prosperity of the new Shah. He presented the Pehlivi crown, which Reza Khan placed on his own head. The other ministers came then and presented the sceptre and other articles of the royal ragalia.

At the close of the presentation the Shah read a brief speech, after which there were speeches by the Premier and the chief court ministers. The Shah, accompanied by the Crown Prince, drove in state amid the cheers of the assemblage in the streets to his private country palace. He will return to Teheran to-day.

In honor of the occasion, Teheran was beautifully decorated. Thousands from all parts of the country flocked to the city, bringing valuable presents. They included representatives from non-Moslem communities. A three-day public holiday has been proclaimed. All the foreign legations have arranged brilliant receptions.

TABLET HONORS ARCTIC HEROES

Tribute at Ottawa To Memory of 16 Canadians Who Perished.

DEATHS RECALLED.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press.) — A memorial tablet has been placed in the Dominion archives building, Ottawa, in tribute to the memory of sixteen members of the Canadian Arctic expedition, 1913-18, who perished during the expedition in widely separated sections of the Arctic.

The tablet was prepared under the supervision of the historic sites and monuments board of Canada.

In addition to the inscription, "In memory of those who perished, Canadian Arctic expedition, 1913-18. and the names in alphabetical order with the ranking of each, there is an inscription at the foot of the tablet: "For Canada and for science —Pour la Patrie et Pour La Science."

Scientific Staff.

Of the five members of the scientific staff who are thus commemorated by Canada, one is a Canadian, George Stewart Malloch, of Ottawa, son of the late Dr. A. E. Mallock of Hamilton, Ontario, and a member of the Geological Survey of Canada. Henri Beuchat, athropologist, was a distinguished writer on American archaeology and ethnology from Paris, France. Bjarne Mamen, topographer of Oslo, Norway, had served on the Norwegian-Spitzbergen expedition before taking part in the Canadian expedition. James Murray, oceanographer and Alister Forbes Mackay, surgeon, were from Scotland and had been with Shackleton in the Antarctic.

Relics Discovered.

After the sinking of the D.G.S. Karluk, north of Siberia in January, 1914, four lives were lost attempting to reach Wrangel Island over the sea ice, James Murray, Allister F. MacKay, Henri Beuchat, and a seaman, Stanley Morris. Another party of four led by First Mate Alexander Anderson, consisting of Charles Barker, John Brady and Edmund Golightly, seamen, succeeded in reacing Herald Island, but their fate was not knowr until a whaling vessel calling at the island in 1924, discovered the sad relics of the party on the beach.

George Breddy, seaman, died on Wrangel Island the summer of 1924 as the result of an accidental gunshot wound, and George Malloch and Bjarne Mamen perished from scurvy at Rodger's Harbour, Wrangel Island, May, 1914.

RIDEAU RIVER FLOOD PASSES

Recession of Foot During the Week End—Furnaces Dampened.

WORST IN YEARS.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 26.—(Canadian Press.)—With the flood waters receded twelve inches and the ice cleared out of the river, the worst of the floods caused in Ottawa and district by the overflowing of the Rideau river is considered over. The log booms in Mooney's Bay and Black Rapids broke Saturday night and released the ice, which, however, passed down the river without causing the expected damage.

Ottawa householders in the low-lying districts on the bank of the river, continued to suffer from the floods. The sudden drop in temperature increased the hardship of the householders, who, with furnaces under water, had to call into play electric heaters and portable braziers to furnish them with heat.

The floods this year are considered the worst in years. The waters of the Rideau rose nine feet over their average.

CALCUTTA DEAD INCREASED TO 23 IN RECENT RIOTS

Mohammedan Funeral Party Attacked by Hindus in Sunday Clash.

SHOPS ARE LOOTED

European Residents Appeal to Government for More Police.

CALCUTTA, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Sporadic rioting continued Sunday and the native sections of the city presented a gloomy and deserted appearance. A funeral party conveying the bodies of two Mohammedans was attacked by Hindus. Shots were exchanged and two Mohammedans were wounded.

A Hindu in Miripore Street was stabbed by a Mohammedan, and this led to a regular fight, the participants in which only ceased when the police fired on the rioters, wounding many.

Isolated cases of shop looting continue to be reported from all quarters, and yesterday thirty persons were admitted to the hospitals suffering from wounds of varying severity; nine of them were gunshot wounds.

Four of those injured in Saturday's rioting died Sunday, and the total death roll in the present series of riots is now 23, and the number of wounded at least 200.

The European residents are making urgent representations to the Bengal Government; they propose that additional men should be drafted into the police force from British regiments, as the present European personnel has been working under continuous strain for the past three weeks, and is too small for effective patrolling.

Three Killed Saturday.

Three more deaths occurred Saturday in a recrudescence of the rioting between the Moslems and Hindus.

The worst troubles took place in Mechua Bazaar Street, where 500 Moslems, armed with pickaxes, clubs, swords and stones, parading to the accompaniment of drums, clashed with a similarly armed crowd of Hindus who gathered at the other end of the street.

The fighting lasted for an hour, with a furious interchange of blows and missiles. The police dispersed the rioters with the firing of blank cartridges. The houses of a number of Hindu merchants were attacked, one was set on fire, and shops were looted.

In Canning Street, a lone Hindu was killed by a crowd of Moslems. Two other Hindus were found dead in the streets from dagger wounds. Two police sergeants and one constable were badly wounded in their efforts to quell the disorder.

WOMAN TO JOIN FRENCH EXILE

Declares Fidelity To Officer Deported For Repeated Swindles.

WON WAR HONORS.

PARIS, April 25 (Associated Press).—The deportation, after conviction for repeated swindles, of a former captain in the French army, who won the cross of the Legion of Honor and Military Medal for Valor on the field of battle, has brought to light a story of faithful devotion on the part of a woman, who shared the former officer's fortunes in his prosperous days.

A few hours before the hour fixed for the embarkment of the 340 convicts recently leaving aboard "La Martiniere," a beautiful young woman, wearing a fine fur coat and most expensive pearl necklace, arrived at the gates of Saint Martin's Penitentiary.

She applied to Governor Leroux for permission to marry her soldier sweetheart before his departure for Cayenne. This was refused, according to the law, but she was informed that she might join her lover in exile. She took up her post behind a row of soldiers fifty yards from the lighter aboard which the convicts were embarking. When the former captain came into sight, her face went hard and set, as she shrieked above the roar of the breakers against the stone pier: "I will join you before six weeks."

The man, who endured four years of trenches and open warfare with fortitude, staggered at the sound of the voice, halted and wavered as if about to fall. Then with a look of love and gratitude, he squared his shoulders, and threw the girl a kiss. Then without hesitation he descended into the hold of the floating prison.

GALE IN CHANNEL.

Dover-Ostend Service Was Suspended.

DOVER, England, April 26 (Canadidan Press).—A wild gale in the channel Sunday compelled the suspension of all Dover to Ostend services. Cross-channel steamers which braved the trip had terrible experiences. The steamer Villede Liege, which left Dover at noon for Ostend with 60 passengers, spent the night at sea, taking shelter in the Dowhs waiting for the sea to moderate.

ARCTIC SILENCE STILL ENFOLDS POLE SEEKERS MISSING TEN DAYS

No Word From Captain George Wilkins of Detroit Expedition—Second Plane's Start Again Delayed on Sunday.

TWENTY HOURS' DAYLIGHT NOW.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Efforts to pick up possible radio signals from Captain George H. Wilkins, commander of the Detroit arctic expedition, yesterday, the tenth since he set out for Point Barrow in the expedition's single motor plane, were unavailing, The North American Newspaper Alliance reported.

The expedition members, however, maintained their optimistic confidence that the missing commander was safe at the camp at Point Barrow.

Point Barrow now has 18 to 20 hours of daylight with only a short dusk intervening between sunset and sunrise. This has been suggested as a possible cau. for Captain Wilkin's silence and the difficulty of communicating with the party which left Fairbanks by the overland route. Both Captain Wilkins and the overland party, however, are equipped with short wave radio sets which are not so seriously affected by sunlight as sets using longer wave lengths.

Second Plane Delayed.

The Detroiter, the second plane of the expedition, was still in Fairbanks Sunday. A test flight to try out the new compasses installed Saturday delayed the loading of the big plane and made necessary another postponement of its departure, scheduled for Sunday. It was planned to hop off early this morning. Six hundred gallons of gasoline were placed in the tanks yesterday.

Major Thomas G. Lanphier, who is in command during the absence of Captain Wilkins, will act as navigator in the flight today. Charles Wisely will be pilot and in the cabin behind the control cockpit will be Howard Mason, chief radio man in the expedition; Andrew Hufford, mechanic, and a newspaper correspondent.

FRENCH MINERS MAY WALK OUT

In Sympathy With English Comrades—Owners Not Worried.

WOULD BE SHORT

PARIS, April 26.—(United Press)—The French National Miners Federation on Saturday circulated notices among its members to be prepared to strike if necessary to support the efforts of British miners to obtain nationalization of British coal mines.

Mine owners here say they are not worried, as the French miners are satisfied with their own conditions of work and are not likely to strike more than a day, if at all, in a simple demonstration of sympathy with their British fellows.

TORNADO CROSSES OKLAHOMA STATE

Much Damage Done—Floods Take Toll in Texas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 26.—(Canadian Press)—Tornados in Oklahoma last yesterday following storms and floods in Texas took three lives and damaged property considerably. No estimate of the total damage could be made before the resumption of wire service today.

Eleven lost their lives in Texas. A wind approaching a velocity of a tornado yesterday loosened roofs, broke light poles and caused considerable damage in Hannibal, Mo. Three people were killed and one injured when their homes were hurled through the air more than 100 yards, and smashed to the earth.

The tornado striking near Fillmore travelled southeast, cutting a path 200 yards wide and 12 miles long, levelling crops and raising farm buildings.

The damage would have been greater had not the tornado lifted in places. Doctors from nearby Oklahoma cities arrived in the stricken area today with medical supplies while bedding clothing and food is being sent.

Other section of Oklohoma reported damage from wind and hail.

DEMOCRATS ARE WET IN ILLINOIS

Republicans Ignore Liquor Question, But Condemn World Court.

GREAT OVATIONS

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 26.—(Canadian Press).—Illinois democracy has accepted the wet plank for its November vote battle, but has ignored world court issue, while republicans, taking an opposite track, have ignored the liquor question while opposing the court and the League of Nations.

First place in party platforms has been accorded the issues raised in the primaries by George E. Brennan, Chicago wet democratic candidate for United Senator and Col. Frank L. Smith, foe of the world court, who defeated Senator McKinley for Republication nomination. Both candidates were given tremendous ovations at state conventions held here.

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Audrey, adopted daughter of Harry Morton, middle-aged, wealthy, handsome, is in love with him and wants him to marry her. Morton, whose business the town gossips never have learned, maintains a home in Peterborough and an expensive apartment in Toronto. Nona, also in love with Morton, has offended him in a jealous rage—comes to ask forgiveness, and is confronted by Audrey, who declares her love.

Morton hired John rParish as his secretary, instructing Parrish to study music and dancing so he can be a companion to Audrey. He takes Parrish to dinner, but when he leaves the two together, she dismisses Parrish, and demands of Morton whether he is trying to marry her to Parrish, and if he loves Nona.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Except in moments of great passion, when the habits of years are swept aside, it is the custom of men to ward off emotional crises. Women instinctively expose their souls, when they are with the men they love. Men never do, when they can avoid it.

Following his masculine instinct, Morton sought to divert the conversation.

"I received an important piece of news this evening, Audrey," he said. "My income has increased about fifty or sixty thousand dollars a year."

The girl was not to be shaken. "Money does not count between you and me," she said. "I'm glad you have succeeded, in whatever it is: I'm glad if it makes you happier. But daddy, dear, won't you answer my two questions?"

Morton sought an additional moment or two to think. "Tell me the questions again."

"Are you trying to marry me to Mr. Parrish, and do you love Nona?" Her eyes widened as she looked anxiously into his. "Tell me, dear."

Morton caressed the back of her hand. "I always think of you as a child," he confessed. "It is hard for me to realise that I am talking to a woman—a grown woman." He paused. "I promised you I would talk about Parrish. All right."

He got up, crossed the room, and selected a cigar from the humidor that lay on a taboret, beside the organ. Lighting it, he puffed reflectively, and returned to his seat.

"Here goes," he said. "I am the only man you ever have seen in all your life, except for a few casual contacts.

"You are young. It is the instinct of young things to seek a mate. Young human beings are not unlike puppy dogs, and kittens. They are affectionate, and bestow their love on the person nearest at hand. That's what you've done, Audrey dear."

The girl made a sweeping motion of protest. "It isn't so—it isn't so!" she cried. "I love you because you are the most wonderful man in the world! You are the only man in the world I ever could love!"

"I'm older than you are," Morton told her. "I really know what I'm talking about. I've always had you with me, because it gave me pleasure to show you pretty sights, and buy you pretty things. It was a mistake, maybe." She shook her head, but he went on. "I'm too old to be a mate for a girl as young as you. I'm not aged, of course—my health is good, and all that. But the gap of years between us is a wide one. It cannot be bridged. When a girl of your age, and a man of mine, are married, they wander down through life on opposite sides of a great chasm."

"Don't you love me?" she asked, quickly.

Morton took her in his arms. "Of course, I love you! It would be impossible for anybody on earth to love you more than I do."

Her voice rang out triumphantly. "Then why shouldn't we be married? If you love me, and I love you better than everything else on earth, that's all that counts!" Her voice dropped on the last two words, and a startled look appeared in her face. "But maybe you love Nona better! Daddy, do you love Nona better?"

Morton rubbed his knee slowly with the palm of his hand. She scarcely drew a breath as she waited for him to speak. The look of triumph that flamed in her face a moment before had disappeared, and as he still delayed his answer, there came a droop of misery to her lips.

"Do you love her better than you do me?" she asked.

Morton started up. "Good grief, no! Good heavens!" he walked rapidly up and down the room. "No!" he said again. "I don't love anybody as well as I love you!"

"Then why—" she began. But he interrupted.

"I can't marry you, Audrey!" he cried. "There are reasons why I can't do it—I simply cannot. It can never be! Absolutely!"

The girl came to him, and held him by his arm.

"Is—is it Nona?" she asked, her voice so low he scarcely could hear it.

"You're a young girl, Audrey," he said. "There are things you don't know about—things you can't know about. You are a young girl, and I can't tell you about them. But Audrey, darling—I can't marry you!"

She still held to his arms, and lifted her face to him, pleadingly.

"I know—some things," she said, softly. "And daddy, if you love me, I'm ready to forgive anything, and overlook anything, and forget anything. I know this—"

She drew him a little closer to her.

"I know that if you did anything—anything you can't tell me, you didn't do it to hurt anybody. That's the only thing that is evil. You told me so yourself!"

Absently, more to himself than to her, he said "I didn't mean to hurt anybody."

"Do you love Nona?" she asked.

Morton's favorite motion, when puzzled, was to brush the bridge of his nose with his fingers. He did this now.

"Do you?" she insisted.

"I like Nona," he said. Again he touched his nose, as if to drive from it an imaginary fly. "You see, Audrey, I have known a number of women in my life. I know a number of them now."

The girl nodded. "I know it—they are after you in swarms."

Morton made a movement of protest. "Oh, they are, "she said. "I've seen them looking at you! And, daddy dear, I don't blame them for that. But do you love them—or any of them?"

"Well, I like several of them, I guess." He said this with an air of frank confession.

"I'l bet I know!" the girl said. "You meet them and smile, and don't pay any further attention. That makes them crazy with curiosity, and they go right after you! Women do that way."

"Where did you get that philosophy?" Morton wanted to know.

"I'm a woman myself," she said. "I know that when a man shows he's interested in a woman, she runs away—a little. Not too far, though, if she likes him. But if he doesn't run after her at all, she runs after him."

Changing the subject abruptly, she continued:

"You didn't tell me if you were trying to have me marry Parrish."

Morton seated himself on the table, and swung his feet. "I'll own up," he said. "I hadn't actually thought of your marrying him, but I was offering him to you as a substitute for me."

She followed him, and stood before him, gravely.

"There never can be any substitute for you, and I'm never going to speak to that man again!"

He raised his hand in a laughing gesture of despair.

"Don't abuse that boy!" he protested. "He didn't have anything to do with this. It was my scheme entirely."

"Coming around here, with his guitar, and his dancing lessons!" she said, indignantly. "I never heard of such effrontery in my life."

"Tut, tut, tut!" He took her by the shoulders and shook her. "Don't be so darned—so confoundedly—well, feminine!"

He modified the shaking he had given her by administering a little friendly pat on the shoulder.

"Seriously, you don't have to marry him if you don't want to. All I was looking for was a nice, decent fellow who could take you around places when I'm busy. You need some young companionship. There isn't anything wrong with him, now is there?"

"He has blue eyes and I don't like blue-eyed men," she said. Then she laughed at herself. "Oh, I suppose I'd like him all right if you hadn't made yourself a matrimonial agent for him. Anyhow, he doesn't worry me. It's Nona and those other women you spoke of.

"You won't go around with them any more, will you?"

He threw his arms far aloft, waved his hands with a resigned gesture and started up the stairs.

"I ought to have learned by this time never to debate with a woman," he said over the banister. "I'm never going to do so again, so help me! Good-night!"

He turned, ran down the steps, took the girl's face between his hands, kissed her and turned away.

"You're a sweet little kid," he told her, "but you have me up against the hardest problem I've ever tried to solve. Good-night, dear."

Morton was deep in thought when he arrived at his office the next morning, and sat, his arms folded on the desk before him, for more than an hour, scarcely stirring. At last he rang a bell and young Parrish appeared.

"I've got to go back to Peterborough tonight," he told Parrish. "You'll have to abandon your music lessons for a time, unless you find a teacher there."

Parrish withdrew and Morton turned to his dictating machine. Leisurely he gave orders, memoranda, letters and miscellaneous instructions to the little black, whirling machine. When three cylinders had been filled he pressed a buzzer and told the stenographer who answered that he would expect the typewritten sheets to be ready for him before he left that evening.

As the girl went out the door he lapsed into thought again. Finally a slow smile spread over his face. He summoned Parrish.

"John," said he, "write my personal check for five thousand dollars and bring it in for me to sign. Then I want you to take it down to the bank and get it cashed in large bills—get five bills for a thousand each. Take the money and carry it to this address."

He took a scratch pad and hurriedly penciled a memorandum.

"Here is the street number and the number of an apartment," he continued. "You will find a young woman there."

"Tell her I want her to take this five thousand dollars and buy with it either a ring or a necklace. Tell her to buy only one article of jewelry—it must be a good one."

Parrish hesitated. "What name shall I ask for, sir?" he asked.

"Don't ask for any name at all," Morton said tersely. "Go to the apartment and give the money to the young woman who answers the door. Give her my message. That's all!"

Parrish did not move.

"Go ahead, man," Morton ordered, his eyebrows rising.

"I don't think I ought to, sir," said Parrish.

"What?"

"I don't believe I want to go on errands of that kind," Parrish repeated, deliberately.

Morton rose hastily to his feet. Then, as if considering, he sank back in his chair, and fixed his eye on the young man. Parrish was fumbling uncertainly with an inkwell on the desk, and did not meet his employer's gaze.

"You have not yet written the check I told you to write," Morton said, quietly. "Go and write it, and bring it to me, and I'll sign it."

Parrish left the room, and in a minute or two was back, with the slip of green paper. Morton took the check, and scratched his name at the bottom.

"Now, take it to this address as I told you before."

Parrish eyed the paper that his employer held out to him, but he did not take it.

"I won't go," he said.

REMINGTON-NOISELESS TYPEWRITER - MODEL 6

A Revelation in Silence.

Executives welcome it. Typists "adore" it. At first the operation of a Remington-Noiseless Typewriter seems strange. One misses the clatter of keys. But in a day or so, the increased efficiency is apparent. Executives find the quietness stimulating - nothing to distract thought - they don't need to halt their typists while telephoning. Operators "adore" it. After a week they say they "wouldn't go back to other machines for worlds."

In short, Remington-Noiseless Typewriters do work perfectly, and do it in silence.

Government Condemned For Permitting Sale of 4.4 Beer.

APPROVES WORK.

Professes Alarm at Use of Tobacco By University Students.

KITCHENER, April 24 (Canadian Press).—A strong condemnation of the liquor traffic in all its phases and the withdrawal of evangelic support from any candidates for provincial political honors unless they are proven to be temperance men and prohibitionists in principle and in practice, were salient points of the resolution unanimously passed by the Evangelical Conference here yesterday afternoon on the liquor question. The Ferguson Government was condemned for permitting sale of 4.4 beer and allowing for freer sale of that commodity. Unqualified condemnation of the use of narcotics, tobacco, especially cigarettes and cigars and growing laxity in the Sabbath observance were contained in other resolutions, also one approving of the work of the social service council.

The resolution dealing with the tobacco habit professed alarm at the growing use of the tobacco by women and boys in many sections, and intimated that the smoking by students of both sects at some colleges and universities was becoming a serious problem. Disregard of the sanctity of the Sabbath, especially in the use of the auto and in sports, was denounced by the Conference.

WESTERN CANADA IMPRESSION

An Address By Mr. A. J. Reynolds Before the Rotary Club.

When I asked your chairman on what subject he wished me to talk to you, he stated that, as I had come here from Western Canada, I could possibly tell you something about the West. In undertaking this task, I approach it with a certain amount of diffidence because I realize that many of the things I say are already known to some of you. I also feel that some of the things I may say may not be agreeable to some of you but they are given by myself merely as observations and impressions, not as opinions, nor in any controversal spirit whatever.

CLIMATE: The climate of Western Canada is very similar to that of Northern Ontario. You are having right here this year a typical Western Spring. The rains in the West come in June as a rule and that month often makes or mars the crop. August is a month looked forward to with anxiety by the grain farmer because of the danger of his natural enemies, hail, rust and frost. September, October and November are delightful months as a rule, while the winter is very severe. In the prairie provinces at some of the seasons the wind is very annoying. In fact, some wag has said that when the wind stops blowing in Lethbridge and McLeod everybody falls over. Some satirist has expressed the Western weather as consisting of "six months of winter and six months of anxiety", yet for all that, it is a most stimulating and vigorating climate and exceedingly healthful. Western Canada bears the lowest disease record in any country on the Globe.

SIZE: Most of you are well acquainted with the size of the West and its enormous area is one of the first things that strikes the visitor and the limitless possibilities of its soil. The Peace River country, north of Edmonton, which has hardly been touched, contains an agricultural area equal to Manitoba. I have not patience with the man who thinks he has seen the West because he has taken the Cook's tour on the C.P.R. from Winnipeg to Vancouver. On that trip he has seen some of the worst of the West but missed entirely the immense hinterland of fine country north of that railway. Many people associate the West as all boundless prairie which is another illusion. The topography of the country is just as various probably as any other section of Canada.

EARLY DAYS: During the Laurier Regime at the beginning of this century, the immigration barriers were laid down to all and the construction of the two great trans-continental lines attracted thousands of immigrants from all parts of the world that in this "flotsam and jetsam" settlement great mistakes would occur. Land was thrown open to the homesteader that should have been left to the rancher and as the Indian said, "The white men turned the ground wrong side up." People were placed on farms that did not know oats from wheat. The country had some men who came there not intending to make homes but in the spirit of adventure, of get rich quick, and of fraud. There was probably in those days more attempts to fit square pegs in round holes than in any other settlement known but, in spite of it, the wonderful vitality of the country itself survived the test.

REAL ESTATE: The first evil was the real estate boom which reached its peak about 1910 and 1911 and crashed quickly as all booms do in 1913, leaving disillusioned people in its wake and giving the West a bad black eye to outsiders. Cities were planned where villages could not exist and public works and utilities were built for populations ten times their size. Probably the most startling example of the rapid growth was the city of Saskatoon which, in less than five years, developed into a permanent city of over 20,000 people and it is today a permanent monument to western achievement. In 1913 the West was in a pretty bad way. On top of this the farmer, who has been struggling alone against many adverse circumstances, found his wheat only bringing 50c to 60c a bushel, less than it cost to raise it. Then the war came on and a marvellous change occurred by the sudden jump of the price of farm products and a reboom began, together with a very active stimulation in cattle raising and during the war years much money was made on farms. Unfortunately a lot of that money never stayed in the country but those who made it sold out their farms at boom prices and moved to a more salubrious climate and during 1919 cattle prices fell over 60 per cent. in six months, the Fordney tariff put an embargo upon the cattlemen's main market, the United States, and the losses in live stock were appalling. The field crops followed suit and possibly in 1920 and 1922 the depression was worse than ever before. However, the Westerner is not easily discouraged as his experience turns him to mixed farming as one solution of his difficulties. This together with gradual improvement in prices of field crops and the largest crop last year ever harvested, has again put Western Canada prettiy solidly on its feet and it is to be hoped this time permanently.

MARKET ROUTES: A point which I can only touch is the question of marketing in Western Canada which has been a source of agitation from the beginning, the high cost of transportation to Europe practically taking the cream out of the farmer's profits. The opening of the Panama Canal in 1916 turned attention to Vancouver which, of course, at the present time is the most economic route for the grain from Alberta and for the large portion of West Saskatchewan. Some make the claim that three to five cents a bushel is saved by this route. The Hudson Bay route is also another one which the Western farmers wish to try out. Wherever this project is mentioned it seems to become a source of controversy. Worse than that between the "haves" and "have nots." Its strongest argument is the map itself showing that Port Nelson is one thousand miles nearer Liverpool than via Montreal and almost as close to it as the Maritime Provinces. The Hudson Bay project has been approved by all political parties and construction of the railway was started in 1906 and dropped in 1917 ostensibly because of the way, after 20,000,000 has been spent upon it and it was within 92 miles of Port Nelson, the terminus. Its exponents claim it should be finished at least to his port and advocate that tramp shipping will soon prove the feasibility of the water route and whether Churchill or Port Nelson is the proper terminus. I do not wish to say any more on this subject. It is one that could take an address itself but it is my opinion that the Hudson Bay Railway at least will be completed at an early date, although the route itself may not be successfully operated for some time.

FARMERS MOVEMENTS: In order to understand the semi socialistic attitude of the Western farmer his isolation and his difficulties must be considered. Misfortune is the breeding ground of agitation and the Western Farmer in the early stages was the victim of profiteers of all sorts and he not only had to fight man but also nature. The hard winters, the insects, drought, rust, hail and frost were bad enough but added to that he had other stupendous difficulties to content with and moreover he was not a settled individual. It was natural, as a result of all these misfortunes, that he should seek for a remedy and being human seek for somebody to blame but himself. Hence some lent a ready ear to the demagogue who told them that Eastern capitalists are charging them too much for money, that the machiney men were profiteering on him as also all wholesale houses and the manufacturer in general. The result was that the three prairie provinces began to roughly organize along the lines of farming societies. In 1902 the Saskatchewan grain growers was formed. In 1903 the Manitoba Grain Growers organized, in 1909 the United Farmers of Alberta got together and these bodies for a while contented themselves by pressing for remedial legislation of various sorts which naturally took place as a matter of evolution. The next attempt was on the part of the farmers to handle their own grain and it was through the formation in 1906 of the Grain Growers Grain Company in Manitoba, followed by the Saskatchewan and the Alberta Farmers' Co-operative Elevator Company in 1913, in Alberta. These organizations were amazingly successful and at the present time betwen them have assets of over twenty-two million dollars, including nearly one thousand elevators and they handle close to one hundred million bushels of grain a year. The success of these steps led the farmer to enter politics as a section, commencing the famous Progressive Party. As this is a non political organization, I will make no comment on this feature.

The Wheat Pool.

The main and most startling stage in Western farmers' development is the most tremendous co-operative movement yet attempted in the world, namely the formation of voluntary pools for the marketing of the grain, known as the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited, commonly called the Wheat Pool. I do not think that Eastern Canada realizes the enormous importance of this movement which, starting in 1923 in Alberta, took hold of the country like wild fire and in two years life this organization is so powerful that it is seeking at the present time to absorb the great elevator system above referred to. The idea behind the Wheat Pool was orderly marketing of field crops as against dumping and they have, so far, apparently been singularly successful. When we figure that this organization has the handling of about three hundred million dollars worth of grain, the possibilities of use or misuse are simply staggering and unquestionably they exert a vital influence upon the world prices. Their future course will be one of vast importance to Canada.

CONCLUSION: The estimated results of the field crops of the three prairie provinces of 1925 was over six hundred million dollars. Their revenue from all sources was over one billion and this has been a vital factor in the recently announced government budget. The total agricultural wealth of Canada for 1925 is estimated at over seven and one-half billion dollars. The three prairie provinces supply over four billion of this amount. Now when we realize that this additional wealth to Canada has been largely created within the past generation, it seems like a fairy tale. During my latter years in the West I was favoured with unusual opportunities for studying the Western farmer, his ideas and methods and it is my opinion that, in spite of the talk of the radicals, the West is thoroughly sound socially. We must remember that we always [illegible] dissatisfied customer and failure but the successful man and satisfied customer carries on and says nothing. The farmer will go very far in socialistic or Bolshevik principles as he is essentially a capitalist through the ownership of his farm, and private property rights are too valuable for him to allow the practice of wild theory. I think that, after last year's good crops, we will hear less of the Western agitator than we have in the past years. The West cannot prosper without the East, its capital and its goods and its market, nor can the East prosper without the West as a customer. It is a case of each one appreciating the problems of the other and paying more attention to common sense than to the demagogue. In view of the remarkable figures quoted, however, of Western output, it is a mystery to me how anyone can doubt the commercial success of the West. I feel sure that the people of another generation of Canada as a whole will look back and say "How was it possible Canadians had such lack of faith" and, although we hear of secession in the Maritimes, nationalism in Quebec, high tariff in Ontario, opposed to free trade in the West and equalized freights for British Columbia, we should not be shaken in our ideals of a United Canada, which time, bringing prosperity in its wake, is bound to accomplish.

PROB. MEETING HELD SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Rev. John Bailey Gave Interesting Address at Warkworth Town Hall.

NORHAM, April 24.—Rev. John Bailey, of the Ontario Prohibition Union, in an address given at a mass meeting held in the Town Hall at Warkworth on Sunday afternoon, said: "We should aim to be good citizens. Good citizens seek the good of the greatest number and not the welfare of a few. The liquor traffic menaces everything that is good. It is the sum of all villainies. The mother of all crimes, the devil's best friend and God's worst enemy. It is still with us and a strongly organized body, aggressive and always alert. It has been divorced from the hotels and these are giving better service and accommodation than for many years. Prohibitionists must deal with the people who are making liquor or reaping a livelihood from it. They must aim to make prohibition world wide. Local victories are not enough. When Ontario has won we must keep our loins girt up and our powder dry. The people of the United States have spent millions keeping liquor out of their country.

"The liquor traffic will not be satisfied until there is a complete restoration of things as they were. Government control was no sooner established in some provinces until there was an agitation for the open bar. Clubs are worse than saloons. In British Columbia there are many saloons where liquor can be obtained as before under the bar and licensed system.

"Temperance people have been lax and prohibitionists have lost ground. Moral judgments are seriously interfered with by 4.4. We should consider which way we are going. In the coming election the issue will seem to be a political one but will really be a case of wet or dry. Party politics must be kept out of the O.T.A. Our opponents will try to make prohibition a partisan question. To get dry legislation we must have a dry legislator. Prohibitionists must aim to elect men and women who will stand by the O.T.A. The next issue will be largely between the O.T.A. and Government control. The O.T.A. is not all we want but it is the best we have had. The things hurled against the O.T.A. are largely noise and not argument and for the purpose of turning people's attention away from the good that has been accomplished. A dry Parliament will strengthen the O.T.A. and give us something better.

"The Provincial Government may have power to stop manufacture and a dry Parliament would do this if it could. In the plebiscite of 1924 the pole for sustaining the O.T.A. was 145,000 larger than that cast for the Conservative party in the general election of 1923. Many dry people were deceived in the last election. Government control does not stop bootlegging and rum-running. If prohibitionists stand together and refuse to be divided on a party ticket they can win hands down. They have a chance to make history. They can render a great service to Canada. They have the chance to be the fathers of a movement that will stand out in the annals of history."

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

VARIETIES

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 26 (United Press)—This season is a veritable potpourri of styles! One may follow one's individual inclinations as to silhouette and material knowing that one can't go wrong. A mixture of everything that has gone before together with new inspirations forms the fashions of 1926.

Frocks, for instance, may be straight-lined and unbelted, bouffant, ruffled, circular or pleated. Waists may be placed in period style or at the top of the hip or low on the hip. They may even be placed at the knees if one wishes. Sleeves are short and caped-shape, long and snug or long and extremely full, shirring into wrist bands or left flaring in bell-shape.

Necklines may be high, rounded, square, V-shaped or irregularly cut as when one side of the neck is cut higher than the other.

Skirts as a rule are short but in certain frocks of period type they may be long, having uneven hem lines which dip at the sides and the rear.

Old-fashioned prints as well as the modernistic prints are found in dress goods departments. Old changeable taffetas and quaint challis are as popular as the silk crepe weaves of more modern trend. Trimmings include metal appliques, hand-hemstitching, eyelet embroidery, buttons, piping, embroidered bands, tucks, pleats, floating streamers, contrasting appliques lace, velvet, fringe, flowers, ribbon, etc.

Everything is in style! The only difficult proposition is to be able to choose a style which suits one's individuality. There are certain figures which cannot wear flaring hemlines just as there are figures which cannot wear period waist lines. One must take one's figure into consideration when selecting one's Spring and Summer outfit and where there are so many styles to choose from this is often confusing.

Take the fashionable polka dots and plaids, for instance. Even though they are made up into straight-lined frocks the stout person cannot wear them.

OL' TIMER.

Ol' timer, they called him, an' maybe it fit. The name didn't bother the old man a bit. He'd been like a fixture for years 'round the place. Each soul in the small country town knew his face.

He'd whittle all day, by the quaint gen'ral store. Then play with the kidlets—and whittle some more. He'd chat with the townsfolk who passed by his way—jest whittlin', an' chattin', and playin' each day.

He'd lived his real life in the days that had gone and now, with the coming of every new dawn his cares and his worries and such things were few and life gave him nothin' but loafing to do.

If you'd know the his'try of any small place, just look up the man with the old-timer's face. Go down to the store at the crossroads and say, "Well, howdee, Old Timer! What's doin' today?"

He'll tell you the tale of the town where he lives. And say, just imagine the pleasure that gives. His mem'ry of that town is always in trim. 'Cause why? 'Cause the place is the whole world to him.

If you are interested in fancy cutters for vegetables you will like the device used to make lattice potatoes. This cutter can be used for salad vegetables as well as potatoes. Potatoes cut 'a la lattice" are fried in deep fat and are crispy through as French fried cannot be, but they are not chippy to the state of nothingness that distinguishes Saratoga chips.

Rhubarb Frappe.

Two pounds rhubarb, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 lemon 1 egg (white), 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash rhubarb and peel if necessary. Cut in small pieces and put into baking dish with water and sugar. Bake in slow oven until rhubarb is tender, about forty-five minutes. Rub through a fine sieve and add juice of lemon. When cool fold in the egg white beaten until stiff and dry on a platter with a wire whisk. Beat powdered sugar into white just before combining with rhubarb. Turn into a freezer and let stand two hours packed in three parts of ice to one of rock or ice-cream salt.

Or the frappe can be frozen to a mush with stirring in two parts ice to one of salt and then packed in four parts of ice to one of salt until wanted to use. It will take about ten minutes to freeze "to a mush."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

TUESDAY, APRIL 27.

A day of initiative and adventure is augured from the predominant lunar aspects fortified by the parallel between Mars and Neptune. Under this stellar congeries it is urged that the spirit of initiative, backed up by the stimulus to branch out in bold, new projects, be given full swing especially as it will be found that old obstacles will melt before the determination to forge through all obstructions. In personal matters it may be that things will not be so happily circumstanced.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to forge ahead through all obstructions, giving vent to the impelling spirit of initiative and adventure. But guard and cherish heart and home affiliations. A child born on this day may have a spirit of enterprise and resourcefulnes that should enable it to surmount all difficulties.

WHO IS YOUR SKINNY FRIEND, ETHEL?

Tell him to take McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets for a couple of months and get enough good healthy flesh on his bones to look like a real man.

Tell him, it's the only way to take those grave-like hollows from his cheeks and neck.

Tell him that thousands of thin, puny, peaked, scrawny men all over America have improved their physical health and appearance and bless the day they first heard of these wonderful sugar coated tablets so full of weight-producing vitamines.

Ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, Bond's Drug Store and every druggist worthy of the name sells them—60 cents. Any thin man or woman can put on five pounds of healthy flesh in 30 days or your druggist will willingly refund the purchase price.

One woman put on 15 pounds in six weeks. Children grow robust and strong—feeble old people feel younger in a few weeks.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A SMART EYELET-EMBROIDERED VOILE FROCK

Madame has a great knack for designing simple little Summer frocks that the younger element among her clients find much to their liking.

This season she has done a lot with thin materials of allover eyelet embroidery.

"When the eyelet-embroidered frock I designed for Palm Beach went with such a rush of popularity, I knew eyelet embroidery would be just the thing that the young debs would love for Summer," Madame commented.

She knows all too well that the slim young things don't like any material that is the least bit stiff or bulky. Goodness knows their lithe figures could stand such materials better than the dowagers who sometimes wear them can, but the young girls want thin, slinky fabrics.

Therefore, in choosing Summer materials for them, Madame is very careful to pick out only the thin fabrics that are graceful and slim after they are made up.

Among the most popular of these at the moment, there are fine voile and batiste with fine allover eyelet designs, either in the same color as the frock, or worked in contrasting color.

The frock I'm sketching here in my diary, as typical of a certain type of Summer 1926 frock chosen by the young girl, happens to be of fine voile in mauve, with the eyelet design worked in silk of the lovely petunia shade which is so good just now.

It is two-piece, with the skirt and overblouse finished in a shallow scalloped design. The skirt is on a thin bodice, as Madame finds the bodice treatment makes skirts hang better.

There's a petunia colored satin sash, and the hat is thin mauve hair straw, with petunia criss-cross threads worked nto the crown.

The scarf is another point worthy iof mention.

This Two-Piece Mauve Voile Frock Has Eyelets and Sash of Petunia Silk.

It will be noticed that the long-popular boat neckline is used a lot for simple Summer frocks of this type, but, following the plan of the French, such a neckline often has a sheer scarf above it, to give a more dashing finish.

This scarf happens to be of mauve-colored maline.

THE "HANDBILLER"

The new word "handbiller" will probably be added to our national vocabulary, already rich in such words as "cake eater," "sidewalk sheik," "finale hopper," "curbstone cutie," et al. Booth Tarkington gives us "the handbiller." It is a she of flapper age. She "eggs the men on" by throwing about such "handbills" as "Bet you don't know what I heard about you!" "I had the funniest dream about you last night!" "Oh, I think you're just awful, you big bad man!"

* * *

It is interesting to read that two women were marooned for seven days in a sedan together and both came out alive!

AN OLD-FASHIONED FLOWER

What every theater manager knows is that a gal all dressed up in a be-sprigged Kate Greenaway gown, a poke bonnet on her pate, an old-fashioned nosegay in her hand, is a "sure-fire hit" with the male audience. Men do like feminine women! Maybe that's why a great Parisian clothes house pleads with a sob in the throat for the return of feminine clothes. Does that mean that women have swung away from this idea that they dress to please men?

BEFLOWERED CAPES

One shot in the cannon of back-to-the feminine-clothes is beflowered silken capes for evening, cut to swirl slinkily about the feminine contour.

THE LATEST

Nail polish on fair fingertips to match the costume is the latest brain child of gay Paree. No longer does the nail that glistens with a ruby, cerise, scarlet, or crimson glow satisfy the fashion mongers. The nail must be blue if the gown is blue, green to match green gowns, orange for orange ones, and so on.

And really smart women, they say, are dyeing their hair to match gowns, and refuse to carry or lead on a string a dog which does not harmonize.

THE NEXT THING

Lipsticks to match costume are the logical next thing, of course. It might intrigue you to know that a dab of rouge on the chin makes the roly-poly face look more cadaverous; that high rouge on the chin makes the roly-poly too-plump face, and that rouge in the hollows of the skinny face plumps it out.

WAY TO MAN'S HEART

What about the servant problem back in the days when 600 guests ate every meal with the Emperor Claudius? When Julius Caesar ate at one meal the revenue from three kingdoms, and when the Emperor Vitellius himself is said to have eaten no less than a thousand oysters at a meal and demanded 7000 roasted birds served upon his banquet table?

Then there was the Emperor Heliogabalus who had 600 ostrich heads brought to his table in order that he might eat the brains only. There must have been a servant problem then, too, for Livy gives this account of a move to pacify them: "Then was a cook the most useful slave that could be, and began to be much esteemed and valued, and, all bedabbled with broth and bedaubed with soot, was welcomed out of the kitchen into the schools."

TODAY'S COOK

Today's kitchen wenches need not know how to stuff peacocks and roast camels' feet. But it might please the mistress to the extent of giving the cook her last year's hat, if the cook knows that blanched boiled almonds, one-half cup of them, mixed with the usual stuffing ingredients, make a better stuffing than chestnuts.

FLAPPER FANNY says

HER OWN WAY
by A GIRL of TODAY

A FEARLESS STATEMENT.

"Look here, young woman, do you know what you are saying? You are making an accusation that I'm afraid you'll have to prove, when you say that young women alone are not treated very well in my restaurant.

"Why, my reputation has been built up on the fact that women, young or old, could go into my restaurant and find as good treatment and kindly service as they would at the home of one of their friends."

"I'm afraid, Mr. Hathaway," I said, "that you do not know all that goes on in your restaurant, for I certainly do not feel that I was treated any way except very cruelly. I was accused of trying to gyp you out of my dinner and when it was found that I had no friends in town, I cannot tell you the indignities of looks and actions that I suffered."

"Did you complain to the manager?"

"I didn't have a chance to complain to anyone. I was taken before the manager and he let me understand that he believed I was an adventuress too. Finally I said something by which he seemed to get a little inkling of decency into his cosmos, for he said:

"'Whether you're lying or not, I rather admire you and I'll give you a chance. One of the girls at our hat checking station is gone. You can go in there and help Miss Riley out to help pay for your dinner and we'll see what we'll do tomorrow.'

"That great, hulking fellow who is called your detective grabbed me by the arm and pinched it until I had marks on it. I jerked away from him and ran over to your hat checking place. There I found a real friend, a friend who was worth all the indignities I had suffered—Mamie Riley."

"Mamie Riley, Mamie Riley," said Mr. Hathaway. "I don't know her."

"Which just goes to show, sir, that you don't know very much about your own eating place. However, that is neither here nor there. I stayed because of Mamie Riley, as one of your hat checkers, for some weeks until a friend of mine from home found me there one evening and as he came up to speak to me, one of the hangers-on about the place who is a friend of your manager's, made an insulting remark to me and was promptly knocked down."

"What happened then, Miss Dean?"

"We were turned out of the restaurant, of course."

HOME-MAKING HELPS

SLIP COVER TIME.

Preparatory to Spring cleaning time, the wise housewife will first get out the slip covers, and carefully go over them for any needed repairs. Covers have a habit of tearing out in the seams, and possibly tiny holes may appear, which if not mended at once, will grow into unsightly holes that will be mortifying to say the least.

Go over all the bindings carefully, see that holes are carefully darned, or patched. See that tapes are sewed on, and that the buttons or clasps are all securely fastened.

After this survey, have them washed and ironed. It will be found that a thin water starch will do much in keeping the covers in shape and they will stay fresh much longer.

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

MISSING TEETH.

Your son is now grown up and should have his full complement of teeth, which is thirty-two.

But the probabilities are that one or more are missing.

Now, of course, the most probable cause for this deficiency is the extractions of earlier years, which you may have forgotten. But, on the other hand, there may be this reason, that the 'one or more' did not erupt.

The teeth more prone to non-eruption are in the order named, the third molar, upper cuspid, upper lateral, and lower second bicuspid.

Then let us enumerate the causes of non-eruption of missing permanent teeth.

1. An abscessed condition of a temporary tooth might destroy the germ of the permanent successor.

2. The premature extraction of a deciduous tooth might destroy, through injury, the permanent tooth germ beneath or dislodge it entirely.

3. Childhood diseases accompanied by high fever such as scarlet fever and measles, might, through their general disturbances, injure irreparably the tooth germ.

4. The retention, unduly long, of a temporary tooth, might prevent the eruption of its successor.

5. In the case of the cuspid, sometimes it is fully formed, but having taken up a position, more or less horizontal, back of the incisor teeth, it fails to erupt.

6. With the third molar, we find that it is due to lack of room to erupt that it remains impacted in the jaw—quite as frequently it does not form at all.

So you observe that a tooth may be missing due to one of several causes—for the most part, they are preventable, nature intending that each one should have his full complement of teeth.

The Home Kitchen

THE PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF HOME DIETETICS.

A few food rules that will help several conditions may solve food problems for the inexperienced housewife. Diet for diabetics, those troubled with indigestion, obesity and so on, is about the same, for it avoids sweets, too many starches, stimulants, coffee, tea and cocoa, whipped cream and other rich foods. Special breads may be had for each condition. And plenty of the right vegetables and fruits.

Excessive fat impairs efficiency, no drug can create or destroy it, it is a food proposition and should be worked out in this way. Cut down on the known flesh foods. Live on a balanced diet. Water, exercise and sleep are necessities and can be governed by thought and diet. Eat plenty of fresh fruits. Eat vegetables that grow above ground like spinach, all the lettuces, asparagus, tomatoes, radishes, string beans, squash, cucumbers, cabbages. Avoid potatoes, carrots, corn, peas, beets and the lima and broad beans.

Use meat substitutes in the way of mushrooms, Spanish rice, gluten spaghetti, poached whites of eggs, cheese and fish. There are farinaceous flours made by a new process that are easy to digest, retain their flavor, and are highly thought of in dietetic planning.

The gluten macaroni, spaghetti, noodles and other pastes are a delicious discovery and excellent for meat substitutes. Even salt is considered and that without sodium chloride is advised. Levulose powder is used in this diet instead of the sugar and is valuable for those reducing or for diabetic conditions. Gluten flour griddle cakes with the levulose syrup are among the good things allowed in this diet. The following recipe will make the cakes. Bake them on a hot griddle the same as usual.

Gluten Griddle Cakes.

Sift together one cupful of gluten flour, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Rub in a tablespoonful of butter. Beat two eggs light and add to them a large cupful of milk. Turn the liquid into the flour mixture gradually and beat until all is light and smooth. For the syrup, dissolve a heaping tablespoonful of levulose powder in a quarter cupful of hot water.

Meat Substitute.

Boil ten eggs hard. Make a drawn butter sauce by cooking together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour. Add gradually two cupfuls of cold water and cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thick. Season with pepper, salt, a tablespoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of capers. Cut the whites of the eggs into pieces and add to the sauce. Turn over toast slices on a hot dish and put three egg yolks through the ricer over the top. Garnish with parsley and fried tomatoes. The yolks may be used up by deviling for canapes.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Secy., Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.)

That two very important things to think about are: "What does the home city need to make it a bigger, busier city?" and, "How are we to get them?"

That it won't even start on the road of better business until it plans first.

That there are many ways of improving business in every city.

That there are many people with many different ideas.

That they could not all be put in effect at one time.

That some of them would not be practical.

That the best way to get a start is through the right kind of co-operation.

That people co-opertaing together can get their various ideas together, get them into the limelight by laying them all on the table and then deciding on the ones that will be of the most benefit to all the people.

That when that is done, plan together how to convert these plans into an accomplished fact, then, with the united effort of all, do it!

That investigation will show that the cities that are always moving ahead are operating that way.

Growing cities attract new industries, investors, homeseekers and new business enterprises like molasses attracts flies.

An American company is to install an automatic telephone system in Angora.

Everyone is the son of his own works. —Cervantes.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER TWENTY-THREE OOFTY GOOFTY WRITES A LETTER

"I do believe that Snitcher Snatch and the three Gazookumses have gone home to bed," said Mister Tingaling. "We haven't seen them for nearly two hours."

"Yes, they have, most likely," said Nancy. "We can collect the rest of the rents without any more trouble, I guess."

"They were an awful nuisance," said Nick. "You never knew what they were going to do next, and their manners were dreadful."

"That's right," declared the fairyman. "Dreadful! But of course they may grow up into good Gazookumses. One never can tell. By the way, my dears, here we are at the Post Office! I'll just go in and get my mail. Mister Stamps, the fairy postman, said that he would try to have one for me today."

They all went into the Post Office then and asked Mister Stamps if there was any mail for Mister Tingaling.

And mind you—there was! It said:

"Dear Landlord: If you and your two helpers will come to the briarpatch at five o'clock you will get your fortunes told. Please don't be late.

"Expectingly yours,

"Oofty Goofty."

The Post Office clock said one minute to five, so you may be sure that Tingaling didn't even wait to put his letter back into the envelope. Off went the three of them pitter patter as fast as they could run to the briarpatch—rent-book, pocketbook, lead pencil and all!

But just as they reached the place, they saw a white line on the ground. Near it was a sign which said, "Chalk line. Stop!"

So they all stopped—just like that.

"Does Oofty Goofty live here?" called Mister Tingaling.

"Yes," answered a squeaky voice from the briar-patch. "This is Oofty Goofty. Do you wish to have your fortune told?"

"Yes, sir! I mean, yes, ma'am. Or should I say, 'Yes, sir'?" stammered Mister Tingaling nervously. "Will you tell me a good fortune or a bad fortune?"

"A good fortune," said the voice.

"Oofty Goofty!" said Mister Tingaling to the Twins with a puzzled look. "Where have I heard that name before?"

But although Nancy and Nick and the fairy landlord tried and tried, they simply could not remember who Oofty Goofty was.

"Yes, Oofty Goofty says you are to have a good fortune!" went on the voice. "But you must do as I say."

"All right, I'll do it," said Mister Tingaling. "What is it?"

"First you must all go and hide your eyes and count to five hundred by fives. But the charm won't work unless your hands are empty. You must lay everything you have with you, right on the chalk-line and then go over to three yonder birch trees and do your counting. When you come back you will know all about your fortune."

"Do we have to go too?" asked the Twins.

"Sure!" said Oofty Goofty.

So the fairyman and the Twins laid the rent-book and the pencil and the pocketbook down on the chalk line, and went and counted up to five hundred in fives.

When they came back, everything was gone. And there was another note which said: "Don't try to follow me or your hair will turn green. Oofty Goofty."

There's more to this story, my dears.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Not always is it easy to find a definite cause for the particular ailment with which we are forced to deal. The disease appears: it demands treatment, but, after all, we are not quite satisfied till we figure out why the ailment developed.

Dilation of the heart is one of these puzzling diseases. The victim acquires the symptoms, hardly knowing when they began. Not until some able doctor has gone over the case is it found that the heart is really affected.

Usually the first evidence of trouble is that the patient finds himself unable to do a lot of things which formerly he performed with great ease. He can't run up stairs or climb a hill, without getting short of breath. Difficult breathing at times is one of the constant signs of heart dilatation.

The pulse is weak, rapid and fluttering. Sometimes it is almost impossible to find the pulse at the wrist.

The suffocating spells may come in the night, awakening the sufferer from a sound sleep. He sits up in bed, gasping for breath.

There are a lot of general symptoms which are likely to be met. Headache is one of the most annoying. This makes the victim so miserable he is unfitted to work. He is tired and out of sorts. It is difficult to get started in the morning because of the lack of energy and ambition. It takes the mental lash to get into action.

The color is bad. The lips are pale. The appetite flags. There is every appearance and symptom of prostration and illness.

These symptoms are not present all the time and may be more or less pronounced than I have described them. But even if they are mild, they mar the daily happiness of the afflicted one.

It is easy to understand the symptoms. The normal heart, which is like a powerful rubber bulb, contracts forcibly and drives the blood through the arteries to every part of the body and brain. If it becomes dilated, the heart is like a rubber ball which has grown old and weak: its elasticity and force have declined greatly.

The weak and dilated heart cannot send the blood in forceful streams to every part of the body and brain. In consequence the vigor of the body suffers and the brain, unsupplied by the cleansing blood, falls below par in its operations.

Anemia of the brain—lack of blood in the brain—is sure to have persistent headache as a symptom. In dilatation of the heart the brain is anemic because too little blood is pumped into it. In consequence the head aches and, for that matter, the whole body aches.

There can be no relief of the symptoms until the heart muscle is assisted back to health or, at least, to something like normal action. This demand building up the general health. Any underlying ailment must be ferreted out and removed. Proper food, sleep, fresh air, simple exercise, sunlight and contentment of mind—all these are among the essentials.

It is probable the family doctor will give digitalis in some form, but under no circumstances should you take it except by his advice. This drug has a peculiar effect on the heart muscles and is amazingly helpful if it is really indicated.

Don't go on suffering if you have these symptoms. Have the heart examined and see if you need medical care.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY FINDS A NEW FRIEND.

Dotty held her breath for fear of frightening the wee little creature sitting in the grasses just ahead of her.

"That's all right, Dotty," the wee little fellow squeaked. "I'm not afraid of you. I've seen you going around with Happy and Squeedee so much I know you must be a friend of the wood folks."

"Indeed I am," replied Dotty softly. "But how did you happen to know my name? I don't know your name."

"I heard Happy Giggles call you Dotty the last time I saw you," replied the little creature. "I'm Mr. Kangaroo Rat, if you please. I don't know why they gave me such a silly name, but I'm called that just the same."

"Well, come to think of it," Dotty said, "you do look like a wee kangaroo. They have great long tails like yours."

"Some tail I have," chuckled Mr. Kangaroo Rat. "If you'll notice, it's as long as my head and body together."

"It's longer than your head and body," said Dotty. "Then your front feet are short, while your back feet and legs are quite long. A kangaroo's hind legs are much longer than his front ones. He needs them to jump with."

"So do I," chuckled Mr. Kangaroo

"I'm gentle unless someone hurts me."

Rat. "Look here," he said as he raised himself and sprang through the air balancing himself with his great long tail. "See how I use that old long tail. "It acts as a rudder, to help me go the way I want to."

"Mighty fine," agreed Dotty. "But one thing I see missing, you have no pockets."

"Indeed I have," chuckled Mr. Kangaroo Rat. "Right here on the outside of my cheeks. Chatty Chipmunk and I had a discussion as to whose pockets were the best the other day—his, on the inside of his cheeks or mine on the outside of my cheeks. We finally agreed that we both had fine pockets and we both wore them where they were the best for us." Then he took Dotty over and showed her his little burrow in the ground where he made his home. There were several entrances, so Mr. Kangaroo Rat could get out quickly at any time. His little bedroom was just as snug and cozy as could be and his store room was almost full to overflowing with berries, seeds and young plants.

"One would never think of calling you a rat by your looks," laughed Dotty. "You're so lovely and clean. Your fur is so silky. I love the yellowish brown of your top coat and that adorable snow-white vest. Yes, and I admire your little white feet and that lovely long black tail with its tuft o white hair on its tip. Looks like a flag of truce. Would you bite anyone if he picked you up, Mr. Kangaroo Rat?"

"Goodness! no," chuckled Mr. Kangaroo Rat. "I'm perfectly gentle unless some one hurts me." Then he added, "Well, Dotty I must get to work. Come and chat again some time."

"I surely will," replied Dotty and waving her hand she hurried back in the house to help her mama with the work.

LEADER OF FARMERS DEAD AT WINNIPEG

J. W. Scallion One of Originators of Grain Growers.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 26. — Canadian Press. — James William Scallion, for many years an outstanding figure in the farmers' movements of Western Canada, died at his home in Virden, Manitoba, on Saturday, at age of 84.

An attack of pneumonia which followed a lingering illness caused his death.

Movements in which he led included the original Grain Growers organization, the wheat pool and a political organization of the Progressives. The body will be buried in the Virden cemetery on Tuesday.

James William Scallio was born in the County of Wexford, Ireland, in 1842. He came to Canada with his family when he was eight years of age and settled at Hamilton, Ontario, after obtaining his early education in the Ontario public schools he graduated from the Toronto University, and taught school for several years at Thorald, Ont. He came to Manitoba in 1882, and in the years that followed entered wholeheartedly into movements intended to better the condition of the Western Canadian farmer. His activities were largely responsible for movements which have extended throughout the prairie provinces, and which are in successful operation to-day.

He took the lead in the formation of the Grain Growers' Association, later the United Farmers of Manitoba, and was in the forefront of those responsible for the inception of the wheat pools. While advanced in age he never lost interest in the condition of the farmers and took an active part in the Progressive movement. His leadership was so well recognized that some years ago when a delegation of western farmers went to Ottawa to press for freight rate and tariff changes, he was selected as leader, and presented the case. He is survived by a sister, a resident of Virden.

Mr. Scallion was successful as a farmer and donated largely toward municipal enterprises, including the Virden Hospital.

EMBEZZLEMENT OF $13,644 ALLEGED

Railway Secretary Committed For Trial at Brockville.

BROCKVILLE, April 26 (Canadian Press). — On a charge of embezzlement arising out of alleged discrepancies in the books kept by him as secretary-treasurer of the Oshawa Railway and the Thousand Islands Railway, subsidiaries of the Canadian National Railways, John H. Valleau, of Gananoque, was committed for trial by Magistrate J. A. Page on Saturday.

The only evidence given at the hearing was that of Frederick R. Hunt, of Montreal, a special auditor of the C.N.R., who alleged discrepancies extended from 1922, and amounting in all to $13,644. The witness claimed that the defandant has signed a statement in his presence, and in that of T. H. Cooper, general auditor of the railways, admitting having failed to account for the sum in excess of $10,000. A duplicate of this statement was admitted as evidence.

LADIES' AID HAVE YEAR OF SUCCESS

Best Year in the History of the United Church.

CURLING RECORD.

LAKEFIELD, April 26.—The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Regent Street Church was held on Tuesday afternoon, with twenty-two members present. The president, Miss Webster, was in the chair, and conducted the meeting.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and also the auditor's report, presented by Mrs. A. E. Higgins, who reported every item correct; the year's work was remarkably successful, being far in excess of other years. The members had put their shoulders to the wheel, and by a concerted effort had established a new record of which they are justly proud.

The following is the secretary's report, given by Mrs. Walter Hamblin:

"Madam President and members of the Ladies' Aid of the Regent Street United Church,—I beg to present to you the following report of this society for the year 1925:

"In former years our church year closed April 30th, but owing to Church Union our church year closed March 31st, giving only eleven months to do the year's work. We started the year with seventy-one members on the roll; six new members joined during the year; Mrs. Reddick moved to another circuit, and death claimed Mrs. Bickell, Mrs. W. J. Northey and Mrs. L. Payne, leaving seventy-three members on the roll. We held eleven regular meetings and one special meeting during the year, with a good average attendance. We had a busy year, having a Thanksgiving dinner and a few weeks later a bazaar. Each was under capable management, and both were very successful. Through the kindness and thoughtfulness of Mrs. McMillan, of Dickson's store, we realized a nice sum of money from McCall's Magazine. We also did some quilting, all adding to our bank account. We gave to the Parsonage a dining-room suite of nine pieces at Christmas, and also gave the Quarterly Board, the Sunday School and the choir financial help. Some repairs were made to the Parsonage, and utensils, etc., were bought for the church kitchen, making a large expenditure.

"All of which is respectfully submitted.

"Mae Hamblin, Secretary."

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. S. S. Spence:

The annual meeting of the Lakefield Rink Company was held on Monday evening last, with about twenty-two shareholders present. The report of the past year was presented, showing a very satisfactory year, somewhat ahead of 1925. During the year four special events brought bumper crowds, viz., the Junior and Intermediate O. H. A. games, the carnival and the sports night. A successful series of softball games was run off in the autumn, which will be repeated this year.

Dr. M. P. Kennedy was elected president for the coming year, and W. G. Morrison was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The following board of directors was elected: E. W. Bailey, H. G. FitzGerald, W. J. Charlton, Dr. M. P. Kennedy, W. H. Casement, Rev. A. W. MacKenzie, C. Thomson, J. E. Galvin, and R. J. Jory.

At a meeting of the directors of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, held last week, the dates of the Fair will be September 28th and 29th. Plans were made to hold a School Fair in connection with the usual annual exhibition open to pupils of the local Public and High Schools, with several special classes for the pupils of the rural schools.

The grounds will be put in shape for the season and improved in several respects. An increase will be made in the prize money for the trials of speed in the hope of attracting a better class of horses.

A membership campaign is being inaugurated as it is felt that a greater interest would result from a larger circle of members, business men, farmers, professional men and craftsmen, and laborers should show enough interest to pay the modest fee of $1.00 each year for the privilege of partnership in what is really a village asset. One hundred members and every member a booster would lift our Fall Fair out of the rut of years and give it a place in the front ranks of Ontario's smaller fairs. Officers in the past have done well but they lacked sufficient support to put over their plans.

The use of the grounds was granted to the Tuxis Boys for May 24th for a field day of sports.

At 12.50 p.m. on Monday the fire brigade was called out to a chimney fire at the residence of Captain Frank Morin on Rabbit Street. Damage was very slight owing to the prompt response of the brigade.

The record of 1923 was broken on Tuesday when two rinks of curlers indulged in a game at the rink. April 14 was the outstanding record when there was curling, but this year a new record was made six days later.

Wild geese passing over the village on their flight north have attracted several sportsmen, but there has been no record of any conspicuous luck.

Friday of this week was the festival of St. George the Martyr, patron saint of England, and was observed by loyal Englishmen in a fitting manner.

To-morrow (Sunday) being the festival of St. Mark, there will be a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock.

DESERTED WIFE POLICE ALLEGE

Saskatchewan Minister Arrested in Oakland, Calif. —Selling Tracts.

TOOK HIS SON.

OAKLAND, Calif., April 26 (Canadian Press)—Rev. A. S. Lussman, a minister of Humboldt, Sask., was arrested by the police here Friday for the immigration authorities on a charge alleging that he deserted his wife in Humboldt and gained entry to the United States through a fraudulent passport. He was selling religious tracts here.

The police were advised by the Canadian authorities that Lussman is charged with having fled to Vancouver, B.C., with his seven year old son in October, 1924, where he placed his son in an institution. He then entered the United States illegally, according to the charges, coming to the San Francisco Bay section.

Mrs. W. W. McConnell, who is reported to be selling the same tracts in Santa Rosa, Calif., is being sought by the immigration authorities for questioning regarding the case.

Son Was Returned

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 26—Investigation here reveals that the seven-year-old son of Lussman was returned to the custody of its mother in Calgary late in 1924 by the Children's Aid Society officials.

It is said that Lussman arranged with a woman in North Vancouver to look after the boy and promised to pay for his upkeep. Money not being forthcoming, however, the woman applied to the Children's Aid Society for advice.

Inquiries were instituted and the mother located in Calgary. It was learned that she was not in a position to forward transportation. Children's Aid Society officials then dispatched the boy to her in the care of a member of the Society travelling east.

HURON ICE BREAKING.

Freighters Soon To Start on Lake Trips.

SARNIA, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press) — Warm rains and strong mild south winds of the last week have done more to free Lake Huron from ice than men and dynamite could do in months. The same brand of weather for another week and it will be but a short time before the huge lake freighters will be plying between here and the upper lakes. At the present time hundreds of lake mariners are out of work owing to the tie-up in traffic. Sunday a steady stream of ice was floating down the river, fast diminishing that which remains in the lake.

ITALIAN ARMY READY FOR WAR

Ordered To Mobilize in June, Says Correspondent of Herald.

QUOTES PAPER.

LONDON, April 26. — (Canadian Press).—The Chasso (Italian) correspondent of the Daily Herald, Labor organ, claimed to be able authoritatively to confirm the report that the Italian War Office is busily engaged in military preparations. The correspondent understands that urgent instructions have been issued to the army staff to have everything ready for mobilization by June. He reports intense activity among the military divisions stationed on the Adriatic coast. He quotes as significant a statement published by the newspaper Corriere Padano, which is controlled by Mussolini's friend, Italo Balbo: "Europe must peacefully grant us some colonies, or we will sooner or later take them by force. Fascism must cross the frontiers of Italy or perish like an unfulfilled promise."

BERLIN POLICE END CRAZE FOR FASTING

Meal Missers Are Ordered To Quit Fad.

BERLIN, April 26.—The police ended the fasting craze Saturday by taking the last of two professional meal missers from their glass cages in resturants to barred cells in a city jail. One of them, whose fasting name is Ventigo, had completed his forty-eighth foodless day, and because he was not hungry meant to hold out three days longer.

As a means of increasing box office receipts Ventigo's manager decided to remove his show to Werder, near Berlin, which is crowded with visitors making a pilgrimage to see the fruit trees there in blossom.

As Ventigo left his glass cage to make the journey the police stepped in and arrested him for fraud. He admitted having an acquaintance with jails.

The second faster, Wahlmann, was removed to a jail asylum after writing a letter to a newspaper that he would blow up their plant because of an article published ridiculing fasting as a profession.

Chemnitz Communists this morning smashed the glass cage of a local faster named Tarantulus on the ground that starving is a calamity and not a profession and also a violation of the Lenin gospel.

It is believed this ends the craze and Ventigo holds the record, which cannot be broken in Germany since the police forbid further starving exhibitions.

I.O.O.F. ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE

Oddfellows and Rebekahs Attend Divine Service at All Saints'.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

Most people would give the wrong answer to the old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" said the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson of All Saints' Church last night when he addressed the local members of the I.O.O.F. on the occasion of their annual church service. The proper answer to the question is "No," he continued.

The service was attended by about three hundred Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, who marched to the church from their hall, and occupied seats reserved in the centre of the church. J. H. Price, P.G., one of the members, read the lessons.

The word "keeper" brings up the relationship between a superior person and an inferior whom he is charged to look after, said the speaker, and the proper answer should be "I am my brother's brother. What concerns him concerns me." The peril of the service organizations and other bodies, said the speaker, is that they may come to look on those they help as cases, and as belonging to lower class, rather than as brothers to be given a helping hand and lifted up so that they can help others. Only by doing this will the high ideals of the orders be realized.

The message that such bodies as the Oddfellows convey to others is that all are brothers and that the burden of one is the burden of all, and the need of one is the opportunity of all, said the speaker.

Speaking to the ladies, Mr. Paterson said that no man could express the debt that is owed to the ladies, who are always ready to give a helping hand in time of need, and do wonderful work. He spoke of the idea conveyed by their name, Rebekah, referring to the fact that the marriage of Isaac and Rebekah is held up as an example in the marriage service of the Church of England.

Mr. Paterson said that there was a danger of organizations being made exclusive instead of inclusive, and urged his hearers to bring every person into the fold, saying that the law of brotherhood should apply to men of other nationalities as well. The common Fatherhood of God, he said, makes all men brothers.

Special music was rendered by the choir, led by George E. Chandler. The anthems were "O Worship the King," with solo by Mr. Chandler, and "The Heavens Are Telling," with solo and duet parts by Mrs. Cooper, Mr. Chandler, and Mr. Boddy.

MANITOBA ENDS HOUSE SESSION

152 Bills Presented in Legislature—Galleries Overflowed.

FORMAL CEREMONY.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 24.—(Canadian Press.)—With practically every member in his place, the distinguished visitors' gallery, gay with the dainty spring garments of the ladies and the public galleries filled to overflowing, the fifth session of the seventeenth legislature was prorogued by His Honor Lieutenant Sir James Aikins, shortly after three o'clock Friday afternoon.

After a strenuous session, lasting more than 13 weeks, the proceedings were purely formal in their character, but they also recalled the probability that His Honor was performing, the last time, a duty that he has carried out for the last ten years, his term as Lieutenant-Governor expiring in August. In addition, another distinguished citizen was paying what is regarded as his last official visit to the ceremonies connected with the Legislature, Major-General H. B. D. Ketchen, G.O.C. of M. D. No. 10, who is being transferred to Vancouver.

During the session, which opened Jan. 22, 152 bills have been presented to the House for the consideration of the members. From this number 30 were killed or withdrawn, 58 received Royal assent several weeks ago, and the balance of 64, received Royal assent yesterday afternoon.

The greater part of the session was taken up with the scrutiny of players who have changed their place of residence since August 15th of last year and only seven out of the fifty "movers" were granted permits to play ball when the season opens, and three of the lucky ones belong in the Central Ontario League, Ansoldo of Peterborough, Oulette and Gibson of Belleville.

Oshawa Men Barred.

Oshawa was given permission to play in the Lakeshore Senior League and the letter from the Central Ontario League claiming to reserve senior rights in Oshawa, was read, and ordered to be placed on file. Kingston's application to be allowed to play exhibition games was read and permission refused except when separate applications were made.

No appeals from the ruling of executive as to holding up certificates can be made only at the monthly meeting of that body.

NOTTS COUNTY ARE SET DOWN

Relegation to Second Division of English League is Certain.

TWO PROMOTED

LONDON, April 26. — Canadian Press. — Saturday's League Football, whose importance was somewhat overshadowed by the National tilt at Wembley Stadium, was productive of one definite result, as far as the matter of relegation to the second period was concerned. It decided the fate of Notts County, who, whatever else may happen to others will at least join their fellow townsmen, Nottingham Forest, in the second string next year.

Notts Forest went down with Preston North End last season. The county failed at Sunderland Saturday, succumbing by two goals to one. It was Sunderland's final game of the 1925-26 season.

Burnley's victory over Tottenham Hotspur at White Hart Lane gave them some breathing space, and their fate now hinges on the result of the encounter, scheduled for Saturday but unplayed, between Leeds United and Manchester City, plus the outcome of Burnley's last game.

Second Division.

In the second division, Chelsea have been beaten out by the Wednesday and Derby County. The two last named will move up to the first first division for next season. Chelsea went down before Middlesborough at at Stamford Bridge yesterday while both the Sheffielders and Derby won their games and clinched their positions. The championship of the second division is still undecided, but this is a minor matter.

Third Division.

Plymouth Argyle drew even with Reading in the Southern Section of the Third Division, when the Pompay-ites defeated Charlton while Reading was losing to Crystal Palace. This defeat may prove one of the costliest for Reading inasmuch as it brackets them with Plymouth with the Argyle still enjoying a game in hand.

The Northern Section saw the lineup: Grimsby Town, 59 points, Bradford 58. Rochdale 57 each with one game to go. The winner of this department will not be known until next Saturday.

DEMPSEY TO FIGHT ANYONE IN WORLD

Professes Preference For Harry Wills in September.

HENDERSONVILE, N.C., April 24.— (Canadian Press.) — Jack Dempsey, training here for his next fight, scheduled for next September, declared yesterday that he would fight "anyone in the world," but preferred above all other things to "get into the ring with Wills." This statement, followed an all-day conference with Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor fight promoter, who came here to sign Dempsey for the Wills fight late in the fall. Fitzsimmons left to-night, declaring he had high hopes of getting the champion in the right with the negro before the first of the year.

Dempsey, who began serious training to-day, said that he was ready to start fighting and that he would go in with any qualified challenger under the Rickard contract.

"Everyone seems to think I am going to fight Tunney Sept. 16. I didn't sign a contract to fight Tunney. The name of the fighter is left within the choice of Tex Rickard. He may pick Tunney and he may pick Wills. I hope he picks Wills. I will be ready for him or anyone else.

JACK WAS HERO OF WANDERERS; GOT ONLY GOAL

Manchester City Lacked Finish Around Bolton Goal in First Half.

ENGLISH CUP FINAL

King George Greets Players and Presents Trophies at Close.

LONDON, April 26.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Bolton Wanderers, after waiting for twenty-two years avenged themselves on Manchester City at the Wembley Stadium Saturday when, by a score of one goal to nothing, they defeated the City in the final game of the English Football Association Cup. It was by exactly the same score that Manchester City won the trophy from Bolton at Crystal Palace in 1904.

The contest was staged before over 90,000 spectators, among whom was King George. Prior to the game the competing elevens were lined up and presented to His Majesty, who also, at the conclusion of the encounter, presented the cup to Captain Joe Smith of Bolton and also the Football Association medals to the finalists of both teams.

City Started Strong.

The game was fast and exciting throughout with both teams playing their hardest. From an offensive standpoint the first half went in favor of Manchester City, who kept up a continuous invasion of Bolton's territory but the City forwards lacked finish and at the crucial moments before the goal-mouth they failed to round off their efforts. Both defenses were good, although there were times when the cup-winners pair were in distress and had as much as they could handle. They emerged with honors from a gruelling struggle, however.

The first half went scoreless, neither side being able to solve the other's defense. Spasmodic play in th initial minutes developed into something more methodical as the game advanced, and some clever work was shown. Both centre-forwards were too well marked for full advantage to be taken of the speedy, open play of the wings, with the result that in almost every case the passes into centre were annexed by the opposing defense and clearances made of bad situations.

Jack the Hero.

A little rough work cropped out in the second frame with both teams offending. It was not until the second period had been under way for thirty-two minutes that David Jack registered the counter which won the game and the Cup. It came when Bolton were swarming round the city's goal and Goodchild, the Manchester custodian was having a hard time keeping his nets clear. Goodchild had saved a shot from Butler but Vizard secured the ball and lobbed it back to center. Jack at once closed in on it and sent a sizzler past Goodchild high into the net. Manchester came back strong, attacking in a frenzied manner in an effort to ward off defeat in the closing minutes, but Bolton were content to defend their goal and both Smith and Jack dropped back as reinforcements for their rear men. In the final minutes the excitement was intense with Manchester City exerting every nerve to obtain at least an equalizer. Their efforts went for naught and the game ended—Bolton Wanderers 1; Manchester City 0.

HAMILTON TEAM AWARDED FIRST

Canadians Share Relay Honors With Mercierburg Academy.

FAILED SATURDAY.

Philadelphia, April 26. — Canadian Press. — Despite what they considered to be an unjust ruling against them on Friday, Hamilton Collegiate's relay team competed in Saturday's events in the Pennsylvania relay carnival, running to a fourth and fifth place. The Canadian sprinters did not show so well in Saturday's longer races, the mile and the two mile events.

In the mile they finished behind Brooklyn Manual; Newton, N.Y., and Kearney, N.J. Brooklyn Manual covered the distance in 3.32 1-5.

In the two miles, Hamilton trailed New Utrecht, N. Y., St. Benedict's, Newark, N.J.; Huntingdon, Boston, last year's winners; and Phillips, Exeter Academy; Otto Rostner, for New Utrecht, anchor man, covered the last 1-2 mile in 1.58 4-5 to break the tape 30 yards in the lead. The time for the race was 8.26 4-5.

The Canadians were cheered however by the announcement that the officials of the meet, having taken their protest of Friday's quarter mile under consideration, would award first place in that event to Hamilton as well as to Mercierberg Academy, who won the re-running in new world's record time. The two schools will receive duplicate running prizes for the event which was first won by Hamilton and then ru nover on complaint of false starts.

The outstanding feature of Saturday's programme was the defeat of Frank Hussey, national hundred yard champion, by Hester, Michigan star, in 10 1-10 seconds. It was the worst defeat of the Boston Manual's career.

WORLD RECORD FOR 100 YARDS CLAIMED

Mark of 9 5-6 Seconds at Des Moines.

DRAKE STADIUM, Des Moines, Iowa, April 26. — Canadian Press.— The world's record for the 100 yards dash, notwithstanding attacks for 20 years, was smashed in the Drake relay carnival here on Saturday and Charley Huff set a new United States record for the pole vault, but failed to clear the bar at 14 feet for a new world's record after making three attempts.

Hoff cleared the bar at 13 feet 9 1-4 inches, official measurements, beating the former record of 13 ft. 5 1-4 inches set by Lee Barnes of the University of California.

Roland Locke, of the University of Nebraska, rated as the fastest intercollegiate sprinter in the United States, stepped the century in .09 5-6, but the mark probably will not be allowed as Locke was favored by a strong wind blowing at his back. The record of .09 6-10 was made by D. F. Kelly in 1906. Locke tied the record a week ago at the Kansas relays.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE IS AN ASSOCIATION

Name Changed at Request of Central Association of Province.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — The Campbellford Softball League will in future be known as an association, the name having been changed at the request of the central association at Toronto, the officials of which notified the local executive that unless the new name was adopted their application for affiliation with the Ontario Amateur Softball Association could not be considered. The purpose of this condition is to retain control of the game, and Campbellford's Association now has a monopoly of official softball in this district, and no team outside the association can play in the finals.

The above change was decided upon at a recent meeting of the executive and was reported by Secretary Clark at a general meeting held Friday night. Further action taken by the executive was reported as follows:

Each team in the association will be limited to 20 players.

These players may be selected from anywhere but the organization or trade to which any player belongs will have the first call on him.

It would be useless, for example, for the clerks to sign up a player who is an employee of the Hydro, when the latter team could take him away from them.

Any new rules passed by the executive, must be adopted by a majority of at least two-thirds of the members.

The Junior Colts alone have the right to carry more than 20 players. Any team can sign a Junior colt provided his name does not appear on the regular list of the Colts' team.

The registration fee of $3 and the $2 which is to be posted as a forfeit is due and payable at a meeting of the executive to be held next Friday evening when the different teams are requested to register as many as possible of their players.

KIRKCALDY AND CLYDEBANK TO SECOND STRING

Scottish League Relegations Completed With End of Soccer Season.

SATURDAY RESULTS

Easy Victory for Celtics Over Dundee United—Crowds Large.

GLASGOW, April 26. Canadian Press. — The Scottish football season closed on Saturday in glorious weather. All games were well patronized, despite the fact that the matter of championship honors had been decided some time ago. However there was still considerable interest attached at least to one game, the encounter staged at Kirkcaldy, where the Queen's Park Rangers played (and defeated) Raith Rovers. This game sealed the fate of the Kirkcaldy team. In order to have stayed in the first division they were required to win, but they did not do so, consequently they were relegated to the second string along with Clydebank. The result was two to one, but Raith's goal was a gift by Gillespie of Queen's Park, who shot the ball into his own nets. McDonald and Nicholson were the other scorers.

Celtic had an easy win at home over Dundee United, McLean getting a trio of counters with McGrory securing two more..

Heart of Midlothian wound up brilliantly by defeating Partick Thistle at Glasgow, McNeil, their centre-forward, having three goals.

A couple registered by their youthful centre, Marshall, enabled Rangers to defeat Hamilton Academicals.

Hibernians scored at Kilmarnock through Walker, but the Ayrshire team came up from behind to win out by getting two counters from Smith and Cunningham.

Clydebank's final game at Falkirk was keenly contested and at one time the "Bairns" led by two goals, but Joe Anderson of Clydebank, who has come back to favor since Reed left, reduced the leeway and Evans pulled a point out if the fire .Seven goals were scored at Dundee with the home team getting the odd, while the two Renfrewshire clubs finished strongly. Morton creating a big surprise by defeating the Airdrieonians.

FANS ATTACK SPECULATORS

Police Had To Rescue Scalpers at English Finals.

90,000 PRESENT.

WEMBLEY, England, April 24 (Canadian Press). — Several men were hurt today in fist fights which resulted from attacks by enraged crowds of football fans on profiteering ticket speculators selling tickets for the final game of the English Cup. The police were forced to rescue some of the speculators several times. It was estimated that there were 90,000 people present in Wembley Stadium when the Manchester City and Bolton Wanderers teams came on to the field. The King was introduced to the players and shook hands with them amidst a roar of applause.

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS' MAGAZINE, CHICAGO.

ABE MITCHELL—HEELS IN GROUND

I like to hit the ball with both feet on the ground. I am sure that this enables me to hit harder, but I always want to feel that the left foot is not moving at a snail's pace. It wants to be turned just for a moment to assist the movement of the shoulders, but almost at once it must come down again. And, mark you, it must come down firmly and get a good grip of the ground. The left foot helps pivoting, but it will interfere with the return movemen, of the shoulder if the heel, and, in fact the whole foot is not down again be ore the club-head reaches the ball.

It is quite easy to turn the left foot up and down quickly without affecting any other part of the swing. The club-head will take its usual time to reach the ball; but any one can change the slow-moving left-foot action into a quicker one. And I am certain that alteration will improve driving.

In the iron shots many golfers would take strokes off their score were they to hit the ball with both heels on the ground.

Some players approach with the right heel off the ground as the ball is struck. That, too, comes under things to be avoided.

PLANS SECOND HOCKEY GROUP

Expect Three Teams To Be Added To National Hockey League.

BOSTON, Mass., April 26.—(Canadian Press).—The plans for the protection of the territory suitable to the expansion of the National Hockey League through the formation of a second group of teams were announced today by Chas. F. Adams, president of the Boston Bruins.

The plans are contingent upon the action of the league at the May 1 meeting in Montreal on the question of expanding the league to 10 teams for the present seven team circuit.

Is it possible for a run to score after the third out of the inning has been made?

Ordinarily no, but there is a certain trick situation created by bad baserunning where such a thing can happen.

The bases are filled, two are out and there are three balls and two strikes on the batsman. All runners start to advance on the next pitch.

The ball is high and wide, the fourth ball, entitling the batsman to first and all runners to advance one base, the runner on third being entitled to score.

The runner from second overruns third, a snap throw from the catcher retires him, making the third out. In the meantime the runner from third has not yet touched the plate.

Despite this, the run counts and he can continue on to the plate after the third out. A base on balls to the batsman with the bases filled, legally scores the runner from third.

RADICALS MOVE TO OUST BRIAND

Department Conference Says Herriott Ministry Needed By France.

REVOLT IN DEPUTIES.

PARIS, April 26 Canadian Press) —The Radical Federation of the Department of Tarn et Garenne has given warning of an approaching offensive against the Briand Cabinet. The ardent militants of the Sunny South passed a resolution declaring a ministry headed by Edouard Herriot is the thing required to bring order out of the present political chaos. Several radical deputies were present at this meeting.

This action is no surprise to M. Herriot, who is leader of the Radical party.

The Radical group in the Chamber of Deputies has made no secret of its discontent with the Briand ministry, and its intention to force another deal. Herriot's former ministers, Edouard Daladier and Camille Chautemps, with some members of the former Painleve Government, lead the revolt.

MANY TOURISTS MAKE INQUIRIES

Unusually Large Number Expected This Year From United States.

MAPS ASKED FOR.

Department of the Interior reports that an unusually large number of inquiries for maps and information is being received.

The snow is barely off the ground, nevertheless every mail brings inquiries from the United States for information about automobile roads, canoe routes, camp sites and other details regarding summer holiday possibilities in Canada, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. Letters from such widely scattered points as Ann Arbor, Michigan; Shrewsbury, New Jersey; Madison, Wisconsin; Lowville, New York; Texarkana, Texas; Indianapolis, Indiana; Trenton, Missouri; Middletown, Deleware, and Orwisburg, Pennsylvania, have arrived in an interval of a few yours.

Most of the inquiries are relatively simple requests for maps and information about automobile road conditions and accommodation that may be expected. A great many want to visit the best fishing districts. A surprisingly large proportion state that they wish to get entirely away from the travelled and popular routes. A passable road, a quiet bit of woods, a lake and fish, are what most of the males and some of the family parties state they want most.

The following communication from a banker in Delaware is typical:

"I would like to take a party of four adults and four young people (about 16 years of age) for a camping trip of about three weeks in Canada, during July of this year. We have camped for several years in the States, but this year want to try Canada. We would like to make a permanent camp on a lake accessible by automobile if possible, where the fishing is good, but where no other campers would likely go. By that statement I mean that we do not want to camp with the crowds.

"If you can assist me in selecting a place, I would greatly appreciate your help. Or if you can direct me where to get the information I shall be glad to buy whatever maps, etc., you suggest."

Several express their intention of travelling into country that offers a choice for permanent summer residence. When they strike the spot that suits them they intend to purchase it for recreation in future years. A few are interested in the mining camps and still others want to leave all trodden paths for the silent stretches of the canoe "trails." Some are even so venturesome as to be planning canoe trips into the Hudson and James Bay country. The routes to Fort Albany and Fort Nelson are especially popular.

Indeed the demand for information as to canoe routes has become so insistent and widespread that the service has been obliged to get out reports on upwards of a hundred trips of this character, a general summary of which has had to be prepared for the benefit of those who had rather vague ideas as to what part of the country they wished to include in their travels.

The character of the questions asked shows that the travelling public is learning to plan its vacations very thoroughly and well in advance of the actual tourist movement. The volume of correspondence that has already developed this year indicates clearly the tourist movement for the coming season in Canada will exceed all previous records in every way.

CUSTOMS PROBE.

Minister of Customs Admits Ordering a Stay of Committal.

OTTAWA, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Moses Aziz case came up in the customs probe again today. The Hon. George Boivin, Minister of Customs, admitted that he ordered a stay of committal, a few hours after he took office last September without knowing much about the facts of the case, and that he now thought he had exceeded his authority in interfering in the judgment of the Courts.

Aziz was charged last August in a New Brunswick Court with contravention of liquor laws and was committed to prison. The commital order of the Courts had not been put into effect and the influence of J. G. Robichaud, M.P. for Gloucester, N.B., had been invoked on Aziz' behalf. The latter was described by Mr. Robichaud as a valuable aid in the election campaign then beginning.

CASHIER JAILED; KEPT TWO WIVES ON $65 A WEEK

Strain Too Much, So He Robbed Employers of $7,600, Say Police.

HAS CONFESSED.

Second Wife Wishes To Help Her Husband of 14 Years.

NEW YORK, April 26 (United Press).—The strain of supporting two families from a $65 pay envelope caused Frank H. Biggs, of Freeport, L.I., cashier of a New York stock exchange firm, to steal $7,600 during the last four years, according to admissions the police say they have obtained from him.

Biggs, whose wife had never suspected him during the twenty years of their married life, had been maintaining his second family just around the corner from Riverside Drive for 14 years.

"It is impossible," said Mrs. Biggs. "He's here almost every night," but out in the Manhattan apartment, a woman confessed, "I haven't the slightest idea that anybody will understand, but I have been living as the wife of Mr. Biggs for more than 13 years."

She was a business woman, she said, and helped to support herself and a six-year-old son, who, she said, was Biggs' child.

"I first met him when I was quite a young girl. He was married when he was 19 years old, and his wife has been an invalid for 15 years. It is needless to say we loved each other. Mr. Biggs is a fine, kind man. I wish I could go to him and help him."

the broken hearts of those who are left to mourn their loss!

On the other hand, imagine what it might have been for the rest of the world if they had not died. There on His thigh a name written, heel of Prussianism—and the glory of the British Empire might have been a thing of the past.

That debt we never can clear! The most we can hope to do is to meet the interest charges.

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky,
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie
In Flanders fields.

might have been a world under the
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

2. Our Obligation to the Living.

Are we to forget all about them and the part they played? Think of what they endured and came through! They can never be the same men again! Let us think well of them—speak well of them. God forbid that the nation should ever forget the part they played or to be slow to reward for service rendered.

Why should they who have died have had to die? Why should they have had to die so young? Was not the love of life as strong upon them as it is upon us? But now they are dead, and their remains mingle with the dust of foreign soil which will ever more be sacred to us because their blood was shed there. Why should you who are alive have to be handicapped for the remainder of your lives? Why should you have to carry memories of sufferings that baffle description till your dying day? What is the answer to this 'Why?'

IT IS WAR! Back almost as far as the imagination can carry us there has not been a single century without war. It has been one war after another, and at the highest cost ever paid for anything except the price that was paid at Calvary for the redemption of the world.

How can you explain it that the leading Christian nations should have been the chief actors in the bloodiest war the world has ever seen? And of one of the days in it you are thinking to-day as you take part in this memorial service.

There is only one explanation possible. And it is to be found in the fact that for long the belief has been that armament is the only guarantee of peace, and the only means of securing national stability and growth. So we have seen a civilization grow up based on militarism. The nations have become armed camps. The soldier in many countries has been chief among men. Fortresses bristle with guns. On the land and on the ocean guns are everywhere in existence. Guns have frequently been more in evidence than churches or schools. In many countries every boy has been reared to shoot to kill. It has been said that only by guns can peace be maintained.

War brings victories, but it seldom brings justice.

After the most appalling loss of life, most overwhelming cost in money and devastated lands, after the set-back of industry and civilization a half century, what has been settled? At the best it is just a temporary predominance. The nature of man is unchanged.

What Is the Cause of War?

There is a lazy answer to this question. We try to answer it in saying that Britain blames Germany for the war. Yes, but Germany in turn blames Russia, and Russia blames Austria — while Austria charges Servia with the blame.

There may be truth in all these charges, but you have not yet answered the question.

War is the cancer of nations.

It is due to wrong ideals and wrong choices, wrong ways of thinking and wrong ways of feeling.

War does not come by chance;
It is not the decree of fate;
God cannot be held responsible for it.

Any man who tries to saddle war on God is guilty of blasphemy and turns his back on the revelation of God's heart in Christ. He tramples on the message of the cross, and drives afresh the nails into the hands of the Son of God. In plain English he makes the creator of the universe a devil.

War is an attempt to settle international disputes by killing men—mostly young men—strong men, sons, brothers, husbands, fathers. And you cannot kill these without killing the women also, for the hearts of the women die!

War is the most cruel, most heartless, most devilish instrument which the human mind can conceive of. As one famous soldier said: "War is Hell."

Those of you who had the brunt of it to bear, would you want to pass through it again if you could honorably avoid it? I know there is a thrill in the parade ground, for I have felt it—for no sane person really wants war again with all its horrors. It means the killing off of talent and character that leaves the world impoverished for a generation.

But there is no escape from it yet awhile!

So long as human nature is as it there will be war.

You cannot legislate greed, jealousy, envy, covetousness out of the the hearts of men and out of the world. And these all lead to war.

So you still need the army and navy just as you need the police and the fire department, although armies and navies lead to sore hearts and burdensome taxation.

Christ Himself said: "There shall be war and rumours of war." Not because God wills it but because human nature is estranged from God.

Hope of the Future.

Yet the Hope of the Future lies in the promise of our text: "He makes war to cease." That may seem a long way off yet, but nothing that man can do will prevent its realization.

An Hebrew exile once told a Gentile king that after him there would only be three great world powers and there would not be a fifth till "The kingdoms of this world became the kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ." And history bears eloquent testimony to the truth of that daring prediction. After Babylon came Persia, and after Persia came Greece, and after Greece came Rome under the Caesars! In the same sense there has never been "a world power" since the days of Christ, when one power could send out a decree that all the world should be taxed. Spain tried to be that fifth world empire, but the fate of the Spanish Armada is the confession of failure. Then France tried it under Napoleon, only to fail at Waterloo. Germany was possessed with the same ambition, and on purely human grounds you cannot explain why the German war machine did not reach Paris.

When Jesus shall reign, as He is destined to reign, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written: "He maketh wars to cease." We shall then have a warless world, and the gifts and graces of men shall find their fullest development. Nations shall beat their swords into ploughshares, their spears into pruning hooks and learn the art of war no more.

"It's coming yet for a' that,
For a' that an' a' that;
That man to man the world o'er
Shall brothers be for a' that."

If a Man Die . . .

To those of you who mourn the loss of loved ones, and who frequently ask, "If a man die shall he live again?" let me remind you that the answer to your question is to be found in the empty grave that once held the body of Jesus of Nazareth.

An English lass who had lost her brother on the field of battle, dreamed that he was still alive. She saw him in her dreams, and said to him, "Why, I thought you were dead."

"No," he said, "I am not dead. I am only waiting for a new uniform to parade before the King of Kings."

So let me encourage you by telling you that they are sleeping beneath the soil of Flanders waiting for a new uniform to appear on parade before the King of Kings!

Fall In!

We thought that reason had mastered men,
That peace of the world was lord,
That never the roll of the drum again
Should quicken the thirsty sword—
But our bubble broke with a sudden blow,
And we heard like the trumpet's din
That levelled the walls of Jericho—
The old stern cry—"Fall in!"
We were numb, amazed, we were sick and dazed
With a horror past belief.
Silent we stood while Belgium blazed
In her martyr's glory of grief.
Then it came so near that we needs must hear,
For the cry of our murdered kin
Drove in our heart like a searching spear
The call of the hour—"Fall in!"
Not in the flush of a barren thrill
Do we come to our deed at last.
We have weighed our will, we must do our will,
For the doubting-time is past.
We have faced our souls in the sleepless night,
And what shall we fear but sin?
Not for love of the fight, but for love of the right,
In the name of our God—"Fall in!"

MANY PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL

Guerilla Fighting Between Hindus and Moslems is Cause.

CITIZENS ANXIOUS.

(By Bernard M. Beilby, United Press Special Correspondent)

CALCUTTA, April 26.—The hospitals are overflowing to-day with Hindu or Moslem rioters, and guerilla fighting between members of the sects is taking place in virtually all parts of the city.

The communal riots are seriously interfering with the city's food supply, and European residents are demanding that the police or military crush the native squabble by more active measures.

Alarmed by the fighting, which began last week and became unusually serious Saturday, wealthy Indian merchants are employing civilian Europeans and paying them high wages to guard their property. There is a general demand for reinforcement of the policy by detailing all non-commissioned officers in the local military establishment to assist them.

Guerilla fighting such as is now in progress is difficult for the police to handle, as it usually means a knifed throat, a sniper's bullet, or at most a brief clash between one small group and another.

By the time the police can get to the scene the fighting may be over and only a splotch of blood or perhaps a wounded man remain to tell the story.

Jealousies between Hindus and Moslems in India have kept the Empire in intermittent uproar for years.

Each sect is contemptuous of the other and is eager to show its contempt. A fortnight ago there were riots in half a dozen Indian cities. nited Press Special Correspondent

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

A GAY COMEDY DRAMA

"The Cave Man," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen which opens today at the Regent Theatre, proves that women are the same the world over and to be won by cavemen tactics at all times. Matt Moore and Marie Prevost are co-starred in this film version of the gay Gilette Burgess story, which races along at a merry rate of speed.

Moore has stepped out of his customary screen character as a poor trampled upon worm, and tramples all over the place as Mike Smagg, a husky coal heaver. Miss Prevost is lovely to look at and skilful in her impersonation of a bored society girls, who tries to tame the cave man and succeeds in falling in love with him instead.

Director Lewis Milestone has handled this comedy-drama with a light touch, and "The Cave Man" also boasts an excellent supporting cast. It includes John Patrick, Myrna Loy, Hedda Hopper and Phyllis Haver, who all gave highly diverting performances.

If you want real screen entertainment, you must not miss "The Cave Man."

WHEAT CONTROL IN SWITZERLAND

Government Forms Monopoly To Stabilize Price of Imports.

FRANCE TO FOLLOW.

GENEVA, April 26 (Canadian Press).—A Government wheat monopoly has been established in Switzerland as an aftermath of war legislation.

Less than one-tenth of the country's demand is produced in Switzerland. The rest is imported from the United States, Canada and the Argentine at competitive prices.

The monopoly will regularize prices through the licensing of importers and the stabilizing of bread values.

A similar monopoly is expected eventually in France unless the coming international economic conference results in some system of redistribution of raw materials. Louis Loucheur, who will be one of the French delegates at the conference, is urging the necessity of international control of raw material. He declared France last year imported over 35,000,000 bushels of wheat which absolutely fixed the price on domestic products.

On being questioned by the Crown as to where he had obtained the liquor he stated that he got it on Brock street from a man who told him his name was Armstrong. He stated that he drank the liquor on Chambers street and thus rendered himself open to a second charge of having liquor in an unlawful place. He was again placed in the dock and was fined $100 and costs or three months.

At the time of the offence he was out on suspended sentence on a vagrancy charge and in addition had a bad record, Chief Newhall said.

Hamilton Detective Has Hair Raising Experience

Loaded Revolver Fails To Explode In Four Attempts

HAMILTON, Ont., April 26 (Canadian Press).—Detective Speakman had the experience on Saturday at midnight of having a fully loaded revolver click four times while it was pointed into his stomach, according to his own statement. A weak spring is all that prevented the live shells from being discharged. Howard Stanley Glover, Niagara Falls, N.Y., who is alleged to have made the attack, is in the east end cells charged with attempted murder, carrying a loaded revolver, and also forgery. Before being locked up Glover was taken to the General Hospital where three stitches were required to close the wound in his head inflicted by the detective's baton. The prisoner is about 28 years of age. Glover is alleged to have passed worthless cheques.

Prices Generally Easier Market Dull At Toronto

TORONTO, April 26.— (Canadian Press.)—Dullness marked the week's opening session of Toronto stock exchange this morning, when trading was light in volume, and no particular issue received any remarkable attention. Prices generally were easier or unchanged. Canadian Pacific Railway, coming into some activity, strengthened a point at 157, and British Columbia Fishing firmed a half point at 64 1-2. Smelters softened a point at 198 1-2. Brazilian a quarter at 88 3-4. Kelvinator an eighth at 18 and International Nickel was unchanged. Mines also sold unchanged for the most part.

Nipissing Firmer To-day On the Standard Exchange

TORONTO, April 26. — Canadian Press. — Moderate recessions were the rule on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, which made the firmness of Nipissing an outstanding feature. Nipissing gained 3c at 5.70; Noranda receded 30c at 15.85, and Kirkland Lake six at 113. Other losses were very slight, Tech-Hughes losing 5 at 336 and Premier 5 at 23c. McIntyre eased 10c at 25.60; Beaver 2 at 77 1-2, and Vipond 1 at 159.

Wheat Values Higher Firmness At Liverpool

CHICAGO, April 26 (Canadian Press).—Influenced by the unexpected strength of wheat quotations at Liverpool, the wheat market here averaged higher today in the early dealings. Sales to realize profits, however, increased on the upturns, causing the market to react, May delivery in particular. Cold weather in Canada with consequent delay to the seeding crop there, attracted considerable notice, estimates being that only 10 per cent of acreage has yet been seeded. Chicago opening prices, unchanged to 1c higher, May (new) 162 3-4 to 163 1-4, and July 142 1-2 to 142 3-4, were followed by numerous irregular changes with May showing a tendency to sag. Corn and oats were easier in the absence of any aggressive buying, especially corn. After opening unchanged to 3-8c up, July 77 3-8, the corn market receded all round to well below Saturday's finish.

Oats started unchanged to a shade higher, July 42c. Later fractional losses became general.

In line with hog values, provisions market turned down grade.

OLD COINS OWNED BY LOCAL CITIZEN

James Gates Possesses One Like That Dug Up in Woodstock.

John A. Bain, a Woodstock resident, while digging in his garden, turned up a bronze coin bearing the inscription, "Bank of Upper Canada," and dated 1852, and on the reverse side were the words, "Bank token," "Half penny." James Gates of this city has one identical with this one, and he also has a collection of other very old coins. He has a Queen Eliabeth sixpence dated 1570, a half stiver of George the Third's reign dated 1813, also an 1806 halfpenny, and a Self Government and Free Trade coin of the same reign. In his collection there are Chinese coins, 1299, a Prince Edward Island coin of 1857, several old American half dimes, a two shilling piece of the Densk mynt, dated 1805, and a Leopold of Belgium coin of 1847.

Mr. Gates also has a war medal. On one side is inscribed "Frederick the Great of Prussia," "Battle of Rosback, 1757," and on the other side is the inscription of a general on horseback directing the troops, and "Breslau, Dec. 20, 1757," printed.

PROTECTION OF INDUSTRIES WILL BE BROADENED BY GREAT BRITAIN AS MEASURE TO BALANCE BUDGET

Customs Duties Have Not Increased Prices to Consumer, Churchill Says.

TO TAX BETTING

Coal Subsidy Wiped Out Calculated Surplus—British Nation Richer.

LONDON, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented the budget in the House of Commons Monday, and at the same time announced provisions he had made in the way of taxes to balance it and leave a surplus. The Chancellor estimates that the cost of running the Government for the fiscal year will be £812,641,000.

One of the outstanding announcements by the Chancellor of the Exchequer was that France would begin to liquidate her war debt to Great Britain this year, the initial payment being £4,000,000. She may pay more than that, for the French Finance Minister, M. Peret, gave assurances that without prejudice to the forthcoming negotiations in London, his Government undertook this as a minimum payment without conditions.

Subsidy Causes Deficit.

In submitting the nation's accounts to Parliament, Mr. Churchill had a comparatively simple statement to make, inasmuch as the heavy cost of the coal subsidy had upset his plans and converted his originally estimated surplus into a deficit. This, however, he had been able to overcome, and by his measures had turned it into a prospective surplus of £14,150,000. This necessarily precluded any remission of taxation.

Suggestions for taxes on luxuries, such as diamonds and furs, having been discarded, the Government is placing such reliance on its pseudo-protective policy, the McKenna and safeguarding of industries duties, which are to be extended.

Main interest centered in Mr. Churchill's pronouncement of a tax on betting.

Despite the disappointing aspects of national finance shown by the extreme difficulty of reducing the expenditures below the £800,000,000 level and the fact that reduced consumption of spirits was having a detrimental effect on the Government's revenue, it was in many respects a hopeful tale the Chancellor had to tell of the nation's financial position.

Trade Improving.

Trade was slowly improving, the nation was richer than a year ago, and the consuming power of the people was being maintained, although, owing to high taxation, it was not increasing as rapidly as could be desired. While large profits had been made in rubber and tin, the country's basic industries employing the largest number of people were still depressed.

The Chancellor noted as a great feat that the country during the past six years had cut its floating debt in half, the debt in that period having been reduced by £700,000,000. He contended that the return to the gold standard was amply justified. Dollar exchange had been maintained at parity, which on the debt to the United States had saved the country £750,000. The bank rate was no higher than before the war

Chief Brown Caught Man By Ruse In Alley Chase

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27—Police Chief Brown was notified Monday morning that a young man from the vicinity of Bradley's Corners, who has been convicted of bootlegging and other offences, was in town and that he was displaying a bottle that was supposed to contain liquor. When the Chief sighted the man on the street, the latter took to his heels with the officer in pursuit. After a considerable run the fugitive started up an alley which the Chief entered from the other end, and the two men came face to face with each other.

The young man was taken to the police office, but a search failed to reveal any liquor on his person and he was allowed to go. The Chief, however, believes that he disposed of the bottle during his flight.

SALE OF FLEET BY WHITE STAR IS MADE PUBLIC

Purchased by British Syndicate Headed by Furness, Withy Co.

FOR $36,000,000

Only Minor Details of Transaction Remain for Final Agreement.

NEW YORK, April 27 (Canadian Press)—A provisional agreement for the sale of the White Star Line to a British shipping syndicate headed by Furness, Withy and Company, Limited, has been arranged in London, officials of the International Mercantile Marine Corporation were advised by cable yesterday.

While the terms of the transaction were not made public officially, it is understood that the corporation will receive for the White Star fleet, approximately £7,500,000, or more than $36,000,000, payable partly in cash and partly in short term debentures. This will enable the company to reduce its capital or funded debt, with the prospects favoring the retirement of outstanding 6 per cent. bonds.

Messrs. Grenfell and Company, the London branch of J. P. Morgan and Company, represented the Furness, Withy interests in the negotiations, and because of their part in the transaction J. P. Morgan and his partner, Charles Steele, last week resigned as directors of the International Mercantile Marine Corporation.

Details Incomplete

Announcement of the proposed sale was contained in the following statement issued by J. H. Thomas, vice-president of the corporation:

"The White Star Line at Liverpool is issuing a statement authorized by Morgan, Grenfell and Company and President P. A. S. Franklin, which says that certain premature reports having appeared in the press, it seems desirable that it be stated negotiations are proceeding for purchase of the shares of the Oceana Steam Navigation Company — the White Star Line—by a British group represented by Morgan, Grenfell and Company.

"A provisional agreement has been reached, but there are numerous details which it will take time to arrange. When a settlement had been arrived at, a more definite announcement will be made, but in the meantime if negotiations mature, Furness, Withy and Company, Limited, will be the principal shipping interest in the purchasng syndicate."

Most of the major problems involved in the sale have been disposed of, it was reported in shipping circles, and the only uncompleted details in volve the transfer of agency contracts and other accounts.

Nearly all of the leading British shipping companies, including the Cunard Line and the Royal Mail Steam Packet interests, were said to have made bids for the White Star ships when it became known that offers would be entertained.

OAKLAND, Calif., April 27 (Canadian Press)—Four workmen were killed and a number injured in an explosion at the Giant Powder Company plant at Stege, eight miles north of here Monday. The contents of a dynamite cartridge machine exploded first, setting off 1,500 pounds of high grade dynamite a second later in the packing plant of the works.

Moral Turpitude Clause Is Taken From U. S. Law

WASHINGTON, April 27 (Canadian Press). — The vague and uncertain test of "moral turpitude" in the present deportation act is eliminated and provisions inserted aimed primarily at aliens engaged in bootlegging, in the Holaday deportation bill which was reported to the House yesterday by Representatives Johnson, chairman of the Immigration Committee.

Chairman Johnson said that for the moral turpitude clause is substituted: "The test of sentence to imprisonment for a term of one year or more.

Any alien who had been convicted more than once for minor infractions and had received terms aggregating 18 months or more is to be deported under the new measure.

STALLED AUTOS PAY FARMER $50

Lindsay-Peterboro Highway Plowed Up by Heavy Trucks.

RUTS DANGEROUS

LINDSAY, April 27. — Peterboro motorists who have been venturing over the Peterboro-Lindsay highway to this town, as well as those who contemplate taking the trip during the next few days, are running quite a risk owing to the condition of the road between Omemee village and the Scugog town.

At the base of Dancey's hill, just south of the boundary of Omemee village, there is a hole in the highway for some distance that practically blocks traffic. A number of cars tried to plunge through on Saturday, but they dropped almost out of sight. A wide-awake farmer anticipated trouble at this point, and had four teams of horses at hand in order to pull out stalled cars. It is understod he charged at the rate of $2.00 a car, and his receipts for the day totalled fifty dollars.

In the vicinity of Hill Head, between Reaboro and Lindsay, the gravel highway has all gone to pieces, with ruts fully a foot deep. Monday afternoon County Engineer Miles motored out to inspect conditions, but would not take a chance in motoring through the mud at this point. He blames the big trucks for the damage to the highways. Nothing can be done to improve their condition until they are dried up.

Warden O'Reilly also took in the trip, and remarked that it was a crime to allow the big trucks to use the highways so early in the spring. The Government, he held, issued truck licenses too early, and should withhold them until May 1st.

CHEMONG ROAD IS NOT YET OPEN

Heavy Rains Last Fall and Late Spring Delay Work.

VERY MUDDY

The heavy rains of last fall and the late arrival of spring have combined to add to the difficulties of putting Chemong road into shape to withstand the wear and tear of the many cars that will soon run over it. So the Examiner was informed yesterday by Roadmaster Bruce Bell, who is now working daily on the much traversed highway. Mr. Bell declares that one would have to go back ten years to find a spring season in which the opening of Chemong road to regular vehicular traffic was so long delayed. Last year cars were running in the last week of March. In many parts the moisture occasioned by the frost leaving the ground has converted the road into a patch of soft mud. The fact that the heavier type of truck has been slow in appearing has helped to keep the surface from being too badly cut up. In contrast with conditions prevailing at the end of some former winters, all the culverts between Bridgenorth and Peterboro are in good condition.

Farmer Sees Snakes—Real Ones—In His Yard

Conn Harrington of Ennismore got a decided surprise yesterday when his cat, which had gone out a-mousing, returned to the house with a 12-inch garter snake as a trophy. After the reptile was despatched, pussy went out and soon returned with a second prize. The appearance of a third snake outside the door prompted Mr. Harrington to institute further search. He discovered a snake coiled beside a large stone. On lifting this stone he found no less than five snakes underneath.

Report Says Giroux Allowed Women To Escape After They Were Found in Possession of $35,000 Worth of Narcotics—Inspector Clerk's Name Prominent.

OTTAWA, April 27 (Canadian Press).—The confidential report of Inspector Walter Duncan, which has been before the customs probe for some weeks, was made public this morning. Chairman Mercier announced at the outset of this morning's proceedings that the committee had decided unanimously that the report be read. The report states that evidence taken by Inspector Duncan "shows that Hon. Jacques Bureau, ex-Minister of Customs and Excise; R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister; and M. J. Larochelle, member of the Civil Service Commission, received liquor that they knew was being shipped from the Government warehouse in the Province of Quebec, City of Montreal," also that they contravened the Canada Temperance Act in transporting the liquor through the Province of Quebec into Ontario.

The report includes a complaint from H. Provencher to the Deputy Minister of Customs, that R. B. Clerk, Inspector of Customs of the Port of Montreal, was "shipping out of the province of Quebec a large quantity of liquor through W. F. Wilson, Chief Preventive Officer, to Hon. Jacques Bureau .former Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister of Customs, and M. J. Larochelle, a member of the Civil Service Commission.

W. F. Wilson, Chief Preventive Officer, objected to the medium through which this liquor was being sent to these gentlemen, and Inspector Clerk admitted that he then entered into an arrangement to have at least four or five cases sent to Deputy Minister Chauffer and Raymond.

Evidence disclosed, Inspector Duncan states, that R. P. Clerk has received wholesale quantities of liquor from the Customs House for a number of years, and large quantities of sugar and molasses.

It reveals, says Inspector Duncan, that Inspector Clerk used a smuggled and stolen car, and illegally removed the tires from a car under seizure that had been sold by tender to H. Provencher.

Bisaillon Figures.

J. E. A. Bisaillon, former Chief Preventive Officer at the Port of Montreal, figures in the report at length. Eleven alleged offences are enumerated against him, including the following:

"Procuring Customs Excise Officer Ralph Garceau to commit forgery on September 12, 1924, Garceau, under oath, admits that he did commit forgery."

"Uttering a forged document on the customs department, Ottawa, so as to mislead and cover up the disposition of a sedan automobile on September 12, 1924.

"Theft from an automobile under seizure of a large number of parts of that automobile."

In his final report, Inspector Duncan states that evidence discloses a number of other offences committed by J. E. A. Bisaillon. They include:

"Theft of five automobile tires from seized car.

"Wrongfully removing from a port seizure two barrels of whiskey into bond of which he had control, and during the period that they were in Baisaillon's custody there was stolen from these 2 barrels of whiskey, some 42 gallons.

"Wrongfully being engaged in trafficking of liquor for at least two years while in Government service as Customs Officer and neglecting his duties during that period as such an officer."

Cat Loses Her Kittens Adopts Suckling Pig

KINGSTON, April 27. (Special.) — The village of Emerald has something to talk about. George Biggs, a farmer, is the owner of a cat, but a few days ago misfortune overtook his pet when she lost her batch of kittens. The mother felt so badly over it that she has taken up with a little pig recently born in a litter, and Mr. Biggs says that the 'little porke-' is etting along well with its foster mother.

CITIZENS URGED TO SUPPORT RINK

Will Be Great Community Asset, Says Mayor Holloway.

FOR MANY PURPOSES.

"I have gone thoroughly into the methods of financing the proposed artificial ice arena," said Mayor W. T. Holloway to The Examiner this morning, when asked for his opinion, "and I unhesitatingly endorse the whole proposition and appeal to the citizens to support it.

"In this," added Mayor Holloway, "I am backed by every member of the Council, the Aldermen agreeing with me that such an arena would be a very important community asset.

"I ask the citizens to realize that a building of this kind would be a saving to themselves, enabling them to see Senior hockey at home instead of having to travel to Toronto, as many of them frequently did during the season just closed. It would not only keep money in Peterboro, but it would bring money here. With a proper rink and ample accommodation. Senior games here would attract a lot of people from outside the city and Peterborough would benefit thereby.

"An arena would not only be useful in the winter, but would be an asset the year round, as it would be available for many events—Motor Shows, Summer Fairs, Made-in-Peterborough Exhibitions, and community gatherings.

"The manner in which the proposition is being financed appeals to me," said Mayor Holloway. "There are to be no organization expenses, no promotion bonuses, and unless the sum of $100,000 is raised, no one who subscribes for stock is liable for a cent. The agreement entered into being as follows: "I, the undesigned, agree to subscribe for and take the number of shares written opposite my name of the capital stock of a company to be incorporated to erect an artificial ice arena in Peterborough, and I agree to pay for the said shares at the rate of $10.00 per share of, as and when the amount of $100,000 has been fully subscribed and the company incorporated."

"Either the plan goes through in its entirety or there is no liability," His Worship added, "and citizens who subscribe—and I hope everyone will do so—are asured that they are not risking their money in a half-baked proposition. If the arena is not built, there will be no liability on the part of subscribers.

"This condition," Mayor Holloway pointed out, "is made possible only by the generosity of the public-spirited citizens who are carrying on the organization work without remuneration, and I would like to express my appreciation of their efforts."

"Once more let me urge the people to get behind this arena. It will be a great asset to Peterborough and we need it badly," said Mayor Holloway in conclusion.

FATHER IN JAIL MOTHER IS DEAD

Five Children of George Mill Left With out Parental Care.

PATHETIC CASE.

Mrs. George Mill, mother of five children, the eldest of whom is not yet six years of age, and the youngest twins, ten weeks old, died this morning in the Nicholls' Hospital, under peculiarly pathetic circumstances.

Her husband, George Mill, was sentenced last Friday to two years imprisonment in the Reformatory on a charge of having carnal knowledge of a girl under 16 years of age, the girl in question being employed at the house of the accused.

Secretary Sidney Whatley of the G.W.V.A., made strong representations to the authorities ,which resulted in the accused being permitted to leave the jail, where he is confined pending his removal to the Reformatory, under the escort of Sheriff F. J. A. Hall, and Police Constable W. R. Piercy, and he was thus enabled to see his wife before she died.

The deceased was around a week ago, apparently in good health, and and in some manner contracted pleurisy which later developed into pneumonia which finally resulted in her demise.

Neighbors of the deceased, named Loucks, hearing that she was ill,t ook her into her home, and gave her every attention until her removal to the hospital. They have one of the children, a mite eighteen months old, in their care now.

THE WEATHER.

The weather still keeps unseasonably cool. This morning the temperature was down to 28, and considerable ice was to be seen. Mr. F. Brownscombe told me to-day that he had just returned from a visit to his cottage at Stoney Lake, and that he found conditions prevailing there now identical with those prevailing there at the same date in March of last year. The season was a full month behind that of 1925. Much ice was in the lake yet, though open channels were to be seen in some places.—W. P.

Three English Salesmen Put On Trial In Paris Charged With Spying Into French Plane Secrets

PARIS, April 27 (Canadian Press)—Amid the greatest secrecy the trial of three Englishmen and their two French accomplices on charges of spying, began on Monday. The Englishmen are John Leather, William Fisher, and Oliver Phillips, and the accomplices a dancing girl named Aimee Lefevbre and Marthe Moreuil, a parachutist.

The presiding judge insisted on hearing the case in camera, despite the protests of defence council and the keen interest aroused here in the affair.

The Englishmen represent a British wireless set firm, and did a good business in the Madeleine shop. They deny the charge of espionage made by Mlle Moreuil some months ago. She had just been arrested on the statement of an international adventurer, Lionel Welt, held for swindling, but who had aroused suspicion by frequenting military aviation camps. The girl confessed, saying she visited naval air bases, notably those at Toulon and Nantes, to obtain secrets about new French planes for the Englishmen.

MANITOBA FARM WORK FARTHEST AHEAD IN WEST

75 Per Cent. of Seed in the Ground in Southern Area.

RAPID PROGRESS.

Operations Delayed on Prairies Last Week By High Winds.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 27 (Canadian Press).—Excellent progress is being made on the land throughout the grain producing areas of Western Canada, according to reports received by the Canadian National Railway agricultural department. Moisture conditions are favorable, and seeding operations are now general. Slight damage was caused last week in the storm-swept districts, through soil drifting, the report states. Summer fallow land was the hardest hit.

Seeding in Manitoba is farthest advanced, with south-eastern areas reporting 75 per cent. of the seed in the ground. High winds have delayed operations in some parts, but generally between 10 to 25 per cent. of the seeding is completed.

Unsettled weather has checked seeding in Saskatchewan, although an average shows about 15 per cent. of the wheat acreage seeded to date. Plentiful moisture is reported from almost all sections and more widespread operations are anticipated during the present week.

Breaking New Ground.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 27 (Canadian Press). — The Herald's first weekly crop report for 1926, issued Monday, says seeding is general and rapid progress has been made since operations on the land commenced two weeks ago, delayed only by the high winds of the early part of last week.

About one-quarter of the wheat is already in the ground, and by the end of this week nearly 75 per cent. of the wheat will be sown.

Sugar beets are being sown in the irrigated district, while both early sugar beets and early wheat are above ground, with both winter wheat and rye in fine condition. New breaking exceeds all records for the past ten years, and corn and sweet clover acreages will show a heavy increase.

"PAY DIRT" LACKING AT RED LAKE; RUSH SHOULD BE STOPPED BY THE GOVERNMENT

Statement of Pittsburgh Mining Engineer, Who Sees the Hardships For Many Inexperienced Men Lured By Gold.

NEW YORK, April 27 (Canadian Press) — Gold does not exist in paying quantities in the new fields at Red Lake, Northern Ontario, and the hundreds of people joining the gold rush to that section are doomed to disappointment, according to W. F. Braun, Pittsburgh mining engineer, who has just returned from surveying the district.

Mr. Braun declared the Canadian Government should stop the gold rush before it grows any bigger. Whatever gold exists, he said, would not assay over 10 to 17 dollars per ton.

He predicted severe hardships for many people, who, he said, include clerks, mill hands and others not acquainted with mining, because of their poor equipment and small food supplies.

PRESS COMMENT UNFAVORABLE TO BRITISH BUDGET

All Papers Unite in Condemning Churchill's Financing.

"A BAD BUDGET."

Charges of Extravagance Are Made—"Pious Phases" Says Mail.

LONDON, April 27. — (United Press.)—The British newspapers today greeted the announcement of the English Government budget by Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, with alarm and animosity.

The Daily Mail in referring to the 'extravagant expenditures' outlined, asserts, "We are given pious phrases concerning economy and little else. If the policy is continued, the taxpayers must prepare for greater extravagance."

The Daily Express says: "The bad budget is Churchill's, not the nation's."

"A dull budget, brilliantly presented," comments the Daily News.

"Viewing the budget broadly we see economies float like bubbles down stream. Expenditures are increasing," is the Morning Post's contribution.

The Daily Herald calls the measure "a budget nobody can possibly like."

FIRE IN MARSHES MENACES HOMES

Police Investigating Causes of Fires at Poplar Point, Man.

WINNIPEG, April 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Fires are raging north of Poplar Point, Man., in the marshes by Lake Winnipeg, menacing shooting lodges and farm homes. Large bodies of men are fighting the advance of the fires at several widely scattered points. Heavy winds are reported to be sweeping the flames eastward. J. B. Whitemore, a farmer near Babson, Man., lost his barn when flames swept out of the marsh. Horses tethered in the yard broke away and trailing burning halter ropes, started new fires in the marshes.

The police are investigating reports that fires are being started by trappers.

PRAISE FROM PROGRESSIVE AND CONSERVATIVE CONDEMNATION IN BUDGET DEBATE AS WEEK OPENS

Steady Expansion of Canadian Trade Since Meighen Defeated, Says Westerner.

C.N.R. HAS SURPLUS

Forke Controls the Government, Declares British Columbia Conservative.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 27.—(By Canadian Press).—Resuming the debate on the budget in the House of Commons Monday, W. G. McQuarrie (Conservative, New Westminister) referred to the Progressive leader (Robert Forke) as a man who had always been a Liberal.

"I fail to understand why he does not cross the floor and sit where he belongs, like his former chief whip," said Mr. McQuarrie. A number of other members of the Progressive party were also qualified for seats on the Liberal benches. There were others, however, who might be expected to express their own views on the matters which came before the House.

The Progressive leader had swallowed the budget "lock, stock and barrel," Mr. McQuarrie said. He had done this even though required to be inconsistent in so doing. For instance while commending the income tax as a measure of direct taxation, the Progressive leader has approved a reduction in the income tax. Mr. McQuarrie said that if Mr. Forke thought he was doing a good thing by assisting the government to retain office, his opinion was not shared by many other people in Canada.

Controls Government.

Mr. McQuarrie declared that Mr. Forke was "in control of the Government but without responsibility."

The custom had grown up in British history to nickname some of the British monarchs. For instance there was Edward the Confessor and William the Conqueror. If the Prime Minister were a king in fact as well as in name, he believed that a nickname might be assigned to him. For his part he would suggest as a nickname for Mr. King, William the Wobbler. The Premier had wobbled on many occasions in the course of his public utterances on the subject of the relationship between the Liberal and Progressive parties.

The Minister of Finance had told the deputation of automobile workers that the Government intended to "stand by its guns" in the matter of the tariff.

The Prime Miniser would have to do a little more wobbling if he was going to retain the Minister of Finance and make changes in the budget.

Discourage Investment.

Mr. McQuarrie did not believe that many people would be affected by the increased exemption from income tax payments. The small investor would probably suffer the most. The changes would have the effect of discouraging investment. Mr. McQuarrie advocated exemption for children up to the age of twenty-one and for the exemptions of premiums on life insurance.

Canada was beginning to reduce her tariff when other countries were increasing theirs, Mr. McQuarrie said. He instanced Australia and Japan as two countries which were advancing their tariffs. He thought it would be advisable to consider increasing rather than decreasing the Canadian tariff.

The chairman of the tariff board (Hon. Geo. P. Graham) was supposed not to be in sufficiently robust health to continue as an active member of the Government. Why then asked Mr. McQuarrie, had he been selected for a position which was bound to be somewhat strenuous?

Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, objected. It was unfair to suggest that the chairman of the tariff board would be a tool for any administration.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, told Dr. King that he would have an opportunity to make a speech later if he wished to.

Motor Industry's Report.

Mr. McQuarrie continued that the automobile industry was entitled to place its case before the tariff board pending final disposal of it.

He said he was not in favor of abrogating the Australian treaty but he favored amending it so as to give Canada as fair treatment as accorded to Australia.

Mr. McQuarrie was opposed to Japanese and Chinese immigration. He also believed that these Orientals should be encouraged to return to their native countries by the repayment of part of their head tax.

Mr. McQuarrie considered that the Government should afford some encouragement of the raising of sheep in this country.

Speaking briefly of Miss McPhail's proposal to have convicts dependent's paid for work done in penitentiaries, Mr. McQuarrie said it would be better to give consideration to increase pay for guards of penitentiaries who were working on salaries as low as $900.00 a year.

The obligations of the Canadian National Railway to the city of New Westminister should be cleared up now that the railway was on a better basis. The Canadian Northern had made purchases of land valued at $1,000,000 in New Westminister yet the property had never been built on and the station facilities of the Canadian National were being managed by an American Company—the Great Northern. Mr. McQuarrie advocated the building of a government grain elevator at New Westminister.

Says Meighen Wobbles.

J. F. Johnston (Progresive-Long Lake) referring to Mr. McQuarrie's speech, remarked that the leader of the opposition was somewhat of a wobbler himself. Had he not wobbled in the speech at Hamilton? He asked Mr. McQuarrie if he was willing to tell the House that he agreed with the views expressed by Mr. Meighen in that speech.

There was some applause from the Liberal benches, and Mr. McQuarrie asked what the leader of the opposition had said on that occasion. He had never known Mr. Meighen to make any statement which he did not agree with.

Mr. Johnston said that he had not Mr. Meighen's Hamilton speech before him. His memory was that the opposition leader had stated that if he were Prime Minister at any future time and Great Britain became embroiled in war, he would not only call Parliament but appeal to the people before plunging Canada into the conflict. Having made this summary Mr. Johnston asked if Mr. McQuarrie supported the attitude of Mr. Meighen.

"I am not prepared to accept the honorable gentleman's guess at anything which my leader said," remarked Mr. McQuarrie.

There was some applause from the Conservative benches at this retort.

C.N.R. Improvement.

Mr. Johnston quoted prices of butter in Ottawa for the past month to illustrate his point that the Australian treaty had not depressed the butter market. He congratulated the Government on its selection of the present management of the Canadian National Railways in view of the creditable showing made by the system this year. In 1920, Mr. Johnston said, the Canadian National Railways had shown a $30,000,000 deficit. In 1925 this had been turned into a $30,000,000 surplus.

"Year after year since our Conservative friends went out of power there has been a steady expansion of trade," said Mr. Johnston.

Mr. Johnston defended the Government's action in reducing the automobile duty. It was acting quite within its powers. He believed that the public had confidence in the tariff board and that this confidence would increase as time went on. Mr. Johnston accused Conservatives of endeavoring to foster sectional differences between Saskatchewan and Quebec.

Mr. Johnston quoted from the amendments moved by Sir John MacDonald to the budget of 1878. This amendment had introduced the national policy and had employed the same phrases regarding protection and the keeping of Canadians in Canada as the present speeches of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

The policy of MacDonald had not kept the Canaian people at home nor increased the population of the Dominion, Mr. Johnston declared.

A People's Budget.

This budget was a people's budget. It would give the Canadian people heart. It would be time for the Conservatives to complain when some people lost their jobs because of reduced tariff duties. The legislative programme of the Government was an attractive one. A vote was provided for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, and this was well timed. He was not prepared to say that the Hudson Bay route was feasible as a grain carrying road but Canada had already put $200,000,000 into this scheme and the one thing to do was to try it out. The only way to do this was to complete the railway.

Mr. Johnston read a resolution passed by the Progressive Association of Long Lake, his constituency, declaring against higher tariffs and stating that it was most important, if the country was to be saved from stagnation, that the Conservative party be kept in opposition. He told a story of a visit paid by Mr. Meighen during the last election campaign to a town in his constituency. Before Mr. Meighen visited this town, he said, it had been Tory. After the election, when the votes were counted up, it was found that the town had given him a majority over both the Conservative and the Liberal.

"Was Baldy Robb down there?" interjected H. C. Hocken.

Mr. Johnston replied that he was not acquainted with Baldy Robb but he invited Mr. Meighen to come back and visit his constituency at the next election.

"What colors will you be running under next time?" asked Dr. McGibbon.

"I hope for all time to be anti-Tory," responded Mr. Johnston.

"That's a relief," came from one of the Conservative members.

POLICE SEARCH FOR SHOEMAKER

Creditors at Campbellford Anxious About Disappearance of William Skelly.

FROM PRESCOTT

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27. — The police have been asked to locate William Skelly, who disappeared from this town recently, leaving a number of unpaid bills behind him, and who is supposed to have gone to Peterborough. The case has also been reported to Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr of Cobourg, who has been asked to have the Provincial Police look for the missing man.

Skelly came here from Prescott about three months ago and opened a shoe repairing shop in the building formerly occupied by Alex. Winter, who removed to Brockville. About a month ago he rented a small motor from J. K. Spiers, agreeing to pay $5 a month, with the privilege of purchasing it if business warranted the outlay. After using the machine for a month he suddenly disappeared and the motor too, which was valued at $65, was missing.

When the matter was reported to Police Chief Brown the machine was located in the store of a hardware and electrical fixtures dealer, to whom, it is alleged, Skelly had disposed of it for $17.50, representing it as his property.

Camera Missing.

From another local merchant, it is alleged, Skelly purchased a camera, valued at $24, on the installment plan, making an initial payment of $5. This, too, has disappeared, and as it was easily portable property, it is believed that Skelly took it with him. J. I. Adams, with whom the missing man boarded for five weeks, claims that he left owing him $35.

Business was never good, it seems, in Skelly's line, and his receipts were not sufficient to maintain him. About two weeks ago he closed his shop and went to work for David Meiklejohn, a farmer near Burnbrae. This was a new occupation for the former shoe dealer, and the connection was dissolved with mutual satisfaction after a short trial. Skelly on Sunday night, it is said, after attending church, walked to Hoard's Station, where he waited for the morning train to Peterborough.

Skelly was a native of Belfast, Ireland, and came to this country about a year ago, locating in Prescott, where he was unsuccessful in the same line of business as that which he took up here. While in his native land he was, according to his own story, a militant opponent of Home Rule, and was fond of displaying a scar in his head which, he said, he received in a skirmish with the opposite faction, a skirmish in which the favorite weapons used were the native blackthorns.

TRAPPERS BUSY

Heavy Catch Made Last Week Around Trent River.

TRENT RIVER, April 26.—Since the time for trapping has been extended, the trappers are more encouraged and the catch this week has been heavier than the previous weeks.

The cheese factory began operations for the season yesterday under the management of Mr. Fred Scott.

The trappers are meeting with great success this week. Thursday morning, Mr. H. H. Pollock on going to his traps secured 44 rats. Mr. Frank Pollock brought home 36 the same day. Some buyers were around Thursday, offering $2.25 a hide.

Mr. Ken Green, of Havelock is confined to bed with the flu at Mr. Frank Pollock's.

The scraper has been at work on the main thoroughfares, clearing away the mud to the side of the roads.

Mrs. David Davidson is moving and storing her household effects, and is leasing her house to Mr. Ross Pollock, who takes possession about May 1st.

Mrs. Ken Green, of Havelock, is spending the week with Mrs. Frank Pollock.

Mrs. Ernest Wilkinson has been confined to her home suffering with flu. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

MAE MURRAY
Fascinating Cinema Star
Secret of her beautiful hair

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitation. Look for the name Wat-

FARMERS SMILE WITH WEATHER

Bailieboro District Should Find Many on Land Soon.

LAKE IS OPENING.

BAILIEBORO, April 26. — The people of this district are rejoicing at the prospects of spring once again. The roads and highways, as well as the fields, are beginning to dry, while the frost is almost out of the ground. The farmers are figuring upon getting on the land about the middle of this week, if the spring weather continues.

The Provincial Highway is in excellent shape for motoring, and while the side roads are very quickly drying and it will only be a few days until the roads will be in excellent condition once again.

Up-to-date the fall wheat and fresh seeds are looking fine, and if good weather prevails the farmers in this district are looking forward to another bumper crop of fall wheat and hay.

The ice on Rice Lake is weakening and beginning to move out from the shore; it will only take a strong west wind to send it down now.

Trappers are happy at the prolonged season for trapping muskrats, and although they do not figure their catches are going to be nearly as great as last year, still the trappers will have an opportunity to at least catch enough rats to let them be paid for their labor.

League Meeting.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Young People's League on Tuesday evening, the meeting was taken by Charlie Barnard. The topic was taken by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Foley, upon the study of the weather. This subject was thoroughly dealt with by the pastor, and forty of the members were present to hear the splendid illustrated lecture, which was very interesting. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered by the first vice-president, John Porter, to Mr. Foley for the splendid talk upon such an interesting subject of the day, while the second vice-president, Mr. McLean, seconded the motion. The meeting of April 27th will be postponed on account of the young people's play, entitled "A Poor Married Man," which will be staged in the United Church on Wednesday, April 28th. The members of the play have secured the services of Mr. Ernie Wells of Port Hope, who is a popular soloist in the Capital Theatre, and who has promised to fill in the numbers between the acts.

U.F.Y.P.O. Meeting.

The South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O. Club held a meeting on Wednesday evening, with the president, Roy Rutherford, presiding. At the conclusion of the business meeting a splendid programme was enjoyed, consisting of a piano solo by Miss E. Perrin; solos by E. White; group singing, and last, but not least, a very interesting debate, "Resolved that motor tourists from the U.S.A. are beneficial to Canada." The affirmative was taken by Edwin Eagleson and Leta Stutt, while the negative was argued by Chalmers Pue and Effie Perrin. The debate was keenly contested and was exceedingly interesting owing to the splendid manner in which it was debated. After a careful consideration, the judges, who were Misses F. Bonnycastle and H. Stanles and W. Hall, decided that the affirmative had won the debate by a large margin.

SEVERAL ARRESTS NORTH OF LINDSAY

Pigs, Fowl and Grain Stolen in Eldon Township.

LINDSAY, April 27. — Provincial Officer Storey during the week-end braved the dangers of the mud roads, which are almost impassable in many parts of the county, and journeyed to Eldon Township for the purpose of investigating the different cases of theft that have occurred in that section during the past few weeks. One man is already in the toils for stealing a number of pigs, and on Saturday Officer Storey arrested an Eldon man and his son, who are charged with the theft of ninety bushels of grain and a number of fowl. Both men were placed in jail on remand.

The Provincial Government has evidently concluded that the district of Victoria and Haliburton is altogether too large for License Inspector Porter and Provincial Officer Storey to cover in the administration of the law. Monday the announcement was made that Major William Warren of Lindsay had been appointed preventive officer for Haliburton County.

NO LEAGUE MEETING.

Not Enough Teams Left in County To Form a League.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27.—It was officially announced in The Examiner last week that the annual meeting of the Northumberland Baseball League would be held at Warkworth Wednesday afternoon, M. Davey, of Roseneath, the secretary of the League, now says that the meeting has been postponed indefinitely as there is not a sufficient number of teams in the county to form a league.

LEAVING TOWN FOR NEW POST

J. W. Payne Resigns Position With Campbellford Cloth Company.

GOES TO RENFREW.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27—John W. Payne has resigned his position as assistant superintendent of the Campbellford Cloth Company's mill and will go to Renfrew to become superintendent of the two mills owned by Senator O'Brien of which S. J. Moore, formerly superintendent of the mills here was recently appointed. Mrs. Payne will remain in Campbellford for the present.

Mr. Payne has been connected with the local mill for over 17 years, working his way up from the bottom, by industry and attention to his work, to the position which he now resigns and which he has held for the past six years. He learned the business under Mr. Moore whose chief deputy he now becomes in Renfrew.

Mr. and Mrs. Payne have a host of friends in town who will regret their going while they cannot fail to be pleased with the promotion that Mr. Payne has so fairly earned. Both are highly appreciated members of the choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Mrs. Payne is recognized as one of the leading soloists in Campbellford.

ULTRA MODERN LIQUOR PLANT

Huge Still in Fashionable Winnipeg Home—36 Barrels of Mash.

OWNER FINED $500.

WINNIPEG, April 27.—Federal officers and Royal Canadian Mounted Police combined here Sunday in a raid on premises in aristocratic Dorchester Avenue, which yielded what was described as "one of the most sensational moonshine discoveries in Western Canadian records."

The plant was in full operation when the officers, under W. H. Stubbs, enforcement officer of the Dominion Government Inland Revenue Department, forced an entrance. The still had a capacity of 200 gallons and was constructed of copper. The entire basement of the outwardly fashionable dwelling house had been fitted up as an up-to-date distillery.

36 Barrels.

The officers also discovered 36 barrels containing 1,400 gallons of mash and a "huge" quantity of distilled spirits.

James Cook, proprietor of the still, and described by the official revenue documents as an "old offender," was fined $500 and costs Monday.

CONDOLENCES TO CHAPMAN FAMILY

F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg, Sends His Sympathy.

HASTINGS, April 27.—W. H. Chapman, son of the late A. E. Chapman, who died recently after a long residence in Hastings, of which more than 20 years was spent in the public service, has received the following letter of condolence from F. M. Field, K.C., of Cobourg:

Dear Mr. Chapman: I desire to express to you and your brother and sister my deep sympathy in the bereavement you have sustained in the death of your esteemed father. We were young men together when I had a law office in Colborne, almost 40 years ago, and your father and his brother were two of my contemporaries there, and we became intimate friends. It has been to me a source of much satisfaction that, after an interval of some years following his removal to Hastings when I met him only infrequently, motoring brought us together again and, as you know, of late years we have been much associated, personally and politically, in my professional work. It was a shock to me when I first read the news, being somewhere out of town and only now have I got some details of his last days and fatal illness. I shall very much miss my genial friend, and the hearty hand clasp when we met here or at Hastings."

Gums Like Coral

Teeth with that dazzling whiteness you see

This new way brings them quickly. Send the coupon

DENTAL science has found a new way to lighten cloudy teeth. A way that often changes a person's whole appearance. Your teeth, it's learned, are not naturally off color—simply coated with a film that absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc.

You can feel that film now with your tongue; a slippery sort of coating. It is there largely because your present dentifrice is failing in its duty. Ordinary dentifrices don't fight film successfully and brushing won't do it.

Now a new-type dentifrice has been discovered. A film-removing paste called Pepsodent. Famous $100,000 movie stars use it before going on a scene. That's why movie smiles are so gleaming white.

Leading dentists urge it because it protects the teeth and firms the gums. Film breeds bacteria that invite tooth troubles and pyorrhea. It is there now imperiling your teeth, your gums; making your smile unattractive.

Clear it off. See the amazing difference made. Get Pepsodent at any drug store. Or send the coupon for test tube free.

MUST ADVERTISE.

It is as essential for a district to advertise its advantages as a tourist centre as it is for a manufacturer or merchant to advertise his wares.

People go to the places they read about most, just as they usually buy the articles that are most often brought to their attention.

Peterboro, therefore, is likely to find any money spent in publicity work designed to attract tourists a profitable investment.

Advance reports indicate that the influx of United States visitors into Canada will be greater this year than ever, and just now a large percentage of those contemplating a trip across the border have not made up their minds as to what district to visit.

The community that conducts a live, aggressive publicity campaign and cultivates the field of tourists who have not yet decided as to their destination should attract a worth-while share of visitors, and in this connection the plan advanced by the Kiwanis Club offers unique possibilities for success.

A USEFUL ORGANIZATION.

The Y.W.C.A. pageant, which is to be held on Friday and Saturday night of this week, will once more demonstrate the value of the training in athletics, dancing and gymnasium work provided by this splendid institution for the girls and young women of Peterboro.

This annual event has always attracted liberal patronage, and has never failed to impress those who saw it as a spectacle full of interest and enjoyment.

And at the same time, it should be remembered that the work demonstrated on this occasion is only a portion of the service rendered to the community by the Y.W.C.A.

As a comfortable and safe home-away-from home for girl it is an institution of much importance.

As a rallying point for many activities of interest to girls it is equally valuable.

Its various classes are a factor in educating the members along many useful lines.

Through its swimming course a large number of girls have learned how to take care of themselves in the water, and some of the pupils indeed have progressed so far as to qualify in the life-saving tests.

The Y.W.C.A. is a community asset whose usefulness is continually being demonstrated.

WAR VICTIMS.

A sad feature of Ypres Sunday was that while their comrades were parading in commemoration of the first great battle of the Canadians, four veterans of the war died during the week-end at the Christie Street Hospital at Toronto.

The passing under such circumstances of these war-wracked heroes is a vivid reminder that thousands of the men who escaped death in France and Belgium came home to fight off the grim monster here, broken down by the exposure and hardships of their life at the front, and that there is a very solemn obligation upon the Canadian people to stand by these men and to see that they are treated as veterans who have fought and suffered for this country, not as men who are trying to get something to which they are not entitled.

The mistake must not be made of injecting too much cold-blooded efficiency into the administration of our pension system.

There can be too large a percentage of business methods and far too little of the milk of human kindness in our dealings with war victims.

A system that says to the ex-service man laid low with tuberculosis "You say your condition was caused by war service. Prove it," may be an admirable safeguard of the public treasury, but it is a scurvy return for the very great service and sacrifice of the men who offered themselves unhesitatingly when the call to arms was sounded.

JOHN HALL CROWE, 1868-1926.

The following editorial was taken from the Virginia Daily Enterprise relative to Dr. John H. Crowe, brother of ex-Alderman Jos. H. Crowe and an old Ashburnham boy:

"One more link in the chain of remembrance connecting the Virginia of today with the frontier village of two decades past is severed with the death this morning in Minneapolis of Dr. John Hall Crowe, physician, citizen and good friend.

"Holding a place in the community that only a practicing family doctor can occupy, Dr. Crowe knew Virginia in all phases of its life, knew it, loved it and worked for its betterment with every fibre of his body and every cell of his mind and heart.

"The city to him was just so many human beings, subject to the frailties of sickness and accident, to be guarded in health and cared for in misfortune.

"And as a family doctor he had the open sesame to the hearts of all, young and old alike. He treasured confidences and he weighed intimate problems. With his mind he advised those in trouble and with his skill he eased pain and staved off death.

"He brought the children of the community into the world and guarded their growth to young manhood or womanhood.

"Teacher, preacher nor blood relative can never hold the place occupied by the family physician.

"And thus it is that the passing of Dr. Crowe is felt by the entire community. Life hereafter must hold a special place in readiness for the town physician, a place where he will receive his reward for work well done. A reward with which no earthly token can compare.

"Virginia mourns Dr. John Hall Crowe, physician, citizen and good friend."

FLORIDA'S TIP TO CANADA.

Mr. W. R. Givens, proprietor and editor of the Kingston Standard, has returned home after spending the winter at his Florida cottage, in the garden of which in February he raises roses and other perfumed flowers and plucks oranges and grapefruit. Discussing the Florida real estate boom he differentiates between riotous speculation and the judicious investment of moneys founded on Florida's superb climate and its potentialities as the "great winter playground of the nation."

Mr. Givens closes a most interesting interview with this advice to the people of Kingston:

"Just the same, we in Kingston might take a leaf out of the book of some of these Florida cities. Kingston has as great beauty and as many natural advantages as most of these cities and my own opinion is that we might with profit and advantage seek to make this a great summer tourist centre just as these southern cities are great winter tourist centres. We have spent much time and energy vainly endeavoring to make this an industrial city. My belief is that we would be better employed developing it as a tourist city and an educational centre."

It is true that many places in Canada, by attempting to become manufacturing centres, are missing the opportunity—and destroying the scenic assets they have—for development of a much more profitable industry. Canada is only now beginning to realize the value of its assets as a tourist resort. True, this awakening may be in part due to liquor; but good roads and, what is just as important, good hotels assure a permanence for the tourist trade that in the aggregate means fabulous wealth.

Florida is just waking up from a long sleep and finds itself in possession of a magic wand. Some day Canada, too, will become wide awake to the fact that among its riches are scenic beauties as unrivalled as they are accessible to millions willing to pay for the privilege of enjoying them.

The tourist trade involves employment in many avenues that seem remote and a home market for farmers. It should be gone after with a vigor that hitherto has been lacking.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Some of the baseball scores these days suggest that pitching is becoming a lost art.

Up at Mitchell there was both curling and lawn bowling last week. Whatever else may be said about the Canadian climate, it at least is diversified.

The smuggling inquiry indicates that eternal vigilance may not always find favour.

The citizen who was looking for the hammock last week is beginning to wonder if he was not a little hasty in putting away the snow-shovel.

Evidently the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association is not an ally of the Ontario Tourist Association.

Doubtless there are Ontario people who would like to supplement what Hon. W. E. Raney said down in Washington.

Oshawa at least is to be congratulated upon inaugurating the first excursion of the season.

It should not be forgotten that Canada has other famous runners in addition to John C. Miles, the Boston Marathon winner. For instance, Tommy Church of Toronto and Mayor Mederic Martin of Montreal.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A MIGHTY DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

Avoid the individual who insists on talking of the disquieting and discouraging things of life. Listening to the talkers about mishaps, misfortunes, and the calamity things does not encourage or enthuse. On the contrary, a constant dwelling on conditions of a depressing character is sure to make you morbid and blue.

I am not suggesting that you hide your head in the sand at the sight of some unpleasant situation, but I am stating the fact that forever dwelling on faults or failures is a mighty dangerous practice.

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 26.—A small bunch of choice handyweights were $7.25 a cwt. and bunches of fair quality mediums brought $6.75 a cwt. Butchers' cows were readily picked up at steady prices, very good ones bringing $5.50 to $6 a cwt. There were ten loads of Western stockers on sale and two loads of heifers below 600 lbs. each sold at $3.45 and $5.50 a cwt. There was a nice trade all morning and the sales will bulk up large for the day. Baby beeves sold from $7.25 to $9.25 a cwt.

Except for the Eastern dairy calves there was a satisfactory market. Choice calves were firm at 12 to 13 cents and mediums 8½ to 10 cents a pound. Common calves are holding firm at 6 to 7½ cents a pound.

Packers are pleased at the light supply of yearling lambs as they are desirous of working of a surplus of frozen stock. Spring lambs sold at $13 to $15 each and choice sheep brought 9 to 10 cents a pound.

Hog receipts were almost double that of a week ago, and no over the week end commitment prices had been made. Salesmen were asking last week's top of $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b., but there was a feeling that $13 would have to be taken.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 26 (Canadian Press).—The spot cash grain market was again quiet today, there being no improvement from local or export buyers for supplies. The tone was steady and prices were unchanged.

A firmer feeling developed in the flour market for spring wheat grades, but there was no change in prices announced. The volume of business for export account showed no improvement, the demand still being restricted, but the local and country demand was steady, with car lots of first patents quoted at $9, second patents at $8.50, and strong bakers at $8.50 in jute bags, ex-track, less 10 cents per barrel for spot cash.

There was no further change in prices for potatoes, but the undertone to the market was easy on account of the liberal receipts. Sales of car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains were made at $4 to $4.25 per bag, Quebec varieties at $3.50 to $3.75, and Western potatoes at $3 to $3.50 per bag of 90 pounds, ex-track.

The condition of the cheese market was firm and some export business was done over the cable for shipment by the first vessel sailing from this port, and purchases of small lot of fodder goods were made on spot at 17 to 17 1-4 per pound. Receipts today were 861 boxes.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, April 26 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.84 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.85 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 26 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices developed strength today, helped by 1,310,000 bushels falling off in the United States visible supply total, and by liberal export business at Winnipeg. Closing quotations here for wheat were unsettled, 5-8 to 2 1-8 net higher, May (new) $1.63 to $1.63 1-8 and July $1.43 7-8 to $1.44, with corn unchanged to 1-2c off; oats unchanged to 3-8c down, and provisions unchanged to 22c decline.

Toward the end of the day all deliveries of wheat scored a decided gain. Late assertions that exporters at Winnipeg had taken 1,000,000 bushels today for shipment to Europe proved to be a final trump card for friends of higher prices.

REFUGEES SWARM IN FROM SUBURBS

Fifty Thousand Enter Peking With Stories of Manchurian Outrages.

PEKING, April 27. (United Press)—Fifty thousand excited refugees poured into Peking today with stories of alleged outrages committed by the Manchurian troops quartered in the suburbs. The food situation in the capital was acute and these additional mouths added to the seriousness of the shortage.

A majority of the shops are closed today owing to the attempts of the Manchurian military commanders to compel tradesmen to accept military money, which might be worth something today and nothing tomorrow.

The National garrison was driven from Peking last week by a coalition dominated by the Manchurian troops representing Marshal Chang Tso-Lin.

President Tuan Chi-Jui subsequently fled to Tientsin and now the city is without civil government.

WAR MEMORIES.

Editor Examiner:
Sir:

On this the 22nd day of April, one's memory again returns to the fields of action, where were depicted few of the former glorious traditions of war, but all of its most horrifying tragedies.

If one were to contruct a second series of Pyramids, a second Temple of Thebes, or a second Temple of King Solomon, these would be but poor reflections of the most exalted architectural minds, to glorify by such means the disability and loss of Canadian life during the four years our people were engaged with the enemy in France and other fronts.

Ypres, Festubert, Givenchy, St. Elois, Sanctuary Wood, Mt. Sorrel, Courcelette, Reina, The Quadrilateral, Desire, Vimy, Oppy Fresnoy and the battles for Passchendale Ridge, these and the final breaking of the Hindenburg line, together with the taking of the violently contested Drocourt-Queant line, were all life and death struggles of which the Canadian people knew very little, excepting the close relations of that army of ex-service men, many who are today termed misfits by a materialistic people who ten short years ago were on their knees praying hysterically that the country be saved from the ever approaching Hun.

A final word as to monuments. Would it not be a better practice to utilize these funds for genuine distress cases among these men? Our annual service memorials should be kept constantly before our people.

For those who have survived, they and theirs will forever hold in reverence the memory of those who passed in action. Their final sacrifices will be justly balanced by a Divine Engineer who "notices even when the sparrow falleth."

But for the living—let us in the name of justice and common-sense see that they and theirs are at least kept on the starboard side of want. Do not let us ape a country with two thousand years of tradition behind her, but rather let us quote as did the valiant Wolfe at the taking of Quebec in 1759:

"Can storied win or animated bust
Back to its mansion call the fleeting breath?
Can Honor's voice provoke the silent dust
Or flattery soothe the dull cold ear of death?

Let us not be deceived. The men who fell did so in the height of glory, and magnificent sacrifice to return to their Creator with the eulogy "Well done good and faithful servant."

They need no monuments no matter how well intentioned to forever keep green the memory of their glorious deeds and nobler deaths.

To the decrepit, maimed, unfit, these need care—and woe unto those who seeing their duty, shun the game, whether it be the Dominion Pensions Board, or the private Canadian individual.

Thanking your sir,

C. M. R.

NORTH MONAGHAN SCHOOLS

To The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Please allow me space in your valuable paper in regards to the school question in North Monaghan. Would it not be a wise idea for the Council of the said Township to call a meeting of the ratepayers and discuss the terrible situation which confronts us at the present time. There is a large number that has been turned away from the Kindergarten Class of the city schools, after over a year's schooling and after paying 30 cents per month during that time. It is impossible to get them in at May's School, as there is no room for them, likewise the city school, and the sooner there is a school built or accommodation for them, the better. There is lots of ground that can be had at a reasonable price at the present time for such a building.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

Yours truly,

WHITTEMORE MURDER TRIAL IS CONCLUDED AND JURY RETIRES

New York Bandit Chief Accused of Slaying Bank Messenger.

$93,000 ROBBERY.

BUFFALO, April 27. Canadian Press. — A jury in the supreme court last night was deliberating over the guilt or innocence of Richard Reese Whittemore, New York robber chieftain, in the murder of a bank guard here last November in a $9`.000 robbery.

The jury filed out of the court-room at 5.45 after hearing Justice Noonan charge them concerning the legal aspects of the candy kid's right to be acquitted or to be found guilty and be sentenced to the electric chair

District Attorney Guy B. Moore, and W. Bartlett Sumner, chief of defense counsel, made impassioned pleas to the jury prior to the justices' address.

A persistent crowd milled about the court room Monday afternoon, and delayed the trial almost twenty minutes.

Whittemore and his guards were jostled about when they were brought into the court room.

An attempt to impeach the testimony of Alfred Guggisberg, the star witness for the state in the trial of Richard Reese Whittemore, for the murder of a bank employee in a $93,-000 robbery here last October, marked the opening of the court. Guggisberg had testified that he talked with Whittemore in front of the Bank of Buffalo, where the hold up was staged a few minutes before the crime was committed and later saw him take part in the shooting.

Mike Melandinos, a restaurant keeper, testified in rebuttal of the Guggisberg testimony, that the latter had told him he expected a reward of $1500 for his testimony and would buy a car with the money.

Opposes Evidence.

In giving his reason for his presence at the bank the morning of the robbery, Guggisberg said he was waiting to make a deposit. The defense called Roy W. Clarke, a bank clerk, who testified that Guggisberg had not made a deposit for two years.

The jury is forced to choose between two diametrically opposed sets of evidence. The prosecution has placed on the stand four witnesses of the robbery, who identified Whittemore. The defense has called witnesses who swore that Whittemore was attending a party in Philadelphia early on the morning of the hold-up, and was in a New York tailor shop the afternoon of the crime.

Calls Him "Daffy."

In his address to the jury Defense Attorney Sumner bitterly attacked Guggisberg.

"'Daffy' Guggisberg would be a good name for him," he shouted. "If ever there was a half baked witness it was Guggisberg. And yet, Mr. Moore in his opening said, he would be a reputable business man. But what kind of a duck does this reputable business man prove to be? He turns out to be 'Daffy' Guggisberg.

"Guggisberg is a liar and a perjurer," Sumner charged. "And yet he is the state's star witness. He is the chief man upon whose evidence District Attorney Moore hopes to send this man to the electric chair.

"What kind of a man is this Guggisberg? He has been in jail for failure to keep up his payments for the support of his wife. He has never seen his youngest child. He said he was going to get $1500 for identifying Whittemore."

The defence attorney disputed the testimony of E. Kraft and Harry G. Russell, printers, who also identified Whittemore.

"Both wore glasses," he said. "Both are printers and I think everyone knows that printers cannot see very well. They were looking through dirty windows from the second floor. There is discrepancy in their testimony. One put him on the front end of the left hand running obard. The other put him on the rear end of the left hand side."

PHEASANTS RELEASED.

25 For Bird Sanctuary at Marmora.

MARMORA, April 26—On Friday afternoon, 25 of a flock of nearly 50 pheasants raised by Mr. Robert Nayler were released in the bird sanctuary west of Crowe River. These birds were hatched from eggs supplied by the Gocernment, as the result of action taken by the Marmora Booster Club. They have proved quite an attraction to villagers and visitors alike and the hope is expressed that they will thrive and multiply with the freedom now their theirs, that the woods around Marmora may be adorned with their presence.

A sufficient number are being retained in captivity for breeding purposes, so that it may be possible to release more next year.

Friday being St. George's Day, the Union Jack was floated full mast at St. Paul's Church.

Mrs. Bert Robson received word on Thursday of the death at Port Elgin of her father, William Smythe.

ICE AT SOO DELAYS LAKE NAVIGATION

Opening Expected By May 1st at Fort William.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press). — Preparations are being made here for the opening of navigation which will not, it is expected, be delayed after May 1st.

As far as conditions here are concerned, boats could move out any moment. The ice-breaker, James Whalen, ran up the Kaministiquia River Sunday as far as the Grand Trunk bridge and the river ice is now loose. The ice fields in the bay have been broken by the recent winds, and for a time Sunday the bay was clear of ice. But a change in the wind brought it all back in front of the harbors. The field is loose and will not take long to disintegrate and float away.

Already the lighthouse-keepers are getting ready and the Whalen will take six of them out to-day to begin their summer vigil at lights along the north shore. But, until the ice at the Soo is broken up, no vessels are expected to clear from here.

MOB OF WHITES OUSTS NEGROES CHURCH BURNED

Incensed Over Murder and Stabbing Affray in New Jersey Town.

DRIVEN FROM TOWN.

Masked Raiders Wield Baseball Bats—Police Were Routed.

CARTERET, N.J., April 26.—Incensed by the murder of one white man and the stabbing of another by negroes in a fight, a mob of white men from Carteret and nearby towns burned a negro church here and drove 100 colored men, women and children from their homes in the negro section near the church.

The crowd, in which many members were masked with handkerchiefs and armed with baseball bats and clubs, escorted the negroes as far as the border line of the adjoining town of Woodbridge, where they released them with directions not to return to Carteret.

The shooting, in which John Carroll, a local prize fighter, was killed, and Ralph Johnson, his companion, was wounded, was said to have been the result of ill feeling between whites and negroes which had been gradually developing, because of the increasing number of negroes being employed in industrial plants here.

Unable To Control Mob.

Police and firemen attempted to control the crowd, but could not. After the church had been burned and the entire negro population around the building removed, members of the mob retired.

The First Colored Baptist church, the building burned, was badly damaged, but firemen extinguished the flames before it was completely destroyed.

No attempt was made to burn the homes of the negroes and none of the colored people met with any violence, except some who refused to obey orders and were struck lightly with clubs.

Stabbed Him.

Carroll and Johnston, both popular in local sporting circles, got into the altercation on their way home.

As they passed a group of negroes, one of the colored men is said to have made a remark about Carroll and jostled him. An argument developed and ended when one of them stabbed Carroll, killing him almost instantly.

The colored men fled and Johnson pursued them. He was gaining on them, he said, when the same negro who killed Carroll, stopped, turned about and stabbed him. Johnson was taken to a hospital at Perth Amboy in a serious condition.

Six negroes were arrested. One of them, Robert Duceast, 24, was charged with murder pending investigation, and the others were held as material witnesses.

Pastor Beaten.

Rev. Mr. Reed, pastor of the negro church, was severely beaten by a group of men who jumped upon him from an automobile, as he was walking with his wife on the street. The men shook his wife, but did not strike her, and then escaped in an automobile.

The couple, fearing for their lives, immediately left for Port Reading, a nearby town.

One hundred and fifty grain elevators of the Kansas Flour Mills Company are included in the merger.

The headquarters of the new corporation will be in Kansas City. Thad L. Hoffman, president of the Kansas Flour Mills Company, is president, and Charles Valier, St. Louis, vice president. Directors include Fred Morrow of Toronto, and L. M. Gardiner, New York.

and there had been no substantial exodus of gold.

"Our prices now are in favorable relation to those in the United States," said the Chancellor. "Most important of all, we stand on a basis of reality. We may not be soaring in the clouds, but there is solid ground under our feet."

With reference to the coal dispute and its effect on the country's finances, Mr. Churchill declared that if a paralysis of industry overwhelmed the country through a coal strike he would be obliged to propost substantial increases in taxation, both direct and indirect.

Revenue From Betting.

Coming to the details of his plans, a large part of his statement turned on the betting tax, on which his Government is likely to meet with very strong criticism. Justifying adoption of the tax, he contended in advance of objections that it was recognition of betting, that the country had already benefited by this so-called vice, inasmuch as it imposed an income tax and a super-tax on bookmakers. On the general question of the legality of betting and whether it ought to be taxed, he remarked:

"I am not looking for trouble—I am looking for revenue."

The tax, he explained, would only be applied to legal forms of betting, which he had been informed covered nine-tenths of the money staked. The tax on race course cash bets would be collected by means of a system of tickets. He provoked laughter by a wry admission of his regret that he could not impose the tax until after the coming flat racing season.

Betting, the Chancellor argued, was certainly an optional luxury, and therefore a fit object for taxation. He did not propose to alter the law on the subject of betting, since his desire was merely to secure revenue.

"But," he remarked, "there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. Credit race course betting is legal, while street betting is illegal, though in practice everyone can bet with impunity."

It was the intention to levy a five per cent. tax on the amount of the stakes, and he did not doubt that the bookmaker would pass it on to his client with a shortening of odds.

Motor Taxation.

Dealing with the extension of taxes to all commercial motors and his appropriation of part of the proceeds of the road fund, Mr. Churchill said the Government was still considering the possibility of replacing the motor tax by a tax on petrol, which trade generally favored, but at present the difficulties were too great. The Government proposed that the revenue from motor taxation should be divided between the road fund and the exchequer on the broad basis that what was raised on account of wear and tear should go to the roads, and what belonged to luxury or pleasure should go to the state. One-third of the yield should be regarded as luxury and two-thirds for roads.

Proposing an increased duty on all commercial vehicles, he explained that it had been found impossible to make any discrimination between pleasure and commercial vehicles.

Retain Tariffs.

On the general fiscal question, he asserted that restoration of Imperial preference had been advantageous in home consumption of empire sugar, wines, raisins and tobacco. The duties on silk and artificial silk had been so successful he was sure any suggestion to repeal them would be received by the trade with dismay. The manufacturers' profits had not been reduced and the prices to the public had not been increased; therefore, there was no doubt the Customs duties had been paid by the foreigner. In short, the duty had raised over £6,000,000 and had worked with unexpected smoothness.

Among the minor items the Chancellor announced that the system of assessing income taxes on a three years' average would be abandoned next year.

Coming to the important question of the French debt, Mr. Churchill explained that in his negotiations with M. Caillaux, the then French Finance Minister, the payment of £12,500,000 was not to begin until 1930, and that up to that year there was proposed a system of gradually increasing payments, the suggestion for the current year being £4,000,000 as a beginning. But many political changes in France had delayed the settlement and without prejudice to the final settlement he had received from M. Peret an undertaking to make an unconditional first payment of that amount during the current year. He regarded this as a good augury for the financial power of France to strengthen her credit by proper re-organization of her external debts.

Other interesting points in the Chancellor's statement were that there had been an increase in the consumption of tobacco and that he was keeping in hand £3,000,000 of the coal subsidy, "in case it may be necessary for tapering the subsidy, or for other purposes."

CASTLE TRETHEWEY: Reported that number four vein mentioned previously has been located on the 625 ft. level and shows excellent values. This level will be further explored before doing very much work on the 700 ft. level. Conditions are steadily improving at this property and ore reserves are being increased rapidly.

South Lorrain District.

KEELEY: The recent report of Dr. J. Mackintosh Bell in this property shows that production is still being maintained at 125,000 ounces per month. The new ore shoot on the ninth level, 620 ft. from surface, is standing up exceedingly well, and should develop into an ore body of considerable size and value.

Cobalt District.

NIPISSING: Very encouraging report covering the first three months' operation this year has been sent out and speaks very encouragingly of their work on their South Lorrain properties. We look for important news from their properties on which they are doing development work in the very near future. Nipissing's Montbray property has shown excellent surface outcroppings which have been carefully trenched and samples. The result of this work justified them in sending in a diamond drill, which is now on the property and will be put in operation in a few days. Provided diamond drilling indicates that surface showings continue to depth, Nipissing will have a very valuable property there.

MINING CORPORATION: Recent reports from Manitoba indicated considerable doubt as to values holding at depth in properties now being developed. The official report on the Cryderman property being developed by Mining Corporation in Manitoba makes no mention of assays encountered in the shaft, but they are known to be of an average of over $50 per ton. A total length of 1,500 ft. of string vein formation has been uncovered on surface. Spectacular gold assays were obtained in many places over this length. The vein has been stripped for a length of 538 feet and shows an average width of 12 feet. The geology on this property is such as to give no indication which would confirm the reports sent out that values were low at depth. A second vein north of the main vein has been partially uncovered, showing an average width of 7 ft., with same character of ore as that occurring in the main vein. A steam plant and compressor are being installed and a shaft will be sunk immediately to a depth of 250 feet. It is generally conceded in mining circles and officially admitted by Mining Corporation heads that Cryderman has an excellent chance of developing into a mine of considerable size, which will before long prove an exceeding important asset to Mining Corporation.

Kirkland Lake District.

TECK-HUGHES: Production continuing at high rate as last month. Diamond drilling to determine downward extensions of ore bodies is well under way and favorable news should be obtainable in the near future. Mill heads are running between $23 and $25, with development continuing to open up high-grade ore on the upper levels.

WRIGHT-HARVREAVES: Downward extension of No. 2 vein has been cut on the 1,250 ft. level in crosscut at a point just below the bottom of the shaft on the 1,000 ft. level. The ore shows a width of fifteen feet and is typical number two vein material, assaying around $15 per ton. This ore does not show on the 1,000 ft. level immediately over the locality where found on the 1,250 ft. Its occurrence at this point proved a pleasant surprise to officials.

A second narrow vein was encountered between No. 1 and No. 2 veins in the 1,250 ft. crosscut. This vein will not be opened up until connection has been made from the 1,250 ft. level with shaft at the 1,000 ft. Its discovery opens up possibilities for a new ore body between the two main systems.

Delivery of the new hoist for the northern shaft is expected in about three weeks.

LAKE SHORE: Work of increasing compressor plant is under way and when completed should be followed by a quick increase in tonnage to mill. Lake Shore is at present milling approximately 400 tons per day, with a recovery of $15 per ton, or a total recovery per month of around $180,000.

Steady improvement in ore reserves is being shown. Work to the west on No. 1 vein on the 1,000 ft. level shows the vein to continue strong, with values of about $20 average.

The mill is at present capable of handling approximately 600 tons per day, and it is believed that grade can easily be maintained for this increased tonnage. All that is necessary at present is increased mining capacity and this will shortly be attained.

TOUGH OAKES: Nothing new since last report. Ore picket is being cut below the 1,250 ft. level and ore bin installed. It is not likely that important news will be available before 1,400 ft. level is reached in shaft now being sunk.

Porcupine District.

McINTYRE: Station is now being cut at the 2,500 ft. level in the new shaft. The mill is treating 1,400 tons per day and showed a record production for the first quarter of the present year, with gross recovery of $972,399 and an operating revenue of $434,587.

The McIntyre is rapidly getting ready for deep level operations, and the end of the present year should see the new shaft ready for operation.

McIntyre Red Lake claims have an excellent chance of developing into an important asset. At present diamond drilling is getting under way on their Red Lake holdings and another two months should show important results. Situated as they are, adjoining the Dome holdings (Howey claims), on which Dome are committed to an expenditure of $10,000 per month, the work on Dome will go a long way to prove up McIntyre's properties at no great expense to McIntyre.

HOLLINGER: Nothing of particular importance has occurred at this property since our last report. Arrangements for the increase in tonnage to 8,000 tons per day are proceeding smoothly.

An important feature in connection with Hollinger is the interests being obtained by Noah Timmins in Rouyn copper properties. His interest taken in the Waite-Montgomery, which is controlled in his name, will undoubtedly be of great importance, and it may be that Hollinger shareholders will be given a chance to participate. His interests also in the Amalet, Alderson-Mackay and other properties of undoubted merit may have an important bearing on the future position in regard to Hollinger shareholders.

At the present time the Waite-Montgomery has considerably better copper showings than the Noranda had when at the same stage of development. Alderson-Mackay property also has one of the best showings of copper ore in Quebec. There is nothing definite, of course, on any proposed plan along the lines of the above suggestion, but such properties would offer a good investment for part of the huge surplus which Hollinger has been building up.

Wheat Takes Early Jump After Decline Of Morning

CHICAGO, April 27. — (Canadian Press.) — Wheat jumped up quickly to-day after an early decline. Persistent adverse weather conditions, including forecast of freezing temperatures, acted as more than a counter balance for the initial declines that were due to the unexpected weakness of quotations at Liverpool. The opening, 1-8 to 1 1-8c. lower, May (new) 162 to 162 1-2 and July 143 1-4 to 143 3-4 was followed by material gains with May touching 165 1-4 and July 145.

Corn and oats were swayed by fluctuations of wheat. After opening 5-8 off to 3-8c. up, July 77 3-4 to 77 1-8c., corn sagged all around, but then recovered, going in some cases to above yesterday's finish.

Oats started at 1-8c. decline to a shade advance, July 41 3-4 to 41 7-8c. Later all months showed losses which soon were replaced by fractional gains. In the line with hog values, the provision market was weak.

PLEASANT MUSICALE.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park Arranges Splendid Programme By Pupils.

A very pleasant musicale was held in the studio of the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon, when the programme was given by pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park. Mrs. Park arranged a very enjoyable series of songs, and also gave a brief paper descriptive of the work of the various composers whose songs were rendered by the pupils. The description of the composer preceded each number and made an effective introduction to the song.

At the conclusion of the musical programme, tea was served. Tea hostesses were Mrs. R. W. Cormack and Mrs. W. H. Pretty, and assistants were the Misses Margaret Widdess, Ruth Sutton, Clara Morris, Ruth Barnes and Mary Westbye. The table was prettily decorated with marigolds in a silver basket and blue candles in silver holders.

The following series of songs were given: "The Crying of Water" (Campbell - Tipton) and "Then Weep! Thou Grief Worn Eyes" (Massenet) sung by Mrs. N. D. Foote; "Silent Noon" (Vaughan-Williams) and "My Abode" (Schubert) sung by Miss Bertha Hill; "Rose Softly Blooming" (Spohr) and "Solveig's Song" (Grieg) sung by Mrs. Ross Williamson; "Morning Hymn" (Henschel) and "Elsa's Dream" (Lohengrin-Wagner) sung by Miss Daisy Murray; "Sapphic Ode" (Brahms) and "I Will Extol Thee" (Costa) sung by Mrs. H. F. Doig.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous waste matter is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

There is no guess work about Rheuma bringing you back to health. That's why McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick relief.

AMUSING FARCE IS PRESENTED

Lakefield Amateur Actors Attract Attention By Starting on Time.

HIGHLY ENJOYED.

LAKEFIELD, April 27.—The musical farce "The King of Timbuctoo," which was put on in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening under the auspices of St. John's Chancel Guild, was a great success in every way. The hall was packed to capacity with an audience which was thoroughly appreciative and the songs, dialogues and dances all won hearty rounds of applause By beginning punctually at 8.15 (the hour advertised) the entertainment got away to a good start and the tuneful melodies, the well-balanced cast and the many humorous situations kept the audience in roars of laughter throughout the two acts which constituted the play. The plot was slight, as is usual with this sort of entertainment and revolved around the fact that in Timbuctoo, when a king reigned for twenty-five years he was compelled to abdicate in favor of his eldest son and unless he (the old king) could produce a happy woman his head would be severed from his body. The king had reached the end of his reign and he was horrified to find that a happy woman was practically an unknown commodity in his kingdom. He was frantic in his search and engaged the assistance of Slick Bill Morrison (a travelling showman) to find the desired lady. The resourceful Bill hunts high and low, even taking a lantern to aid him in his search which alienates the affections of his wife, Stella, who turns for comfort to her old lover, Professor Alexander Macks, who is a celebrated botanist. He, in his turn, is married, and to a young lady, many years his junior, who is a new woman and keeps his husband hopping about obeying her commands. The landlord of the Hotel Timbuctoo plays his part in assisting his majesty with apparently unlimite credit.

The royal army, under the distinguished leadership of General Mastiens, is a truly remarkable corps, and one which keeps the audience in roars every time it appears on the stage. The "little joker" of the farce was the court chamberlain, who had multitudinous duties all of which were cheerfully performed; "Ginger" responded to every call of his very whimsical master and made one of the hits of the evening. Princess Milita and Marie de Fleur de Lis (a Canadian heiress), were two pretty girls, the former being wooed by the formidable General Nasticus and the latter winning the heart of the handsome young Prince Shande Lear whose coronation is one of the events of the last act. Four friends of Marie are, Lillie, Pansy, Violet and Goldie.

When despair has settled in the king's heart in his unsuccessful search for a happy woman, and Ginger, who was disguised to take the part in order to save the life of his master, failed to "put over" his impersonation, the prince produces Marie, his promised bride and queen, who is really a woman. The king retired with the avowed intention of having a good time and joining the curling club.

The music was pretty and every number received hearty applause, perhaps the catchy solo and chorus "Just Around the Corner," and the chorus "Give Me a Little Kiss, Will You, Huh," were among the most popular and the ensemble "High Street, Africa," made a hit. The solos and duets were excellently rendered and thoroughly enjoyed and were varied in character, appealing to the diverse tastes of the audience. Two of the good old favorites which never die were sung, Rev. Walter Cox rendering the Irish ballad, "The Dear Little Girl," and Mrs. Bailey and Mr. Cox sang "Huntingtime," the old Scotch classic. The applause of the audience was evidence that in this age of jazz, the old favorites have not lost their appeal to the heart. Humorous solos were sung by Mrs. Osborne and Mrs. Fawcett, the former giving a merry little jig in addition to her "Happy Hottentot" sing. Mrs. Northy and Mr. Summers sang "I do" with the chorus sung by the Army and the quartette of young girls. It was pretty and got a good round of applause, also the tuneful "Always" by Mesdames Bailey and Fawcett. "Nobody's Business," by Mr. Cox and the Army was heartily encored. One of the prettiest and most unique features was the dance of the dolls which was exceedingly well done and was encored. The dolls were five pretty girls in the daintiest of crepe paper costumes of white, blue, green, orchid and yellow and whose performance reflected credit not only on themselves, but on Mrs. Osborne, who had trained them. The girls were, Misses Mamie Brown, Ruth Crawford, Mary Hewitt, Angela Osborne and Gwendolyn Simpson.

The characters in the entire play were well-chosen, each one doing his or her part so well that comparison would be unfair, as some parts called for greater effort than others. One critic remarked that the parts might have been written especially for this cast, so well were they performed. Mrs. Osborne and Mr. Grier, who arranged the entertainment, deserve special mention for their work, they worked faithfully, refusing to be discouraged even when the flu laid low several members of the cast almost at the eleventh hour.

The work of the musical director, Mr. G. G. Connell contributed in a great measure to the success of the play as he was always ready, inspiring confidence in the players who were inclined to be shy, because of his efficiency and unremitting attention to his share, and his unfailing good humor.

The following is the cast:—Prince Shande Lear, the Prince Charming and the heir to the throne, Mr. Eric Moore; Professor Alexander Mark of Lakefield, the hen-pecked botanist, Rev. W. Cox; Piper Heidsiek, the landlord of the Hotel Timbuctoo and called "Irish" by his acquaintances and friends, Mr. E. M. Grier; Slick Bill Morrison, the Showman, who could put over any deal, Mr. Don FitzGerald; General Nasticus, the commander of the Army, Mr. Clare Irwin; Ginger, the Court Chamberlain, the happy Hottentot, Mrs. Osborne; Princess Nirita, a charming little flirt, the daughter of the King, Miss Angela Osborne; Marie Fleur de Lis, a Canadian heiress, whose charms captured the heart of the Prince, Mrs. Don FitzGerald.

Stella Foxey, the prima donna wife of Morrison, Mrs. Bailey; Rita Macks, a new woman, Mrs. E. H. Northey; The King of Timbuctoo, whose days are numbered, Mrs. Fawcett; Friends of Marie, (Lillie) Miss Mamie Brown; (Pansy) Miss Mary Hewitt; (Violet) Miss Ruth Crawford; (Goldie) Miss Gwendolyn Simpson.

The Army: July, Mr. Bert Summers; August, Mr. E. Robertshaw; September, Mr. James Cockburn; October, Mr. Lawrence Charlton.

MARK STREET CHOIR CONCERT

The annual concert presented by the choir of Mark Street Church last evening was a very successful event, well attended. The choir, which was assisted by Mrs. H. F. Doig, vocal soloist, and Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, reader, acquitted itself with great credit to its director, Mr. V. Boorman, whose careful attention to tempo and a full the admirable choral singing, and demonstrated also its own attention to all the details of vocalization that make for success in an event of this sort. The choir sings with splendid effect, giving a fine account of itself that might well be emulated by much larger choirs. With careful attention to tempo and afull voiced, powerful tone, their selections were very pleasing, especially the majestic number, "By Babylon's Wave" and the famous "Goin Home" rendition, from Dvorak's "New World" Symphony.

The work of the assisting artists was very attractive. Mrs. H. F. Doig, whose clear, fine soprano was heard to advantage in several solos, and Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, who recited several times in her own characteristic, effective fashion, both received hearty encores for very number. The other singers who assisted and Mr. Joseph Minicolo, who played several cornet selections, were also received with much appreciation.

The programme included the following numbers by the choir: "I Will Sing of Thy Power," "There is a Blesse Home," "By Babylon's Wave' and "Goin' Home," vocal selections by Mrs. H. F. Doig, Mrs. H. Hunter, Mrs. E. Wand, and Miss Fern Stenton, numbers by a male quartette, composed of Messrs. Boorman, Wood, Smith and Mills, and a mixed quartette, composed of Mrs. H. F. Doig, Miss F. Stenton and Messrs. Smith and Boorman, readings by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland and cornet solos by Mr. J. Minicolo. Solo work in the choral seelctions was taken by Mrs. Doig and Mr. V. Boorman.

The stage was prettily arranged with quantities of ferns and plants. Rev. R. T. Richards acted as chairman for the occasion, Mr. A. Nicholls as accompanist.

At the conclusion of the programme, the choir and assisting artists were entertained in the basement of the church at an enjoyable banquet provided by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

TORONTO, April 27. — (Canadian Press.)—The evolution of the British Empire, its relations with the United States, and the maintenance of peace in Europe, are undoubtedly the three greatest political questions of the near future, declared Sir Esme Howard, British Ambasador to the United States, in an address to the Canadian, Empire and Rotary Clubs of Toronto, which met jointly.

"I look to Canada in the future to play a very great part in all questions affecting the Empire at large," declared Sir Esme, "above all in the all important question of maintaining Anglo-American relations on a sound, healthy and friendly footing."

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute
—Milton.

Peggy.—You are of the type that should do considerable spadework on your own character, if your reading is to be believed. You have quite a degree of physical strength and tenacity, allied with a disposition that inclines toward reserve and retirement. At times you have to strive hard against shyness and a tendency toward morbidness. You are, too, usually dissatisfied and nervous, having the habit of wishing that you were engaged in some other pursuit or could be off somewhere else. Although you are very kind and sympathetic to people in trouble or sickness, you are quite disagreeable when ill yourself, and, at all times, have a habit of nagging, scolding and fault-finding which is intensely unfortunate. Cultivate cheerfulness and steadfastness, resolve not to murmur and complain and to conquer some of your inborn restlessness by keeping your hands and feet still. Guard your health with care and try to be moderate in everything that you do. Try to be lovable and attract others to you. You can be a great power for good if you try. Marry a man born in February or November. April and August are your good months. Friday your good day. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are blue and cream, also green and silver.

A. M. X.—You have rather a nice type of nature, although you have your faults like everyone else. Your disposition inclines to the gentle, peace-loving side, and circumstances of your life have cast your lot in places where service to others—the service inspired by love—is your way of gaining happiness and success, still you have traits that make it hard sometimes for others to understand you. Your mind is very keen and works so quickly that others do not always understand your methods, and you are always busy and hate to await results. You are strong in your likes and dislikes, and are apt to despise what you cannot comprehend. Your health is usually quite good, nervous trouble, brought on by worry and anger, sometimes causing you to have indigestion and insomnia. You are very self reliant and should try to cultivate your own self-respect, rather than depend on the gratitude of others, which often fails you. You have such a high regard for the truth that you fail to understand those who have not the same regard for it. Cultivate calmness and repose, and the happy faculty of not seeing those little things that annoy. Remember that other people have a right to their own ideas, even if they don't jibe with your own. February and June are your good months Thursday your lucky day. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are grey and heliotrope.

W. W. F.—You are of the type that is naturally rather gentle, but you have conflicting threads in your character. You are inclined to be reserved and shy, with a strong liking for matters occult and mystic. Still, you have a very strong liking for your fellow-men and are not apt to impugn wrong motives or ideas to others, always preferring to think that they are actuated by good intentions. You are not careful enough of your health, constantly worrying about the unfinished task, and do not always get enough rest and sleep, either. You are quick in your speech, which is not always gentle and are apt to despise things which you do not comprehend. You are not easily deceived, seeming to scent a lie from afar off, but you are apt to be misunderstood because you often hide a kind heart behind a rough tongue. Try to cultivate calmness and repose, to repel worry and to never harbor thoughts of hatred, envy or jealousy. Develop your talents along one line, remembering that the specialist who knows is bound to succeed. Choose your own path in life, regardless of the advice of others. February and June are your good months, Thursday your lucky day. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are grey and scarlet.

V. P. F.—You have a somewhat conflicting personality, and will have to watch carefully that you do not allow certain elements in your character to ruin your life. Naturally peace-loving and gentle, with a strongly marked "marriage" destiny, still you are of the type that may not marry early, as you should, because you value most the affection which you cannot have, and are not so apt to appreciate the best type of affection or person. Your manifest destiny in life is to gain happiness by one way only, in making others happy, and in doing this, you will have to watch constantly against certain grave faults. Although you are large and true in essence, you are very fickle and capricious, and, while willing to work too hard, you will lose many friends and opportunities through anger and jealousy and lack of patience. You are quite keen at reading the thoughts and intentions of people around you. You must always remember that he who dances must pay the fiddler sooner or later, and resolve not to over-indulge your senses. Be careful of strong drink and of companions whose influence will not be for your good. You would make a good politician, if you can practice self-control and live up to what you may be, if you watch your own nature constantly. Marry a girl born in December. June and July are your good months. Tuesday your good day. You were born on Monday. Your colors are orange and gray.

E. A. B.—Although you have been affected to a certain extent throughout your life by an element of change and uncertainty that has made it hard for you to always decide what was best, still, your life has been one of service and help. It is along this channel that you will attain your greatest happiness. You are very fond of the pleasures of social life, and are apt to be extravagant. You are inclined to borrow books and other articles, and then resent criticism when you do not return them promptly. You are easily confused, and do not like busy thoroughfares. You are quite careless of your belongings, and have a habit of dropping and losing things. You are fond of praise and easily wounded by trifles. You are enthusiastic about most things, but dislike routine. Worry, anger and impatience have an immediate effect upon your nerves and digestion. "Think often of your friends and seldom of your enemies" should be your motto. Follow your own intuitions at all times. August and December are your lucky months, Friday your good day. You were born on Monday. Your color is pink.

Jem.—You have an earnest, outspoken frankness of speech and manner that frequently gets you into difficulties with friends, as, being quick tempered and impulsive, although well meaning, you usually utter the first thing that comes into your mind, thus often putting your foot in it, as the saying goes. For this reason you make enemies and your real disposition is misunderstood by those who have not a long acquaintance with you. You have a keen sense of humour and sarcasm. You have a nature that is eminently fitted for marriage, with a strong influence in art, philanthropy and inspiration. You also have unusual understanding and sympathy and others will demand much of you in these ways as you go through life. You should first of all determine just what you want to do, then follow out your own individuality at all times. In this lies the secret of your strength and success. Do not see little things which annoy and try to remember that others have a right to their own opinions, even if they do not coincide at all times with yours. Marry a man born in April, August or November. February and June are your good months, Thursday your lucky day. Strive to avoid worry, jealousy, hate and anger at all times. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are gray and scarlet.

J. T.—You are generous and ambitious, full of hope and enthusiasm, and inclined to a limited vision that makes you disregard the rights of others and strive to domineer a little. You have always had to work quite hard and will always have to do so. You are inclined to be extravagant and to be careless about money matters. You are apt to borrow books and other articles, and then become offended when asked to return them. You are easily confused and dislike crowds. Nervous prostration and stomach trouble are your bugbears, often caused by worry, anger and impatience. You are bound to succeed in anything you attempt if you will stop worrying and go to work with a will. Success will come to you when you conquer your quick temper and worrying tendencies, for you lose much vital force in worrying over things that never happen. You should keep as a motto Think often of your friends and seldom of your enemies." Follow out your own intuitions and you will not be deceived. Strive for habits of order, even in small things, and do not place too much value on the appreciation and praise of others. Learn to value most your own opinion of yourself. Be careful in selecting friends, as your mind is susceptible to others' influence. You were born on Monday. Your colors are the many variations of flame, from yellow to blue.

M. M. B. S.—You have naturally a strong, active, crea ive nature, logical and inclined to be domineering and to disregard the rights of others, being somewhat self-centred in essence. You are conservative in your ways, however, and have rather a reserved type of bearing, inclined occasionally to morbidness and introspection. You are fond of the study of things religious and occult. You have an intuitional, receptive, somewhat poetic nature, but, in daily life, are always persistent and competent in the performance of your duties. You learn readily from example, feeling quite keenly the sentiments of others. When angry, you are apt to leave nothing unsaid, and can be quite cutting and rather taunting. There is a simplicity of style about your general conversation that is quite pleasing, but when describing or imitating others, you are prone to exaggeration. You like the beautiful and luxurious things of life and have remarkable foresight, being particularly intuitive in the buying and selling of commodities. You require a great deal of rest and quiet, although you are fond of excitement. You were born on Thursday. Your colors are all the variations of flame, from yellow and orange to gas blue.

Cherry.—You are of the type which is apt to have a double nature, and you should constantly watch that the higher and better nature is in power. Your greatest defect is nervous dissatisfaction. You are always wishing that you were somewhere else or doing something else. You are very kind and sympathetic toward people in trouble or sick persons, but you have a habit of nagging, scolding and fault-finding that is very disagreeable at times, and when ill, you are very hard to get along with. You are very fond of color and flowers, and of everything beautiful in nature and art. You are affectionate, unselfish and self-sacrificing. You have a good deal of somewhat heavy creative power and tenacity and are very executive with your hands, being able to cut and plan very readily. You must always guard your health carefully, particularly your stomach and intestines. As your manifest destiny in life is to achieve happiness by bringing joy and happiness to the lives of others, you must constantly watch against this scolding and fault-finding habit, which may grow upon you without your own knowledge. You were born on Saturday. Your colors are blue and cream. April and August are your good months. Friday your lucky day.

S. B. J.—Although you were born with a charming, vacillating temperament that will inevitably make for non-success in life, you have a destiny that calls for service to others as its watchword. You would make a fine nurse, or an equally excellent teacher. Circumstances of your life have trained you to a great extent to overcome this fickle quality in your makeup, but it breaks forth occasionally and causes you a great deal of concern, because you are of the superior type that is quite self-possessed and have a cool, calm, confident bearing. You have a discriminating and analytical mind, capable of acquiring much practical knowledge, with a very keen eyesight and a remarkable memory. In harmonious and discordant conditions about you affect your health generally and your appetite. You are somewhat inclined to selfishness and self-gratification, but make a very devoted friend. You have rather clear-cut features, and are apt to make fine distinctions in speaking. You were born on Monday. Your color is pink. You ask about a date in 1911, whether purposely or not, I cannot say. However, that day, a Wednesday, was one for avoiding arguments,—also marriage.

F. M. H.—You should have quite a high degree of mentality, and a liking for mental and scientific affairs. However, service to others has been your destiny in life. You are very competent in times of sickness or trouble. You have an acquisitive habit of mind, which causes you to seek for knowledge along many channels. You are fond of gathering information about many subjects and ask a great many questions, sometimes being a little bit irritating in this respect, as other people cannot always understand your longing for information on apparently irrelevant matters. You are inclined also to exact a reason for others' actions, and are quite willing to give detailed reasons for your own doings. You are thoughtful, industrious, sensible and persevering, without, however, enough confidence or self-assertiveness. You are of the type that is self-sacrificing and willing to do much for others, while not always demanding attention for yourself. You are liable to self-censure and despondency and sometimes like to give way to fits of melancholy weeping. If you would brace up and resolve that you should get an adequate return for what you put into life and do for other people, you would do much better than wishing for gratitude which you may never receive. You have feet that give you a good deal of trouble in obtaining comfortable shoes. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are tan and buff shades.

M. A. H.—You have a great deal of natural attraction for others in your make-up, but you lack depth of character and have a quality of vacillation and fickleness in your character that will not make for happiness for yourself or others, unless you resolve while young to control it. Changeful habits of mind are the cause of much worry to their possessor and those who associate with them. If you wish to achieve success, you will have to watch this trait more than anything else in your disposition, as the only way in which you can achieve happiness is by constantly keeping at your job, by plugging away and working hard. It is not likely that you will make much of yourself in life, because this habit of fickle behaviour will rule all your days. You are not patient, you have a quick temper and become very jealous over imaginary slights. You will, when married, hold your husband to an exactness of attention that will be a weariness to him, and you will destroy many of your best chances in life through jealousy. You are large and true, but a child of caprice; and this will have a sad effect on your destiny. If you wish to improve, you should strive to conquer indecision of character, never touch strong drink or drugs, cultivate firmness, and be careful of your associates, who will have much influence over you. You were born on Saturday. Your color is pink.

WARNING PROVES UNTRUE

The warning received by Julius Caesar to "beware the Ides of March" had nothing on the warning received by North Bay "to beware April 21." The warning appears in raised letters on the shell of an egg which Mrs. Alfred Turner found in her hen house. The inscription reads, "Earthquake, beware April 21." A close-up of the egg is shown above, and Mrs. Turner is shown beside it. She declares it would have been impossible for anyone to place the egg in the coop where she found it. The earthquake failed to materialize.

Why do motor cars cost more in Canada than in the United States?

Here is one of the big reasons accounting for the difference:

Last year manufacturers of motor vehicles and parts in Canada paid the Canadian Government---

In customs duties on parts and materials	$10,000,000
In sales, excise and stamp taxes	7,400,000
Total	$17,400,000
Meanwhile, the number of motor vehicles they made and sold in Canada was	84,000
Dividing one into the other it is obvious that on each such car the Canadian Government collected in taxes	$207.14

Therefore, every person who buys a made-in-Canada motor car has to pay a price that includes an average of $207.14 which the manufacturer has had to collect for payment to the Canadian Government!

So don't lay the blame for this on the Canadian manufacturer!

MILLBROOK LADY IS 91 YEARS OLD

Mrs. Thomas Gillott Has Lived in Village 70 Years.

CAME AS BRIDE

MILLBROOK, April 27.—Passing the ninety-first milestone on life's journey is an event few are privileged to experience, Millbrook's oldest resident, Mrs. Thomas Gillott, having just celebrated this happy occasion.

Enjoying a fair degree of health, able to go about her home daily, and attend to many of the duties connected with its care and upkeep, Mrs. Gillott retains to an unusual extent, her faculties of sight, hearing, and memory, her mind going back readily to the events of earlier years.

For seventy years a resident of this locality, coming here a bride a few weeks prior to her twenty-first birthday, Mrs. Gillott has seen many changes in the village, her life history being largely interwoven with that of the community.

Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards, were pioneer settlers of Hope Township, her father building on his homestead, on the Fourth Concession of Hope, the first frame house in that part of Durham County. The property is still in the family, her niece [illegible] her husband, Mr. and Mrs. McCullough, occupying the home farm.

Mrs. Gillott's marriage to the late Thomas Gillott, took place seventy-three years ago, on November 14, 1853, at the parsonage of the Baptist minister, Rev. Mr. Baird, of Port Hope, the latter performing the ceremony. They celebrated their Golden Wedding twenty-three years ago, the citizens of the community doing them honor on that occasion.

Mrs. Gillott has experienced two disastrous fires during her residence in Millbrook, in both of which her husband's place of business, and their home which adjoined, were completely destroyed.

The first fire occurred when they were living on Tupper street, then the main street of the village, which at that time boasted between two and three hundred inhabitants. This fire was of incendiary origin. Later Mr. Gillott built on King street, to which business had largely been diverted, locating his undertaking and furniture establishment about where W. E. Ball's store now stands. Here a defective chimney caused the fire about breakfast time on a cold winter's morning.

Mr. Gillott built the cottage on Bank street, now occupied by Mr. George Hetherington, and for sixteen years it was their home, but after his business was moved to King street, this house was found inconveniently far from the warerooms and they sold the cottage and took up their residence in the rooms over the store and workshop.

When the "big fire" as it is always called, occurred in 1875, when buildings were practically all of frame construction, and wiped out a number of homes and the major portion of the business section, it was only by the most persistent efforts that the Gillott premises, newly built on their present location less than two years before, were saved. Mrs. Gillott's initiative in soaking a large rag carpet taken from her living room floor, and getting some of the men to nail it on the roof of the Brealey store adjoining, and keeping wet blankets hung along the side wall, besides encouraging by her personal example the formation of a new "bucket brigade," undoubtedly furnished the reason why the Gillott building escaped the flames.

Following this experience she persistently urged her husband, then a member of the council, (the village was incorporated in 1880) to induce that body to purchase a fire engine, and when the "city fathers" kept deferring action from month to month, she personally interviewed the reeve, the late Squire Ferguson, indicating that she would circulate a petition and have it signed by every voter in the community, demanding that proper fire protection be provided. This led to the purchase of the "little engine," run by hand power, which was credited with extinguishing over twenty fires before the larger steam engine was available. The hand engine was often jokingly called "Gillott's baby," as Mrs. Gillott smilingly recalls.

Another interesting item which Mrs. Gillott recalls is the fact that her nearest neighbor, when she came here a bride, was Mr. James Stratton, then teaching school in the old town hall, a frame building which Mrs. Gillott thinks is now used as a garage having been moved just east of the creek on King street. One of Mr. Stratton's sons was the late Honorable J. R. Stratton, of Peterborough.

Mrs. Gillott's daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott, Mrs. L. S. Clarry, and Mrs. William Thorne assisted in the quiet celebration held when the ninety-first birthday was reached and a number of friends called to offer congratulations and best wishes for the days ahead. Among the beautiful flowers sent was a bouquet from Grace church, ten big pink roses, nine representing ten years each, with an extra one for the odd years. Letters, telegrams, and gifts of candy, were also received.

The entire community joins with her immediate relatives and friends, in wishing Mrs. Gillott "many happy returns of the day."

Advanced years do not in any way detract from Mrs. Gillott's genuine enjoyment of one of the modern inventions, an up-to-date radio installed in her home during the winter by her son, W. J. E. Gillott, which provides many hours, both of entertainment and companionship.

The Wide Awakes, group of Canadian Girls in Training held its regular meeting on Wednesday evening, illness among the members lessening the attendance, but not detracting from the active interest of the girls in the work.

Following the opening business period, a discussion of "Hobbies" was taken up after a reading by Jean Stinson on this subject, the benefits in a broadened outlook and interest being considered in detail, with practical suggestions as an incentive to the girls to cultivate this helpful feature of their constitution as an organized group.

"The Boy Who Discovered Spring," was read by Margaret Howard, and the special prayer chapter, Acts 12:1-19, which the group has taken as its subject for Scripture study and helpfulness this year, was read alternately.

The leader's talk followed the line of the Bible lesson, the "Finnish Gold Story," from Dr. S. D. Gordon's "Quiet Hour," being the topic presented. "Persistence and definiteness are two requisites of prevailing prayer, if the capstone of our undertakings is to be brought forth with glad shoutings of praise to our wondrous, faithful God."

The usual social and recreational hour was enjoyed at the close.

Mrs. J. M Taggart, of Westport, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Vance, has returned home.

Married—In Toronto, on Saturday, April 10, by Rev. Dr. Graham, Alexander Marguerite, youngest daughter of the late Mr. F. P. Johnston, and Mrs Johnston, Millbrook, to James Clarence Jackson, only son of Mr. and Mrs George Jackson of Toronto.

The family from England which has been so long expected to take possession of the farm at the east end of the village, formerly occupied by G. Howson, arrived last week. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Acreman, and family, will be welcomed in the community. He is a veteran of the world war. Russell Smith held this farm for a time, under the Soldiers' Settlement Board, but gave it up on finding he could not work it profitably under the terms by which the Board gave soldier settlers an opportunity on the land.

Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard attended the initial meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Cobourg Presbyteria' held in Trinity United Church, Cobourg, on Tuesday. Mrs J. McKnight, President of the Mission Circle, and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, of the former Presbyterian church, were the other delegates from the Millbrook United Church missionary organizations. Mrs. O Williamson, superintendent of the mission band, was prevented by illness from being present.

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Two women are deeply in love with Harry Morton, who is wealthy, attractive, middle-aged and unmarried. One is Audrey, his 19-year-old ward. The other is Nona, a Toronto girl.

Morton, whose past is unknown to the gossips of Peterborough, has lived there for 15 years, maintaining also an expensive apartment in Toronto, which he visits weekly, taking Audrey with him.

None comes to his apartment to ask forgiveness for a jealous attack she has made on him, and the two girls meet. Audrey declares her love for Morton, and asks him to marry her. He evades the question, and hires John Parrish to be his secretary, instructing him to be a companion to Audrey. She detects his purpose. Trying another expedient, he orders Parrish to take $5,000 to Nona, and instruct her to buy a single piece of jewelry with it. Parrish refuses to go.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

It was a real crisis in the relations of Morton and his newly engaged secretary.

Boylike, Parrish expressed his own determination by clenched fists, and flushed, tense face. Morton, the man of the world, sure of himself and of his moral mastery of the situation, sat looking at Parrish as he might have looked upon an interesting child.

He waved his hand toward a chair.

"Sit down," he ordered.

Parrish slowly obeyed.

"Now," Morton continued, "will you tell me exactly why you won't do as I tell you?"

The young man shifted in his seat. Finally, his eyes fixed upon the floor, his feet twisted together, and his hands in nervous motion upon the arms of the chair, he answered.

"I've heard about your reputation," he blurted.

Morton smiled. "Just what have you heard?" he inquired.

Parrish considered. "Well, I know what your reputation is. They say that you have lots of women on the string, and that you run around with them to places where you oughtn't to go, and—and—well, everybody says that you're a roue."

"And," said Morton, gently, "just what has that to do with your refusing to go on my errand?"

Parrish looked up, evidently surprised. "Why," he said, staring at Morton, "you are sending me on an immoral errand. You're sending me with money to buy jewels for a woman."

Morton leaned forward across the desk.

"Does it occur to you," he asked, "that you are displaying yourself as an insufferable young prig?"

Parrish reddened.

"Do you know what a prig is?" Morton persisted.

Parrish did not answer.

"A prig," Morton continued, "is a Pharisee—and a confounded nuisance to boot. As you get older, you'll find that you have enough to do to look after your own morals, without sitting in judgment on the morals of others.

"Just look what your idea is: Here's an employer who told you to take a check to a given address, and deliver a message. You don't know whether the woman you are to meet is a good woman or not. You know nothing about her. In your self-righteousness, you decide that the errand is a bad one. Therefore, you won't do it. Parrish!"

He spoke the name suddenly, and the young man started. "Sir?" he said.

"Have you dirty spots in your mind?" Morton's tone was coldly incisive, and his eyes seemed to be boring into the young man before him.

Parrish was confused. "No sir, I don't think so," he said. "I'm quite sure not."

Morton pointed his forefinger at him. "Young man, people who are accustomed to think evil of others, usually have a good deal of concealed evil in their own minds."

Arising, he walked to the window, and stood there a few moments, his hands thrust deep in his trousers' pockets. After a silence, he turned and resumed:

"Are you going to do my errand?"

Parrish slowly got up, reached for the check and for the penciled memorandum that his employer had written a few minutes before, and silently left the room.

Morton watched him go, and then, with a short laugh, resumed his seat and began dictating letters.

* * *

When Morton, with Audrey and Parrish arrived at Peterborough the next morning, it was raining. The clouds seemed to hang at the level of the house-tops, and the air was chill.

"Daddy, let's walk in the rain," Audrey proposed.

Morton nodded. Turning to the chauffeur, he told him to take their baggage to the house, and asked Parrish if he, too, wanted to walk.

"I have your brief-case," Parrish said, "and there are some things I want to look at in it. I'd better ride."

His eyes were on Audrey while he spoke, as if waiting for her to ask him to come. She said nothing, however, and so he rode away in the enclosed car, as the man and girl trudged off in the down-pour. Neither wore a raincoat, and they had no umbrella.

"I suppose I'll be getting old, when I no longer like the drive of rain in my face," he said.

She hugged his arm with hers. "You'll never be old," she said. "There's something young in you that always is going to be there."

They were dripping wet when they got home, and retired to their own apartments for a hasty bath, and a change of clothes.

When they reappeared, the rain had ceased, and the sun had begun to shine.

"Want to come down to the office with me?" he asked.

It was a rare request from him. For most of her life, Morton's office had been as strange to Audrey as if it bore no relation to her own existence or to that of her guardian. Pleased, she assented, and together they set off.

As they passed a telegraph office, Morton asked the girl to wait a moment. He left her standing on the step, as he went inside, and hastily wrote a telegram.

It was to Nona.

"Can you come to Peterborough tomorrow, to stay about two weeks?" it read.

Telling the clerk to charge the message to his account, he rejoined Audrey, and together they went on down the street.

"Here's why I awnted you to come to my office," he said, as the girl settled herself in a chair beside his desk.

He took some papers from a drawer, and passed them to her. She lifted the folded documents, shuffling them in her hands, and looked at him inquiringly.

"You haven't known it," he said "but since your eighteenth birthday you have really been independent of me."

"But I don't want to be independent of you," she said promptly.

He laughed. "But this is a practical matter—a financial affair. Those papers that you have in your hand mean this, briefly—you are a rich woman. I have turned over to you, in cash, and bonds, one-half of everything that I own—or used to own."

He looked at her inquiringly. She smiled, laid down the papers, came around the edge of the desk, and kissed him warmly.

"Thank you, daddy," she said, "but I don't want it. I don't want to have you give me all that. You've given me everything as it is, and I want you to have all the money."

He shook his head, as he patted her fondly on the cheek.

"But, my child, there are certain practical things in life. There may come a time when you dislike me utterly."

She tried to seal his mouth with her hand, but he held her wrist, and went on: "Whether that time comes or not—whether you like me, or don't like me—it is a good thing for you to have your own money, and to be able to do exactly what you want.

"There is an account in the bank in your name. It is enough to take you around the world, if you want to do that. There's a safe-deposit box, also in your name. It has in it railroad and government bonds, which you can turn into cash any time you want to. These bonds have coupons on them, and the interest on all those coupons belongs to you. They are yielding you a large income. You can turn the bonds into cash at any moment you desire. Here's the key to the box."

Rummaging in the desk again, he produced a key, and gave it to her. She took it, and looked at it speculatively.

"I have no duplicate of the key," Morton went on. "That's your safe-deposit box, and everything in it is yours. Do exactly as you please with it, always."

She dimpled. "Can I buy new imported automobiles for you with the money?"

He laughed. "You CAN, but I wouldn't advise it. I like to select my own cars. For a girl to buy a man an automobile is a good deal like buying his ties—there's apt to be a clash in judgment."

The girl sat on the desk, before him, and stroked his hair. "Why did you do this for me?"

"Because I love you, and I want you always to be free to do whatever will make you happy," he said.

"Nothing makes me happy except to be with you," she said softly.

She held out her arms to him, but, smiling, he turned in his chair, and arose.

"The office isn't a good place to make love," he laughed. "Do you mind waiting here while I go into the cashier's office a little while?"

He provided her with a book, and left her alone. Her eyes wandered curiously over the office. It had been two or three years since she had entered it before. The table on which she was sitting was of walnut, polished to a satin finish. So was Morton's desk, and so were the chairs that sat about the walls.

"Expensive," she said to herself.

A large painting filled the space between the two windows. In the semi-gloom, it was startlingly lifelike—the work of an able artist. As Audrey was looking at this, a clerk entered, and laid an opened telegram on Morton's desk.

As he went out, Audrey leaned forward with feminine curiosity, and read the message.

"Will come to you tomorrow, dear," she read. The signature was: "Nona."

When Corns Talk!

The least sign of rain, or a touch of dampness in the air, and corns begin to talk! A piercing cry of agony shoots through your toe. Oh! ! ! The hurt of it. And soon your toe is red and inflamed and burning with pain; so tender you cannot bear to touch it. Then is the moment to plunge your foot into a soothing Radox foot-bath and get that corn out root and all, painlessly. You will feel the pain and soreness being drawn out.

How Radox Removes Corns

When you put your feet into a foot-bath containing Radox the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right to the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily. This life-giving oxygen leaves the feet clean and healthy. Because it is the oxygen which carries the corn solvents to the root of the corn, and because Radox liberates, by test, more oxygen than any other salts, it is obvious that Radox is more efficient in removing corns than any other salts. The Radox Bath Salts does not effect the living skin. It is only the dead skin—the corn—which it dissolves. If one bath does not do this a second bath next day will do it.

A Radox user writes:

"After a bath in Radox....to my intense astonishment the corn had disappeared, and all that remained was a tiny hole from which the corn had evidently come out—probably when rubbing down with the bath towel."

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY MAKES EXTENSION OF WORK, ENLISTING SCHOLARS OF HASTINGS SCHOOLS

Rev. Father Bretherton Organizes Junior Society in Each School.

GROWING SOCIETY.

Much Progress Made Since Inception Seven Years Ago.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, April 27. — Rev. Father Bretherton, founder and president of the Horticultural Society that has done so much to beautify this village and to cultivate the taste of the residents, has extended the scope of the organization by forming Junior Societies from among the pupils in the Separate and Public Schools. He was at the Separate School on Monday to lay the matter before the pupils and last week visited the Public School for the same purpose. It is expected that each of the schools will form a society of at least 25 members. Two delegates from each school will meet Wednesday at the home of Secretary G. Marryat of the Horticultural Society, when the Junior societies will be organized by the election of a president and secretary for each.

No fee will be charged the members of these Junior organizations, and the Senior society will supply them with seeds which the pupils are expected to plant in plots at their own homes. Prizes will be awarded for the best showing made and there is expected to be a healthy rivalry between the two schools. Making the local landscape more pleasing to the eye that appreciates beauty has received a new impetus by this latest move on the part of the society.

Founding of the Society

Rev. Father Bretherton is recognized as the founder of the Hastings Horticultural Society, organized seven years ago, and he has been re-elected president at every annual meeting. His most enthusiastic ally at the beginning was John Thomson, son of Rev. D. A. Thomson, formerly a bank manager here but now located in Guelph. Mr. Thomson was elected the first secretary of the society and during his residence here was one of the most active members.

The society began in a small way but progressed steadily until it included in its membership the leading citizens of the village and results were apparent everywhere.

The membership was not confined to Hastings, but on the roll were found the names of residents of Campbellford, Warkworth, Westwood, Roseneath and other centres in the district. Last year the peak was attained, when the society had a total of over 200 members.

Help From the Council

The Village Council makes the society an annual grant of $50 and this is the only source of income aside from the fee of $1.00 charged each member. In return for the civic grant, the society keeps in order the spacious grounds surrounding the town hall and also maintains a flower bed on a triangular plot of public land near the residence of Harry Lambert. The members have also cultivated flowers around the soldiers' memorial that was erected two years ago, and along the banks of the Trent Canal. Go where you will in Hastings, the artistic labors of the members of the Horticultural Society are in evidence, on the public grounds, at the railway station, and in the private gardens. Each member is entitled yearly to a certain amount of seeds and bulbs of his or her own selection.

A Cleric's Dream of Beauty

At the public banquet that was held here in 1924 to celebrate the election of Reve Walter M. Fowlds to the Wardenship of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, Father Bretherton was one of the leading speakers and his address on that occasion will long be remembered by those who heard it. In his own inimitable way he drew a graphic picture of the ideal place that could be made of Hastings, not so much by the expenditure of money as by the exercise of individual and collective taste. The Spirit that walked in the Garden of Eden and held communion with the parents of mankind dwells today in every place of natural or cultivated beauty. Hastings, spiritually and physically, could be made the spotless town, the ideal place for human existence.

"But what is the use of me talking," said the speaker, probably drawing on his experience as a man who has spent his years striving to lead others up the heights, "I know you will do none of the things I mention."

His Record of 21 Years.

For the past 21 years Rev. Father Bretherton has been the revered spiritual leader of his congregation, and has been esteemed in no less degree by members of other denominations. He has been identified with every forward movement no matter by whom originated. He described the local situation in a nutshell in a recent public address, when, surrounded by clergymen of other denominations, he declared, "Here in Hastings we are all one happy family."

Setting an Example.

In the material as well as the material things of life, Rev. Father Bretherton sets the villagers an example. He does not preach the beautifying of the village and neglect the improvement of his home surroundings. The grounds connected with the presbytery in which he has so long resided are, in the summer season when the flowers are in bloom, a type of artistic perfection. The grounds around the church are well kept, but the land is so thickly studded with shade trees that flowers cannot be grown under their shade. Hastings has many artificial and natural beauty spots, but the one which visitors are always advised to see are the grounds surrounding the edifice and presbytery of the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

The Memorial.

Another evidence of the cultured taste possessed by Rev. Father Bretherton is seen in the memorial that has been erected on the lawn in front of the church, to perpetuate the names of the seven members of the congregation who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War. That monument was designed by him and has been pronounced by competent judges to be one of the most fitting tributes of its kind yet erected in Canada. On the top of the monument is set a bronze figure to represent the Angel Gabriel blowing his trumpet to call from their last slumber the men who gave their lives that Christianity might live. And until the day that the angelic trumpet shall sound the reveille the martyred heroes are soothed by the sentiment contained in the inscription, "Requiscat In Pace."

ANNUAL MEETING OF KENNEL CLUB

Officers Elected for Ensuing Year—Planning Dog Show.

TO AID BREEDERS

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Kennel Club took place on Friday evening with a large and enthusiastic crowd in attendance. Plans for the 1926 dog show were discussed and it was decided to hold a three day show instead of two days as in previous years. Efforts will be made to have as many high class dogs from Canada and the United States entered as possible. During the month of May the club will put on a local show in order to create public interest and also to teach the small breeders or dog owners some of the fine points in handling dogs in the ring.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Patrons—Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; E. A. Peck, M.P.; W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.; H. A. Morrow; Mayor Holloway.

Chairman—W. S. Merrill.

Secretary-Treasurer—W. E. Jackson.

The next meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Wednesday, May 13.—Any one interested in dogs is invited to attend.

LOWER TAX RATE GLADDENS COUNCIL

Cobourg Town Fathers Cut Taxes To 45 1-2 Mills.

COBOURG, April 27.—A declining tax rate gladdens the hearts of all Cobourg ratepayers this year. On Wednesday night the Finance Committee set a record, backed by the entire council, in curtailing the estimates so as to make a 45½ mill rate possible. The rate last year was 47 mills and in 1924 it was 46 mills.

At the beginning of the year it was feared both by the Council and citizens, that t' ere would have to be a fifty mill rate this year, owing to the closing of factories last year in Cobourg. But "where there's a will there's a way," is often said, and this year the will of the Council was strong not to place any greater burden upon the people.

The Finance Committee states that in preparing the estimates it cut every controllable expenditure to the bone. The spirit of cooperation that marked the preparation of estimates by the C.C.I. Board and the Council's action in cutting $500 out of the Public School requisition helped to some extent. Nearly three-fourths of the total requirement for the year is uncontrollable expenditure.

SMUGGLER TOLD 'TRADE SECRETS' TO COMMITTEE

Smuggled Alcohol and Aluminum From Canada to the United States.

INFORMED POLICE

Chief Problem Was to Elude Mounted Police Guarding Roads.

OTTAWA, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Another former bootlegger and smuggler gave evidence at the customs probe Monday. J. E. Pascaux of Montreal described the removal of portable alcohol from the Noel bonded warehouse in Montreal. At the beginning of his evidence he asked for the protection of the committee. At the close, he said frankly in answer to questions, that he had smuggled alcohol and aluminum points from Canada to the United States a few years ago. He got into some trouble with the United States customs people. A friend in Canada had helped him out and since then he had given his friends in Canada the benefit of his knowledge of the smuggling game.

Gave Police Tip

He was the informer who gave the Montreal police the tip on the Noel Bond and Murray Chemical Company cases. He helped to remove alcohol from drums in the bonded warehouse, manipulating the wires over the bung so as not to disturb the seal. When the alcohol had been replaced with water or wood alcohol it was shipped to fictitious consignees as "textalon," a chemical cleaning compound. They used to make enough textalon to furnish "samples" of the tin drums in which the alcohol, still potable, was shipped. A man would go to the customs office and substitute the drums with little bottles of real textalon. One day the man who was entrusted with this delicate task drank too much of the alcohol he was protecting, submitted the wrong samples, and the excise men found out the fraud.

Even after the Noel bond had been put under surveillance, Noel one night risked the removal of a small quantity of alcohol because he was badly in need of about $125, said Mr. Pascaux.

Later some of the alcohol found its way back to Montreal. It was "yellowed with age," said Mr. Pascaux and was not saleable in Montreal.

Smuggled in Cars.

The committee was much interested in Mr. Pascaux's reminiscences of his smuggling days. Asked what method he used, he said that he "didn't need much method." They took their cargoes down in automobiles. They knew which roads were guarded and which were not, and they were chiefly concerned with the vigilance of the "Mounties" along the road.

Mr. Pascaux's evidence was adduced to complete the record of the Noel bond case, which has been up several times before.

Car Thief's Chances

"The auto thief has 99 chances out of 100 of getting away with the car. The honest owner has hardly one chance," Hon. H. H. Stevens commented on the operation of the customs regulations concerning smuggled cars sold for duty. C. P. Blair, legal adviser to the customs department, said that the incident under discussion occurred several years ago before the reciprocal arrangement between Canada and the United States concerning stolen and smuggled cars came into effect.

The case in point was the refusal of the Canadian customs people to release to the Atlas Insurance Company a car stolen in the United States and located in a garage at St. Cesaire, Que. The car had been claimed as security for a loan and was in the hands of J. A. Brisebois, who owned the garage. The insurance company meantime had paid the original owner of the car $4,000 because it was stolen and claimed the car from the customs department. Smuggled cars were sold at auction for duty and penalties in those days, and the claims of Mr. Brisebois to some $1,400, the amount of the loan for which he claimed to hold the car, was recognized by the Canadian customs authorities.

It was in reference to this rule that the critical remarks of the committee were made.

F. L. Calder, committee counsel, said "The rule has been constantly invoked by car thieves and receivers and the real owners have been defeated."

Mr. Stevens thought the procedure distinctly unfair, and questioned the customs' counsel at length.

Mr. Blair replied that the department was then compelled to protect itself by obtaining a relinquishment of right to bring action for damages before the person who claimed to be the real owner could be allowed to buy back the car at a sum sufficient to cover duty and seizure costs. The arrangement now in force between Canada and the United States simplified the difficulty considerably, said Mr. Blair.

Her Heart Palpitated She Had Fainting Spells

Mrs. J. Wilson, Port George, N.S., writes:—"I suffered from palpitation of the heart and fainting spells, and, at times, I could not be left alone I was so nervous.

"My trouble was caused from overwork and worry, having been left alone with a large family.

I had tried everything, without any relief, but I know, to-day, that I would have been a nervous wreck but for your wonderful

LOCAL MAN BACK VISITED FLORIDA

T. C. Younge Not Very Much Impressed With State.

LIKE DESERT

T. C. Younge of 190 Park street has recently returned to this city after spending the last five months in Florida. Mr. Younge went down to Lakeworth, Florida, which is about eight miles south of Palm Beach, when the big building boom started last October. In 1913 he bought five acres down there in the centre of the town and sold it while he was there, after building a house on one of the lots. In the days of the boom people rushed in to buy property and soon the whole country was marked out in city lots. Building went on rapidly but about six weeks ago the railways put on an embargo on all lumber going into that district and building stopped and people rushed out about as fast as they came in. Mr. Younge stated that Wall street was blamed for the embargo as it wanted to kill business down there.

His impression of Florida was not very good. When he went there in October the days were very hot being 98 degrees in the shade. In December the weather became like our September, being very hot in the day time and cold at night. The east coast, where he was, is just like a desert, he stated, with stunted jackpines growing all over. The sand is very white in color and when a sewer is dug the sand which has been excavated looks like a bank of snow. The Florida lakes are like our western sloughs and he could not see anything very attractive in them.

Personally Mr. Younge said he would not go to Florida for the winter and he thinks if the people of Ontario spent half as much money on advertising as they do down there Ontario would see a big boom also.

Mr. and Mrs. Learmonth are now in Guelph visiting the latter's brother, Mr. John Thomson.

Held here on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences in a stock selling scheme, Morris was adjudged insane yesterday by a state board. He will be removed to the asylum on Wednesday.

DAM BROKEN BY SAUGEEN FLOOD

Damage of $150,000 Done in Hanover Over Week End.

HANOVER, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—The damage from floods in Hanover caused by the rising waters of the Saugeen River during Sunday and yesterday will probably exceed $150,000.

The big dam owned by the Canada Cement Company here broke on Sunday, while two bridges in the vicinity were also swept away. One bridge was situated at the Bruce-Grey County line, just outside the town limits and the other one between Hanover and Durham. Damage to property in the flooded section of the town will also amount to a considerable amount. It is estimated that the cost of repairing the dam will be between $50,000 and $100,000.

CADET QUESTION IS NOT SETTLED

Ottawa Presbytery of United Church Undecided on Matters.

FAVORS O.T.A.

OTTAWA, April 27.—(Canadian Press.)—Ottawa Presbytery of the United Church is undecided on the question of favoring cadet training in the Public schools. The question has been submitted to all the presbyteries by the General Council. The Presbytery committee investigating the subject turned in a majority report favoring the retention of the school cadet system and a minority report favoring its abolition. The Presbytery went on record recommending the electors to only support candidates for public office who declared themselves in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act which, in its opinion, was, when well enforced, the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic.

SALE OF SENTINEL BEING CONSIDERED

Negotiations Are Under Way For Transfer of Orange Organ.

TORONTO, April 27 (Canadian Press). — Negotiations are under way for the transfer of The Sentinel, the official organ of the Orange Order, from The Sentinel Publishing Company, of which H. C. Hocken, M.P., is president, to a company headed by Morgan J. O'Brien, of Ottawa, it was learned yesterday. The purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $40,000.

Here is the Proof

That Dr. Chase's Ointment does positively relieve the most severe cases of piles.

While Dr. Chase's Ointment is recognized everywhere as the standard treatment for piles you may be interested in this letter which describes one particular case. There are thousands of similar cases.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes, Appin, Ont. writes:—"Dr. Chase's Ointment cannot be equalled. I used it for protruding piles of the worst kind. When the Doctor said an operation was the only hope, I began to prepare for one, when I remembered reading about Dr. Chase's Ointment. I resolved to try it, and after using two boxes I had no trace of the piles. It was the greatest relief I ever got, and I only hope other sufferers who read this letter will lose no time in purchasing a box, and see for themselves the miracles it works. It will be the best investment they ever put their money into."

AVIATORS' CLUB FOR CANADIANS MAY BE FORMED

Will Be Branch of International League of Aviators If Established.

TROPHY PRESENTED.

For Best Individual Flying Performance By Canadian Airmen.

MONTREAL, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Founding of a Canadian Post of the International League of Aviators is the object with which Major James W. Sussan, only Canadian flying man in the Lafayette Escadrille and youngest commander in the French army in Morocco, has come home again. He was in Montreal Monday, on his way to Ottawa, where he expects to establish the Dominion headquarters of the Canadian Post, to be called Number 6.

Trophy for Canada.

Major Sussan brought with him a bronze trophy, the gift of Clifford B. Harmon of New York, pioneer American flyer and founder of the International League. This is to be given to Canadian flyers. A similar trophy has been donated each country where there is a Post of the Aviators' League—England, France, Poland, Greece and Italy—Major Sussan said. The Canadian cup will be awarded, it is understood, to the flyer who has put up what is adjudged the best individual flying performance of the year. The names of national winners are all forwarded to the headquarters post of the organization, in Paris, where the various achievements are examined and the most outstanding flyer in the International League, as evidenced by his performance, will have his name inscribed on the Lafayette Escadrille trophy.

Only Fliers Admitted

The organization, according to Major Sussan, is to be composed of men who actually have flown, and none who have not—no matter whether they were at any time members of a flying unit in some ground capacity—will be permitted to take part in the management of a Post of the International League.

There is a central clubhouse in Paris, and national clubhouses in each country in which a Post has been formed. One of the objects of the League, Major Sussan said, is to bring aviators of the world together into a fraternity of goodwill, perfect arrangements for international flights, and insure that flying men will be suitably welcomed and their comfort attended to when they land on foreign shores, and other matters of a kindred character.

MAKE SURE YOU GET THE RIGHT MEDICINE

People who are suffering from constipation, biliousness or sick headache are sometimes at a loss to know what remedy to take to correct these ailments.

Mr. Arthur Couzens of Smith Township, Ont., said that he tried various remedies but got no relief until he was advised by a friend to take Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets. When he had finished one bottle he felt like a different person and takes pleasure in recommending Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets to anyone sufering from constipation or biliousness.

Mr. H. V. Mercer, Druggist, of Lindsay, Ont., recommends Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets because he considers he owes it to the public to recommend what will give the best results.

If you have any doubt of the merit of Dr. Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets ask your local druggist ask your neighbor, try them yourself, and then you will be convinced that as a tonic and laxative Norvall's Stomach and Tonic Tablets have no equal.

SCIENTIST CALLS CANCER MILDEW

Is Abnormal Form, He Says —All Life is Mildew.

FORM CHANGES.

PARIS, April 27 (Canadian Press) —That cancer is caused by an abnormal form of mildew is the claim set up in a paper written by Professor J. Tissot, of the Paris Natural History Museum, and read before the Academy of Science last night by Professor J. A. Darsonval.

Mildew, Dr. Tissot declared, is the original cell from which all life on earth developed and all animal and vegetable organisms are nothing but highly developed organized mildew. Proceeding along lines based on this, Dr. Tissot says he succeeded in taking healthy human tissue, changing its form and transforming it so that the cultures developed cancerous elements and these elements could be reproduced as easily as cultures of microbes.

The culture so obtained also contained bacterial elements which together with other elements, form what Dr. Tissot describes as the "cancer virus" and as kin to the viris of tuberculosis.

He claims that he found he could easily transfer bacterial cultures into mildew. He has treated in this manner cultures of typhoid, cholera, Diptheria, plague, tuberculosis, Malta fever, and tetanus.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

SPRING

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, April 27 (United Press) —The big parade which passed down Fifth Avenue Easter Sunday afforded great interest to those onlookers who we still see garbed in their Winter clothing. Overnight Fifth Avenue had turned from a Wintery garbed thoroughfare into one where Spring hats, coats and frocks sprouted like colorful tulips.

Women conscious of new wraps eyed one another appraisingly. Men in light gray fedoras compared millinery shades. While women turned to pastel tweeds, men, on the other hand, were not wearing the pastel shades as plentifully as they did last Easter. Pastel lavenders which were so popular with young men are forsaken this year for light grays and tans. Women wore much beige and dusty rose shades. Tweed sports coats were numerous with younger women while heavy black satin coats were noted on several matrons. Young misses had a preference for cape-coats in both pastel and dark shades. Straight-lined coats of large colorful plaids were also well represented.

Among the less common styles were the Bolero suits with their short little jacquettes contrasting to the skirt or of self color heavily embroidered or trimmed.

Hats were invariably small being either felt or straw and silk combinations. Many tam shapes were worn by younger women and girls. Skirts on the new garments were quite as short as they have been all Winter. Shoes and hosiery took on the new light tan and gray shades, shoes showing more ornamentation than they did last Easter. Gloves, handbags and footgear usually matched or harmonized with the hat or coat. Startling scarfs of hand painted batik type enlivened the tailored garment as well as the more ornate one.

Many green handbags were carried, matching the green hats which were often worn with neutral gray or tan coats. Shoes, in this case matched the coat.

The back is straight and a narrow belt creates the new bloused effect at the sides. No. 1339 is in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. The Young Girl's Frock Turns Down a Neat Collar

BUTTERICK 6816

The long body, the short circular skirt and the sleeve that flares out below the elbow make a smart little frock of many uses for the Spring. Even if the seventeenth of March is past, why not wear the green? It's chic and may be one of a dozen new shades—peridot, vert d'eau, ocean, cucumber, vert de gris or tilleul. Taffeta is new, has a good swing and in green is quite lovely with the embroidery worked in silver. Yellow crêpe de Chine printed with dots and dashes of clear brown has a tortoise-shell effect that is very charming.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

The old-fashioned chorus girl of fiction who accepted diamond tiaras and orchids from back-stage Johnnies has made way for a modern chorus girl "of high ideals." This according to Ned Wayburn who has directed 500 Broadway choruses. They must be getting higher salaries as well as "higher ideals" these days!

THE BOOK

Can you imagine anything more stirring in a book than this? The white-faced descendant of a great-great-grandfather missionary who started a half-breed line by marrying a kinky-headed Hottentot in order "to get next to the people and be one of them," marries a girl in England without telling her of the spot in his blood. And it is not until he has brought her back to South Africa on a visit that an aunt forces him to do so. The book closes with all concerned grouped about the pure white wife's bed wondering whether the to-be-born child will be white, black, or cream-colored. The book is "God's Stepchildren" by Sarah Millin, whose "Mary Glenn" is even better.

The author of a new novel called "Possible Husbands," aged 29, single, buys a new car with royalties from his novel and all alone, utterly unattached, gleefully and joyously sails for a year's worth of world-wandering. In spite of modern woman's much-tooted "independence," how many women could truly have a good time alone and with no fairly close human attachments? Partly because, aside from the emotional phase of it, society makes things so difficult for the woman alone, recognizing her as unnatural, abnormal.

THE PICTURE

Ye ambitious souls who would prattle knowingly of art would enjoy a new volume called "Personalities in Art," by Royal Cortissoz, w. k. art critic. As for instance Empress Eugenie, looking at the canvas of Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair," was told that the horses were Percherons. Eugenie next viewed Courbet's "Bathers," a canvas of brawny females, and inquired "and are these, too, Percherons?"

HER OWN WAY

FIRE MEETS FIRE

"Did you meet Gerald at the restaurant, Miss Dean?"

"No, I only met your son last night. You see, this friend of mine got a black eye in the melee and I was still in my black maid's costume, so we were hunting an inconspicuous place to eat when Mr. Hathaway, who, it seems, is a partner of my friend—"

"You don't mean that Irish Jimmy Costello, do you, young woman?"

"My name is Miss Dean, Mr. Hathaway."

"Yes, yes, I know, young—Miss Dean."

"Your son, sir, said that Jimmy Costello was not only his partner but his friend."

"He's a good boy and a smart boy—Jimmy Costello," remarked Mr. Hathaway, Senior, "but I wish he and Gerald weren't such good friends."

"Of course, Mr. Hathaway, I can't understand that because I think Jimmy is perhaps one of the most wonderful boys in the world."

The old man cocked an eye at me over a pair of nose glasses that hung around his neck on a broad ribbon. I really think he wanted to wink at me but he restrained himself.

"Oh, of course, of course," he sputtered, "but let's get back to your story."

I reminded him that he was the one who had gone off on a tangent about Jimmy.

As I said this I heard a queer little suppressed exclamation. I turned and faced the secretary whose eyes were bulging out of her head. Evidently no one in that office had ever dared to be a human being before when the autocrat of the Hathaway fortune spoke.

I confess I began to be a little nervous myself.

"Be yourself, Judy, be yourself," I kept repeating inside of me, especially as I heard Mr. Hathaway tell his secretary that she might go out to luncheon and I knew that he had understood that suppressed little incoherency as well as I did.

When she had left, he turned to me with a laconic—

"Go on."

"There isn't much more to tell, Mr. Hathaway. Only this." I held out the splendid bag.

"This morning I got this by special messenger and it isn't mine."

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A CHIC CREPE BOLERO FROCK

"I want a pretty crepe frock," announced Miss Carey, as she came tripping into Madame's this morning.

"I want it crepe," she continued, "because the minute Spring arrives I buy everything with an eye to its being useful at odd minutes through the Summer, and I want nothing that isn't cool looking as well as cool in actuality."

"Then you'll be interested, I'm sure, in the aquamarine crepes, I'm showing just now," Madame assured her.

"Aquamarine sounds delightfully cool," Miss Carey conceded.

"Wait till you see them," Madame told her. "It will remind you of the way the ocean looked when you went abroad last Summer."

Miss Carey thought this sounded appealing, so she waited while I was despatched to don the aquamarine crepes and show them to her until she found the design which was most to her liking.

The first one suggested for me to wear happened to be a particularly youthful model with a bolero jacket effect at the front, which appealed to me a lot.

There were various shades of blue and gray in the embroidered border which trimmed the frock, and best of all, it was in one piece and easy to get into.

"That is a perfect duck, and I must have it immediately!" exclaimed Miss Carey, as soon as I came out in the frock and a little matching grosgrain ribbon hat designed to be worn with it.

Madame expressed some doubt as to whether the dress could be had immediately or not. She explained that the workrooms were simply swamped with Spring orders.

"Now, Madame dear, I have my heart set on that new costume to wear to a tea dance Saturday," begged Miss Carey in a coaxing voice. "And I'm going with my best beau," she added.

Aquamarine Blue Makes This Bolero Frock of Youthful Design.

This was more than Madame could resist, and I knew it was the idea of the best beau that made her promise the first fitting for the next day.

Miss Carey departed, smiling, to order some new black patent leather slippers, she explained.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Stewed figs, cereal, thin cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Scalloped cheese, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, rye bread, canned pears, sponge drops, milk, tea.

Dinner—Shoulder of lamb, buttered rice, parsnip patties, grape fruit salad whole wheat bread, banana snow, milk coffee.

The shoulder of lamb should be boned by the butcher. Roll and tie firmly when ready to roast. A dressing made of bread can be used before rolling the meat and if a little meat is wanted to go a long way the dressing or stuffing helps out materially.

Scalloped Cheese.

Four slices bread, 2 eggs, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1-4 teaspoon mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup diced cheese, paprika, butter.

The bread should be cut about 3-4 of an inch thick. Spread generously with butter and cut each slice into small squares, making cubes of bread buttered on one side. Put half the bread buttered side down into a baking dish, cover with cheese and add the remaining bread, butter side up. Mix salt, mustard and paprika with eggs and beat well.

Beat in milk and pour mixture over bread and cheese in baking dish. Press the top layer of bread down to become covered with milk mixture.

Let stand for ten minutes before baking. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven. Increase the heat for the last few minutes of baking to brown the top. Serve in the baking dish.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

Red Rose Orange Pekoe is extra good. Won't you try it this time?

SAVE YOUR TEETH

Prepared by the Oral Hygiene Committee of Canada, with which the Peterborough Dental Society is Collaborating.

THE SIX YEAR MOLAR

You have heard your dentist call this first double tooth 'the six-year molar.'

Why is this? You have perhaps guessed it—that it is because it erups usually at about the sixth year.

Now, you have been observant enough to note that it is a first tooth in the sense that no tooth was lost to make room for it.

Coming in at this early age, you may have thought it a 'baby tooth' which would, in due time, be shed.

So, in your child, you have perhaps neglected to give it the care that it deserved—with disastrous results.

Without doubt, this neglect is the most common of dental sins committed by parents, and perhaps with gravest consequences to their children.

Because, should this tooth become so badly decayed within from four to six years following its eruption as to infect the 'pulp,' your dentist, as a rule, has no recourse but the use of the forceps—and, losing the tooth, the whole series is deranged, since, in a real sense, this six year molar is the key tooth of the dental arch.

However, Nature is gracious, for sometimes you will find that where this tooth has been lost at an early age, the second molar has 'drifted' forward to fill the space, with the third molar advancing in turn as it erupts.

But this is only rarely the case—better a little care at the proper time to prevent this trouble rather than to rely on Nature for a cure.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

ART OF SANDWICH MAKING

For sandwich making the bread should be a day old and preferably homemade. If the crusts are to be removed it is best to cut the crust from the entire loaf before slicing. Butter should be creamed for spreading. Mayonnaise should be of a good spreading consistency, neither soft enough to run nor hard enough to be lumpy. If sandwiches must be made ahead of time, they should be wrapped in wax paper and then in a linen cloth wrung out in cold water, and be placed in the cold chamber of the refrigerator.

A few unusual fillings will be worth while to the hostess who serves sandwhiches frequently for afternoon tea and Sunday night suppers. First we will take an equal amount of unsalted butter and good peanut butter, then smoothly blend together, adding a little salt and pepper, and to about a half cupful add a tablespoonful of chopped salted peanuts.

Work to a paste two tablespoonfuls of cream cheese and one tablespoonful of roquefort cheese. Add a teaspoonful of unsalted butter and a saltspoonful of celery salt. Two teaspoonful of cream will help soften the paste. When blended, add a tablespoonful of chopped pistachio nuts.

A good Spanish sandwich is made by spreading the two bread rounds with mayonnaise and dusting with paprika, then lay on a slice of fresh tomato. Do not make these sandwiches until the last minute or they will soak and be uninviting.

To a cupful of very finely minced cold boiled ham add a quarter cupfu of finely chopped chow chow pickle. Add a half teaspoonful of sugar and a little cayenne. If the paste seems too stiff, add a little of the liquid mustard.

Slice a cucumber very thinly and saturate in heavy, highly seasoned French dressing for a half hour, then drain. Arrange the slices on the buttered slice, cover, then cut with a sharp knife in triangular pieces.

Wash, pick over carefully, then chop enough fresh watercress to make a cupful. Take a heaping tablespoonful of butter and work the cress into, it adding a teaspoonful of worcestershire sauce, a teaspoonful of French dressing and the juice of half an onion. Spread rather thickly using no other butter on the bread.

To a half cream cheese add two tablespoonfuls of finely minced Chinese preserved ginger, and two tablespoonfuls of chopped pecan nuts. Blend to a paste, adding a little cream if too stiff. Spread without any butter. This mixture is good with whole wheat bread.

Lobster sandwiches are very tasty. Take the meat of a freshly boiled lobster and mince it fine. Moisten with heavy mayonnaise, add a little cayenne and two teaspoonfuls of minced white celery leaves. Spread on rounds and press a half stuffed olive on top of each.

Boil two chicken livers until tender, then chop fine. Add salt, pepper and a tablespoonful of currant jelly and a teaspoonfu, of Worcestershire sauce Do not use any butter with this filling.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite Secretary Shawnee Okla. Board of Commerce.

THAT the outstanding features of well advertised products are meeting the approval of people everywhere.

THAT many slumbering business concerns are waking to the value of continuous advertising and are starting now to build up trade by using the printed page not once in a while but all the while.

THAT the reading of advertisements before buying has taken such a hold on the public that only continuous advertisers can expect to get continuous business.

THAT the dealers who advertise quality continuously are those who have the greatest business.

THAT the people who buy advertised merchandise are those who buy satisfaction.

THAT advertising is more valuable today than ever: it meets the selling requirements of every line of business.

THAT everywhere the rapidly increasing demand for advertised products is bringing great prosperity to those who use the aid of continuous advertising.

Business concerns who know a worthwhile opportunity to increase business when they see it increase business by increased advertising.

Continuous advertising will not only repeat sales from old customers but will attract new ones.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 24—TINGALING AND THE TWINS FIND A TREASURE

Yes, sir! Whoever Oofty Goofty was, he had taken the pocket-book and the rent-book and the pencil, and departed.

And, although Mister Tingaling and the Twins saw queer little footmarks on the ground, they were afraid to follow them because the last letter had said, "If you follow me your hair will turn green!"

And nobody—not even a fair landlord—wants to have green hair.

"And here I thought I was going to make my fortune," wailed poor Mister Tingaling. "Instead of that I haven't a penny. The thirty-second day of the month is over and all my rent money is stolen."

"It's just a shame!" said kind Nancy. "Now you can't get a new spring hat or a new spring coat or anything, can you?"

"No, and my wife cannot get anything either," said the fairyman sadly.

Suddenly Nick whispered, "Sh! I think I hear voices. It sounds exactly like the Gazookumses and Snitcher Snatch."

They listened carefully and then Mister Tingaling whispered, "Yes, sir! It is those little rascals as sure as anything! And they are right over there behind that big log. Let's tiptoe a little nearer. I'd just like to see what they are up to now, so I would."

So the fairy landlord and the Twins went along like little mice, until they came to the log.

Then very slowly and carefully they peeped over.

And, MY DEARS!

WHAT a sight met their eyes!

Snitcher Snatch and the three bad Gazookumses were sitting around a heap of something on the ground.

And the heap of something was MONEY! Fairy money!

Snitcher Snatch was emptying the big pocketbook on the pile and he was saying, "Yes, my dear Gookies, I told them my name was 'Oofty Goofty' and if they followed me their hair would turn green. They'll never find us now. And every bit of money we find we will add to our treasure, and some day we'll be the richest people in the whole—"

But at that minute Nancy leaned over the log too far, and she fell—pop! Right on top of the money pile.

"Oh, dear!" she thought. "Now I've gone and done it! What do you suppose will happen next?"

But I'll tell you what happened next. The Fairy Queen appeared suddenly on top of a bush. And she called out in a clear voice, "Snitcher Snatch, and you naughty little Gazookumses! Aren't you all ashamed of yourselves! It's just dreadful the way you have been cheating and tricking this nice, dear, kind, little fairyman. I've been watching everything—I and my other fairies!

"I let you do the things you did, just because I intended to make you give it all back. Now go home and after this let my friends alone. Mister Tingaling, here is your fortune. Gather it all up and put it into your big pocketbook and take it home. You and Mrs. Tingaling can buy all the spring hats you want now."

"Hurrah!" cried the Twins dancing for joy, while Mister Tingaling tried to thank the Fairy Queen.

They danced so hard their magic shoes came off. And in an instant Mister Tingaling and the Fairy Queen and Snitcher Snatch and the Gazookumses had disappeared.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

SQUEEDEE AND BOBBY MAKE RED FOX VERY HAPPY

"Well, old fellow, you certainly are pretty," mused Bobby as he gazed in the pen at Mr. Red Fox. "I just wonder if you're as happy as you look."

"Now that you've stopped to ask," sniffed Mr. Red Fox, "I'll just tell the truth. Maybe it will help me a bit. Bobby Boy, I'm very unhappy. Not from bad treatment, but from sheer lonesomeness, I miss my mate, I do."

"I'm sorry," replied Bobby. Then a bright idea popped into his head. He wished out loud for his little elfin friend, Squeedee, and before Bobby could count ten the wee elfin was standing at his side. "I'm glad to see you, Squeedee," he cried excitedly. "I was just talking to Mr. Red Fox and he's homesick to see his wife. Couldn't we——"

"Sure we could!" interrupted Squeedee. "Come along, Reddie, and show us where your wife is and we'll go and pay her a visit."

"Fine!" exclaimed Mr. Red Fox and he jumped through the gate beside Squeedee and Bobby. "You know, Bobby, when once a Fox takes a mate, they're mated for life. My wife and I have been so happy together. We've raised two families, you know."

"Then she'll be waiting for you all right," declared Squeedee. He led the way through the woods to the meadows, and in a little burrow under a great big stone they found Mrs. Red Fox.

My, how happy she was to see Mr.

"We've raised two families."

Red Fox. She took them into the long hallway that was tunneled down under the ground to a cozy little bedroom.

"You see it's just like you left it, my dear," she laughed. "Waiting for you to come back. You were going to make another entrance way, but you didn't have time. Did the hunters hurt you?"

"Gracious no, good wife," replied Mr. Fox. "And I have a lovely home where I am, only I get mighty lonesome for you. Where are the youngsters?"

"Gone out into the world to make their own way," answered his good wife. "One of them wore the loveliest coat of black you ever saw."

"Black!" Bobby exclaimed. "I thought a red fox was always a red fox."

"Goodness, no," laughed Mr. Red Fox. "Some of the youngsters will turn out Black Foxes, as folks call them, while some look like silver. They are called Silver Fox. But they all belong to the one family just the same. Well, I'm sorry for Little Black Fox. He'll have a hard road to run. You see the fur of a black fox or a silver fox is thought to be very valuable. If the hunters once get a sight of Black Fox they will surely run him down."

"Oh dear! I wish I could go back with you," sighed Mrs. Red Fox.

"Why not, Squeedee?" asked Bobby. "I'm sure the keeper of the zoo would love to have Mrs. Red Fox. I know him and I'll ask him. Can't she come right along with us?"

"Certainly, she may," laughed Squeedee and the four friends hurried back to the zoo. Red Fox just squeezed into his pen when the keeper came up the path. He looked in astonishment at Bobby holding Mrs. Red Fox by her long hair then when Bobby asked if he couldn't let Mrs. Red Fox in with Mr. Red Fox, the keeper laughed and opened the gate for him.

Now should you pass that zoo some day, you must stop and pay Mr. and Mrs. Red Fox a visit for they are the happiest pair in the whole Zoo, thanks to Squeedee and Bobby.

JIM AND JOHN

Well, Jim and John were a couple of men. Two types that we all have met, time and again. Just humans, of course, but with quite diff'rent views. In this case they seem just the right men to use.

Jim had the habit of rushing through things. Said he, "I'll accept just whatever fate brings. Why plan and keep working, till all out of breath? Why worry, as long as I don't starve to death?

And John—well, he always would figure things out. He knew what his various moves were about. He bumped into obstacles—that can be said—but gained by the setbacks, and went right ahead.

They've worked on those plans since their work days began. They've both had their fair, even chance—man to man. Today, you'll find Jim is still dragging, I guess, while John—he has earned what he is—a success.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Bert Moses wrote recently in his column:

"If there were less laziness there would be a falling off in the sale of laxatives"

No better statement could possibly be made. No truer thing could be uttered.

It is a pity there is such a demand for salts, oils and pills. I have not seen the figures, but I imagine the sales of these drugs is chief among the income of the druggist.

To a great extent laziness is responsible for the bowel sluggishness, so very, very common in this country. Too many of our citizens are neglectful of the out-of-door life and exercise which are so essential to good health. The intestinal muscles are like the external and larger muscles of the body. Whatever lowers the vitality and the vigor of the muscles of the arms and legs, will lessen the efficiency and effectiveness of the intestinal muscles.

Physical laziness has much to do with lowered muscular power. Every muscle of the body is influenced by the sedentary or active habits, as the case may be. Naturally, the intestinal muscles share the general fate of the external muscles.

To have the intestines do their duty and promptly expel their contents, there must be very active muscular action. You can see why. The colon, as the large intestine is called, has one portion, where the course is directly upward. The waste material in this portion of the bowel must be lifted bodily. How can this be done?

Powerful muscular action to contract this elastic tube is essential to movement of the mass from below upward. The muscular action produces a stripping movement of the intestinal wall, causing the mass within to move along the tube. Gradually it passes upward and into the transverse and downward part of the colon.

If there is laziness of the outer muscles, there will be laziness of the intestinal muscles. Then laxatives must be relied on as a means for evacuating the colon.

To avoid constipation it is essential to heed Nature's calls at once. Neglect will result in constipation.

You can see how laziness will do harm. If these calls are not promptly obeyed, there is sure to be trouble.

It is amazing how indifferent some persons are to these calls of nature. It is a great mistake. I assure you. You may be lazy about some things, but you must not be lazy in this matter. Immediate response is essential.

There are almost no chronic diseases which are not influenced by constipation. Fermentation and decomposition of the intestinal content will permit the growth of germs and the formation of poisonous agents which will produce serious disturbances when absorbed by the system.

The laxative habit is one of the worst we can form. Let us banish laziness.

M. J. Q.—Will you please print again, the formula for falling hair?

A.—Kindly send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY APRIL 28.

A stirring and eventful day is the presage calculated from the very significant chain of mutual aspects, fortified by the lunar transits. It is probable that there will be spectacular or sensational events in busines affairs, with bold ventures and big deals claiming attention. Unless these be most wisely manipulated there is danger of heavy losses, which may touch the fortunes in a radical way, but there should be opportunity to make good with aggressive measures, but not impulsive ones. Be calm but enterprising.

Those whose birthday it is may have the opportunity for manipulating their affairs in the direction of large fortunes, during the year, possibly through bold speculation or sensational deals, but they should not jeopardize all by rash or wild moves, as loses are hinted at. "Slow but sure" should win the day. A child born on this day should be resourceful, boldly adventurous, and may lean toward speculation in business as well as in the realm of ideas. It should make its fortune in inventions.

BURNBRAE NEWS.

BURNBRAE, April 26. — Spring has come at last and following as it does three weeks of the most unique April weather on record, it is very enjoyable. Already the grass is showing green on the southern hillsides and farmers everywhere are waiting expectantly for a fine, warm rain to settle the earth and hasten the growth of clovers and wheat. A week of severe frosts following the departure of the April snow somewhat dulled the excellent prospects for these crops and only a warm rain can repair the damage.

Plowing began here on the 23rd day of April, which is probably the latest date of starting spring work in the last decade. While last spring was mentioned as a very late season, yet farmers here recall that several plowed in March and during the first weeks of April, while some had considerable seed in the ground before the great snowstorm of the 19th which delayed seeding again until about the first of May.

However, the high land is drying rapidly and cultivation will soon be under way, though little, if any, seed will be sown before the end of April. A number of farmers who were unable to complete plowing last fall owing to wet weather, are badly handicapped this spring, as the frost is still keeping the low land very wet and much of this will of necessity be left for later crops such as corn, millet and buckwheat.

Dairy cows seem to be milking well in spite of the cold, backward season, and the cheese makers report a good flow. A goodly percentage of local farmers will have supplies of roughage, such as hay and ensilage, to carry over to next season. A number of dairy cows were bought last week by a Western Ontario buyers, who paid good prices for good stuff. The herds are now pretty well reduced to the numbers usually handled on the pasture.

Due to the action of the frost and the absence of a settling rain, the roads around Burnbrae are in worse shape for motor traffic than ever before. Some farmers are kept busy drawing cars out of the mud and to all appearances the worst is yet to come. The local councillors see visions of a tremendous road repair bill this year.

Local trappers continue to experience one of the poorest years on record. This is partly due to the late season and also to the fact that rats are becoming scarce. During the last four or five years, the trappers here have almost outnumbered the muskrats, so that little chance is given for an increase.

WOOLER NEWS.

WOOLER, April 26.—The Horticultural Society met on Tuesday night and discussed the premiums that should be offered to its members. And it was decided upon to give a member who had paid their dollar as membership should receive a choice of two shrubs, 2 perennials and six gladiolus.

Mrs. D. S. Austin, who has undergone a critical operation in the General Hospital, Toronto, is at the present time very weak, but bright.

On Tuesday, S. L. Terrill, accompanied by Mrs. Terrill, Mrs. Rowe and Mrs. Clarke, motored to Cobourg to attend the first Presbyterial in connection with the United church.

Jay Dulmas drove three members of the Mission Circle, Margaret Teal, Stella Nelson, Sadie Dulmas, as delegates to attend the Presbyterial at Cobourg on Tuesday.

In the last few days, frost has been playing havoc with the highways. Many cars are being drawn out, and many more spring holes are in sight.

The farmers are making ready, by beginning cultivating on the high light land, this week being the beginning, hoping in a few days to be engaged in the real farm work.

Fall wheat fields do not look as promising as last year.

FAMILY FOUND IN SINGLE ROOM

Amazing State of Squalor on Farm in Essex County.

ANIMALS DEAD.

LONDON, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—An amazing condition of squalor and starvation affecting a mother and family of eight, as well as the live stock of a farm, has been revealed in the Township of South Colchester, Essex County, upon investigation by George Tustin, inspector for the Humane Society. Not only was the family found to be in a state of utmost destitution and much of the stock lying dead in the barn and through want of food, but at least two of the children, he declared, are mentally affected, while the actions and speech of the others caused doubt as to their comprehension of the conditions of their home. The home is that of the late George Buchanan.

Of the eight children, the eldest is a son of 18, and all live in the same room with a minimum of furniture, and the house was practically without food or other of the necessities of life.

CALDER SILENT ON HOCKEY TRIP

N. H. L. President Withholds Statement Until Meeting Next Saturday.

MANY INTERVIEWS.

MONTREAL, Que., April 27 (Canadian Press)—President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League, and James Strachan, president of the Montreal Maroons, arrived back in Montreal Monday following their trip with Leo Dandurand to Detroit and Chicago to make an investigation of the status of those people bidding for franchises in the circuit for next season. Mr. Dandurand, of the Canadiens, continued on from Chicago to Salt Lake City where his lagoon race meeting opens next week.

On his return the National Hockey League head had little to say.

"I cannot make any definite statement on our findings until the continuance of the league meeting here next Saturday," he said.

"A report will be made at that meeting. We will not make any recommendations, however, unless they are required or asked of us."

Mr. Calder said the "committee of three" was treated with the greatest of courtesy wherever they went. They had conferences with all the interests represented at the meeting a week ago last Saturday here, and many others, he announced.

Concerning the reported interview with Charles F. Adams by Boston newspapermen, in which Adams is quoted as saying that he has a million dollar plan to protect and provide for the further expansion of the major professional hockey loop, Mr. Calder would make no comment.

He said he know nothing about the plan, although he had read the interview alluded to. The matter, he said, at any rate would have to be one for the league to consider in session. Until then there would be nothing official about it.

Amateurism of Norwegian Athlete To Be Probed.

BOSTON, April 27 (Canadian Press) — The Amateur Athletic Union of America will investigate the status of Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter and track star, who is charged with exorbitant expenses for his appearances in this country and violation of amateur rules. This announcement was made here Monday by officials of the union.

The coming investigation is of charges made against the Norwegian in Chicago newspapers. These include accusations that Hoff, world's champion pole vaulter, has exacted set prices for his performances in various cities, and there are other charges of a more or less serious nature.

GLENNA COLLETT TO MEET MISS LEITCH

Prospective Encounter From Golf Draw.

LONDON, April 27 (Canadian Press)—With Joyce Wethered, last year's winner, out of the British women's championship tournament which begins May 10 at Harwich, Miss Glenna Collett, youthful United States golf star of Providence, R.I., faces formidable opposition in Miss Cecil Leitch, a finalist last year. The semi-final round, which last year saw her downfall at the hands of Miss Wethered, 4 and 3, probably will see Miss Collett pitted against Miss Leitch, as a result of the draw announced Monday. Although Miss Leitch was defeated by Miss Wethered in last year's championship, she carried the fight to 37 holes of sensational golf. Miss Leitch has thrice been British champion.

MARATHON WINNER IN BOSTON PULPIT

Obey Laws of Nature and God, Says Miles.

BOSTON, April 27—John C. Miles, 20-year-old winner of the Boston marathon, was on his way to his home at Sydney Mines, N.S., after gaining new laurels here as a pulpit orator. He concluded his visit by delivering two sermons Sunday.

"There is no secret in this marathon game," he told his congregation. "You must think clean, live clean, obey the laws of nature and of God. You may fool the people for a time if you don't follow these rules, but you won't fool God, and if you don't live clean you will ultimately have to pay, both here in life and hereafter."

Four hundred admirers of the youthful champion thronged the station to bid him good-bye as he started his homeward journey.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 27.—They call Helen Wills the poker face of tennis. Well, step up and meet the poker face of golf, little Virginia Van Wie of Chicago.

There are a number of reasons why you should meet little Virginia, the foremost of which, perhaps, is that she seems destined to be the new girl prodigy of golf.

Little Virginia is only 17 years old, yet she is fresh from one of the most stirring rtiumps on the links, a 19-hole victory over Glenna Collett, the national champion of the women.

This startling performance was stitched into the early season's records here the other day when the square-shouldered mannish-looking youngster took the national champion over the bunkers in the finals of the Florida east coast championship.

There was nothing flukey about her triumph either. She matched the champion's long shots off the tee. She matched her long irons to the green. She matched her short approaches. And she more than matched her putting.

No veteran campaigner ever went about his task with greater poise and nerve-restraint that did little Virginia in winning her first important tournament.

The fact she was opposing the best woman golfer in America meant nothing in her brief career. She was as nerveless as Walter Johnson pitching to a rookie from the Three-Eye League.

This is one of her winning cards in golf—a card that is destined to capture a lot of notable tricks for her.

They tell an amusing story about her debut in competitive golf last summer when she qualified for play in the women's western. She drew Mrs. Dave Gaut of Memphis, former southern and western titlist, and a mighty formidable player.

The two battled on even terms all the way. The match was decided on the home green. Little Virginia shanked off her approach shot and the lost stroke cost her the hole and match. Was she perturbed? Not in the least.

Turning to her caddy she said, "Give me my magazine. Now I can go over in the shade and finish that story I started this morning."

Incidentally, Glenna Collett thinks the Chicago miss, her conqueror, is the coming golfer of the new school.

"She has a remarkably well developed game from tee to cup," says the champion, "and to back it up she has an amazing fighting temperament. I don't see how she can possibly fail."

SOCCER OPENING NEXT SATURDAY DELAVAL-QUAKERS, AT THE OVAL

Many Players Have Changed To Other Elevens From Last Year.

LEAGUE SCHEDULE.

Campbellford Was Admitted Into the Association For Cup Ties.

The official opening of the local soccer season opens next Saturday afternoon at the Oval, when DeLaval meet the Quakers, and Omemee vs. Thistle, at Omemee, in the league schedule which was drawn up by a committee of three chosen by the executive at a previous meeting.

Thistle Still to the Fore.

Last year's champions, the Thistle, have again entered into the game with the usual vim but minus many of the eleven that carried the honors in the cup ties. Carmichael has signed for the Quaker Oats, and Frank Wade has attached his name to a Massey form. Jack Wade, at present, is not considering returning to the game unless his knee gives more promise than it did at the end of last year's encounters.

Quakers' Eleven.

According to paper form, the Quaker Oats have selected an eleven which will hold up their previous Gordon Cup record, when they eliminated the now defunct Canadian Woollens. The famous Wilson-Burgess left wing will again function to its limit this year, and will be strengthened by the elusive Mitchell at centre forward (late Canadian Woollens) while George Logan will claim the middle berth on the inside wing. Scott (late of the Quakers) has thrown in his lot with the Thistle, but still a good half back line remains, with two full backs of reliable calibre. As usual, Billy Curtis will be between the posts.

Masseys Re-organized.

The new comers of the senior league have jumped into higher company from the juniors of last year. George Blowers is the managing player and he has kept himself busy gathering together an eleven which will uphold the name to the limit. In their eleven already signed, they include many juniors from last season.

DeLaval Deserve Credit.

There is no name more familiar to local soccer fans than the DeLaval, who come into senior company, as "real sports" who are in the game from a recreation point of view. When you consider any team's previous record they have a very creditable reputation in both the senior and junior league. The DeLaval were one of the oringinal teams that constituted the six team league when the association code was organized after the war. At that time Wilf. Jones was the brilliant custodian and again will occupy the old position. They anticipate a very successful season in senior company as well as they did in the junior league, when the trophies carried their name for the season's championship.

Omemee's Debut.

The Omemee boys are a new aggregation into local soccer and according to previous reports from that district they have signed on many players of repute. At any rate great interest will take place among local fans when they make their initial debut in local league matches.

League Games.

Saturday, May 1st: DeLaval versus Quaker Oats. Referee J. C. Russell. Omemee versus Thistle. Referee W. Rickard. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

Saturday, May 8th: Quaker Oats versus Masseys. Referee A. McKinley.

Saturday, May 15th: Thistle versus DeLaval. Omemee versus Masseys.

Saturday, May 22nd: First round, Phelan Charity Cup.

Campbellford Admitted.

Mr. Sargen of Campbellford, was present last evening at the meeting of the P. and D.F.A. and made application to the executive for Campbellford soccer team. He received a hearty welcome and was informed that the club would be admitted into the association and participate in all cup tie games.

Omemee Signed Players.

Players signed for Omemee in local soccer associations are as follows: Albert Bayman, Roy Black, Jack J. Crafton, Arthur Rhodes, Peter Burchell, William Leiper, Robert McGill, John Black, Thomas H. Lunn, James S. Brooks, James Fife—eleven players.

New Players Registered.

Latest signatures to forms are Jim Willshaw and J. S. Reynolds, Quaker Oats, from Bowmanville; Joe Mayette, Thistle; Edward Hotston, Masseys.

Referees Appointed.

The three regular referees of previous seasons were unanimously accepted, as "Knights of the Whistle"—Alex. McKinley, J. C. Russell and Wm. Rickard.

Clubs' Colors Registered.

Masseys: Scarlet and claret sweaters.

DeLaval: Canary and black sweaters.

Thistle: Black and white sweaters.

Omemee, All red sweaters.

Quakers. Black and white sweaters.

Campbellford: Amber and black sweaters.

When two clubs have the same colors, the visiting team must change the colors of sweaters.

Cup Tie Law.

All players must study this law very carefully: "That a player is eligible to play in another cup tie other than the cup already played in."

A player is only entitled to one release and only one transfer in season 1926.

Juveniles no Trial.

A lively discussion took place in reference to a player of juvenile standing being permitted to play in a senior game, and it was decided "That a juvenile player be not permitted to play in a senior game."

A Team for Omemee.

All the teams in the city have agreed to have a get-together meeting so as to make arrangements to complete an eleven to go to Omemee on May 24th so as to play Omemee Soccer team.

GOLF'S HARD-LUCK PLAYER

Bobby Cruickshank has qualified for the hard-luck championship of golf.

On four occasions in the last two years Dame Fortune has frowned on Bobby just when a title seemed within his grasp.

He recently broke the jinx by winning the north and south open. He had a margin of only one stroke over three other stars tied for second place.

In 1923 Cruickshank tied with Bobby Jones at Inwood for the national open, each finishing with 296. In the playoff Jones won by two strokes, taking 76, Cruickshank needing 78.

In the Texas open of this year Cruickshank missed a tie with Macdonald Smith when he failed to sink a three-inch putt. Cruickshank's slip at the final hole has been laid to Willie Mehlhorn, who is alleged to have yelled just as Bobby was starting his shot.

Several weeks later the irony of fate had Cruickshank and Mehlhorn finish in a tie in the big professional tournament at Hot Springs, Ark. He lost to Mehlhorn in the playoff.

Recently in the Florida open he finished all even with Johnny Farrell. Once again he was defeated in the play-off, Farrell having a margin of one stroke in the extra 18 holes.

Contention is that tennis and robust stimulants must be taken separately if at all, like wives, appendix operations and parachute flights.

It is always well to remember that while milk brings glow of health to a baby's jowls it means nothing to a cow beyond a farmer's prosperity.

This is indeed something to worry about as Mr. Gerald Chapman said when the bad, bad man adjusted a hempen cravat around his neck. A nation without tennis faces a social upheaval, economic disaster, religious chaos and a dearth of Rin-Tin-Tin films.

United we stand, divided we are nothing more than an interesting example in elementary multiplication. Thanks for the buggy ride, murmured the Roman cutie as she stepped with awkward elegance out of Ben Hur's chariot.

Winner of Wimbledom-Simpledom tournament came home the other night all saturated with joy of success, tinctured with liquid enthusiasm from Mr. Hennessey's oil can.

Tennis introduced white flannel breeches to a pop-eyed planet. Brandy introduced white aprons to the bar keeps. If the two are finally getting around to conditions of innocent intimacy now, it's logical enough.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK.

Marvelous beyond conception inaptly describes the glories of Canada's Rockies. To be fully appreciated they must be seen. To start out on a trip by one's self into this unfamiliar but far-famed paradise-on-earth, to many appears quite a task. Realizing this, Dean Sinclair Laird of Macdonald College, an experienced Rocky Mountains Traveller, for the third year in succession, has undertaken to conduct a party through this glorious wonderland.

A special train of dining, standard sleeping, and observation compartment cars has been chartered, to leave Toronto on July 19th via the Canadian Pacific Railway. Stops will be made at Port Arthur and Fort William, which together form Canada's greatest grain port; Winnipeg Beach, the popular summer resort for Winnipegers; Winnipeg, Canada's third largest city; Indian Head, the chief tree listributing centre of the Federal Forestry Branch; Regina, the capital of Saskathewan; Calgary, Alberta's largest city; Banff, the world-famous mountain ersort; by automobile for 104 miles over the Banff-Windermere Highway, the most spectacular drive in Canada; through Kootenay Lake to Nelson, the commercial centre of Southern British Columbia; then through the Doukhobor country to Penticton; along lovely Okanagan Lake, and to Vancouver, thence by steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be by the main line of the Canadian Pacific, through the great canyons of the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, and through the Selkirks, and Rockies, affording scenery such as can be found nowhere else on earth: Lake Louise, the Pearl of the Rockies, the most perfect gem of scenery on the world; another day at Banff, Edmonton, the Capital of Alberta; Saskatoon, the city of optimism; Devil's Camp, on the Lake of the Woods, near Kenora, thence to Fort William, where one of the fine Canadian Pacific steamers will be used across Lake Superior and Huron to Port McNicoll, then rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate.

Everything is included in the price of $330.00, from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels, and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, and sight-seeing tours at points visited.

The trip is open to all, and applications for accommodation are being received.

Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Sinclair Laird, Macdonald College Post Office, Que. t.t.-107.

IN POLICE COURT

A young man hailing from Havelock appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning charged with stealing a ride on C.P.R. trains. He was arrested by C.P.R. Constable J. Evans, who stated in court that the accused was doing harm among the younger element in Havelock by telling them of trips he had taken without paying his fare, thus encouraging them to perform actions of a similar nature. He was fined $10 and costs or a week's imprisonment.

DISSENSION IN THE ATHLETICS

Morale of Mack's Club Said To Be Disrupted By Cliques.

CONNIE CONFIDENT.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Like most any manager, whose fortunes are slim in early season, Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, believes that better times are coming.

The most absorbing topic in the American League now concerns what ails the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns. They have won only four games all season and are tied for the cellar.

"The boys aren't hitting just right. There's nothing the matter with them," Mack said here yesterday. "If we have to get in a bad slump—and we are in one now—I would prefer to have it at this stage of the race.

"Many of the clubs ahead of us are playing far over their heads and mid-season will knock them. When the teams get down to their normal stride we'll be up there."

While Philadelphia is solidly behind her A's, it was observed last week in Philadelphia that the fans are not as sanguine as the manager of the club.

There were responsible reports that dissensions on various issues had disturbed the morale of the club, that certain cliques were against Chick Galloway and Mickey Cochrane and that some of the few older players on the club were not in accord with Mack's policies.

It is too early to count the Athletics and the Browns out of the pennant race, but the race is reaching the stage where they should begin to show something. One good spurt, of course, could carry the two clubs right up to the top, but a bad slump is particularly dangerous at this time, because of its ill effect upon the spirit and morale of the players.

"Looks like the Yanks are the club that we'll have to beat," Bucky Harris, the wise young manager of the Senators, told the writer in Philadelphia.

"We feel sure that we can handle the Athletics and the Browns, but no one can figure a murderous hitting club like the Yankees," he said.

TOILERS WILL PLAY BASKETBALL FINALS

Western Representatives To Compete in Dominion Championships.

WINNIPEG, April 27 (Canadian Press). — The Winnipeg Toilers, Manitoba representatives, will travel to Montreal to play in the finals for the Dominion Basketball Championship.

The Toilers won the right to represent Western Canada against the Eastern champions when they defeated the New Westminster Adanacs, 24 to 20, in the final game of a two-game semi-final series here last night.

The local team won the first game, played Saturday night, 31 to 19, and thus took the round, 55 to 39.

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Corinne Griffith is Fifi in "Mlle. Modiste," adapted to the screen from the popular musical comedy written by Blossom Jones and Victor Herbert. Corinne handles the tough customers when all else fails.

This First National picture, which was directed by Robert Z. Leonard, will be an early release. The cast in support of Miss Griffith includes Norman Kerry, Rose Dione, Willard Louis, Dorothy Cummings, Paulette Duval and Tony Merlow.

John Roche, actor, has deserted the Warner Brothers studio, according to his press agent, because he was continually cast in pictures as a villain. "Mr. Roche feels that he is more suitable to hero characterizations," the publicist declares.

* * *

News Item: Pola Negri and Mae Murray, according to statistics compiled by interviewers, have broken more engagements with newspaper men than all other stars combined.

LOCAL ARTISTE.

The "St. Catharines Standard," says of Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, who last week was giving a recital in St. Paul St. United Church, St. Catharines:—

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park's contribution to the program included early classics, some Russian numbers, and a group of English songs. The singer at once established herself as an artist who has undergone careful training, her impeccable enunciation, and exemplary diction, were an object lesson. The rendering of the Aria, (Handel); Rachmaninoff's "Lilacs" and Eric Coates' charming little ballad "I heard you singing" gave Mrs. Park scope for displaying her versatility. Whilst the few remarks with which she prefaced each of the Russian numbers was a happy thought, for probably but few present-day concert-goers know anything of the composer of the "The Golden Cockerel" or of "Boris Godouno" and the name of Rachmaninoff has reached the public chiefly through his pianoforte works. Mrs. Park's rendering of "O Thou Billowy Harvest Field" was an artistic treat, and one could almost sense the pastoral atmosphere of "In Summer Time on Bredon." This singer's mezzo voce work was excellent.

Mrs. Park has been engaged for a return visit on May 17th, by the organist and choir of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Diamond Disputes Decided.

By BILLY EVANS

Is there any situation where the batsman is entitled to first on a foul fly that is caught?

* * *

On the surface that may appear to be a very foolish question but such a thing is possible.

Such a situation can be created by interference on the part of the catcher with the batsman in an attempt to strike at a pitched ball.

The rule which governs this very unusual play, giving the batsman first base on a foul fly ball that is caught, says:

"The batsman becomes a baserunner if the catcher interfere with him in or prevent him from, striking at a pitched ball."

In the case cited, the catcher interfered with the batsman as he swung at the ball. The result was a foul fly that is caught. However, no consideration is given what happens after the catcher has created the interference.

That act suspends play and entitles the batsman to first regardless of what happens.

BILLY EVANS Says

MORE ABOUT BABE

Why all the ado about Babe Ruth's weight. ?

When the Bambino socked 59 home runs for a world record he was far from being a tiny person. The Babe weighed about 225 that season.

Last year Ruth weighed about the same but it wasn't a good weight. Instead of the muscles being hard and the flesh firm, they were soft and flabby.

Injuries and illness prevented Ruth from getting into condition.

This winter reams have been written about the weight that Ruth has taken off in his effort to come back, provided he ever went away.

I would be willing to wager that Ruth weighs 220 right now. He might tip the scales at 225, the weight at which he did his best batting.

Ruth hasn't wasted away to nothing because of his winter's effort to regain condition. He's the same old Babe, a good sized waistline, but the muscles once again look hard and the flesh firm.

It takes plenty of weight and real strength to sock the ball as Ruth did in the good old days.

FOREIGN STARS

During the past year the supremacy of the United States in sports has been rudely jolted.

Charlie Hoff has been showing the natives how to pole-vaule and recently in competition with our best athletes easily won the indoor all-around championship.

Jake Schaefer has twice been deprived of his billiard title, once by Horemans of Belgium and, after he regained it, lost to Hagenlacher of Germany.

Then there are Nurmi, Lowe, Abrahams and Liddell, all world champs at their respective distances, hailing from the other side.

Even the great Tilden, regarded as supreme in tennis, was defeated by Borotra of France. Helen Wills also succumbed to Suzanne Lenglen.

While there is no reason to be pessimistic, it is mighty hard to be an optimist after reading the above.

GIFT SAFETY CURBED

The gift safety, which became almost as obnoxious in football last year as is the intentional pass in baseball, appears to have been considerably curbed by the new rules.

In the west last fall a team leading, 7-0, with only a short time to play, made three intentional or gift safeties in order to retain the ball and thereby not be forced to take a chance.

The game ended 7-6, the team that made the touchdown winning as a result of the rather unsportsmanlike strategy.

Under the new rules the team making a safety must put the ball in play on the 20-yard line instead of the 30 and must kick on the first play.

BASEBALL BUGS

Walter Hagen is a baseball bug. Willie Hoppe is in the same class.

Not only do these two stars like to watch the game but they prefer playing it.

In playing baseball there is always great danger of injury to the hands. The deft putting touch of Hagen in golf and the finesse of Hoppe's billiard play depends largely on the condition of their hands.

Yet down south this spring it was not unusual to see Walter Hagen out playing ball with the big leaguers. Hoppe has the same habit.

Both Hagen and Hoppe probably would have starred at the national pastime had they taken it up with the same purpose and determination they did golf and billiards.

CURVE PITCHING

"Unless a pitcher is blessed with terrific speed, a good curve ball is the most deceptive delivery," says John McGraw.

Working on that theory, it is said New York pitchers throw at least two curves to every fast ball. Perhaps the ratio is even more pronounced.

McGraw's pitchers are known as curve-ball pitchers. When opposing teams face the Giants, they know they can expect hook after hook, yet the Giants are always tough to beat.

All of which seems to bear out McGraw's ideas as to curve-ball pitching.

Pleasing Event in George Street Church—Children Are Guests.

A very pleasing event took place yesterday afternoon in the Sunday school rooms of George street church, when the Women's Missionary Society entertained about thirty-five of the children of the Mission Band to an enjoyable tea, served from tables prettily decorated with pink and white tulips. Mrs. W. H. Cunningham acted as convenor, and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, president of the W.M.S., presented prizes for attendance and for getting new members, won respectively by Arthur Stinson and Grace Burns, Olive Rove and Margaret Vance. Mrs. J. H. Rowe, superintendent of the Mission Band, was assisted by Mrs. J. E. Todd and Mrs. V. Walker. A vote of thanks to the ladies of the W. M. S. was moved by Helen Burns and seconded by Miriam Purdy. Mrs. Coon and her daughter, Miss Marion Coon, home on furolugh from missionary work in West China, were also guests of the W.M.S.

JIMMY OCKENDEN—WHY PROS PLAY BETTER GOLF

Among the many phases of the game from time to time are discussed among golfers, none can be said to be more consistently debated than that relating to the comparative superiority of professionals over amateurs in the matter of straight hitting with both wooden and iron clubs. There can be little doubt that, day in and day out, the average professional's shots are much more consistently accurate as regards direction than those of the average scratch amateur.

The professional has his bad day, of course, when his shots veer persistently to the right or left of the desired objective, but, speaking generally, his lapses are neither so frequent nor so pronounced as those of the average amateur. Usually the professional wins in a match round.

It may be argued—and in some cases the argument is not altogether incorrect—that the professional owes his superior accuracy to the amount of practice he is able to put in. But this does not apply in every case.

To my mind the answer lies not so much in the amount of practice one gets, but in employing the proper methods.

ANNOUNCES NEW RUBBER METHODS

Different Method of Output Restriction Will Go Into Effect.

LONDON, April 26. — Canadian Press. — The element of uncertainty which has existed in the outlook for the crude rubber market and rubber shares has been removed.

The Colonial office announces that a new method of output restriction will go into effect in August if rubber meanwhile falls below 21 pence (42 cents) a pound, whereas the original restriction scheme aimed at keeping the price over 15 pence.

Announcement says it has been decided that the percentage of the standard priduction of rubber which may be exported at a minimum rate of duty from Ceylon and Malaya during the months beginning May 1st, shall be 100, and that the maximum limit of 500 pounds an acre provided under regulations applicable to the assessment of an estate of more than 25 acres in Malaya, shall be abolished.

On the announcement of the presence of the visiting officers, they were duly admitted, and received with the 'Honors of the Order.' The installation officers then took their respective stations, as follows, viz.: District Deputy Supreme Monarchos, F. J. Moore, presiding; D. S. Khaliff, E. Varcoe; D. S. Secretary, J. Miller; D. S. Oshawa expected to have a contingent present, but the Ottawa deputation stopped their visit here.

One of the pleasant features of the evening was the presentation of a baton to Tribesman M. B. Chenhall, Tribesman G. W. East making the presentation on behalf of the members.

The visitors present were all members of Khavi Sanctorum, No. 235, A. M. O. S., Bowmanville, Ont.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed and tendered to D. D. S. M. Moore and suite, for their presence, and the splendid manner in which they had carried through the ceremony of installation which was suitably acknowledged by D. D. S. M. Moore.

DUNCAN REPORT

intendent of Customs Examiners, Port of Montreal, as outlined in the reports, are:

"Releasing dutiable goods without collecting customs duties thereon.

"Making false entry re a shipment of coal, and stealing in collusion with his son.

"Gross neglect of duty in allowing two women to escape after they were found to be in possession of smuggled narcotics of the value of some $35,000.

"Receiving large quantities of liquor from the customs house.

"Receiving a cheque for $300 from Ludger Brien, a former Customs Officer who was in partnership with Bisaillon in trafficking in liquor in connection with which he could not give a reasonable explanation.

Inspector Duncan stated that evidence shows that J. A. Bernier, inspector of outports, port of Montreal, received liquor knowing that it came from Government warehouse.

R. P. Galgle, chief gauger of the port of Montreal, according to the evidence, the report proceeds, sold two barrels of Bourbon Kentucky whiskey "believed to be taken from a shipment of liquor belonging to the Quebec Liquor Commission." Another offence of Daigles, according to the report, consisted in delivering large quantities of liquor, sugar and molasses to inspector Clerk, and others, from the Government warehouse during the past three years.

THEATRE

PERCY MARMONT IN "LORD JIM."

Percy Marmont, the man who has made such a name for himself in pictures like "If Winter Comes," and "The Street of Forgotten Men," is here once again in Joseph Conrad's "Lord Jim." Marmont is a wonderful actor. He makes his characterizations live like human beings on the screen, but he seems to have a flair for the sad ending. "Lord Jim" is a very interesting picture, with plenty of colorful situations, but the main actor dies in the final scene, and provides the melancholy touch which is unattractive to most movie goers, who like their screen romances to end happily.

It is the story of a man who does his best and meets with misfortune. His habit of choosing the path of stern duty at all times leads him finally to the grave, but Marmont does some outstanding work in "Lord Jim," as he did in his other pictures, and is well supported by Shirley Mason, and Noah Beery, the latter as the villain of the piece, with his coadjutor, Raymond Hatton.

Jim (Percy Marmont) is first mate on the Steamer Patna, loading pilgrims to Mecca, out of the Indian Ocean port of Salabang. The captain (Noah Beery as Captain Brown) is a scoundrel who runs down a derelict ship and then refuses to take off its passengers. Jim is made the goat at the subsequent Court of Enquiry, and loses his certificate as a mate. Adolph Stein, a merchant of Bankok befriends him and sends him with a signet ring to Patusan, "at the end of the world," where the Rajah, who is old and sick, welcomes him and dubs him "Lord Jim." He is given great authority and earns the jealous hatred of the only white man on the island, Cornelius (Raimond Hatton). Then a ship appears with Captain Brown on board and the white men make trouble on the island. Jim intercedes for them and they are leaving, when one of them kills the Rajah's son, who, in revenge, shoots "Lord Jim." He dies in the arms of Jewel, the Rajah's daughter, with whom he has fallen in love.

AT THE GRAND

"THE CORSICAN BROTHERS"

Both Sir John Martin-Harvey and "The Corsican Brothers," the vehicle in which he was seen at the Grand last night, continue to meet the challenge of time triumphantly. The famous British actor to whose visits in past years Peterborough players are indebted for pleasant memories chose for his one appearance here on this occasion, Alexandre Dumas' stirring play of revenge, and there were perhaps not a few people who went to the Grand last evening just a litle fearsome that this old drama might seem, viewed through modern eye, as a creaking, impossible, obsolete stage performance.

If such there were, they were pleasantly disappointed for under the skilful artistry of Sir John and his well balanced company, "The Corsican Brothers" was convincing and real. The story of the play is too well known to be repeated here. It is enough to say that in this drama based on the Corsican characteristic that injury to one's family must be paid in kind, Sir John finds ample scope for his histrionic genius in the dual role offered him. His portrayal of the part of the twin brothers was a masterpiece of stagecraft, and the deft touches by which he accentuated the differences between the two, made his performance memorable even with those who had seen this great actor in his wonderful work in "The Only Way," as the Rat in 'The Breed of the Treshams," as David Garrick in the play of that name, and in 'A Cigarette-Maker's Romance," in which he last visited Peterboro. His remarkable voice, his notable command of facial expression and the grace and sureness with which he invested every little bit of business all stamped him as in the full bloom of his genius.

Associated with him on this occasion were several of the players seen here on previous visits, as well as a number of new artists, and the supporting company left little to be desired. Particularly effective was the work of Gordon McLeod as Monsieu de Chateau-Renaud, whose acting in the final act was one of the high lights of the final performance. That sterling comedian, Alfred Ibberson, played two comedy parts with his usual success, and good work was done by Michael Mackenzie, and other members of the cast. Lady Martin-Harvey (Miss N. De Silva) was seen as Emilie de Lesparre, and Miss Mary Linden was excellent as Madame dei Franchi.

The production was most handsomely staged and costumed and nothing was spared in giving a thoroughly artistic performance.

Sir John was recalled repeatedly at the end of each act and at the close of the performance was forced to acknowledge the continued applause with a characteristically graceful little speech in which he referred to previous warm receptions in Peterborough, and to his regret that their stay on this occasion was so brief. Incidentally he recalled the fact that "The Corsican Brothers" was the favorite play of the late King Edward VII.—F.D.C.

AT THE REGENT

IS DOG, EAGLE OR BABY NEW YORK'S BEST ACTOR?

Tiny Mary Louise Miller, Clever Rin-tin-tin and Villainous-Looking Bird Do Remarkable Work—Floating Theatre is Latest Novelty in Amusement World.

(By Jessy Trimble.)

NEW YORK, April 27.—Who is the greatest actor in New York at the present moment? A dog or an eagle, it is difficult to say which. In "The Night Cry," a picture coming to the Regent Theatre on Thursday, the wonder dog, Rin-tin-tin, vies with "the giant condor" is as remarkable histrionic attainments as we have seen this winter. There have been animal pictures of all sorts and sizes but nothing to compare, in my opinion, with the adventures of Rin-tin-tin and the eagle on the screen. They do their acting in Hollywood on "the lot" representing a sheep ranch. The eagle steals the sheep and Rinty gets the blame. The eagle tries to steal a baby and Rinty is the rescuer. The three of them play around together as intelligently as three grown human beings. Which suggests the possibility that after all the baby, Mary Louise Miller, has claims of her own to being the greatest actor in New York at the present moment.

Warner Brothers informs me that the little girl learned her part chiefly through love of Rinty. She delighted in petting him from the start and the two of them became fast friends. The director did not rehearse the child very much. The flashes were made on the wing, as it were, whenever the dog and Mary Louise instinctively took the position illustrative of the scenes as described to them by the director. Rin-tin-tin realized early in this picture that he was there to protect the little girl in life as well as in fiction. Rin-tin-tin was on guard as an actor and one might almost say as a man.

For note the following: the eagle in the cast is indeed a giant. He has a spread of wings twelve feet—a villainous looking creature. At one point his duty is to pick the child up in his talons and fly away with her. The distance he flies is of course cleverly exaggerated by the screen but nevertheless fly he does, and Marv Louise is landed on a mountainous peak far above the sheep lands in her father's valley. Along comes Rin-tin-tin. He has a grievance. The ranchmen think him guilty of killing the little lambs. He-Rin-tin-tin! Who has for a long time been aware of the eagle's guilt. Now the giant condor has stolen Rinty's beloved playmate. Rinty is on the job.

Protecting Child Actress

The play ends, of course, with the rescue of the child, the death of the eagle by means of Rinty and the latter's reward for intelligence and heroism. The child is returned to the arms of her agonized parents.

They tell me that it would be almost impossible for any harm to come to the little girl in the course of taking these pictures. To begin with Rinty is with her most of the time. When these two and the eagle are caged together for purposes necessary to the screen Rinty knows that he is on guard. And the eagle seems aware that he, too, is an actor. Certainly he obeys the orders given him by the trainer as the director directs. The parents, the real parents, are always as near to their child as they can be and not get into the picture. Two guards stand with rifles loaded and raised to kill the eagle if the child should be in danger. Warner Brothers are taking no chances with the life of one of the finest child actresses the world has ever seen.

COMEDY PRESENTED.

Baraca Class Stages Play, "Our Boys"—Well Put On.

A snappy little comedy play entitled "Our Boys," was put on by the members of the Baraca class of Murray street Baptist church last night. Every one played his or her part well. The part of Charles Middlewick played by Ronald Deyell was exceedingly well taken as were those played by Miss Ida Wood and Miss Mildred Archer.

The play is the story of two men, one a knight and the other wealthy, who have two sons. The knight is a typical autocrat and tries to dictate to his son who he should marry. The other father gives his son his own way, but as soon as this son wants to marry a girl whom his father does not like, there is trouble.

The two boys leave home and go to live in the city of London, in which they pass through hard times. They have a little lodging house girl who is very faithful to them. In due time the fathers come to the city and spy on their boys. The aunt of Talbot also comes with something for the boys to eat. The two girls also happen along and after a time when it seems that everything is going to go wrong the fathers accept the girls and the boys are again made welcome in their fathers' homes.

This play is being put on again tonight.

The cast was as follows —

Sir Geofirey Champneys, Ray Purdy.

Talbot Champneys, his son, Sid Drury.

Perkyn Middlewick, a retired butterman, Jack Pritchard.

Charles Middlewick, his son, Ronald Deyell.

Kempster, Sir Geoffory's manservant, Gordon Manning.

Poddles, Middlwick's butler, Jim Howden.

Violet Melrose, an heiress, Miss Trucie Pearson.

Mary Melrose, her poor cousin, Miss Mildred Archer.

Clarissa Champneys, Sir Geoffory's sister, Miss Edna Cheverill.

Belinda, a lodging house slavey, Miss Ida Wood.

Stage Manager—Gordon Manning.

Producer—A. D. Clark.

Orchestra Leader—Cecil Gallagher.

A RELIABLE KIDNEY MEDICINE FOR CHILDREN

So Says Manitoba Lady of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. L. Strom Gave Her Children Dodd's Kidney Pills for Involuntary Urination with Excellent Results.

MULVIHILL, Man., April 26.—(Special).—Weak kidneys are not confined to grown people only. They are too often found in children, sowing the seeds of future ills unless the kidneys are strengthened and put in condition to do their full work.

Mrs. L. Strom, a well known resident of this place, relates her experience in the following letter of praise. She says: "I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for my children on several occasions and am glad to say they have given me great satisfaction in the case of involuntary urination. I shall continue using them and would not be without them in the house."

The primary cause of this trouble is weakness of the bladder and kidneys. The child is unable to control the muscles that govern the bladder, consequently the urine passes away involuntary, mostly during the hours of sleep.

The very best remedy for this trouble is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

PRESENT MEMORIAL ON CHURCH UNION

Members of Evangelical Church Consult With General Conference.

KITCHENER, April 26 (Canadian Press) — The Canada conference of the Evangelical Church does not desire to enter into negotiation for organically uniting with any other church until a clear understanding as to the probable attitude of its own church authorities towards such a union is secured, according to a memorial unanimously adopted at Saturday afternoon's session, asking the general conference of the church for such an opinion. The sympathetic help and co-operation of the general conference is implored in finding a solution of the intricate situation. The memorial which was adopted will be placed before the general conference at its next session in October, 1926, in Williamsport, Pa.

WEDDING BELLS.

BUTLER—TOBIN.

A pretty wedding took place this morning at the Immaculate Conception church, when Esther Alma Tobin, youngest daughter of Thomas Tobin, and the late Mrs. Tobin, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Philip Cecil Butler, third son of the late James A. Butler and Mrs. Butler.

The wedding ceremony was performed by the groom's brother, Rev. P. P. Butler, with Masters Vincent Butler and James Houlihan as servers.

A dainty breakfast was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. M. Tobin, Cricket Place, who was assisted by Mrs. H. O'Rourke.

The toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Rev. P. P. Butler.

Later the bride and groom left for Toronto, and on their return will reside at 193 River Road.

The groom's gift to the bride was a necklace of pearls and rubies, to the bridesmaid an amethyst bracelet, and to the groom a gold watchguard. Robbers secure

OBITUARY.

JOHN C. LYNCH
(Contributed)

HASTINGS, April 27 — John C. Lynch of town passed peacefully away about seven o'clock on Monday evening after an illness extending over the past five months at the ripe old age of 83 years.

Mr. Lynch, who was most widely and favorably known through out this section of the county, came to Hastings from Asphodel some 12 years ago and had won for himself golden opinions as a citizen and gentleman.

He was a man of excellent habits, fine moral and Christian character, cheerful disposition and sturdy constitution and he continued to be active in business until long past the age of 81 before which men ordinarily drop out of the ranks as workers.

His cheerful spirit remained with him till the last, contributing in no small measure to the courage and faith of his beloved family.

His best monument will be the goo report he has left behind in good report he has left behind in lived.

The grim reaper found him as a shock of corn fully ripe for the harvest. Few of us will live as long or as well and fewer yet will the angel of death greet with such a loving touch.

His wife predeceased him some 28 years ago and from that happy union there are left to mourn his loss five sons and three daughters: namely, Edward, Charles, George Thomas of Hastings, and Joseph of Lipzig, Sask.; Mrs. M. J. McFarland of Toronto, Mrs. W. H. Chapman and Mrs. John English of Hastings.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at nine o'clock to the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel. Interment at the Roman Catholic cemetery here.

LIQUOR SAMPLES BOTTLED BY CUSTOMS INSPECTOR AND SENT AS GIFTS TO MINISTER OF CUSTOMS, THE DEPUTY MINISTER AND CIVIL SERVICE OFFICIALS

Perquisites of Liquor Guager at Montreal Forwarded Across Provincial Boundary To Dry Ontario—Customs Enquiry Events Moved Swiftly Tuesday.

MELLOWED LIQUOR POURED INTO SEWER.

Civil Service Commissioner Denies That Liquor Present Had Any Influence on Applications For Salary Increases.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 28 (Canadian Press)—Events moved quickly in the Customs probe Tuesday. Seventy-seven days after the report on customs administration in the port of Montreal, made to the goverment by Inspector Walter Duncan, had been privately tabled with the committee, it was read at an open sitting. Its chief feature was its arraignment of J. E. Bisaillon chief inspector of the port for years until he was dismissed last December, on some fifteen charges of dereliction to duty. Most of these charges have been already made public through evidence taken subsequently at the probe.

Other officers of the Montreal district were found guilty by Inspector Duncan, but the most striking feature was the declaration that heads of the Customs department must have been aware of some of the irregular practices going on, prior to the dismissal of Bisaillon, who amongst other things is accused of conniving at the smuggling of stolen automobiles from the United States, at the smuggling of liquor into that country, and "permitting two women to escape" after they had been found to have $35,000 of smuggled narcotics in their possession.

Gifts of Liquor

Much of the day was given up to hearing the defence of two officials named in the Duncan report. Clarence Jameson, one of the members of the Civil Service Commission, was quizzed concerning liquor shipped in case lots from Montreal to his club, across the river from Ottawa but on the Quebec side. Mr. Jameson had accepted these gifts from R. P. Clerk, chief inspector of the Montreal port, who assembled samples of liquor taken by excise officers and put up from time to time in bottles and cases for distribution. These samples have been considered for many a year the possession of the chief gauger of the port and it has been the practice to send them to friends of the customs officers. Mr. Clerk, earlier in the day, had testified that he regularly sent such gifts of liquor to Senator Jacques Bureau, then Minister of Customs, R. R. Farrow, Deputy Minister, Mr. Jameson and another member of the Civil Service Commission, M. G. Larochelle, between June, 1923, and March, 1925.

In all about 47 cases of such liquor was sent in the direction of Ottawa, and the Civil Service Commissioners mentioned got a share of it. In cross-examination, members of the committee suggested that the decision of the commissioners on recommendations made by Mr. Clerk for promotions in his department must have been influenced by such gifts. Mr. Jameson denied this and showed that an application from Clerk himself for an increase in salary had been turned down.

Only One Rejection

"You have called me a political tool, but I am not going to serve your political ends" said R. P. Clerk, special Inspector of Customs in the port of Montreal, to Hon. H. H. Stevens Tuesday afternoon.

Following the reading of the Dun can report Mr. Clerk had been on the stand for some time. When the probe resumed after lunch, he was asked many questions about the effect on the Civil Service Commission on recommendations for promotion made on behalf of customs employees by Mr. Clerk and the collector at Montreal, Mr. Weldon.

Mr. Clerk said that out of 136 such recommendations, only one had been turned down by the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Stevens asked if Mr. Clerk was not the "chief distributor" of liquor taken as samples and afterwards shipped by the case to friends of Mr. Clerk's in the Ottawa Department of Customs and the Civil Service Commission.

Mr. Clerk flared up.

He would "absolutely refuse to answer such a question." He had been compelled to mention names freely and he would not go any further.

Mr. Stevens appealed for the chairman's ruling.

C. W. Bell suggested that Mr. Clerk might say who was the chief distributor of liquor if he were not.

Mr. Clerk said that his disposal of the sample liquor was his own affair.

Mr. Stevens said it was a matter of public business.

Chairman Mercier suggested that what Mr. Clerk objected to was the putting of implications on words he uttered.

Finally Mr. Clerk said that he did not know that any body else was sending out such gifts of liquor.

Sufficient Answer

Mr. Stevens considered that sufficient answer to his question. He commented that the gift of 37 cases if liquor in two years, to officers in Ontario who included two members of the Civil Service Commission must have "at least played some part in influencing these high officers in upholding your recommendations."

Mr. Clerk said that he held Messrs. Jamieson and Larochelle in too high esteem to suppose that they would be influenced by a few cases of liquor.

Mr. Stevens asked how about Messrs. Bureau and Farrow?

Mr. Clerk said the same answer applied to them.

Mr. Clerk had left the stand when Hon. R. B. Bennett arrived in the committee room. The Montreal inspector was recalled and Mr. Bennett shouted at him:

"You say that all that liquor came from the gauger, what? Do you expect anybody to believe that?"

Mr. Clerk shouted back: "You have no right to throw reflections on my character."

Mr. Bennett demanded to know who "bought that liquor."

Mr. Clerk defiantly called out that he had already told the committee that it was samples, assembled by him for shipment to his friends.

"But who bought those bottles?" Mr. Bennett insisted.

Filled Bottles Himself

The customs inspector said he or his family bought the bottles, put the liquor in and corked it.

"By hand?" was the next question from the Calgary M.P.

"No, we had a machine for putting in corks," replied Mr. Clerk.

"Where did you get the labels?"

"From a drug store. Ordinary little slips of paper used by druggists to mark the bottles."

"How about the labels for the cognac?"

"Oh, those yellow ones for Mr. Jameson's liquor. From the drug store."

"There appears to have been seventy or eighty cases of this stuff shipped," went on Mr. Bennett. Why for instance, he asked, were there tinfoil tops to the bottles.

"What are you trying to insinuate?" retorted Mr. Clerk. "Do you think I had a still at my place."

"To do you justice, I don't think you had," replied Mr. Bennett, who proceeded to grill the witness with question after question, eliciting the same answer, that all the liquor that went into the bottles was obtained from the gauger, Robert Daigle.

Earlier in the proceedings, Mr. Clerk paid tribute to Mr. Daigle, who had gone to a training school to learn the art of testing liquor and worked very hard to equip himself for the task. This was in reply to some questions concerning the reason for Mr. Daigle's promotion to the post of chief gauger in 1923.

Asked why he started to send liquor to his friends, Mr. Clerk replied that "he wanted to be agreeable."

"Why select the limited four to send it to?" asked Mr. Bennett.

"I am not a wholesaler," replied the witness.

One day he heard that eSnator Bureau was going to buy some liquor and he said to the minister. "I don't know why you should go to any expense. I'll give it to you."

He saw no harm in doing that. He had sent about 47 cases in two years.

Passed Liquor to Friends

Clarence Jamieson, one of the members of the civil service commission, testified that Clerk one day offered to send him some wine and spirits. He explained that he did not use stimulants himself. He "did not agree with them." He liked to pass them on to his friends.

Cause of Earth's 'Wobble' Found By Mathematician

SAN FRANCISCO. Calif. April 28.— Canadian Press. — Captain Thomas J. J. See, U. S. N., mathematician and government astronomer at Mare Island, near here, announced yesterday that he had discovered the cause of the variation of latitude or periodic "wobble" of the earth's axis.

Professor See said he had demonstrated mathematically that phenomena of polar motion or shift of the earth's axis, in the globe, are due to the tides in the Pacific Ocean. This discovery was the result of forty years' study of the tides, and findings under his hypothesis agree exactly with astronomical observations in many countries over a period of 45 years.

FRENCH WOMAN FACING DEATH ON GUILLOTINE

Poisoner of a Dozen People Merrily Tells Others Are Involved.

NO COMMUTATION.

First of Her Sex in a Generation To Lose Her Head.

NIMES, France, April 28 (United Press). — Antoinette Sierri, the poisoner of a dozen people, young and old, will probably enjoy the unenviable distinction of being the first French woman in a generation to lose her head at the guillotine.

Antoinette was sentenced last night following conviction of her many crimes.

Although few women have recently submitted to the quick decapitation of Dr. Guillotine's famous invention, it is believed that President Doumergue will not commute the prisoner's sentence to life imprisonment. The woman virtually raised no defence. She merrily said there were others involved in the poison plots, one of which was directed toward the extermination of an entire family.

Prisoner Simulates Folly Declares Crown Alienist

QUEBEC, Que., April 28.—Canadian Press. — Expert evidence by alienists, called by the defence and others, brought forward by the Crown in rebuttal, occupied all Tuesday morning's session of the Court of Assizes, in the case of Eugene Bigaouette, who is on trial for the murder of his old mother in November last year.

While the experts for the defence tended to show that the accused was mentally deficient, the principal and only alienist called so far by the Crown, Dr. Albert Brousseau, maintained that Eugene Bigaouette, was "simulating" folly, but was of normal intelligence.

Locusts Swarm In Tuscany; Peasants Pray To Saints

FLORENCE, April 28. United Press. — Swarms of locusts obscured the sky in Tuscany today.

A column of insects a mile long and 200 yards wide, invaded a localized area, spreading terror among the inhabitants, and ruining the crops. The sky was a curious milk-like color during the invasion.

The inhabitants of Monte Della Lima, where the greatest damage was done, gathered in their churches praying to the saints for deliverance.

STONEY LAKE PARTLY OPEN

Mr. and Mrs. F. Brownscombe Make First Trip of Season To Cottage.

PADDLE ACROSS.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Brownscombe returned to the city last evening after spending a few days at their summer cottage on Stoney Lake. They motored to Burleigh Falls where they got a canoe and paddled to their cottage. The lake is now open from Burleigh Falls down through Hill's Gate as far as the lighthouse at the upper end of Clear Lake, but all of Clear Lake as also of Stoney Lake from Juniper Island store to Mount Julian, Boschink and McCracken's Landing is still solid ice without any sign of an opening.

For a number of years Mr. Brownscombe has been one of the first cottagers to visit the lake after the ice goes out. Not only is one of the first to go to the lake, but what is more noteworthy, by his trip this year he has commenced his 64th year at Stoney Lake without missing a year.

BRIGHTER DAYS FOR CANADIANS

President of Canadian Press Strikes Optimistic Note For Future.

VALUABLE WORK.

TORONTO, April 28 (Canadian Press).—An optimistic note was struck today by J. H. Woods of The Calgary Herald at the annual general meeting of the Canadian Press, over which he presided. "After surveying," he said, "with such care and ability as I possess, the general situation throughout Canada I believe we may look forward with good hope and sanguine minds to the future of our country and the business and profession in which we are engaged. I think that many of the troubles which have afflicted us are on the way to a solution and that a brighter and better day than we have seen for quite a while is now dawning for the people and press of Canada."

Speaking of the work of the Canadian Press, Mr. Woods said:

"During the past year, as president of this co-operative news-gathering association of daily newspaper publishers of Canada, I have gained a fair insight into its workings and I am more than ever convinced of its great value, not only to the publishers, but to the Canadian public."

In a closing reference to the work of the staff, Mr. Woods said:

"I wish to express my very warm appreciation of the really splendid work that has been done during the past year by your general manager, J. F. B. Livesay, and by his district superintendents, traffic officials and staff."

The third plane did not fall, but the shock of the collision threw the pilot out of the machine and he was killed instantly when his body struck the ground.

SCOTCH POURED INTO SEWER BY EXCISE OFFICER

Cask of 35 Gallons, Long Unclaimed, Was Christmas Present.

INTO LAUNDRY TUB.

Enquiry Committee Gasped at Disposal of Mellowed Scotch.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Thirty to thirty-five gallons of whiskey, so old that nobody could remember its origin, was "decanted into the sewer through a laundry tub in the basement," of R. S. White, Conservative member of Parliament for Mount Royal and former Chief Collector for the Canadian Customs port of Montreal.

A customs official had mentioned the delivery of a quarter cask of whiskey from the customs warehouse to Mr. White's residence some years ago, the veteran parliamentarian asked permission to make a statement before the House Committee conducting the probe. He remembered that the cask had been left at his house one Christmas Eve. It had lain at the back door until the janitor came in the morning. The latter brought it indoors.

Mr. White, then Collector of Customs, spoke to the chief of the examining warehouse, Mr. Young, about it and was told that the quarter cask, containing Scotch whiskey, had lain in the customs warehouse for many years, probably prior to Mr. White's own inception in 1895. It had failed to attract a bid which would cover the customs duty and seizure charges and had become forfeit to the Crown. It should have been destroyed, but Mr. Young, reluctant to do this, had sent it to his collector, thinking it "not improper—in the courteous sense" to make this little recognition.

"I was determined that I should not use that whiskey," said Mr. White. "Under my supervision, the whole contents of that cask were decanted into a sewer through a laundry tub in my basement."

Committee Gasped

The announcement brought from the crowded committee room a chorus of exclamations of astonishment and disapproval. Mr. White continued: "Some would regard it as a wanton waste of what some people consider a good thing, but I contend that I was complying with the law. So far as I was concerned, I had eased my conscience."

Every Christmas for many years, added Mr. White, he had received from the chief gauger of the day about a dozen bottles of assorted liquors, made up from the samples taken by the gauger and which the

PROVINCES HOLD MEETING IN JUNE

Interprovincial Conference To Be Held at Ottawa Soon, It Is Thought.

POWER QUESTION.

QUEBEC, April 28.—(Canadian Press).—An inter-Provincial conference, the date of which has not yet been set, will be called shortly in Ottawa, according to reliable information here. It was also learned that previous to the meeting Premier Ferguson of Ontario and the Quebec Premier will meet this week to discuss questions of interest to the two Provinces.

The main question to be taken up will likely be the possibility of an understanding in regard to some projected water developments on inter-Provincial rivers. As to the inter-Provincial conference, it is thought that it will take place some time in June in the Federal capital. Each Province will make a series of suggestions destined to improve its status, but it is not thought that any additional Federal subsidy will be sought.

MANUFACTURERS OF MATERIALS USED IN MAKING AUTOMOBILES MAKE PROTEST TO GOVERNMENT

Present Memorial Setting Forth Opposition To Tariff Reduction.

NO STABILITY.

Case of Farm Tractor Industry is Cited To Back Protest.

OTTAWA, April 28. Canadian Press. — "Since the war there have been seven budgets which contained tariff reductions, many of them of far-reaching character. During the same period every other industrial country in the world, without exception, has greatly increased their customs tariff. There can be no stability when industry does not know from year to year what Parliament will do."

The above is one paragraph in the memorial presented to the government by a large delegation representing Canadian manufacturers of parts, materials and supplies used by the automobile and motor truck manufacturers of Canada, which waited upon Premier King and the members of the Dominion Cabinet early this afternoon.

A strong protest against reductions in automobile tariffs provided for in the budget, was voiced by the delegation.

"Two million people in Canada are dependent on the automobile manufacturing industry," the memorial says. "The drawback in duty on materials and parts as proposed in the budget, we believe to be unworkable," declares the memorial. "It would mean much added expense to the manufacturers in keeping records for the Government and in gathering certificates from customers, and also great expense to the government to administer." The farm tractor industry in Canada is cited as one of those which has been destroyed by tariff reductions. "The government of the day was warned that the removal of duties on farm tractors would extinguish the industry in Canada, but the duties were removed; no farm tractors are now made in Canada, and the livelihood of over 15,000 Canadians has disappeared." A list of sixty-nine cities and towns in various provinces of Canada, where parts, materials and supplies used in the manufacture of automobiles are made, was appended to the memorial.

TWO PARTIES IN COAL STRUGGLE MEET BALDWIN

Premier Succeeds in Bringing Disputants Into An Open Conference.

SESSION TO-DAY.

No Announcement of Progress at Interviews During Tuesday.

LONDON, April 28 (Canadian Press). — Premier Baldwin, whose time now is almost exclusively occupied with the coal negotiations, has at last succeeded in getting the two parties to the dispute into an open conference. After a day fully employed in interviews with the various parties concerned, the negotiating committees of the owners and miners met at the House of Commons last night, with the Prime Minister presiding. The discussion lasted an hour and the meeting adjourned until this afternoon at three o'clock.

Nothing was divulged as to what had taken place at the many conferences, and at the slow pace the negotiations are going there is little likelihood of any settlement being reached before the end of the month, which in the ordinary course should see the cessation of the coal subsidy. Stoppage of the subsidy has been recommended by the Royal Commission, but it is within the Government's competence to continue it, if found necessary.

Prospect of Compromise.

There is a belief that the owners would yield on the question of arranging a national settlement of the minimum percentage for wages, provided the miners would agree to longer hours. Whether any compromise of this nature is possible will be decided to-day at a meeting of the delegate conference of the Miners' Federation, which has been called to determine the miners' policy.

A. J. Cook, the secretary, and other officials of this federation have been receiving anonymous threatening letters, with packets of cartridges, warning them to "remember the recent attempt on Mussolini. Our men won't miss."

Prince Of Wales Has Cockney Accent, Says Dramatist Says "Howp" For Hope—Brother Is "Dook Of Yawk"

LONDON, April 28 (Canadian Press)—The Prince of Wales has a marked cockney accent, according to the dramatist, St. John Greer Ervine, who publicly debated the question, "Do we know how to pronounce English?" with the actor manager Niegel Playfair, last night.

Mr. Ervine grew hot over "the vile cockney accent and horrible Oxford voice" and appealed to women not to marry men guilty of using them.

The Prince of Wales, Mr. Ervine declared, does not sound the letter "r" when speaking although King George and Queen Mary do. The Prince, he added, says "howp" when he means "hope," and that one of his brothers recently referred in a speech to the "Dook of Yawk."

CANNOT PROHIBIT TRUCKS OPERATING

Ruling From Department of Highways on Order of Local Commission.

Action taken by the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League regarding a notice prohibiting truck traffic on county and suburban roads has resulted in a ruling from the Department of Public Highways to the effect that the order is not effective.

The notice, published as an advertisement by order of the Commission in The Examiner of April 12, read as follows: "All county and suburban roads are closed to motor traffic until further notice. Persons violating the provisions of the Highway Act will be prosecuted."

The letter from the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Public Highways, signed by J. P. Bickell, Registrar, reads in part as follows: "Mr. McFarlane has been advised that he has no authority to make such a regulation. Motor trucks which comply with sections 30 an 31 of the Act with reference to loading during the months of March and April, cannot be prohibited from being operated on these roads."

"HANGING PROSECUTOR SLAIN" GANGSTERS USE MACHINE GUN

William H. McSwiggin and Two Companions Are Murdered.

MANY MOTIVES.

Chief of Detectives Says Attorney Slain For Trial of Genna Gangsters.

CHICAGO, April 28. — Canadian Press. — William H. McSwiggin, the youthful states attorney, known as "The Hanging Prosecutor," because of his zeal in conducting criminal trials, was slain last night in a blast of machine gun fire poured by gangsters into an automobile in which he and three other men were riding.

Two of his companions also were killed. They were James G. Doherty, reputed leader of the beer runners of Cicero, a suburb, and Thos. Duffy, owner of a saloon.

The hail of lead came from an automobile which drew up beside the car in which McSwigin and his companions were driving on the boundary line between Chicago and Cicero. While the authorities were delving in a maze of possible motives for the shooting, John Stege, the veteran captain of detectives, said that the assistant prosecutor was marked for death because of his prosecution of John Scalisia and Albert Anealmi, Genna gangsters, under sentence to 14 years in prison, for the slaying of two policemen. In connection with this theory, The Chicago Tribune said that only two days ago, McSwiggin had told a reporter for that paper that he had been offered $30,000 to neglect his duty and aid the two gunmen in gaining their freedom.

LIQUOR SAMPLES BOTTLED BY, ETC.

Mr. Jamieson said that he intimated to Mr. Clerk that their acquaintance was not sufficiently long to justify such a gift. Mr. Clerk had "affected to be offended" at the objection, which was consequentty withdrawn.

Mr. Jameson thought the liquor was from Clerk's private stock Even when the case arrived and the plain bottles and druggists' labels were revealed, he did not think it was anything but pre-prohibition stuff, imported in bulk, as Mr. Jameson had imported it in the old days in Nova Scotia.

After a number of such gifts of liquor had arrived for himself and Mr. Larochelle, Mr. Jameson began to think it funny that the Clerk cellar was in exhaustible. There was also an application from Clerk for an increase in pay pending, so the commissioner decided to refuse to accept any more gifts. The application was eventually turned down, because it might have upset the basis of civil service out of alignment. This was in March, 1925.

Salary Increased

Clerk had secured one increase in salary in 1923, from $2,880 to $3,060 and Mr. Calder wanted to know why this was granted under Civil Service Commission certificate. Mr. Jameson could not remember the circumstance, but thought it was a statutory increase, due about that time on length of service.

The employment of Mr. Clerk to look after the transfer of a consignment of liquor from Digby, N.S., to Mr. Jameson's club across the river from Ottawa was next inquired into.

Mr. Jameson said it was unfair to have put that into the record. It was extraneous. He had purchased the consignment of liquor before prohibition and stored it at his home in Digby. Later he wanted it brought to Ottawa and the Montreal customs officer had obtained permits for the transhipment because he was conversant with the proceedure.

Mr. Jameson was examined by Mr. Donaghy. The witness admitted that he knew Bisaillon. He owned property in Montreal on which he had paid taxes for 14 years. He had thought of selling it and asked Clerk about a possible valuation. Clerk had recommended Bisaillon who had taken Mr. Jameson out in his car. They had not located the property and later they both went to Mr. Bisaillon's house.

It was the only time Mr. Jameson had been there.

Mr. Donaghy asked if it had not struck him as very singular that a civil servant on a salary of $3060 a year should be sending whiskey, gin, wine, rum and brandy to a civil service commissioner.

"Well, no," replied Mr. Jameson. Mr. Jameson admitted having phoned and written Mr. Clerk asking about the cars to be put up at auction in Montreal. Nothing came of it, however.

BOARD REPORTS BOOT AND SHOE WAGE DECISION

Majority Confirms Existing Scale in Quebec City Factories.

MINIMUM FIXED.

Labor Representative Presents Minority Statement—Says Evidence Ignored.

QUEBEC, Que., April 28 (Canadian Press). — The Boot and Shoe Arbitration Board which was formed to study and find a solution of the difficulties existing between the Quebec Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the Shoe Workers' Unions affiliated with the National and Catholic Union, have made public their decision. It reads:

"We, the undersigned, Auguste Possier, Judge of the Superior Court of Quebec, president, and C. A. Lamontagne, forming a majority of the Arbitration Board, render the following decision:

"No. 1—The price lists prepared by the Quebec Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association and presented to the joint committee of the Quebec Shoe Workers, representing the three unions, are accepted, are in force, and will remain in force as compiled, subject, nevertheless, to the following conditions and restrictions: (a) The rates which have not been either increased or lowered will remain as they are on the lists; (b) the same applies to the operations of work for which the rates of pay have been increased; (c) an increase of ten per cent. is granted on all other operations or work for which the rates are lower as per the new lists.

Uphold Minimum Wage.

"As far as the workers in the sole leather department are concerned, a minimum wage is upheld, the employer enjoying the right to grant increases on that minimum wage according to the working ability of the employee. Minimum wages are divided into three classes, the minimum wage in each being respectively, $23, $25 and $27 per week.

"We recommend the formation of a classification committee of representatives of both parties.

"This decision enters into force on April 30th, 1926."

Minority Report.

Thomas Poulin, the Labor representative on the Board, issued a minority report. He says of the majority report:

"It completely ignores that against the pretentions of the manufacturers it was established that they were getting their just share of the profits of manufacturing and that if certain lines of work have diminished here, others have increased on account of style changes. It does not take into consideration the fact that it is impossible for city factories to compete with those operating in country places, in certain easy lines. It even goes so far as to deny the universally known fact that the shoe industry is suffering, like many other industries, from encumbrance.

"It takes for admitted the affirmation that workers in Montreal and in Ontario are paid less than they are in Quebec, without taking into consideration, among other things, the proof that a shoemaker from Montreal swore before the tribunal that they work a shorter week than is worked in Quebec, and drew at the end of that week a salary which was about equal to that paid to shoemakers in Quebec under the old lists, evidence which was corroborated by a number of Montreal employers.

"In one word, this sentence appears to me to be founded along arbitrary lines."

LAKEFIELD PEOPLE HEAR OF ARMENIANS

Rev. Ira W. Pierce Tells of Work on Georgetown Farm.

LAKEFIELD, April 28—Rev. Ira W. Pierce addressed a large audience in the Memorial Hall on Sunday afternoon on the work of the Armenian Relief Association of Canada, of which he is secretary. The work is carried on in Canada at the farm home near Georgetown, Ontario, where ninety Armenian boys from among the refugees have been placed and are being educated and trained for citizenship in Canada.

The chair was taken by Miss Graham, secretary of the local committee, in the absence of the president, Rev. P. L. Jull. She called attention to the date as being so near the anniversary of the battle of St. Julien when the name of Canada was written by her sons in letters of gold on the world's history and in that great conflict the Armenians were valued allies of the British and now as Canadians celebrate the eleventh anniversary of that glorious chapter in their history, it is meet that they should give out sympathy and support to the Armenians, their allies, who suffered so grievously from their mutual foes.

Mr. Pierce recalled that last year he had on three occasions poured forth to Lakefield audiences the story of Armenia's tragedy and well did he remember eleven years ago for that was the awful year of Armenia's tragedy. In 1914 the Turks laid their plans for the extermination of these unfortunate people and in 1915 about this time of the year the tragedy was launched and was al most unbelievable even for Armenia. It began on the Caucasion front and went on in successive waves of slaughter till it spent itself in the autumn of 1915 in Northern Syria near the Mediterranean. Tales came in of cruelty and brutality which would horrify the sternest man and shortly after the visible evidences of the work of the Terrible Turk were brought in. Three Armenian mothers from Erzerum were cared for by the mission doctors in defiance of the threats of the Ottonan authorities. These women and their little ones were cared for tenderly. The report of Sir James Bryce gives facts which horrify and shock and which were all too true. Mr. Pierce was warned by the American Consul to flee in November with his wife and two sons, the youngest only four months old, and for fifteen days they journeyed by horse and wagon. This journey will always remain a nightmare which will pursue them to the grave and can never be effaced from memory. "We should remember how good God has been to us and how much better the world's position is today than it was eleven years ago. The scars of the war are evident in every country of the world but Armenia has an open wound, refusing to be healed and wrought by untold agony and sorrow", said Mr. Pierce.

Mr. Pierce read a portion of a letter from an English missionary in Armenia, Miss Frierson, written in March, 1926, a godly and wonderful woman who was in charge of an orphanage.

She has been driven out of her old orphanage and compelled to retreat with the tide of refugees and still she mothers her group of little children. She begs that an effort will be made to bring at least some of the boys to Canada to save them from death. They are honest, industrious and Christians and can speak English. She pleads that they may be saved from the land of death. They sent a reply to get ten ready as they are sure that the Canadians will raise the money to bring them out. Poverty has reached its deepest depths and hunger and dire privation are frightfully common. The speaker saw the Armenians marching in British uniforms into Alippo under General MacArthur after General Allenby's dash, and they were splendid soldiers and magnificent allies.

Today Turkey, the outlaw nation, more arrogant than ever, is plotting against the British Empire. Turkey combed the Armenians out of their ancient heritage and the rest of the world looked on.

Many Canadians look coldly on the work of the farm home at Georgetown, regarding these lads as foreigners and unsuited to Canada The little chap who accompanied Mr. Pierce had been mixed in with Canadian children, who received him affectionately. It is the grown-up who puts up the artificial barriers between people and nations.

A Severe Illness Caused Constipation

Mrs. Wm. Hill, Wapella, Sask., writes:—"Three years ago I had a very severe illness, and ever since I have suffered with constipation.

A few months ago a friend advised me to use

Milburn's LAXA-LIVER PILLS

which I did, although not expecting any results, but I am pleased to say that since using them I have had perfect use of my bowels without any trouble or pain, and have never had bleeding piles since. Now, I never fail to recommend 'Laxa-Liver Pills' to all my friends."

"In taking out these boys we see the prejudice melt away and we can challenge you to retain a vestige of prejudice when you meet this little child," he added.

The boys at the farm home are getting practical training. They have school every day from 9 till 4 o'clock following the curriculum authorized by the department of education for Public Schools. They are inspected regularly, the County Public School inspectors who are enthusiastic over the boys, saying they are above the average in child life. "If the government could catch some of his enthusiasm how much easier the task would be." On this farm there was a seven and a half acre field, low lying and boggy and on the average Ontario farm it would be regarded as waste land. The boys, under supervision, dug fourteen hundred yards of ditching, tiled and drained it and last year there were ninety individual gardens in that field and any visitors to the farm this year will see it a commercially valuable vegetable garden.

The boys are organized in ten groups, each with a captain and these groups make the beds, wash the floors, wash dishes, do the barn work and in summer there is also a field group. The are rotated so that they all may get the training.

The boys publish a monthly magazine called the "Ararat" which first appeared in January. The little boy who was present is one of the art editors. The Mount Ararat on which Noah's Ark rested is in the centre of Armenia and it is believed a charge alleging that he deserted that the garden of Eden was near by.

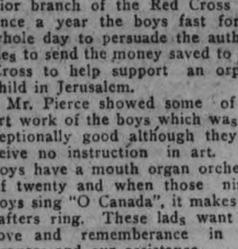
There is a boys' court at the farm to teach them the institutions of democracy. There are also a mayor and council which were elected after a campaign which is certainly unique in Canada. It is wonderful the way they have taken to our institutions. They have a junior branch of the Red Cross and once a year the boys fast for a whole day to persuade the authorities to send the money saved to Red Cross to help support an orphan child in Jerusalem.

Mr. Pierce showed some of the art work of the boys which was exceptionally good although they receive no instruction in art. The boys have a mouth organ orchestra of twenty and when those ninety boys sing "O Canada", it makes the rafters ring. These lads want our love and rememberance in our prayers and our assistance.

The little Armenian lad, who accompanied Mr. Pierce, was a chubby little fellow of eleven or twelve, named Krikox and who sang, first a folk song in his own language and then "O Canada" in English. He played the mouthorgan also and when the little orphan so many miles from his own land played "Home Sweet Home" there were not many dry eyes in the hall. The age old tragedy of Armenia was reflected in his large dark eyes and the appeal was irresistible. A kindly farmer took him home to dinner with his children and the mother of four little boys took him for tea, so that Krikox was given a real welcome to Lakefield.

Mr. Pierce spoke in the morning in the United (Presbyterian) church and in the evening in the Regent street church. On the latter occasion he showed some slides of the farm, showing not only the buildings and surroundings but also the boys at work and play and some pictures of boys and girls rescued from their relentless and cruel foe.

The local committee has organized a house to house canvas for this worthy cause and the work will begin at once with some of the young people doing the work. In case anyone should be missed who would like to contribute arrangements have been made with Mr. G. G. Connell at the Royal Bank to receive subscriptions.



Gossiping Neighbor Set Her Stomach Right

New York City. Mrs. Emily Ulehla writes:—"It was terrible to stay away from foods I loved simply because they made me bilious, upset my stomach, and made me constipated. A neighbor recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. They helped her wonderfully. I gave them a trial and now when the fancy goodies come around I enjoy them immensely."

When the bowels move daily, the system is generally in good condition. Carter's Little Liver Pills relieve chronic constipation.

JURYMEN THINK MAN JUSTIFIED

In Slaying Another Found in Misconduct With Wife.

LEAVE JURY BOX.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 28. —(Canadian Press). — Seven men walked out of the jury box in Criminal Court today to indicate their belief that a husband is justified in killing a man found misconduting himself with his wife.

The defendant in the case, George E. Osborne, a milkman, faces a charge of second degree murder for shooting James F. Hartley, a butcher. The commonwealth alleged that Osborne, unexpectedly returned to his home, found Hartley there, and in a fight the butcher was killed. The jurors filed out of court after the District Attorney had said: "If there is any man in the box who would think that under these circumstances a man is justified in killing, I ask him to be honest and request to be excused from the case."

THE COMING ELECTION

In the United States the intelligentsia have united with Labor in a determined stand against Prohibition. which by overwhelming proof, statistical and otherwise, has been shown to have succeeded in developing, to an extraordinary degree, the underworld and the crime which forms its means of livelihood. In Ontario the battle is being fought just as fiercely. Whilst the inquiry before the American Senate has been the means adopted of holding the national inquest in that country, in Ontario the means will be the shortly-to-be-held Provincial general election. So far as our humble ability will allow it, it is the duty of all lovers of freedom and common decency now to take their stand or forever to hold their peace. Messrs. Ferguson and Nickle proclaimed dramatically that what the people wanted they must have and followed their proclamation up by producing 4.4 beer, a direct violation of their pledge. This violation infuriated the Drys and by no means reassured the Wets. Leaders who break their words are just as likely to do it to one side as the other. Little reliance is, therefore, placed on governmental pledges with the result that the people have taken the matter into their own hands. As in most cases, the whole difficulty in this case may be solved by a compromise. The present O.T.A. allows native grape wine of any alcoholic strength, and as Mr. Raney told the U. S. Senate, it permits hard cider as well. The making of homebrew beer is general and is permitted by being generally winked at. So that the only difficulty remaining is with regard to "hard liquor." If hard liquor continues to be difficult to obtain, any statutory change regarding it will not excite much opposition. The difficulty heretofore has been how to make that change or compromise without permitting the young to get whiskey from a government-control shop whenever they feel inclined as in the old way. This difficulty, however, can be met by establishing a few government shops in the province which, however, are not to be allowed to sell by retail or over the counter. If any buyer who chooses to buy as under government control, is changed to a buyer having a permit countersigned by the local inspector, sending in his order and receiving it not over the counter but by express, we will have the sale of hard liquor guarded by the best possible safeguards and in a much better and more satisfactory way than at present. With this change and with the requirement that native wine and homebrew beer shall also be made, possessed and consumed only by permit and not without restraint as at present, we have the O.T.A. left on the books to satisfy prohibitionists but made sane and consistent to satisfy the Wets. The difficulty of allowing the retail sale of hard liquor in shops which is the weakness of government control is thus solved. Now the next election will be fought entirely on the prohibition question, and those candidates who have the most satisfactory policy to offer will, it is to be hoped, be elected and thus this burning question will be settled and laid at rest.

If Mr. Ferguson comes out with his old government-control liquor-shop retail policy, he will be beaten and Prohibition as it stands at present by no means fills the bill. We may expect, therefore, a new policy and a new lot of candidates, men and women who will keep all the present safeguards of the O.T.A. and have in addition a policy which will free respectable citizens from the insulting tyranny and hypocrisy of the present law. It is likely that if the present parties have no such policy as we have ventured to suggest, but persist in fighting it out on the old policies, there will be candidates in the field who will have this reasonable compromise to submit to the people, and it is one I am convinced that will appeal to those who are dissatisfied as things are at present and their name is legion. We must guard the young and the weak and that being done the free self-controlled citizen is entitled to his freedom and sooner or later is man enough to insist on it.

On of the worst consequences of prohibition as it exists at present is due to the fact that those needing tonics and finding malt liquors beneficial are nevertheless compelled by those who prefer drugs, to take drugs instead, under the name of "medicine," thus compelling them also: in many cases to form the deadly drug habit. There can be no possible excuse for such a law as that, and the consequence is that it has gradually aroused a fierce and secret resentment, resulting in seriour injury and often where not suspected. I have known myself of cases where this wanton and vicious tyranny of prohibitionists has been met by secret and far-reaching damage to the reputation, success and peace of mind of the objects of it. This system of average is becoming widespread and will explain many strange happenings which cannot be reached by the arm of the law. It is, I think you will agree, a most serious condition to arise in any people. Feuds are always demoralizing but absolutely secret feuds are infinitely worse even than that. In the United States killings and kidnappings due to this spirit of revenge have become decidedly alarming.—J. H. Burnham.

PIONEER YUKON MINER MISSING

"Rocky Mountain Bill" Elliott Believed Drowned Near Dawson City.

SERVED OVERSEAS.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., April 28 (Canadian Press). — A press despatch from Dawson City Tuesday, announcing that William J. Elliott, "Rocky Mountain Bill," had been reported missing and was believed drowned, has caused relatives in Saint John much concern and they are anxiously waiting for further word.

Telegrams were sent to George Black, M.P., at Ottawa, in the hope that Mr. Black would have more definite information concerning Mr. Elliott, who has been his life-long friend and former partner.

The despatch states that Mr. Elliott, who is an outstanding figure in the mining and pioneer history of the Yukon, is lost somewhere between Mayo and Dawson, and is believed to have fallen through the ice and drowned.

He was born in New Brunswick sixty-five years ago, and has three brothers and one sister residing in Saint John and one brother, Fred, living in Glassville, Carleton County, N.B.

His wife is at present visiting her people in Jedburgh, Scotland.

During the war Mr. Elliott served overseas. When the news of the outbreak of war reached the Yukon, he walked more than 600 miles to enlist in the Yukon battalion that was mobilized. He visited Saint John three years ago.

latter accumulated and disposed of as he saw fit. From time immemorial, these samples had been the prerogative of the gauger. He had heard yesterday that there was a regulation somewhere that such samples should be returned to the cask after testing. He could not remember such a regulation, which might have come in from Ottawa (it was dated, July, 1901) while he was on holiday. In any case the importers of liquor did not want the samples back. They had never complained in all his 21 years of office that too big a sample had been taken, and the liquor thus acquired by the gauger could not in any sense be considered ill-gotton.

An Old Practice

Chairman Mercier asked if it was not true that the samples after testing were considered likely to depreciate the quality of the cask if it was thrown back. There might be some such objection, said Mr. White. In any case the idea had been conveyed from time inimemorial that nobody wanted the samples back.

CATHOLIC WOMEN REPORT ON WORK

Have Done Great Deal in Many Lines of Effort During Past Year.

The five years just passed have been so many milestones to mark the value of united action in women's work in the city of Peterborough.

Every Roman Catholic woman in Peterborough should feel an individual interest in the League, though first she must be a member of it. The league is pleased to report, however, a healthy activity and development in the sub-division, especially in the St. Peter's parish.

From January 29, 1925, to January 29, 1926, the league held eight regular and fifteen executive meetings.

To carry on the work, money was raised through the medium of afternoon teas, card parties, at homes, concerts and paper collections. The sum realized was one thousand and sixty dollars. They co-operated with the Health Association by taking charge of a booth for a week at "The June Fair", under the convenorship of Mesdames Hickey and Hiland and were able to give that organization $206.64.

Prizes were donated by the League for the card party convened for one afternoon by Mesdames Finn, Giroux and LaPlante at the "Made in Peterboro Fair."

One hundred and forty-five dollars was paid to the Catholic Library; $5 to the Well Babies' Clinic; $25 for extension work; $15 to Sisters of Service and $25 toward expenses of national delegate to National Convention held in Hamilton last June.

Seventy tickets were sold by the members for theatre night for the benefit of the Local Council of Women. They also assisted them in keeping open the Public Library on Sunday when called upon.

The League had charge of the graduation exercises of St. Joseph's Hospital on the evening of June 23.

On the Feast Day of Our Lady of Good Counsel, high mass was offered. On November 3, mass was offered for the deceased members. Fifteen masses for deceased members were also offered throughout the year.

Twenty-seven letters of sympathy were written and forty or more business letters. Roman Catholic literature is regularly sent to the less fortunate. The Study Club is flourishing under His Lordship's able direction. On March 26th an address on wireless was given by J. J. Duffus; also brief talks were given throughout the year by members of the clergy.

The social service work was ably looked after by Mrs. Hiland and her committees. Mrs. A. J. McPherson, convenor of hospital sewing, reported 442 pieces as having been made.

Mrs. Grant, convenor of extension, reported 56 pieces of linen made up and forwarded to Toronto. The beauty of work done was commented upon by Mgr. Blair.

The Ladies' Aid, Mrs. J. Lynch, convenor, distributed many articles of clothing and fitted out a number of children for first Holy Communion and confirmation.

Mrs. Coughlin, convenor of relief, reported her committee being able to respond promptly to all demands made upon it. The help to children usually consists of milk, boots, rubbers and clothing. The League has undertaken to supply the Convent school with milk to give extra nourishment in the case of frail children, or those who have had a long distance to walk.

The League also helped fourteen families in various ways, supplying clothing, boots, rubbers and fuel, and sent out twenty generous Christmas baskets.

On December 11 the members of the League gave expression of their extreme happiness at the safe return of His Lordship from Rome by means of an address, read and presented to him by the president. His Lordship's response and eulogistic comment on the work done by the League in other lands was an incentive to all present to make the League a success in Peterboro, and "that every Roman Catholic woman should be a member of the Roman Catholic Women's League and a subscriber to the magazine", is their slogan for 1926.

PREPARING FOR JUNE ELECTION

Liberals Sure That Ferguson Will Go To Province, Says Paper.

CONVENTIONS SOON.

TORONTO, April 28.—(Canadian Press).—"Unalterable in its opinion that Premier Ferguson will go to the country in June," says the Globe, "the Liberal party in Ontario will, with the advent of May, get down to pre-election work in dead earnest, it is understood."

Arrangements are now being made, it is said, whereby riding conventions will be launched by the party with all possible speed. East Kent, which has been left without representation since Hon. Manning Doherty resigned his seat, will likely be selected by the "Big Guns" of the Liberal party as one of the first, if not the first, electorates in which to make their anti-Ferguson Government appeal.

Several prominent Toronto Liberals yesterday shared views with London that the Western Ontario Conservative convention, which will be held in the Forest City on May 12 and which Premier Ferguson will address, has been chosen by the Prime Minister as the medium through which to make his election pronouncement.

Ferguson Says Nothing.

Premier G. Howard Ferguson, interrogated again today concerning the possibilities of a Provincial general election, remained non-committal. He refused to comment on the report in a morning paper that the Liberal party was preparing for a June election. He said he was not prepared to say whether there will be an election this year or not.

THE CONDITION OF THE MILITIA.

The fact that the Peterboro Rangers have commenced spring training will serve to call attention to the starved condition generally of the Canadian Militia and to the difficulties under which commanding officers are trying to carry on in the face of scant assistance from the country.

There is only a bare frame-work left of the Militia as it existed in Canada before the war, and to keep going under the conditions is a task greater than should be asked of men ready and willing to serve their country.

The Militia proved its usefulness when the test came.

It would have been impossible for Canada to have put nearly as many men in the field or to have put them there nearly so quickly had not the Militia regiments furnished the necessary organization.

Yet since the war the Militia has been subject to a continual jaring, until at the present time there is but a skeleton left.

And even it may fall to pieces unless there is not more sympathy shown by the powers that be.

BRITISH FINANCING.

The most striking statement in Mr. Churchill's British Budget Speech was his reference to the financial condition of Great Britain in these words, "Most important of all, we stand on a basis of reality. We may not be soaring in the clouds, but there is solid ground under our feet."

The statement is eloquent of the soundness of British financing since the war, which has been the admiration of the world.

The British methods may not be spectacular, but they are much better than spectacular; they are solid and reliable.

Not only has Britain proceeded to liquidate her war debt to the United States, but she has at the same time made remarkable progress in reducing her own floating debt, which in the past six years has been cut in half.

To achieve a debt reduction of £700,000,000 in six years is a most remarkable feat of financing, and we over here, as fellow-citizens of the British Empire, feel a thrill of pride at the wonderful manner in which our kinsmen have tackled the problem of post-war financing.

True, there is solid ground beneath their feet.

A PUBLIC SERVICE.

The Bank of Toronto shows an unselfish and patriotic spirit in the series of stirring advertisements that it has been publishing in papers throughout the Dominion.

These started in January with an optimistic view of Canada's future; "With New Heart and New Hope Canada Sets Her Course Toward the Goal of True Greatness" it was headed, and the message attracted immediate attention all over the country.

Then followed a well-deserved tribute to the gold, silver, nickel and copper mines of the Dominion; "Builders of the North" it was entitled, and it was timely and of excellent service in calling attention to the vast developments Canada has made in the mineral field.

Now comes the third of the series, a message that stresses the Dominion's progress in the development of her forests and water powers.

These are things we should hear more about.

Our difficulties are usually brought to the front and less is heard of the wonderful advantage this favoured land enjoys.

The Bank of Toronto does well in calling the story of our development to the notice of all our citizens.

The articles should have a topic effect upon all who read them.

THE CASE OF AEMILIUS JARVIS.

Friends of Aemilius Jarvis, who was convicted and sentenced to a term in jail, which he served, in connection with the sale of tax-free securities to the Ontario Government, have prepared a memorandum which is to be submitted to the Federal Government.

The petitioners, who include some of Canada's best known citizens, with Sir John Gibson and Sir John Willison heading the list, review at length the facts in the case, and declare that they are not asking for mercy for Mr. Jarvis nor even for magnanimity.

"They are asking only for justice," declares the memorandum, "for a fair examination of the facts as they have been disclosed, and for such vindication of Mr. Jarvis as they think cannot be refused upon the evidence submitted."

One of the chief points upon which the request for vindication is based is the fact that the trial of Andrew Pepall brought to light evidence that in the minds of the public has gone far toward establishing the innocence of Jarvis.

The petitioners aver that Pepall's trial "constitutes as full and thorough and clear-cut a vindication of Aemilius Jarvis as it is possible to achieve."

The facts marshalled in this unique memorandum are most impressive and will serve to justify the demand for a vindication of Mr. Jarvis.

CITY AND COUNTRY.

If the United States Department of Agriculture is correct in its statistics, the farm population of that country at the present time totals about 30,655,000, a decrease of half a million from the figure a year ago, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. This means that the population of the rural districts is less by one and a half per cent. than it numbered last year. This is by no means novel, for every one knows that for quite a lengthy period the cities have been growing at the expense of the farming communities. But a few years ago the prediction was freely made that with the growth of the trolley line, the automobile and the telephone the movement from the country to the city would be checked. Though experience showed that prophecy to be incorrect. It is now confidently asserted that the addition of the radio to the trolley car, the automobile and the telephone will hold the farmer and his family to the soil.

Fortunately, in a measure, it is true that while the drift from farm to city has been constant, this has been paralleled by a contrary movement from the city to the farm. Admittedly more people have gone from the country to the town than from the town to the country. But recently indications have been observed of a rapid increase in the migration countrywards. If this happens, the two movement, so to speak, will balance each other. Then all would appear to be well, were it not for the fact that the men leaving the country are trained farmers, while those leaving the city in the main know little of farming.

Farm life is far more congenial than it used to be. The farmer under almost any conditions is certain of a living, although he may not have much cash in pocket at the end of the year. Many city dwellers are never sure of a living, but, nevertheless, the lure of the town holds them. The currents and countercurrents of this farm-to-city and city-to-farm movement make an interesting study in human nature. However, the farm can get along without the city, but the city can't get along without the farm.

A TRIBUTE TO THE REPORTERS.

The announcement that a majority of the members of the British House of Commons are strongly opposed to the broadcasting of Parliamentary speeches will cause no surprise among those familiar with the inner workings of our Legislatures. The arguments advanced in support of the protest are sound enough, as far as they go, and are, indeed, just what might be expected from representatives of the people who fondly cherish old Parliamentary customs and traditions.

It is pointed out, for instance, that broadcasting would violate the rules of debate which demand that members address the Speaker and each other. With the radio carrying their speeches far and wide, members would not be addressing the House; they would be addressing as many millions of houses as there are listening-in sets, a prospect too appalling for some of the inarticulate back-benchers who have difficulty enough in making themselves audible, not to say understood, within the Chamber itself.

Then, it is argued, the temptation to indulge in platform propaganda would be irresistible. According to some members of the "Mother of Parliaments" there is already too much of that kind of thing, not only by radio from the public platform, but through the medium of ministerial and ex-ministerial contributions to the press. In other words, the debates would degenerate into a series of harangues or demagogic appeals addressed to the great proletariate seated in their homes and listening-in for snappy declamation rather than for reasoned argument or droning exposition. As one Conservative is reported to have expressed it, "We should be all on the soap box."

From a strictly Parliamentary point of view, these reasons for adopting a hostile attitude toward the broadcasting proposal have much to commend them, but probably, if the truth were known, the opposition of the members of the British House of Commons was influenced in a greater degree by one other consideration not revealed in the official announcement of their protest. That was the not unnatural fear of the effect radio transmission would have in exposing the crudities and deficiencies of Parliamentary speech in its raw and undistilled form.

As an English newspaper correspondent points out, the reluctance of members of Parliament to sanction the broadcasting of their speeches implies a compliment to the Hansard staff and the members of the Press Gallery that might have been expressed in more direct terms. It is, he says, a useful reminder of how much the reporter does for the M. P.

"Even a 'verbatim' report does not actually give a speech as it is delivered; it eliminates the 'ers' and the 'erras" (Lytton's brand); it bridges the horrid pauses; it sometimes omits those cruel 'asides' from across the table which impair the effect of perorations." The printed report does more. It rounds off sentences that were never completed, corrects a syntax that invariably stands in need of reconstruction, eliminates redundancies, and generally gives a polish to the utterances of the Member of Parliament as pleasing to himself as it is astonishing to his constituents.

Such a process of "dressing up" would, of course, be impossible in the transmission of speeches by radio. Moreover, the listener-in would have to suffer, gladly or otherwise, all the ineptitudes and irrelevancies which creep into even the best of Parliamentary orations, but which the skilled reporter ruthlessly suppresses or elegantly transforms. His enjoyment of front-bench eloquence would be disturbed by the buzz of conversation in different parts of the Chamber, and he would be regaled with "hear hears" and other interruptions without knowing whence they came.

In the circumstances, it is scarcely to be wondered at that the legislators of Britain, conscious of their shortcomings, prefer to leave their oratorical reputations in the hands of the indulgent reporters, rather than risk the horrors of a wider publicity which might result in the disillusionment of their constituents and a decline in public respect for Parliament.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The lawyer who investigated the alleged fruit trust was paid $31,488.50. He evidently found it a fruitful inquiry.

Mr. Churchill has decided that whoever else may lose in betting at race-tracks, the British Government is always sure of being a winner.

That farmer who made $50 on Sunday pulling stalled motor carsout of the mud on the Omemee road may be forgiven if he is not an enthusiastic admirer of better roads.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 27—There was a good market again today, with the promise of a clean-up of all except late arrivals. Choice loads of handyweight butchers brought $7.40 to $7.60 a cwt. and were 10 cents a cwt. higher. Good butchers sold from $7 to $7.25 and mediums up to $6.75 a cwt. More money was asked for butchers' cows and they were consequently slow in moving. Some export cattle were in, but the buyers had obtained a good supply on Monday and were not disposed to appear to anxious. Monday's Western stockers and feeders were all sold at steady prices and only a few Ontario feeders were on offer.

There was a heavy run of calves during the morning, principally dairies, which sold from 5½ to 7½ cents a pound. A few good veal calves sold at 12 to 12½ cents a pound and a bunch of good mediums brought 11 cents.

One small bunch of medium quality yearling lambs sold at 13 cents a pound. Sheep were steady and a few spring lambs, not choice, brought $12 to $14.

Packers held out strenuously against a higher price than $13 a cwt. f.o.b. on Monday's hogs. Some were obtained at that figure, but it was surmised that a little more was paid for others. The market is about in the same condition today.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Likelihood of frost tonight in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and South Dakota did a good deal to make wheat prices average higher to-day. At times, too, a dry weather scare appeared to be developing. Closing prices were irregular at 5-8c net decline to 1c advance, May (new) $1.63 7-8 to $1.64 and July $1.43 to $1.43 1-2; corn finished 1-2 off to 3-8 up; oats at 1-2c gain and provisions varying from unchanged to 27c gain.

It was chiefly a professional traders' market today in wheat with fluctuations numerous and covering a range of 3 1-4 cents. Relative weakness near the end of the day was apparently due to efforts which early buyers made to realize profits in the face of a let-up in demand. The previous general upward trend had been aided by smallness of primary receipts and by a falling off of 8,015,000 bushels in the world's available supply.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Flour unchanged at 10c higher at $9.20 to $9.25 a barrel. Shipments 36,059 barrels.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Markets are generally firm and unchanged today. A car of Western eggs was sold in Toronto at extras 31, firsts 30, seconds 25 1-2 f.o.b. Regina.

Estimates from Montreal state that approximately 16,000 cases of eggs are in cold storage there now, which is 10,000 cases behind last year.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 27 (Canadian Press).—Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today, there being few if any firm bids received from foreign buyers in any position.

The local market for spot supplies of Canadian western oats was weaker and prices were reduced 1 to 1 1-2 cents per bushel. On the other hand the market for Ontario and Quebec oats was strong on account of the limited supplies available and prices were higher with car lots of No. 2 white quoted at 61c, No. 3 white at 59c, and No. 4 white at 57c per bushel, ex store.

The feature of the local flour trade was the stronger feeling that developed in the market for winter grades, and prices were marked up 20 cents per barrel. Spring wheat grades were unchanged.

The receipts of cheese were 1,408 boxes as against 770 for the same day last week, and 3,785 for the corresponding day a year ago. Offerings of Western fodder cheese were made over the cable Monday night at 17 1-2c to 17 3-4c per lb without bringing any response. The market on the whole was very quiet for the season of the year and the prospects for the near future are not very bright.

On the local curb market there were 500 to 600 packages of creamery butter, and 200 boxes of cheese offered. The No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter sold at 32 1-2c per lb, No. 2 pasteurized at 31 1-2c per lb. and the No. 3 pasteurized at 30 1-2c per lb, while the cheese sold at 16 3-8c per lb, delivered here.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

My mind is not in accord with the thought that all men should aim at perfection, for all men cannot acquire perfection, and you know when men miss they get discouraged.

My suggestion is to fire at the mark that you feel you can hit, and then, when you get so secure in your shot that you can hit the mark most every time, move the mark ahead a little, and in this way you will hold your confidence and gradually improve your marksmanship.

The most dangerous form of madness is for the management of any business to insist on perfection. There is no perfection.

Getting people to aim in the direction of perfection is a good plan; but, remember, perfection is but the mirage of language. Perfection is not here. It is hereafter.

Introducing theories that will not work is discouraging, and, therefore, bad practice. Always aiming in the direction of mediocrity is foolish too.

Expect to do and strive to do the do-able things; but do not waste your powder on perfection.

Success is not a chance shot—it is a slow, patient result of trying.

Patience is about the nearest thing to perfection. Few have patience.

By improving a little each day, we eventually arrive at a worthwhile point; and, after we arrive, all this striving and struggling after success seems to add security to our position.

The whole thought is summed up like this: Move your mark ahead as fast as you improve your marksmanship, but no faster.—The Silent Partner.

Three Coaches of Wabash Train Derailed Near Moulton, Ont.

FOUR IN HOSPITAL.

DUNNVILLE, Ont., April 28 (Canadian Press).—When three cars of Wabash passenger train No. 3, from Buffalo to Detroit, were derailed near Moulton Station yesterday, four persons were injured badly enough to necessitate their removal to hospital, while the conductor and 14 or 15 other passengers suffered minor lacerations or bruises. The four in hospital are all progressing favorably and are expected to soon recover.

They are: Mrs. Harry Patton, Buffalo, crushed breast; James Chambers, Bronkville, N.Y., badly lacerated scalp; A. E. Lambert, Harrison, N.Y., lacerated lip and leg, and Franz Bartels of Detroit, badly lacerated lower jaw. The conductor, Alex. Thompson of St. Thomas, suffered cuts in the head and a lacerated scalp.

A spreading rail is believed to have caused the accident. The engine and first car of the train did not leave the track, but of the three cars derailed, one overturned and the observation car turned on end. It was in this car that most of the injured were riding.

BOOKMAKERS AND CHURCH PEOPLE UNITE IN ATTACK ON BETTING TAX BUT MEASURE WILL LIKELY PASS

Countenancing "Great National Evil" Churchmen Assert of Churchill's Levy.

REVENUE NEEDED.

Britain's Legal Betting Turnover Estimated at One Billion Dollars.

LONDON, April 28 Canadian Press. — The betting tax, proposed by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill in his budget speech Monday became a national issue over night, with its moral aspect looming large.

The Chancellor has brought down a tremendous opposition throughout Great Britain, and even in his own party, voices have been lifted against his proposal. However he will probably will get a safe majority for its passage when the government whips get to work on the big Conservative majority in the House of Commons.

As far as the legislature is concerned many Conservatives oppose the project on moral grounds. Most Liberals are dead against it, and leading Laborites predict that the Labor party will also take a stand against it.

Strange Bedfellows.

Outside of Parliament there are many elements opposed to the tax for various reasons, the bookmakers and the church people both find themselves on the same side of the fence, for once. The bookmakers naturally oppose it on general principles—it's going to lessen their profits. The churches are opposed to it as countenancing a "great national evil."

Many citizens who have no moral qualms about betting claim that the tax won't work satisfactorily but will have the effect of driving bettors away from legal bookmakers on race courses and offices into the arms of the illegal street bookmakers. The latter, already evading the law, will pay no tax and will be in a position to offer better odds on the races.

The Wesleyan Methodist church came out against the proposed tax yesterday. The United Council of Christian churches, which includes leading representatives of both Anglican and non-comformist bodies, met on Tuesday to complete arrangements for determined opposition to it. The National Free Church council also has taken the lists against the Chancellor's plan.

Will Increase Evil.

Powerful leaders of thought in Great Britain already are beginning to record themselves publicly against it. Lloyd George has taken the war path with the statement that he believes the betting tax is thoroughly bad.

"It is going to drive hundreds of bookmakers to the streets," he said. "The government proposal by increasing street betting will increase the evil, an illegal evil, in its worst, pernicious form."

Ellin Wilkinson, noted Laborite member of the House of Comomns, taking her stand beside her Conservative colleague, Lady Astor, says:

"I didn't think Mr. Churchill was going to join the Suicide Club. His betting porposals are quite definitely taking a backward moral step. Betting causes as much misery as drinking, but betting is increasing while drinking is decreasing. Women's opinion, irrespective of party, is against legislation of any forms of vice, and the proposals do stamp betting with state approval. The proposals will drive betting to the streets with increased temptation to young boys and women."

Huge Wager Total.

Of course Chancellor Churchill also has many supporters, who contend that as long as credit betting with bookmakers at regularly established offices and betting on race courses are already legal, there is no reason why the government should not exact a toll. They take pretty much the attitude of the Chancellor, who announced in his budet speech: "I am not looking for trouble. I am looking for revenue."

Something of the enormous size of Great Britain's annual betting bill can be seen in the recent report of a Commons committee which estimated that the annual turnover on legal betting was more than 200,000,000 pounds. This would figure out approximately five pounds per capita of the total population yearly.

Chancellor Churchill estimated that there would be a revenue of 6,000,000 a year based on a five per cent tax, which would indicate that he figured on a taxable turnover of 120,000,000 pounds.

FASCISTS WRECK NEWSPAPER OFFICE

Stop Publication of Lavoro of Geneva, Recently Reinstated.

CHIASS, Switzerland, April 28.—(United Press).—The premises of the newspaper Lavoro of Genoa, which the Government recently suspended and then allowed to resume publication, were wrecked on Sunday night by Fascisti after a spirited battle with the staff and compositors.

The Fascisti entered through the back door just before the paper went to press and while everyone was busy and set fire to several tons of paper stored in the rear rooms. Within a few minutes the fire had spread to the printing rooms and printers fought with Fascisti in their efforts to put the fire out. This the Fascisti prevented and the police who dispersed the attackers were too late to save the building.

MILL EMPLOYEE NEAR DROWNING

Lorne Pogue Swept Away With Dam at Feir's Mill.

IN OPS TOWNSHIP.

OMEMEE, April 28. — On Monday evening, Lorne Pogue, who is employed at Feir's Mill, had a narrow escape from being drowned.

When raising the flume plank, which is done each night, to allow the water to go away, the dam gave way, and the heavy rush of water carried with it about eight feet of stone an each side, and other debris, and swept the young man into the mad rush of water. Fortunately he had presence of mind enough, as he was being swept along to grasp a plank, and later got hold of the root of a tree, where he clung until the rush of debris had passed him, after which he was enabled to swim ashore.

Mr. Feir has operated a grist mill there for many years and each spring saws huge piles of logs. The sawmill has been in operation for about four weeks, and the misfortune of such a handicap to the mill operations at this time of year, is most unfortunate, as there are still a great many logs to be cut into timber.

BUSINESS HEAVIER.

International Paper Gains 4 P.C. in the First Quarter.

NEW YORK, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Gross business of the International Paper Company in the first quarter of 1926 increased about 4 per cent., compared with a year ago, and inventories decreased 17 per cent. President Graustein said Tuesday that while the decrease of $5 a ton in the price of newsprint since last year has been partly offset by the lower cost of production, the company's newsprint profits were smaller. Profits on other products showed a gain.

A noiseless engine has been invented for airplanes.

RIFFIAN PARLEY RESUMES TO-DAY

Franco-Spanish Delegates Desire Speedy Conclusion of Conference.

FIRST SESSION.

OUJDA, Morocco, April 28 (Canadian Press).—The first day of official negotiations seeking to bring peace to Morocco ended last night with the French and Spanish delegates determined to push the conference to a conclusion as soon as possible.

A communique said that the Franco-Spanish delegates, in the course of a two-hour discussion with the Riffians, had studied particularly measures designed to assure the maintenance of security and observance of international treaties. Measures also were discussed with respect to the suspension of hostilities which was declared to have existed in fact since April 18.

To save time, General Simon, the French chief, is presenting the viewpoint of both France and Spain. As Senor Olivan, the Spanish delegate, understands French perfectly, a Franco-Arabic translation is the only one needed.

The session was interrupted only once in order that Si Mohammed Azerkane, the Riffian "Foreign Minister" might deliberate with the other Riffian delegates on a reply to General Simon.

The conference will be resumed to-day.

MEIGHEN ANSWERS PROGRESSIVE JIBE

Reference To Press Rumor For Governor-Generalship.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press). — The House of Commons was diverted for a few moments Tuesday afternoon when A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) asked the Government if the press rumor was true that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen was to be Canada's next Governor General.

Mr. Neill, in rising to ask the question, announced that it was "a matter of gravest public importance" upon which he might move the adjournment of the House for a special debate. Mr. Neill then quoted from a London despatch appearing in The Montreal Gazette of Saturday, in which it was stated that Mr. Meighen's name was one of those which had been suggested in London.

"Is the Mr. Meighen referred to the Rt. Hon. Leader of the Opposition?" asked Mr. Neill.

"If there is any truth in the rumor will it have the sympathetic support of the Government" added Mr. Neill.

Premier King in replying said that he had always understood that the leader of the Opposition had had other ambitions.

Mr. Meighen replied briefly saying "This country spoke its mind on October 29th last, and assigned me to another task."

JURY IN WHITTEMORE MURDER TRIAL DEADLOCKED 13 HOURS

Sent Back Last Night For Further Deliberation—In Buffalo.

MAY DISAGREE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 28 (Canadian Press).—The jury trying Richard Reese Whittemore for murder was deadlocked last night when the regular hour for adjournment of the Supreme Court arrived. At that time they had deliberated about 13 hours.

Court attaches expected that their failure to return a verdict more quickly presaged a disagreement.

At five o'clock the jurors filed into the court room for the second time since they took the case under consideration. When asked whether they had reached an agreement, Foreman Stacey replied in the negative.

Justice Noonan told them they had better try a little while longer to reconcile their differences.

Since the trial started April 19 this jury has heard Whittemore, the "Candy Kid" of New York's Underworld, charged with the murder of Charles Clifford, a Bank of Buffalo employee, during a $93,000 robbery in which two men were killed here last October. They have also heard witnesses swear that he was in Philadelphia when the crime was committed. Their problem has been to decide between two diametrically opposed sets of evidence.

CHAIRMAN OF U. S. STEEL SINCE 1901

Gary Re-elected—Common on Regular $7 Basis.

NEW YORK, April 28 (Canadian Press).—The establishment of U.S. Steel common stock on a regular $7 annual dividend basis was approved by the directors Tuesday at the suggestion of J. P. Morgan. Although extra payments have resulted in the distribution of this amount annually since the beginning of 1924, the action of the corporation in authorizing a fixed $7 rate was interpreted as an indication of its confidence in continued prosperity.

Elbert H. Gary, head of the Corporation since 1901, was re-elected chairman for another year. Total earnings of the corporation for the first quarter of the year were $45,061,285, equivalent after all charges and preferred dividends, to $3.88 on the common shares. This compares with $3.38 a share in the final quarter of 1925.

BELL PROPHESIED RADIO DISCOVERY

Recollection By Witness at Telephone Rates Enquiry.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 28.Canadian Press. — Prophecies of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, as made in Saint John, N. B., to Chairman McKeown of the Dominion Railway Commission, were listened to with great eagerness and interest at yesterday's session of the phone rates hearing Chairman McKeown was moved to repeat them by a reference in the case of radio.

He sugested that even radio must be considered by the telephone company in considering reserves and service for the future.

"No doubt the time will come," he said, "when we will do our telephoning without the stringing of all these wires overhead."

"No doubt," replied A. I. Peterson, Bell appraisal engineer, who was on the stand, "which shows the need for a high rate of depreciation for that great wire structure now used."

Chairman McKeown told of visits he had paid to Graham Bell's place at Baddock, Cape Breton, and how Dr. Bell had often spoken of things undreamt of then but which had since come into common use.

"He said that the time would come when I could go into the woods with some little instrument as big as this pencil, put it down in the ground and call up my home miles away," said the chairman.

"In these days of scientific advance almost anything a person can conceive of may happen," said Mr. Peterson.

TAUGHT STUDENTS TO MAKE ALCOHOL

SESSER, Ills., April 28.—Sesser Tuesday was divided in its views of R. H. Hanna, high school instructor, who was ousted from the Township High School Board because he permitted students to manufacture alcohol as part of their chemical course.

The Board asked Hanna's resignation on the ground that in teaching the making of alcohol he had "violated the Volstead Act." Hanna refused to resign and was ousted.

The alcohol experiments came in the regular class-room, but a group of students remained after class and worked at fermenting grains, according to the charges. All these students were suspended.

Hanna explained to the School Board that he had obtained permission for the experiment from B. O. Wilcox, principal of the school. Wilcox, however, denied the charge.

HAVELOCK, April 28.—The regular meeting of the Havelock Board of Education was held on Wednesday evening with all the members present. The members of the school staff were also in attendance. Considering the question of salaries brought up last summer and again in December, the result of the last election and the townward trend of teachers' salaries, the Board felt compelled to revise the schedule of salaries, the change to take effect at the beginning of next term.

Moved by Trustee Roche, seconded by Trustee Moore, that the public school schedule be changed as follows: Minimum, $900, with an increase of $25 for each year's experience to a maximum of $1000, and principal's salary to be $1500.

Moved in amendment by Trustee Fraser, seconded by Trustee Rigley that the contracts of present teaching staff terminate at the end of June and that Board advertise for teachers, stating salary, and that the applications of the present staff be considered.

The amendment was lost and the motion carried.

Moved by Trustee Moore and seconded by Trustee Rigley that the Continuation school principal's salary be reduced to $2000 and the assistant's salary be left at $1500. Carried.

The whole school staff was present and after hearing the explanation by the chairman, Dr. A. S. Thompson, agreed that such action was unavoidable. The meeting was quite harmonious.

The progress of the school was freely discussed and there was displayed a fine spirit of co-operation between the staff and the Board.

Accounts.

Moved by Trustees Moore and Rigley that the treasurer be instructed to pay the same.

Moved by Trustees Roche and Fraser that the secretary be instructed to have the classification of the school building corrected and authorized premiums thereon.

"THESE WOMEN"

By MALCOLM DUART

COPYRIGHT 1926

The Characters and Situations in this Story are entirely fictional.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Harry Morton, wealthy, unmarried, middle-aged and handsome, is caught between the rival loves of Audrey, his ward, and Nona, a Toronto girl, both of whom are madly attracted to him.

He has lived in Peterborough for 15 years with his young ward, and gossips there have never been able to solve the riddle of his past. He also maintains an expensive apartment in Toronto.

He hires John Parrish, shy but good, to be his secretary, and instructs him to be a companion to Audrey. She detects his purpose. Trying another tack, while in Toronto he sends Parrish with $5,000 to Nona, with which to buy a piece of jewelry. Parrish at first refuses the errand, on the ground that Morton's reputation is that of a roue, but finally goes. Morton returns to Peterborough, telegraphs Nona to come there, and calling Audrey to his office, shows her papers by which he has transferred to Audrey half of all his wealth. She sees Nona's telegram, saying she is coming.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

It was a pale and agitated girl who awaited Morton, when he returned to the office ten minutes later.

As he opened the door and stepped into the room, he stopped a moment, and looked at her. There was an expectancy in his eye, as if he were awaiting something unusual.

"Sorry to leave you alone so long," he said, cheerily.

She looked up at him, without responding. Her eyes were heavy, and her face was a little pale. His eye caught the telegraph message lying on his desk, and he nodded, without reading it.

"I read it," she said, her voice lifeless.

Her eyes were down, now, and there was a look almost of satisfaction in his face as he replied:

"I didn't know you read things on my desk," he said.

Her voice was weary. "I should not have done so, I'm sorry. I'm terribly sorry. I—I think I'd better go home."

She arose, and drew her light coat around her.

"I didn't know that Nona came to Peterborough," she said, as she stood at the outer door.

"She doesn't come—regularly," Morton said. "As a matter of fact, I think she has not been here before at all."

The girl stood, turning the door-knob, and thinking.

"Did you send for her?" she asked, suddenly.

A flash of genuine surprise showed on Morton's face. "Yes, I did," he said. "How did you know?"

"I—I supposed so," she said. "When you came out of the telegraph office, I knew there was something you did not want to tell me about."

Morton lifted her hand, and patted it. "Intuition," he said, "is a wonderful thing. But Audrey, don't let intuition carry you too far."

She took her hand from him, and hugged her coat about her.

"I'm going now," she said, and left the room. For once, she did not kiss him as she went away, and Morton stood looking after her as she disappeared down the hall.

There were no words between Morton and his ward the next morning, aside from the casual conversation of breakfast time. She did not allude to the telegram he had received, and neither did he.

He was dressed with his accustomed care, as he left the house, and standing in the doorway, Audrey watched him as he disappeared down street. Biting her lower lip thoughtfully, she stood in the door for a long time. At last, with a sudden air of decision, she turned to the housemaid, and told her to order a car.

Hurriedly, Audrey ran to her own room, donned her hat, coat and gloves, and was outside as the car drew up to the door.

"The railway station," she directed.

She arrived just as the train from Toronto pulled in. Directing the driver to wait, she walked hastily around the station, and as she stepped upon the platform, she encountered Morton. He greeted her, without surprise.

The train ground to a halt, and in a moment Nona came running down the platform, a porter following her with a tiny handbag.

"I brought a trunk," cried Nona, as she caught sight of Morton. She was nearing him, her face alight with pleasure, when she caught sight of Audrey. She stopped, suddenly.

Coolly, Audrey stepped forward and offered her hand.

"Mr. Morton and I came to meet you," she said, deliberately.

Nona glanced hastily at Morton and back at the girl. There was something light fright in her manner, as she gave her own hand to Audrey. "It was sweet of you to come," she said.

Again her eyes sought Morton's questioningly. His face was impassive. "I had not expected Miss Morton to be at the station," he said. "She knew you were coming, of course."

He took Nona's trunk check, and arranged for the transfer of her baggage to the hotel. "Your car is waiting?" he asked Audrey.

She nodded. "We will take Miss—Miss—" she looked at Nona inquiringly.

"Nona," answered Morton, grimly.

"We'll take Nona to the hotel," said Audrey. "Then I'll be very glad to show her the city."

She turned to Nona, cool eyes appraising the young woman.

"You've never been here before?"

"Once," said Nona.

Morton turned. "When was that?" he asked.

"Years ago," she said. "I was sixteen then. I was a dancer."

Morton pursued the question no farther, but led the two young women to Audrey's car, and helped them into it.

As they rode, he eyed Audrey, when her own gaze was turned away.

"Did I understand that you were going to show Nona the city today?" he asked.

Audrey turned, and looked full at him, as if answering more than his question. "Yes, I would love to show her everything we have here that is pretty. I don't want her to be lonesome."

Morton grinned a little, and subsided.

Nona herself, mystified, but catching an air of silent battle between her two companions, looked from one to the other, and said little as they rode through the streets to the hotel.

Morton and Audrey waited while she went upstairs to her room.

"I am going to stay with her all the time she is in Peterborough," Audrey said to Morton, quietly.

He raised his eyebrows. "The idea is that I shall not see Nona alone?" he asked.

Audrey placed her hands on his two wrists, and her blue eyes were opened wide as she answered him.

"Nona is my rival," she said, her voice low so the lobby loungers could not hear. "I am going to defend you against her. I am a woman, and I have a right to fight for my own."

She turned, and sat down on a deep lounge. Morton sat beside her, and they waited, silent, until Nona reappeared.

"Oh folks," she said, you don't have to wait down here. The hotel has saved me the loveliest suite of rooms, with a big sitting-room."

She looked at Audrey. "Won't you come up?"

Audrey assented, and the three went together to Nona's drawing room.

Morton waited a moment, as he watched the two women seating themselves, and then asked if he might be excused.

"I have something to attend to," he explained.

Silence fell as he left the room. The two girls eyed one another, partly with curiosity, partly with hostility.

"You're fighting me," Nona said.

"I am," said Audrey. "I told you that when we met in Toronto. I love him, and he is going to marry me."

Nona started. "Did he say he would?"

Audrey was silent. The other girl persisted.

"Did he promise to marry you?"

Audrey was honest, and finally she shook her head. "No, he didn't promise, but I know he must. I love him, and he must—he loves me."

Nona considered. "You hate me." She looked at Audrey, and the younger girl bowed her head in assent.

"Well," said Nona, "I don't hate you. I just love Morton. I don't know whether he will ever marry me. I don't know anything about him. I've known him a year, but this is the only thing I know—if he doesn't want to marry you, he'll not do it. That is where my hope lies."

Audrey had risen from her chair, and was moving around the room, looking at the French prints that hung upon the wall. She had an absent air, as she moved from one to another. Abruptly she turned.

"Are you a bad woman?" she shot at Nona.

The other girl colored. "Is anybody good?" she countered, bitterly. "I suppose, in your way, you're good—but you'd kill me, if you could. Is that good?"

Audrey had started her reply, and the telephone bell rang. Nona answered. She listened a moment, then said "I'll be there right away."

"Will you wait here just a minute?" she asked.

Audrey started as if to follow her, but the door slammed. Nona was gone.

Audrey looked hastily about her, The other girl's hat and coat were on a chair. Her gloves lay on the little telephone stand.

"She can't leave the hotel, anyway," Audrey said, half aloud.

The porter entered with Nona's trunk, and Audrey stood aside as he trundled it into the bedroom, and placed it in a corner. Nona's handbag was on a chair. Audrey moved as if to examine it. Then, with a little shake of her head, she retreated, and went back to the drawing-room.

For a few moments she settled herself in an arm chair. Then, nervously, she began moving about the room.

Minutes passed. She glanced at her watch. Time was flying. She looked out the window. She examined the prints on the wall. Then she opened a door, and looked up and down the corridor. No one was in sight.

Hastily she went back to Nona's apartment, seized her own coat, and sped down the hall. Without waiting she ran down the stairs, and went to the hotel desk.

"Did you see Mr. Morton?" she asked breathlessly.

"Mr. Morton," said the clerk, "left here about ten minutes ago with that young lady who came in with you."

PRINCES OF CHURCH TO ATTEND CONGRESS

Papal Secretary and Ten Cardinals Will Participate in Great Gathering.

For the first time in history the International Eucharistic Congress will be held in the United States. In 1910 the Congress was held in Montreal but with this one exception all former congresses have been held in the capitals of Europe. Chicago will be the scene of this vast cosmopolitan assemblage, June 20 to 24, and the proximity of Toronto, and through Toronto practically the whole of Ontario, to this city will enable many thousands of Canadians to participate in the inspiring ceremonies and witness what will be the greatest religious demonstration in the history of the continent.

Organizations of the prospective visitors to the Congress from the district of Ontario is in the hands of the officers of the Holy Name Society. Joseph Smith, secretary of the Archdiocesan Holy Name Union has already circularized the societies of the diocese inviting them to attend the Congress and arranged with the Canadian Pacific Railway for special train accommodation. Special trains originating in Toronto will leave on the night of June 19, arriving in Chicago in time for the opening. Through the same agency arangements have also been made for suitable accommodation for the Ontario visitors in Chicago, and Mr. Smith anticipates that being assured of ample train and hotel accommodation, the Ontario party will number many hundreds.

Featuring the opening of Congress will be the reception of Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of State for the Vatican, who will attend, with ten cardinals, and a retinue of the most important ecclesiastics of the Church, as the official Delegate of His Holiness Pope Pius XI. Cardinal Gasparri will carry the message of His Holiness. Special services will be held this day in all the churches of the city with a million confessions and communions as a spiritual bouquet to His Holiness the Pope. General and sectional meetings will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and will be addressed by prominent church men and laymen from foreign capitals. In the case of the sectional meetings the audiences will be addressed in their native tongues. Fifty thousand school children will sing the Mass of the Angels at the general meeting on Monday.

The Twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress will be brought to an end by a Eucharistic Procession at Mundelein, twenty-six miles from Chicago.

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy.

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health.

Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamines that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does McDermid and Jury and Bond's drug stores, and if your children need building up ask for these tablets to-day if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive—60 tablets 60 cents—and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days, your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

News Briefs.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Continuing Presbyterian Church are having a thank-offering meeting on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Baptist Church, and have extended an invitation to the other Women's Missionary Societies to be present. Mrs. (Rev.) William Allan of St. Paul's Church, Peterboro, will speak.

The frost came out of the roads rather suddenly last week, making them almost impassable for a short time. Motors had been making the trip to Peterboro constantly, but Saturday's rain put the finishing touches on the bad roads, and even the bravest quailed from the task of getting through. A few dry days and high winds would make a difference and the Road Masters will have the roads in first-class shape again. At present the less said the better.

The ice in the upper lake began breaking last week and huge slabs of ice could be seen going down the river. The thunder on Saturday helped to break up the ice-bound lakes and streams.

Citizens with good memories will recall that on the last Sunday of April last year Lakefield had one of the heaviest snow-falls of the season, which, however, quickly disappeared the next day. A little flurry of snow this year recalled the fact that last season was also very late.

On Monday, May 3 a change will be made in the C.N.R. time-table, and the afternoon train will leave Lakefield at 3.25 instead of 3 o'clock as at present.

PROHIBITION IS OF GREAT BENEFIT

General Booth Expects It To Come in England, He Says.

NEW YORK, N.Y., April 28.—(United Press).—That prohibition has "proved of immense advantage" in the United States is the belief of General Bramwell Booth of London, international leader of the Salvation Army.

Reports from 1200 service centres of the Army, General Booth said, indicated that prohibition, has aided in "bettering the homes, making the children happier and opening the way for moral and spiritual teaching."

"I am quite sure that prohibition will come in England, even if you fail here," General Booth said.

Low-Pressure Treads for country roads

Low-Pressure Treads on Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires not only give all the riding comfort of balloon tires but prevent wear on the side-walls—wear caused by rutty roads. The side-walls of tires with Low-Pressure Treads are off the road.

The wear is all on the treads. The treads carry all the weight of the car at true low-pressure inflation.

That is why Dominion Royal Cord Balloon Tires give the extra mileage that makes them the best tire value money can buy. They are economical because they wear longer.

DISTRIBUTION OF NEW POWER

This map indicates the location of the Gatineau river and the principal power sites from which western Ontario will receive a new supply of power. The provincial Hydro commission has agreed to purchase 260,000 horse power from the Quebec subsidiary of the International Pulp and Paper Co.—the Gatineau Power Co.—at $15 per horse power. The Hydro will spend 15 million dollars building a trunk power line between Ottawa and Toronto. The power will be available in 1928. The chief power sites on the Gatineau are at Chelsea and Paugan Falls, as indicated on the map. The vendors of the power will be responsible for the delivery of the power to the Hydro at or near Ottawa.

FAVORABLE TRADE BALANCE OF $402,000,000 SHOWS CANADA ON THE HIGHROAD TO PROSPERITY

Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Works, Defends Government Record.

MOTOR TARIFF.

Demonstration Against Reduction of Duty Was Unfair, He Asserts.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Debate on the Budget was resumed in the House of Commons Tuesday afternoon by Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works.

Dr. King declared that members of the Conservative Party had been endeavoring to create the impression that Canada was "on the verge of bankruptcy." He believed that the financial status of the Dominion, as disclosed in the Budget, was sufficient to dispel any such feeling. Canada, he said, was not on the verge of bankruptcy, but, on the contrary, was on the road to prosperity. In the fiscal year ending March 31, 1926, this country had enjoyed a favorable balance of trade to the extent of $402,000,000.

The manufacturing industries of this country were not going back at present, in spite of declarations by Conservative speakers, said Dr. King. He took strong exception to remarks which he said had been made in the press of British Columbia by the member for Burrard (Gen. J. A. Clark). He was proceeding to read a newspaper report containing General Clark's statement when that member interrupted on a point of order.

General Clark said that there was "not a little of truth" in the newspaper report, which Dr. King was quoting and that he had denied it the next day. He was proceeding to tell the House what he said, but Speaker Lemieux ruled that this would not be in order.

Prosperous on Coast

Dr. King said that he was very pleased to accept the denial of General Clark. Certainly conditions in British Columbia did not warrant statements such as were attributed to Gen. Clark in this newspaper interview. Dr. King quoted statistics indicating the prosperity of British Columbia at present.

Dr. King defended the Government against charges of having damaged the woollen industry, by quoting the business done by the Penman Company in 1921 and 1925. 1921 business had totalled slightly over $4,000,000 and the business last year had been over $6,000,000. In 1921 Canada imported $45,000,000 worth of woollens, but last year only $3,000,000 worth. The woollen industry throughout the world was having to readjust itself to new conditions of trade which were supplying substitutes for woollens.

The minister also quoted the import and export figures on agricultural implements. In 1921 only $24,000 worth of agricultural implements had entered Canada while $5,527,000 had been exported. Last year over $6,000,000 worth had been imported into Canada and over $11,000,000 worth exported from Canada.

Unfair Demonstration

Members need not be much disturbed at the action of certain motor car manufacturers who, the very day the Budget was brought down, made arrangements to close their plants, Dr. King said. This closing of the plants meant a loss of two or three days to the employees of the companies. The real purpose of the closing was to make a demonstration against the Government in this country, and it was a very unfair demonstration, said the minister.

He dealt with charges that the policy of the Government was resulting in a migration of Canadians to the United States. While admitting that a certain number of Canadians were moving across the line, the minister pointed to figures showing that many thousands were returning. He also claimed that the movement of Canadians across the line prevailed before the present administration made changes in the tariff. He thought that there was a possibility of turning a large proportion of this migration of Canadians to the United States to Western Canada. This would be to the advantage of Eastern Canada.

Col. James Arthurs

Colonel James Arthurs (Conservative, Parry Sound) quoted figures to show that the French treaty had been injurious to Canadian trade with that country. During the three year that the treaty had been in effect, a favorable balance of trade from the Canadian point of view had been changed into an unfavorable balance. He stated that from 70 to 75 per cent of the woollen mills in Canada were now closed.

It would be the policy of wisdom for the Government to encourage the tourist traffic in Canada, Colonel Arthurs said. He advocated a course of advertising to attract people from other countries to visit Canada. Frequently when people came to this country as visitors, they decided to take up permanent residence here.

Some of the representations made by Progressive members in the House were "wide of the mark," said Colonel Arthurs. He would like to remind these Western members that Ontario and Quebec pay 80 per cent. of the total taxation of Canada, while Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta paid only 8 per cent.

S. G. Tobin (Lib., Wetaskiwin) commended the Government for reducing the rates of postage. He supported the reduction in the tariff on automobiles. This would tend to bring prices of motor cars in Canada nearer to the level prevailing in the United States. The fact that Canadian people have been required to pay so much more for their motor cars than people of the United States had been injurious to Canada. Some people naturally regarded the motor car price as indicating the general trend of prices in the country. The comparison was, of course, unfavorable to Canada. Mr. Tobin supported the income tax reductions provided for in the Budget.

PHILIP CARD IS PARKS CARETAKER

Appointment Made By the Parks Committee—Three Tenders Are Received.

At the meeting of the Parks committee last night the tenders for the caretaking of Victoria and Central parks were opened and it was found that three men had submitted tenders, each for the sum of $900. The men submitting tenders were William Henry, Philip Card and William Pearson. Mr. Card was well recommended by Vincent Eastwood, W. J. Oke and T. J. Seymore, and the other men were also well recommended. It was moved by the Mayor and seconded by Alderman Ackerman that the application of Mr. Card be accepted. It was moved as an amendment by Ald. Hancock and seconded by Ald. Phelan that Mr. Henry's application be accepted. On putting it to a vote the motion of the Mayor was carried and Mr. Card was appointed.

Two tenders were received for the caretaking of James Stevenson Park and the matter was left over with the chairman to see the men and report at Monday night's meeting.

The city engineer was asked to have the plans drawn for the proposed dressing rooms at Inverlea Park, which are to be used by the bathers.

A letter of appreciation was received from the secretary of the Male Voice choir thanking the committee for the grant of $100, and promising to give the best of concerts this summer.

A letter was received from the secretary of the Kiwanis club withdrawing the proposal made for the establishing of a wading pool at King Edward Park. The chairman and Mayor both stated that they had been reported wrongly in this matter and that it had not been thrown out in the council as stated in the press but was referred back to the committee for a meeting with the members of the Kiwanis club. The clerk was asked to write the Kiwanis club and explain matters to them.

It was moved by Alderman Phelan and seconded by Alderman Turner that the chairman enter into some agreement with the Board of Education with regard to opening the lavatories at the King Edward school to be used by those who use King Edward park play grounds and the caretaker to be paid by the committee.

It was stated that the committee had about $200 left over after looking after the city's rinks this past winter and it was suggested that this $200 could be used to build lavatories for the men tourists at the exhibition park. At present there are not any and it was stated by Alderman Denne that the exhibition board would be willing to put another $300 to this sum. This matter was left with the chairman and Alderman Denne to bring in a report at the next meeting.

On motion of Aldermen Ackerman and Hancock it was decided that no action would be taken towards building more curbing in Victoria park.

Editor's Note: The Examiner report of the April Council meeting referring to the disposition of the Kiwanis Club plan for a wading pool did not state that the suggestion had been thrown out, as is intimated in the above report. The Examiner's report on April 6 says: "Parks Committee report on wading pool in park is sent back for further discussion. . . It was finally decided to strike out the clause of the report, sending it back to the Committee."

EUROPE'S EYES ON MUSSOLINI

Ambitious Plans of Dictator Create Upheaval in Diplomatic Channels.

LONDON, April 28.—For the moment, it is saef to say that Mussolini, the dictator of Italy, is causing more anxicty than any other individual in Europe. Europe must always be anxious about somebody or something, and what could be more convenient than a dictator?

When the Italian premier first began to attract international attention, it was the practice to say he would confine his efforts to restoring order in his own country; that that, in fact, was the only excuse for his prominence and that would be sufficient to tax his ingenuity.

But there are evidences that Signor Mussolini is not to be content with so narrow a field of activity. It may be, also, that he considers himself safer at home if he can devise a few outside diversions to engage the attention of Italians who might otherwise become restive under Fascist rule.

A Matter of Concern.

Whatever may be Signor Mussolini's personal aims, it is certain his movements are closely watched by other European statesmen and are matters of more than occasional discussion by European thinkers. Few believe he is basing his calculations on the ultimate success of the League of Nations while many intimate he is back of several proposed combinations which may make exceedingly difficult the achievements of ideals at Geneva.

In Great Britain there is a tendency to hush up the expression of such fears, through the general attitude is apparent from numerous occurrences. In a speech in Parliament recently, Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett laid the entire blame for the failure of the past Geneva Council meeting to the activities of Mussolini.

"Although the monkey-wrench was thrown by Brazil," said he, "it is perfectly well known that the final effort to stop the settlement was made by Signor Mussolini and by him alone."

At this remark a buzz of whispering ran through the House and the speaker was interrupted by several voices raised in surprise and protest.

Talk In Britain.

After a moment's pause, Mr. Bartlett continued, first explaining he was revealing no state secret. "Every Italian on the Continent," he said, "is bragging that it was his country that stopped the settlement."

When Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, spoke in defense of his foreign policy, he made the statement that "We have won the co-operation of Italy." The remark was immediately greeted with ironical cries and cheering.

The question has been asked quite seriously of late, just what commitments the British foreign office has made with Italy and what this possible co-operation means. The entire European situation, instead of revealing itself frankly through open agreements at Geneva, is resolving itself into a series of such question marks.

One of these questions has reference to the purpose of the recent tour made by M. Nintchitch, foreign minister of Jugo-Slavia. It is understood the foreign minister on arriving in Paris after conversations with Signor Mussolini, made proposals to Premier Briand for an alliance among France, Italy and Jugo-Slavia, maintaining that nothing was to be hoped from the League of Nations and that safety lay in regional agreements.

His Finger In Pie.

It is reported that M. Briand gave no definite promise, and it is believed he favors general agreements particularly one assuring the co-operation of Great Britain. Nevertheless, the opinion has been expressed in responsible sources that Signor Mussolini in not averse to renewing alliances and that it is his determination to figure prominently in any movement which may take place to rearrange the map of Europe.

The statement was published here recently that France regarded Mussolini's foreign policies as containing potential danger to her own frontier. "The French Foreign Office is watching Italy closely," said that statement. "It is convinced that the Brenner incident with Germany, when Signor Mussolini threatened to carry his flag beyond the Pass, was merely intended to draw attention of the Reich to the power, both actual and potential, of Italy and to prepare a ground for future agreements with Germany. The ultimate purpose might be to divide Austria between Italy and Germany and create a new frontier which obviously would be a danger to France."

All this guessing and connivance serves at least as an indication of Europe's frame of mind and reveals some of the obstacles in the way of establishing a League of Nations in authority. It also shows how unlikely a disarmament conference is to succeed at the present moment.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

FOR FOOT COMFORT

With the approach of warm weather, most people's shoes feel terribly "full of feet." This is especially so with the housewife, who is on her feet most of the time. Therefore she should choose shoes with softer leathers, a bit larger than the Winter shoes, and low or medium heels for housewear.

The heels should be watched and set up immediately, even if only one lift shows wear. The wearing down of heels ruins the shape of the shoe and disturbs the posture of the body.

Many people get great comfort from a salt water or a soda water soaking of the feet each night, which is restful and helps keep the feet soft and cool. It is an excellent idea to see a chiropodist occasionally to have the nails properly trimmed and the feet cared for in an understanding manner.

Stockings should be selected with great care. They should be light, fine, have no disturbing seams, and be long enough not to bind the foot at any point. Around the house at work, white or pale tan or gray stockings will be the coolest to wear.

These same laws apply to children's shoes. Growing feet should be watched carefully and shoes purchased that fit comfortably. A tight shoe or a very loose shoe are both bad. A quarter to a half inch longer than the foot when standing is best. Shoes are an item that we can ill-afford to economize too strictly upon. Bad feet make bad dispositions, hinder efficiency and are not necessary if we take proper care of them.

IN THE OPEN.

It's fun to go down to a small country town, where people are still livin' sanely. It's really a treat, when you hie down a street where restness predominates, mainly.

You're filled with surprise, when you full realize, that peace and real quiet exist. To get far away, for a week or a day, from cities—you know what you've missed.

It makes you feel surer that air is much purer in hamlet spots, out of the way. You sense the real pity, that every big city holds freeness and sanesness at bay.

There isn't the wear and the madness of tear in small towns where wise folk reside. There's no business rattle. They're not packed like cattle. They're living—and working, outside.

Like nature? Well, listen—that's just what you're missin'—the best thing this world has to give. Hop off, on vacation, at some small town station. Just loaf for a while man—and live!

East Meets West in the Chinese Damask of a Two-Piece Frock

BUTTERICK 6787

One of the smartest fabrics of the Spring is the Chinese damask used so much for the sports type of dress. Its weave and luster give it a variety of light and shade, so that while it is less vivid than a print it is quite as lovely. The dress illustrated is an excellent style for the woman whose figure needs to be straightened out a little and held down to slender lines. The skirt is straight and the cluster of plaits fall flat in repose and fly out just a little in motion. The new jumpers are a bit longer and the tie collar is very flattering.

The Examiner does not sell these patterns.

Their World

By Juanita Hamel.

It's a great big world, and there are millions of people in it. But when you're in love—there are only two people on all the face of the globe—and they are yourself and the loved one. All else is forgotten in the supreme joy of loving and being loved. The sun, the moon, the stars—they all shine brighter, or seem to. The flowers are lovelier, the birds sing more merrily, and the days pass in a roseate glow of happiness. It's truly a lover's world, then, and you marvel at the fact that there should actually have to be others to share this wonder of wonders. It is a grand world, and a beautiful one and you are puzzled that you could ever have thought otherwise. Love makes all things beautiful, and true love keeps them so. So when you feel that the world is yours and your beloved's—then you are truly in love. Only don't be too selfish, but let the world know of your happiness—for true love ever seeks to bring happiness and brightness and joy.

SHE DESCRIBES A SMART REP SPRING DRESS.

Jean is a friend of mine, whom I feel has one of the softest lots in life imaginable.

She is the only child of doting parents. She is very attractive, has plenty of money to buy good-looking clothes, and she has many admiring friends, like myself.

Jean is very much interested in clothes, and I will say for her that she manages to wear them with the greatest amount of success.

Which reminds me that it's amazing, the different ways a frock can look on two different people. We see so much of this, when various clients order dresses made from the same model.

However, Jean seems to show off every bit of smartness there is in a frock when she wears it, and I think the sketch shown here helps to show why.

Jean had explained to Madame that she was simply dying to possess a simple stunning cloth frock of the lighter weight variety in some lovely red shade and Madame had set about to help her attain her desire.

"You know, I'm simply entranced that red has come back with such a bang," Jean added. "I love it so, and it has been a long time since red was worn at all for Spring."

Madame sent up to the stock-room for bolts of her loveliest reds, in rep, the material that she and Jean decided would just fill the bill.

Now, Madame knows that Jean has a lovely slim figure, and that when one possesses such an asset, it's a shame to wear clothes that swathe it and hide its best curves.

That's why she usually makes clothes for Jean that have a suggestion of fitting through the bodice. Jean has a nice long line under the arm, and lovely slim hips.

This soft red rep is to be planned like the sketch I'm showing here, and the inset bands of trimming are a deep, plum red, which blends to perfection with the rest of the frock.

The rather unusual arrangement of the inset bands on the back of the graceful garment delighted Jean immensely. For if there is anything that she adores it is garments that are "different." The sleeves with their clever slit cuffs and their smart tailored effect also appealed to the critical taste of my charming friend.

The hat is to match the frock, and be of soft French felt in the same shade

Menus for the Family

(By Sister Mary.)

Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of spinach soup, croutons, hot cheese sandwiches, upside-down cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Veal loaf, creamed potatoes, dandelion greens, maple custard, rye rolls, milk, coffee.

Dandelion greens must be very carefully cleaned. Cook uncovered in boiling water until tender and then season with butter, lemon juice, salt and pepper. They are often served with a hot vinegar sauce and garnished with hard cooked eggs. However lemon juice and butter are more desirable than the vinegar sauce.

Upside-down cake is quite unusual and quite good.

Up-Side-Down Cake.

Two tablespoons butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup canned cherries, 4 tablespoons broken walnut meats, 2 eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 cup flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-4 cup water, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 cup whipping cream

Melt butter in iron frying pan. Add brown sugar, making a smooth layer. Cover evenly with canned cherries and sprinkle cherries with nuts. Pour over the following batter: Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored, beating in sugar gradually. Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder and stir into first mixture. Add water and then vanilla and when mixture is smooth fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Bake forty minutes in a moderate oven with the most heat on the bottom. The brown sugar must melt and form a syrup. Turn cake out, up side down and cover with cream whipped and sweetened. Any kind of fruit can be used as preferred.

SECRETS OF CHARM

Curly hair has always been considered a mark of beauty. And it is very pleasant to have naturally curly hair, and not to have to spend much time inducing it to curl.

But, whether your hair is naturally curly, or whether you have to acquire a wave by drastic methods, you will do well to consider your locks carefully.

The day of the kinky-haired beauty has passed. The new mode of the sculptored head has marked the passing of carefully kinked hair.

Many women who formerly felt not quite dressed unless their hair was curled now wear it straight and like it.

On the other hand, many of us find that a certain amount of wave is definitely more becoming, and if so, we do well to cultivate just this amount of wave and no more.

However, you must bear in mind that the modish wave is the one of few undulations—simply a soft wavy notion of the hair rather than a definite curl, never a crispy waved coiffure with one little tight wave giving away directly to another.

Now, if you have your hair waved, or if you wave it yourself remember this, and see that the waves are placed sufficiently far apart. Then, when you arrange your hair, you can comb it into place and leave the softly wave outline which marks you as up to the minute in the matter of coiffure.

If you have hair which is naturally wavy, the kind you can curl yourself with water-wave combs, you will find it an easy matter to arrange. Simply place the combs in far apart, catching the waves which are natural and simply making them more secure. But never allow them to be too close together.

If your hair is the kind which inclines to a tight wave of its own accord, you can train it into more modish lines by smoothing it down with wet water wave combs and keeping it smooth in between the waves you want, till it is quite dry. This will tend to move some of the excessive curl.

LADY ABERDEEN RECALLS YOUTH

Tells of Strict Supervision of Young Girls By Chaperones.

INQUIRIES MADE.

LONDON, April 28.—(Canadian Press).—The Marchioness of Aberdeen, who as wife of the Governor-General? occupied Rideau House from 1893 to 1898, has contributed an interesting article to the Evening News on the passing of the chaperone. Lord and Lady Aberdeen last year published a book of reminiscences under the title of "We Twa," in which there were several references to their life in Canada.

Describing how in her own early days the young social debutante was hemmed around by all manner of restrictions, Lady Aberdeen remarks: "Rules of conduct varied according to chaperones, but it was generally understood that it was the proper thing for a girl to return to her mother's side between each dance, and that more than two or three dances with the same partner would render the couple liable to be the subject of remarks.

"Would-be partners who knew their manners would always ask to be introduced to the mother before asking the daughter for a dance, and the inquiries regarding the lineage and worldly conditions of these aspirants would be passed round and discussed by the band of chaperones, who also canvassed with careful eyes the attractions and merits of possible daughters-in-law as well as of sons-in-law.

"For the first two or three years following the girl's 'coming out' all her daily doings were under strict supervision and her walks and rides in the park, her visits to country houses, and her attendance at luncheons, afternoon parties and dinners, as well as dances, were all zealously watched over with a view of detecting those early symptoms of friendship which might develop into closer relationship."

Lady Aberdeen, however, is by no means despondent over the social tendencies of the present day. "In spite of appearances to the contrary, in spite of the low standards pervading many modern modes of recreation and amusements, there are not lacking signs of growing demand for the protection of child life, for the education of the young of both sexes regarding the physiological facts of life, and for some scheme whereby those entering on the married state should produce some proof of their fitness for marriage.

"No longer are chaperones required to sit round ball-rooms to guard their daughters against undesirables in the shape of penniless charmers; parents and children of all classes, mingling together in life's duties and relaxations, in its business and its games, have opportunities through understanding comradeship denied to earlier generations.

"Mothers who know life's sacred secrets, who watch with anxious care over the training of their infant children, and who early impart to them the knowledge of the wonders of their bodily life, give them the best protection against life's dangers."

This Little Girl Wears a Frock of Green Challis and White Batiste.

Challis makes an ideal frock for the small girl. It is not expensive, it wears well and launders perfectly.

A soft Spring green is the color chosen for the little dress above. It is simply made with pleats at the sides of the skirt and a string belt at the waistline. Pleated white batiste trims the neck and makes a frill at the front.

The same model might be made with pleats at one side only, following the line of new sports frocks for grown-ups.

THE INCISORS.

You are very particular to keep these eight front teeth (four upper and four lower), white and sound, so their function, then to you, would seem largely esthetical.

But they have another use from which they take their name—that is—to incise, or cut.

In your child you have seen them erupt with three distinct tips or tubercles, which by and by have worn down to leave a straight cutting edge.

This notching is a purely normal development, being due to the calcification of the enamel covering from three separate centres. Now, you have noticed too, with perhaps not little concern, that upon eruption, the two upper front teeth (central incisors) seemed quite out of proportion to the size of the face, giving them an ungainly appearance.

But you must remember this—that while the face will grow larger, the teeth will not increase in size—so Nature has planned with foresight as you might have guessed.

Now try this Consult a mirror, and note the shape of your face. To which of the three types does it incline, tapering, oval or square? Then study the form of your upper central incisor—imagine it inverted, and observe that it conforms to the shape of your face. Nature is very attentive to details, ever striving for harmony.

Remember, then, that you must give redoubled zeal to the care of these incisors which are not merely useful but are also an asset to your appearance, if rightly cared for.

Rum and Milk!

The famous Young Lady of Fashion, one Cleone Knox of County Down, who ruled the county swains' hearts some two centuries ago, sedately tells of sipping her rum and milk much in the fashion of present maidens their double chocolate sodas.

Since today's social customs do not foster the serving of chilled rum and milk to the bridge club or sewing circle, try fruit ice made in your own freezer. Rub 3 bananas through a sieve, add strained juice of 3 oranges and 3 lemons pinch of salt, 2 cups of sugar, 3 cups water. Let stand until sugar dissolves. Pack in mould and freeze.

FEARLESSNESS BEGETS ADMIRATION.

Mr. Hathaway, senior, quickly took the bag in his hands, opened it, saw all its lovely fittings, and then looked at me interestedly.

"What's this got to do with the episode at the restaurant?" he inquired.

"A lot. Your son sent this doggy little bag, with a note saying he had made the restaurant people buy the bag and put in two hundred and fifty dollars which you will find in the pocketbook inside."

Mr. Hathaway, senior, examined the beautiful brocaded bag very carefully and then he turned to me, saying

"Well, young wo— Miss Dean, wouldn't you consider the incident closed? Why did you come here with your story?"

"For many reasons. First, I don't believe the manager of your restaurant sent me either the bag or the money. I think your son sent them to me as he knows I'm out of a job this morning and need it just at this time very much."

"If that's the case, why don't you accept it and say nothing? He gave you a very good excuse to do so. I still cannot see why you are bringing it to me."

"Oh, don't you? You own the restaurant, don't you? I believe the management of your restaurant owes me the money and a new bag. Not as good as this one, though. Mine was a very modest little affair. I knew I couldn't get at the truth of the thing by interviewing any of your people and of course neither Jimmy Costello or your son would tell me the truth. I don't intend to be under any obligation to Mr. Gerald Hathaway or any other man. I started out to make my way and I'm going to do it.

"I'm not a gold-digger, Mr. Hathaway. Neither am I a person who believes a thing because I want to believe it. Thinking the matter over, it seemed to me that I could only learn the truth from you. That's why I've come, Mr. Hathaway. I think I have a right under the circumstances to ask you to take the bag and the money and make the investigations yourself and let me know what happens."

"You certainly'll get along, Miss Dean, if you try to go through the world the way you've started. I'll tell you what I'll do. I, myself, will make restitution. Take the bag and the money. I'll pay Jerry back for it. It is my right. You lost it in my restaurant."

He held out the bag to me.

I drew back.

PLANE'S ENGINES FAILED IN FLIGHT

Wilkins Unable To Penetrate the Arctic Spaces.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 28.—(Canadian Press.)—The airplane Detroiter, which turned back Monday after travelling 100 miles toward the Arctic Ocean in search of Captain George H. Wilkins and Lieutenant Carl B. Ellson, was given a test flight here yesterday.

Crossing of the Brooks range by the Detroiter, was held impossible Monday. One of the three engines went dead and a compass did not work correctly.

Wilkins, leader of an expedition in search of land in the Arctic ocean and Ellson, his aviator, have not been reported since their plane, the Alaskan, was seen April 16, 100 miles east of point Barrow, Alaska, and over the edge of the ocean.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

What easy lives some of us lead! We do few things we are not glad to do, and never any of these except when we feel like doing them.

I wonder if this is good for us? Do not our habits lead to softness? Self indulgence leads away from character building and tends in the direction of mental and moral flabbiness.

Soundness of heart demands systematic and never-ceasing exercise. Hardness of muscles comes from their relentless use. Good lungs are developed by continuous deep breathing. We become hardened to cold and hardship by exposure to their effects.

One day of exercise every week or two will not develop heart or muscle. An occasional deep breath will do little to strengthen the lungs. An hour of exposure out of days of indoor comfort will only do you harm.

Isn't it by the constant exercise of habits of application, industry, self-denial and mental poise that we can hope to be strong in character and forceful in personality? In this way only are we saved from moral destruction.

The interchange of food and waste, resulting in what we call the metabolism" of the body, depends for successful operation upon the activities of the body. We cannot sit a child down on the end of a log, instruct him never to move a muscle but to imagine himself a part of the log, and expect him to prosper.

Of course, no normal child could be made to act like a lump of putty. But if he could be made to he would not stay in health a single week. His jumping and running and yelling are a part of Nature's scheme to make him well and strong. His physical welfare depends on unceasing use of the parts and organs.

Did you ever catch a bass or trout out of a fast-running stream? How he fought you! With muscles and brain developed by constant warfare with the forces of that river, his physical and reasoning powers reached perfection.

You cannot reach physical, mental or moral perfection without struggles and unceasing effort. Consequently you are lucky only when you are forced to work. It may be a luxury not to be obliged to work, but like all luxuries, this one is bad for you. You cannot thrive without work, so if it is necessary that you should work, you are lucky.

There is a dignity in work. Only tramps and drones evade the responsibility to work. You should be ashamed not to work. You should be put in jail if you teach your children to shun work.

Good health is a free gift to most persons. It must be fought for by others. But it cannot be retained long by anybody without physical effort. It is the naturally applied effort and the everyday effort of work that will add years to life.

The harder you have to work within reasonable limits of course, the better it is for you. My hat is off to you if you really work and I congratulate you on the privilege of being a worker.

MISS A. M. B. Q.—Would adhesion cause a burning sensation in the right side? How long after an operation for appendicitis do adhesions appear?

A.—Not necessarily. The trouble may be due to gases. Consult the surgeon who operated upon you. In some instances the patient is not troubled by adhesions.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY VISITS HER COUSIN ACROSS THE SEA

Betty picked up her basket of lunch and started out the door with a frown on her face.

"Well, of all things," laughed a merry voice and there on the step sat a wee little elfin smiling at her. "What's the trouble on this lovely day I'd like to know?"

"Oh, I never have anything nice for my lunch," replied Betty. "All the other girls have nice lunches with cakes and sandy and everything."

The wee elfin shook his head sadly. "I don't care, it's true, Gocomeback," snapped Betty crossly. "I suppose you're trying to think of someone a long way off who doesn't have near as much as I do."

"So I was," replied the elfin. "Fact is, as I was on my way there when I saw your frowning face. What do you say? Come along." Then without waiting for Betty's reply, Gocomeback caught hold of her hand and before she knew what was going on, Betty found herself standing before a queer looking field.

"My, what a lovely odor!" Betty exclaimed. "Where are we anyway Gocomeback? What are these fields? What are those boys and girls doing?"

"One question at a time and they'll last longer," laughed Gocomeback. "First of all, this is a vineyard in France. These little girls and boys you see working here don't know what it is to have picnics like you do. They spend all their spare time gathering the grapes for the market."

"This is a vineyard."

Scattered over the vineyard were crowds of little boys and girls each with a basket, laughing and chatting, singing and telling stories as they filled their baskets with the juicy grapes.

Betty watched them standing by the side of a little black-eyed girl just about her own size.

"Do you like to gather grapes?" she asked the wee French girl. "Do you live near here?"

"Just far enough away, that I must bring my lunch each day," replied the little French girl. "That just makes me think, it's lunch time now, will you join me, you and Gocomeback?"

This pleased Betty very much, so she and Gocomeback sat down among the grape vines beside the little girl and waited for her to open her lunch basket. Betty's eyes almost popped out of her head when she saw what the little girl had to eat, a great big loaf of the coarsest, blackest bread she had ever seen.

She tasted it but couldn't eat it, it was so heavy and bitter.

"I'm sorry you don't like it," said the little French girl. "I hardly know what white bread is. My people are not fortunate enough to have much. Now some folks have meat on Sundays, but if we get meat once a year we are doing well. I suppose you have it all the time?"

Betty opened up her lunch basket and shared her dainty lunch with her little French cousin and they laughed and chatted until the little girl had to go to work again. Then Gocomeback and Betty hurried back to America.

"I'm settled," Betty laughed. "I'll never complain about my lunches again."

After that when her lunch didn't just suit her, Betty always thought about the day she had lunch with the little French girl.

Conflicting planetary forces are in rule on this day. While there is the prospect of growth in business, with the finances well fortified from certain angles, yet there is a figure threatening losses and the auguries for new projects are ominous. Sign papers with caution, and care for the health.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of contradictory fortunes. Although the financial prospects are strong, yet new ventures are under a baneful figure and there is danger through loss by fraud, treachery, robbery or fire. SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE

UNITED CHURCH OFFICIAL BOARD CAN NEITHER CALL A MINISTER NOR ASK ONE FOR RESIGNATION

Power Belongs To Congregation is Ruling of Chairman of Presbytery.

MUCH DISCUSSION.

Case of Port Hope Pastor Brings Question To An Issue.

(By A Staff Reporter)

PORT HOPE, April 28.—The powers of the Official Board that is carrying on under the regulations of the United Church of Canada, have, it seems, been considerably limited with regard to the selection and disposition of a minister since union became effective as compared with the scope of the authority invested in such Boards in the former Methodist church. Before union an official Board was all but autocratic in dealing with this branch of the work but now the initiative has been taken from the Board and the selection of a pastor and his retention has been made the prerogative of the congregation as a whole.

This subject was one of the most important discussed at the meeting of the Cobourg United Presbytery held here Tuesday, about 90 clerical and lay delegates being present This is the second session of this Presbytery held since its organization in Cobourg last fall and a long budget of business was disposed of. There is among the members a difference of opinion as to the correct interpretation of some of the new rules, but with regard to the point above referred to, Rev. J. W. Robbins of Bowmanville, chairman—for that is what the presiding officer of a Union Presbytery is now called instead of moderator—stated clearly his opinion of this particular rule.

A Case In Point.

A case which called for an interpretation of the new rule arose over Rev. F. W. Anderson, associate pastor of the church in which the meeting was held and to whom a call has been extended to become the regular minister. At the time when the union movement reached a climax and so many congregations divided, Mr. Anderson was pastor of the local Presbyterian church. He went out with the Unionists and became associate pastor of the Methodist church of which the regular minister at that time was Rev. J. W. Baird, who has since died.

Called By Board.

The invitation to Mr. Anderson to remain as regular pastor was extended by the Official Board, composed under the new regime of the managers and elders, over 40 in all. The procedure in such matters that prevailed in the Methodist church of former days was followed in this case, the congregations as a unit not having been given a chance to vote on the question although there was no doubt that the desire for Mr. Anderson's permanent services was almost unanimous.

Procedure Not Regular.

When the matter was brought before the Presbytery, Chairman Robbins read from the book of rules and decided that the action was not regular. He advised the congregation to take no risk in a matter of so much importance, as conference might set aside the entire proceedings. He advised the congregation to call a meeting and proceed according to the new rules.

Mr. Robbins held that under the laws of the United church a call or invitation to a minister must come from the congregation in general meeting assembled, not from the Board. To the latter the congregation was required to make its wishes known and the Board's duty was to place the matter before the settlement—formerly the stationing—committee.

There was a long discussion on this point and it was shown that Mr. Anderson had been with the congregation for over a year and that the members and adherents were practically unanimous in his favor. It was moved that an exception be made in his case and the procedure as arranged for be followed. The call was referred to the Settlement committee the members of which will lay it before the standing committee that arranges for the the induction of ministers into new charges.

The Matter of Resignation.

The Official Boards of several congregations in the Presbytery have asked for the resignations of the ministers in charge and as there is some doubt as to the meaning of the new discipline these matters are still in abeyance.

Mr. Robbins ruled yesterday that the Official Board has no right to ask for the resignation of a pastor unless instructed to do so by a vote of the congregation. The question then had to be laid before the Presbytery in the regular way.

Induction Ceremony.

It was decided to adopt a set formula for the induction of ministers, some speaker to address the new pastor and another the congregation. In the United church there is neither augmentation nor sustentation fund but the charges that are not self-supporting are now assisted with money raised for home missions.

The educational committee reported 123 Sunday schools in the Presbytery. Some of the charges have no schools and there were urged to organize such institutions as soon as possible. The committee recommended that the Sunday school work be carried on by township units and by co-operation if possible.

Authority Given Congregation

The Prince Albert congregation was authorized to dispose of part of its property. Baltimore, where the Methodists and Presbyterians united, was given power to sell the building formerly used as a parsonage and to apply the proceeds on the manse. Congregations at Bowmanville and Pickering received authority to raise money by placing mortgages on parts of their property.

To Admit Holiness Preacher.

A communication was received from the Renfrew United Presbytery giving notice that at a meeting of Conference at Kingston a resolution will be introduced to admit as a minister of the United church, a Lanark pastor who is at present identified with the Holiness movement.

Expenses of Delegates.

On motion of Rev. R. A. Whattam, formerly of Peterborough, and Rev. C. D. Daniel of Seymour, delegates to Presbytery are to be allowed five cents for every mile travelled to and from the meetings. The time and place of next meeing will be arranged later.

Mr. McIntosh's Case.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, formerly minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Campbellford, who went out with the Unionists and became associate pastor of St. John's United church was at the meeting last fall granted leave of absence for six months, as he was engaged in work outside the Presbytery. A communication was received from him yesterday asking for an extension of this leave but as he has since been inducted into the pastorate of a church in Edmonton, no action was taken.

The Presbyterial adjourned at noon for two hours to give the committe a chance to draw up their reports. Lunch was served in the school room by the members of the Ladies' Aid.

Rev. Wesley Elliott and G. A. Kingston were the delegates from Campbellford, while the Hastings United Church was represented by Rev. M. L. Hinton and R. C. Doxsee. Rev. C. D Daniel and Alex Hume were delegates from the Seymour United circuit.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Number 1—
THE WHIFFET WHO LOST HIS SHADOW

One day as the Twins were taking turns in the old swing, they heard someone crying.

And looking down they beheld a funny little creature in a bombazine suit.

"Who are you and what's the matter?" asked the Twins together just like that.

Sniffle! Sniffle! wept the tiny creature in the bombazine suit. "My name's Whiffet and I've lost my shadow!"

"Whiffet!" cried Nancy, bending down low so she could see him better. "What's your last name?"

"There isn't any," said the funny little fellow in the bombazine suit. "It's just Whiffet. Don't you know what a Whiffet is?"

"No, I don't," said Nancy shaking her head. "Did you, Nick? Did you ever hear of a Whiffet?"

"No, I didn't either," said Nick. "Where do you live?"

"Whiffets live in rag bags and dress on left-overs," said the tiny creature. "When they are a year old their parents give them their fortune in buttons and send them out into the world. I'm out in the world now. I'm seeking my shadow. It's lost. Sniffle! sniffle! And I can't find it. Sniffle! Sniffle!"

"Dear me! Then I'll have to help you," said a voice the Twins knew well.

And there on a stalk of yellow butter-and-eggs, sat the Fairy Queen, smiling in ever so friendly a fashion.

"Oh, thank you," said the Whiffet. "I'm ever so much obliged. Up in the attic where the rag-bag was I didn't have a shadow, for there wasn't any sun, but when I started off on my adventures, my shadow met me at the door. The Gray Rat told Mother Whiffet that I'd be safe as long as I had my shadow along. Now I haven't any, and I'm scared."

"When did you miss it first?" asked the Fairy Queen.

"When I jumped over the stile," said the little Whiffet. "I guess it couldn't jump. When I went back to get it, it was gone."

"Put on the magic shoes, children," said the Fairy Queen. "They are on the seat of the swing. And go with this poor little Whiffet and help him to find his shadow."

With that she was gone.

So the Twins put on the magic green shoes and instantly they were as tiny as the Whiffet himself.

Then off they all started to find the Whiffet's shadow.

"I hope," said he, "that I won't get my bombazine suit wet. It is of the best purple. Mother made it out of a peplum off an old bombazine skirt. And she says if I get it wet it's the very last purple bombazine suit she will ever make me." But scarcely were the words out of the Whippet's mouth than he fell into the drain.

Nancy and Nick fished him out, but, of course, he was dripping wet. And he cried so hard, his tears made him wetter.

"Oh, don't cry, please!" said Nancy, drying him off with her apron. "Oh please don't cry. Perhaps your suit won't shrink much."

But it did! Terribly!

NO GATINEAU POWER PROMISED KINGSTON

Direct Line Will Be Built From Ottawa To Toronto, Says Maguire.

KINGSTON, April 28 (Special to The Examiner).—Information received by the Public Utilities Commission is to the effect that Kingston will not get any of the hydro-electric power recently contracted for by the Ontario Government, from the Gatineau Power Co., Quebec. A letter received by Chairman McFarlane, from C. A. Maguire, of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, to the effect that the matter has not been decided, but that it is expected that there would be a direct line from Ottawa to Toronto.

At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission an agreement was reached to supply power to the street railway at .65 cents per kilowatt hour. The old rate was 1.20 cents. The question of the cost of power for the road has been under discussion for some time, the company making an application for a reduced rate, stating that the service could not be maintained under the old rate. The Commission did not want the city to lose its railway, so the rate was about cut in half, and was agred on by the Commission, and is satisfactory to the company.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite Secretary Shawnee Okla. Board of Commerce.

THAT you often hear of a city that is considered a live city: very seldom do you hear of one that has a reputation of being a dead city.

THAT it is the soul of a community or spirit of the community that makes your city alive. Where do you get the soul of your community? In your Chamber of Commerce. If your citizens are not public-spirited and do not possess community pride to obtain and do things, you have a dead city, because the individuals in the city are so dead that they do not realize that your city cannot grow and spread out unless each business man does his share to build your community.

THAT there are usually three types of business men. The passive individual that does well by himself and is an honorable citizen. When you go to him for his money he has an excuse: so to him for his time and he is too busy. That type of a man should be forgotten.

THAT another type is the Knocker. He is the kind of citizen that tells you your neighboring city is a much better city than his own home city he finds fault with everything. This kind of a citizen should either get right with his own city or be invited to move.

THAT then there is the RIGHT type. The man who is live and energetic in the community: the man who believes in his own home city and spends his time and money for its betterment. You will find this class the successful business men of your city. This class deserves all the good things their city can give them. They deserve the credit for what they do. If it were not for them your city would be known as a dead one.

Keep being known as a live city. The more live it is in a business way the more prosperous your citizens will be!

RICKARD RETURNS.

Back in New York With Dempsey's Contract.

NEW YORK, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Tex Rickard came home Tuesday with Jack Dempsey's signed contract in his pocket and a dazzling Texas sombrero on his head.

The contract, he explained, binds Dempsey to fight under his promotion in defence of his heavyweight title against either Harry Wills or Gene Tunney, sometime in September, "somewhere in New York or New Jersey."

Rickard refused to stipulate just who would be Dempsey's opponent. "I don't know who it will be," said Rickard. "But I'll tell you right now, Dempsey would rather fight Wills than Tunney. He figures the negro will be an easier opponent.

HAGEN LIVING 'PERFECT LIFE'

Players and Writers Agree That Star Golfer Has Few Worries.

NEW YORK, April 24.—The question of soft jobs and easy lives came up recently at one of the Florida base ball training camps, where a number of players, base ball writers and officials were fanning in the lobby of a hotel.

A big car pulled up in front of the hotel, driven by a liveried chauffeur, and a fashion plate stepped out.

"There's the fellow with the softest racket any one could want," one of the players said.

"Who's that?" a newcomer asked.

"That's Hagen," he answered, "Walter Hagen, the best golfer in the world, and a grand fellow with it."

Hagen, according to gossip, is making about $100.00 a year playing golf and showing others how to play the game. He has three cars—the best that are made—a chauffeur and several other servants, a manager, and a magnificent home in one of the most beautiful sections in Florida.

Rates High In Society.

He is accepted in the best society, has a high rating as a citizen, and all of the comforts of life. He doesn't have to train seriously and he has no challengers to be bothering him and no one to pester him with questions, When are you going to meet this fellow, or that fellow?

Hagen's success isn't the result of luck. He has natural talent, of course, but with it he was blessed also with shrewd foresight.

He was a fine semi-pro ball player when he was a youngster, and he had an idea that he might make good as a professional; but he decided that there was more of a future in golf, and he gave up baseball and took up golf as a profession.

"I figured that the average life of a ball player in fast company was about 10 years, and then he would have to quit or go to the minor leagues at cut rates," Hagen said.

Age No Handicap.

"There is no limit to the career of a golf player. I have been in the game for a number of years and I feel sure that I have at least five years of championship golf ahead of me. Harry Vardon won a national championship when he was 51 years of age, and he is still a great golfer. If a player takes care of himself, there is no age limit facing him."

Hagen is still a great base ball fan and he says his interest in the game helps his golf.

"Everyone gets bored once in a while with his business and needs diversion," Hagen said. "I get mine out of base ball. I know enough about the fine points of the game to have more than a casual spectator's interest in it.

BY BILLY EVANS

Home runs have played an important role in the meteoric career of Paul Waner.

Who is Paul Waner? You ask.

He is the young man for whom the Pittsburgh ball club paid a sum estimated to be in the neighborhood of $100,000. Waner was the star outfielder of the San Francisco team of the Pacific Coast League last year.

Opportunity came in the form of an exhibition game against a team composed of big leaguers and players from the Pacific Coast League. It was at the close of the 1922 season. Waner was a member of the Ada, Oklahoma Independents, b'gosh.

Two were out, the bases filled in the last half of the ninth when Waner stepped to the plate. He had already made three hits in four times up. The score was 3-1 in favor of the big leaguers. On eight other occasions prior to this Dick Merriwell stunt, Waner, with a base hit, had won games in the ninth.

Waner worked the count to three balls and two strikes. The pitcher tried to slip over a fast one; Waner took a healthy swing, a home run resulted and Waner was on his way to fame and fortune.

A scout from the San Francisco team of the Coast League saw the game. Waner's ability to hit the pill impressed him, particularly the home run in the ninth inning pinch. He signed him.

Waner was just a rookie with the San Francisco club. There were many stars on the team and for weeks he warmed the bench, never getting a chance to prove his real worth. It finally came in a game with Los Angeles.

For nine innings the two teams were deadlocked, each having scored a run. In the eleventh Los Angeles broke the tie, putting over two tallies, apparently clinching the game.

Frisco staged a rally and managed to get runners on first and third with two down. A home run would win the ball game.

Manager Ellison called on Waner. The 19-year-old recruit carefully selected his bat and walked to the plate with the confidence born of a veteran star.

He looked the first one over, a fast-breaking curve. Strike one! The pitcher tried to sneak over another curve. This time Waner was set. He swung hard.

Wham! As the ball left the bat the crowd rose to its feet and gave the kid a mighty cheer. It was apparent the ball would clear the wall. It did. Frisco won the game, 4-3.

Once more opportunity rapped at the door and Waner greeted it with a home run.

Waner may have his trouble breaking into the Pittsburgh outfield as he did at Frisco. The Pirates have a star outer defense. Will he deliver his usual home run in his debut and immediately make himself solid with fandom?

Like many other great hitters of the day, Waner is a left-hander and not unlike Babe Ruth, started his career as a pitcher. As a southpaw they couldn't beat him in the stxi.

HEART STRAIN OF ATHLETICS

Sprinting Most Expensive of Energy—Heavy Oxygen Intake.

DOCTOR'S STUDIES.

During a severe prolonged effort an athlete's heart must be pumping out blood at the rate of 14 to 18 gallons per minute. The right and left chambers of the heart expel the same amount and the blood supplies the athlete with the necessary oxygen.

The discovery was made by A. V. Hill, professor of physiology of University College, of London, England, and set forth recently in an article in the Scientific American.

Prof. Hill also discovered that the pulse rate of an athlete, usually low at rest (50 beats per minute), is so responsive to the psychological effect of action and to the psychological stimulus of effort, that the very first beat after starting is measurably shorter than rest and the rate goes soaring up rapidly to 180 or more beats per minute, a level at which it may be maintained for considerable periods.

He gives this description to the process of producing energy:

"The long-distance runner may be breathing twice his own volume of air per minute. From this he may be taking into his blood about one gallon of oxygen. This oxygen is utilized in the combustion which provides him with energy.

"Each member of the crew of an eight-oar boat may be developing 0.6 of a horsepower of actual mechanical work throughout a three-mile race; in a 100-yard sprint the muscular effort may be so intense that it would require an expenditure of total energy equivalent to it! In sprinting, lactic acid is being liberated in the muscles at the rate of four grams or more per second—an ounce in seven seconds; at the end of a 300-yard race there may be a quarter of a pound of this potent substance free in the tissues of the body, producing those very obvious symptoms which we call "fatigue."

Sprinting is the most expensive form of running. Prof. Hill's explanation:

"The power expended in running increases about as the cube of the speed; that is why the highest speeds of running are so extremely expensive and exhausting. In running fast a man is always working wastefully. He is getting a velocity up to 20 miles or more per hour, as it were, on low gear. With artificial aids—a bicycle or an oar—he works on a higher gear with a smaller number of 'revolutions per minute,' and recent studies have shown that in rowing the frequency of movement—30 to 40 strokes per minute—is approximately that at which the greatest mechanical efficiency is realized. The boat and the oar have been evolved by long experience, to allow the attainment of that optimum."

The cause of fatigue is thus explained:

"When a muscle is stimulated a certain amount of lactic acid is liberated at certain surfaces within it. This, by some physical or chemical process still uncertain, causes a development of force and, if allowed, a shortening of the muscle. The acid then is rapidly neutralized, its effect passes off, and the muscle relaxes. The process can be repeated again and again until the available supply of alkali for neutralizing the acid has been used up, when the rapidly increasing acidity of the muscle stops its further activity. This stage is that of complete fatigue and the amount of work that the muscle can perform depends on the degree to which it can tolerate acid before this stage is reached."

Before further activity becomes impossible the acid that accumulates has many other effects. It excites the "respiratory centre," a portion of the brain that controls breathing; it regulates the amount of oxygen utilized by the body; it slows the relaxation of the muscle.

Prof. Hill points out that this last effect is noticeable in sprint races. Here the slower muscular relaxation, commencing with seven or eight seconds from the start, causes a constant decrease in the maximum speed long before exhaustion.

All the voluntary muscular activity depends upon the formation of lactic acid and its resultant reaction.

An electrical storage battery requires recharging after use to restore its power of supplying current and so the muscles must be restored to their previous state. The lactic acid must be transformed back to its precurser, a process, requiring a supply of energy and this energy comes from the combustion of foods by oxygen supplied through the lungs and circulation.

All the oxygen used by a man during and after muscular exertion, is employed in this recovery process, writes Prof. Hill. When the effort is very severe and of short duration all the oxygen used may be consumed after the exercise is over. During long-continued, moderate exercise a balance may be obtained between new formation of acid and restoration of that previously liberated. Athletes depend upon long continued effort upon the maximum available supply of oxygen, while the capacity of the body for short-lived, violent effort depends chiefly upon the maximum amount of acid which can be tolerated by the muscles. The amount of lactic acid present can be measured by the volume of oxygen required in recovery to effect its removal. The capacity of the body depends therefore on the maximum rate of oxygen intake during exercise, which is determined by the efficiency of heart and lungs, and upon the maximum oxygen debt that the body can tolerate.

HOLLYWOOD, April 28.—It is women, not men, who believe implicitly in the dreadfully fascinating reality of the standardized "vamp" as she is portrayed on the screen. Strong men may chuckle at her brazen allurements, or sigh regretfully that there ain't no such animal, but good women shudder and cluck disparaging tongues.

Moreover, they write letters about it to the reigning screen sirens. Bushels of letters. Confidential epistles naively asking how one may achieve the vampish power, or what measures a lady may take to prevent her husband from falling victim to such blandishments. There is no question of their sincere acceptance of the heartless film figment as a prevalent and genuine type.

Margaret Livingstone, recently elevated to stardom by Fox, and accounted one of the most convincing screen Circes of the hour, receives an average of 500 fan letters per week. Attesting the first paragraph of this story, the great bulk of letters are from women, despite the fact that the "vampire" was coined for the films especially to beguile the male audience.

Again, most of the Livingstone fan mail is from married women, seeking counsel as to frankly stated marital affairs. Quite evidently the writers assume that because Miss Livingstone creates such havoc in photoplays, she must of necessity possess the secret of man-witchery for every occasion and emotional predicament.

The tall, slinky Margaret with the guileful eye laughs that off with characteristic humor as genuine, if unconscious, flattery. But she concedes that it is her sex which accepts the "vamp" with desperate earnestness, and which keeps this characterization alive and popular in the movies.

HOLLYWOOD, April 28. — The screen's emphasis on young love and marshmallow romance doesn't jibe with audience demand, if the result of C. B. De Mille's just completed movie idea contest may be accepted as a criterion of public preference.

This contest, to which 39,000 persons from all walks of life contributed, may be considered as a straw ballot of what the contestants and their families and associates prefer by way of film entertainment.

Subjects, tabulated in percentages, show the following stress: Historical, biographical and costume, 17 per cent; Biblical, 14; spiritual, 6; moral problems, 5.45; political and governmental, 5.25; parents and children, 5.40; religion, apart from Bible, 2.30; married life, 1.9; industrial problems, 1.35; YOUNG LOVE, 1.30; ROMANCE IN GENERAL, .05; war, 1.12; westerns, .03; adventure, .08.

Note the almost negligible place given to sheer romance, and the decided counter-balance of "weighty" topics.

Due allowance, of course, must be made for the contestants' appeal to De Mille's known predilections and, the influence of his "Ten Commandments." But this was considerably offset by the producer's announcement that he did not court Biblical subjects.

The prize idea was "The Deluge" (the Biblical flood), submitted by Catherine Comstock, a Sunday school teacher of Long Beach, Calif., for which she received $1000.

Doctors, lawyers, school teachers, newspaper men, ministers and engineers led the van of the contestants in the order named—and most of the clergymen submitted colorful, romantic subjects not related to their calling.

In citing the great burden of responsibility carried by the American movie makers, because of the world-wide influence of their product, Pola Negri says:

"When one learns that in barbarous lands, where the natives used to rub noses as a sign of affection, they now emulate the American kiss, one realizes the great missionary effect of the final osculatory 'fade-out' that typifies our happy endings."

Responsibility indeed!

Ernest Torrence, superb character actor, has just realized the ambition of a lifetime. He has built, in his new home, the largest bathtub in Hollywood. Torrence is six feet three. If now he can prevail upon the Pullmans to build berths of equal dimensions, he will be a happy Scotchman.

Wallace Beery's ability to look and talk as hard-boiled as he seems in his villainous roles, when occasion demands, prevented an unscheduled battle in the forthcoming "old Ironsides."

A very salty old windjammer skipper, hired for the occasion, did not know Beery's identity. When the skipper bellowed an order, knocking a sailor cross decks for tardiness, Wally merely yawned where he hung lazily in the shrouds.

The old salt, violently affronted at this indifference started up the rigging with his choicest line of waterfront talk. Beery countered with an equally choice brand.

This unbelievable backlash from a supposedly lazy sailor checked the irate captain long enough for Director Jim Cruze to shout explanations. The savage breasts were soothed to chuckles over a bottle of pop.

Lois Moran, lovely young heroine of the pictured "Stella Dallas," is tripping about the studios in a transport of delight over the deluge of nice things that have been said about that perfect performance.

Not yet spoiled by adulation, Lois. But getting a little canny about publicity. Nothing so quickly removes the fine bloom of naivete as a volume of press clipping praise.

Among the youngsters who have thus far escaped its bane are Miss Moran, Mary Brian and Mary Philbin. Each can still blush at a compliment, and what so rare as a genuine blush in Hollywood!

The lusty movie infant seems at last to be cutting adrift from the apron strings of stage play and published story and to be developing a language of its own. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's product for the coming year will be 60 per cent original stories. Paramount will use 35 per cent of stories written directly for the film.

BILLY EVANS Says

Turf's Worst Evil.

Crooked jockeys will kill the racing game far quicker than the many reformers who are anxious to take a crack at it.

The running races are a most popular form of amusement. Any red-blooded person gets a big kick out of the thoroughbreds as they come down the stretch.

If you happen to have part or all of your bank roll riding on one of the ponies, the sensation is all the more pronounced.

Last summer a number of tracks flourished in Ohio. The reformers have already let it be known that they are going to stop betting on the races.

Stop the mutuels from clicking and you stop racing. The sport cannot thrive without the cut taken from the bets placed through the pari-mutuels.

The agitation of the Ohio reformers is a blow to the running horses but the jockey scandal is a far greater one.

Drastic action must be taken by the notable men in the turf game if the sport is to prosper.

Crooked jockeys will kill it far quicker than a legion of reformers.

Just Too Busy.

Jakie Atz, who has won six pennants for Ft. Worth in the Texas League and five of the Dixie series from Southern League champions, in the last six years, is almost as good a story-teller as manager.

In the flock of recruits that report to a club every year, in the major or minors, are a lot of unusual characters.

Several years ago Jake sent transportation to a highly recommended youngster living in a small Texas town about 300 miles from Ft. Worth.

The youngster was told to report on a Monday. When Friday had come around and he had failed to put in an appearance, Atz began an investigation. A wire to his home town brought the reply that the young man had left six days back.

Atz had noticed a big husky youngster sitting in one of the field boxes for several days and, as he tallied somewhat to the description of the recruit, Jack asked him his name

He discovered the youngster was the missing rookie, that he had been watching practices for five days. When pressed for a reason he simply replied:

"Well, you all seemed so busy down there I just didn't want to bother anyone."

By the way, that player is now a big league star.

Coaches Differ.

The only way the new forward pass rule can be proved worth while or a bloomer is by putting it to the test in actual competition.

Of the 30 coaches who have already expressed an opinion on it, 17 believe it is a step backward, while 13 feel that the new rule will curb haphazard passing and result in a better developed kicking and running attack.

When the coaches, the wise men of the grid game, differ so widely in their opinions, only a thorough trial of the new rule will determine its success or failure.

WOMAN AGED 104 FLIES WITH 15-YEAR-OLD PILOT

Canadian Press Service.

INDIANAPOLIS, Inc., April 28.—Mrs. Mary Huffman, 104 years old, of Indianapolis, made what was believed by local flying officials to be a world's record for the age of a person riding in an airplane, when she made a 15-minutes' flight. She was piloted by Furnum Parker, of Anderson, 15 years old, the world's youngest licensed aviator. In the plane with Mrs. Huffman was her five-year-old great-great-grandson, Carroll Davies.

HELPFUL HINTS GOLFING STARS

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS' MAGAZINE, CHICAGO

FRANCIS OUIMET—IMPROVEMENT IN AVERAGE GAME

It has suddenly struck the millions of American golfers with much amazement that we are shooting a 600-yard longer course today some 20 strokes better than Harry Vardon and the stars around 1900 negotiated the 72-holes journey of an open. Figures prove all this and clearly bring to light that the winner of the big medal matches of today must be between three and four strokes better to the round than the victor of 20 seasons back. That would be a staggering handicap for one star to yield to another today.

Of course, the first "kick" one gets from such a statement is that the livelier ball of today more than brings about the reduction in stroking. But does it? Is it not a fact that the increased yardage—about 600 to the 18-holes journey—somewhat offsets the advantages gained by using the present-day ball in place of the old "gutty"?

CECIL LEITCH—ENGLISH VIEW OF MUD ON BALL

"There were only two roles in the olden days—you played the ball from where it lay or forfeited the hole, and the only boundary was the boundary of the Kingdom of Fife." These interesting facts (?) were told me by a member of the Royal Ancient Golf club, a well-known amateur of the older school of golfers and, needless to say, a very loyal Scot.

Much has been written lately regarding the local rule which has been passed, by committees in charge of some of the big events held this autumn, relating to mud adhering to the balls when the ball is on the putting-green.

Some critics consider that a lump of mud does not render a ball unfit for play and even state that it is contrary to the rules of golf, as approved by the Royal and Ancient Golf club, to pass such a rule. As a matter of fact, under Recommendations for Local Rules, in the present Rules of Golf, we find the following: When necessary, Local Rules should be made for . . . such local conditions of mud.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

J. P. D.—You have a strong nature, capable of much development and of a high degree of virtue and integrity. You have a great deal of reserve, however, in your makeup and are inclined to introspection and a certain degree of morbid brooding. You like to study matters pertaining to religion or occult things. You have a habit of asking a great many questions about anything that interests you, and are quite positive in your opinions, once formed. You are thoughtful, industrious, sensible and persevering. You are very faithful in the fulfilment of a duty or a promise and have strong ideas of justice. You have a natural idea that you are working under difficulties, and incline to have an exaggerated opinion of what is due any situation. You are sympathetic and philanthropic, and are very sensitive to surroundings and to changes in the weather. You have always had considerable difficulty in obtaining comfortable footwear.

You were born on Sunday. Your colors are red and brown. May and June are your lucky months, Saturday your lucky day.

A. W. D.—As I am not a fortune-teller, I cannot tell you what you ask in your letter. I do not pretend to read the future. That is a sealed book. But I can tell you what your predominant characteristics are, something which many people seem unable to determine for themselves, also how to gain success. If this information is of any use to you, I will give it. The lady whose name appears on the slip was born with a good deal of physical energy and power and she has an aptitude also for business and finance. I wonder if her present illness is self-induced to any extent. She belongs to the most sensitive of all classes of people, being very quick to discern unfavorable influences in surroundings and companions. She is possessed of strong healing powers within herself and should be able, if she will exert her mental faculties, to drive out much of her disease. Medicinal remedies are very slow to act in her case. She fears poverty and has a tendency to hoard money. She should always have good cheer and sunshine about her. If she will try to control a tendency to jealousy and sensitiveness, strive for self-control and poise and conquering fears of burglars and of the dark night, she may be able to help herself very much. She should have a complete change of environment and be sent to a cheerful, sunshiny place.

Jean.—You have a peace-loving, gentle disposition and would make a very fine wife. There is a good deal of change and uncertainty in your nature that will not make for happiness as you go through the world. You have an inner nature that is receptive, intuitional and poetical, and you discharge the duties of your state in life in a very careful, competent manner. Your general style of conversation is marked by refreshing simplicity, but when imitating others, you are inclined to exaggerate. You have a remarkable foresight, and can be correctly guided by your intuitive faculties in the buying and selling of commodities. When angry, you are liable to be taunting and to say cutting things. Try not to find fault with others and pick out a bright, cheery man to marry, preferably one born in March, May or August. You were born on Wednesday, your lucky day. Your lucky months are February and November. Your colors are grey and scarlet.

BIG DEMAND FOR SEATING

"Y" Pageant is Exerting Its Annual Magnetic Force.

THE PROGRAMME.

There was the usual long line-up at the Grand Opera House this morning for the big "Y" Pageant, for the opening of the advance sale. A varied and interesting programme of marches, drills and dances is promised for the event to be given Friday and Saturday evenings of this week. The entertainment will open with the Processional March by the Massed Classes which is always such an attractive initial number of the Pageant programme, and will be followed with a peep at the Babies' Class, in an exhibition of dumbell work by tiny tots, some of whom are only three and four years old. Gymnastics based on Swedish system, finishing with a tableau, come next, and then dumbell exercises by 80 members of the Junior Classes. Wand exercises will be given by the Elementary Class of larger girls, and then the tiny tots will be on again, in a charming Wood and Frolic, in which the babies take a romp through the woods and meet Peter Pan. Intricate fancy club swinging exercises by the Advanced Class will be an interesting feature, and 70 members of the Junior Class will do the Highland Fling, by special request, and in full tartan regalia. The first part of the programme ends with "Clown Day," a miniature circus by the Junior Boys.

The second portion is composed entirely of interpretive dances, with especial attention paid to this work, which is always so attractive a section of the "Y" Pageant. The costumes have had a great deal of attention and care expended in their making, and the colors are brilliant and beautiful. "Le Papillon" (The Butterfly), done in mauve and gold, will be the first offering, by the Junior Dancing Class, with the Senior Classic Dancers following in "Diana and Her Nymphs," a woodland dance in bronze and green colorings, in which Diana and her maidens disport themselves on the [illegible] The Senior School Girls' Class will give "All's Love in Tennis," a bright tennis dance entitled "Vantage In," in red and white costumes, and the Advanced Class have a Rose ballet, "The Romance of the Rose," in shades of rose pink. The Vintage Dance, the grape, autumnal measure, will be done in Beethoven's "Bacchanale," by the Intermediate Dancing Class, and the Elementary Class will give a Moravian number, in brilliant hues. The most prominent of the dance numbers will be an interpretation of three of Brahms' Waltzes, in a blue frieze, by the Senior Dancing Class.

ROADS VERY BAD.

Teams Kept Busy on Highway Below Fraserville.

On Friday evening the Rev. R. T. Richards, of Mark street church, Peterborough, will deliver a lecture, "Four Keys to Success," in Cavan United Church. The evening's entertainment will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. In addition to the lecture there will be recitations and music.

TEN MORE DEAD IN CALCUTTA

CALCUTTA, India, April 28.—Ten persons were killed and fifteen injured Tuesday in a resumption of rioting between Hindus and Moslems. Sporadic fighting between the two factions has been going on for the past few days.

Yesterday gangsters raided the general post office in the heart of the city, shooting a high ranking police officer dead. The raid marked the resumption of formidable active terrorism, which has disorganized the city since Hindu-Moslem riots began again last Friday.

A large proportion of the city is isolated from telegraph or postal communication. Huge [illegible] of refuse littered all of the main streets to-day on account [illegible] of scavengers. This noxious accumulation seriously menaced the health of the city.

Casualties Number 400.

More than 400 persons, according to police estimates, have been killed or wounded in the current Hindu-Moslem riots, which were resumed last Friday.

Although the street fighting and sniping seems to be waning the situation has become the worst of its kind ever experienced here. Business and public services are disorganized, and if fighting should be resumed on a large scale there would be no hospital accommodations for the injured, for the hospitals already are filled.

Food Shortage.

Owing to the interruption of business, the city's food supply is affected.

There is an increasing insistance that the civil and military authorities combine to restore order.

TORONTO, April 28 (Canadian Press) — The opening of the new stadium built for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League to take place at the first game at the home of the Leafs, scheduled for today, may be postponed until tomorrow. City Incinerator Cannot Dispose of Waste From Chemong Park.

COMMITTEE MEETS.

A meeting of the Property committee was held last night with Alderman Hancock in the chair. It was moved by Alderman Phelan and seconded by Alderman Denne that the expenses of the sanitary inspector be paid when he goes on tours of inspection of the different dairy herds which supply milk and cream in this city.

It was decided to pay the board of works $5.00 a cord for the wood purchased from them to burn in the city incinerator.

The chairman was instructed to get prices on a new flag for the city buildings.

A communication was received from the Smith township council asking if it would be possible for the city to handle the garbage from Chemong park this summer in its incinerator and for the prices of handling the same. It was moved by Alderman Phelan and seconded by Alderman Ackerman and carried, that the township be notified that the city incinerator was unable to handle the garbage.

NEW LABOR LAW GOES INTO FORCE

Strikes and Lockouts Will Become Illegal in Italy.

COURT ESTABLISHED.

ROME, April 28. Canadian Press —On Thursday the new law regulating the relations between capital and labor will be enforced here.

The law establishes a magistracy for labor for the settlement of disputes between employers and employees, and strikes and lockouts are forbidden, whether in public services or in privately incorporated enterprises.

The law is the most important of any yet passed by the present regime and will be the cardinal point and pivot of the entire social order.

The next cabinet council will examine the question of diffusion of the most important clauses of the new law, so that both sides concerned may be perfectly cognizant of their new responsibilities. Strikes will be criminal offenses from now on.

CONVICTS CHARGE INHUMAN CRUELTY

Death of Prisoner at Atlanta Is Investigated.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 28.—White and negro convicts from the state's prison mines at Flat Top, Ala., testified yesterday before the special session of the Jefferson county grand jury investigating the death of James Knox and the state's convict leasing system.

At least a week will elapse, it was explained, before the jury submits its finding on whether Knox died from abuse by prison officials, as claimed by Harwell Davis, attorney-general of Alabama, or committed suicide, as the prison officials contend.

Chief among the convict Winesses prison officials contend.

Chief among the convict witnesses due to appear to-day is Wiley Pugh, serving 20 years for embezzlement, and Charles Ratcliff, Birmingham, wife-murderer. It was Pugh, now transferred to another prison, who claimed that Knox was beaten for his refusal to work in the mines and then scalded to death in a prison laundry vat while being terrorized by guards and trusties.

While the state contends that Knox was ducked in the laundry vat, it does not claim that Knox was scalded to death. Rather, Attorney-General Davis, conclusion is that Knox died of heart failure, superinduced by fear, and that the poison was injected after death to stimulate suicide. This decision was based on the report of an autopsy.

Twenty or thirty of the hundred witnesses are convicts, brought from various state prisons and now being kept in the county jail.

Many of the other witnesss are former convicts, some of whem are on parole. All, however, have been promised protection against possible reprisals for any testimony.

The grand jury probably will go to the Flat Top mines early next week to make a personal inspection, Solicitor Jim Davis, of Jefferson county, announced.

THEATRE

BIG CAST PROPS DENNY IN MIRTH MAKING PICTURE

Many Popular Names in Roster of "What Happened to Jones."

One of the largest motion picture casts of the season appears in "What Happened To Jones," the Universal-Jewel directed by William A. Seiter, which comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

Reginald Denny, who has become one of the screen's most popular stars in the past two years, heads the big cast, and is said to have one of the biggest starring parts of his career as the Jones to which so many untoward things occur.

Playing opposite him is Marion Nixon, who is attaining stardom on the screen herself by leaps and bounds. This is the third consecutive picture in which she has played with the handsome Reginald.

Otis Harlan has an important supporting role as the unlucky friend of Jones who helps him get into all manner of difficulty. Harlan, incidentally, played the same role on the stage some years ago, and when he was a juvenile instead of a character actor, did Denny's part in his own stage troupe.

Zasu Pitts contributes a comedy characterization—one of her first comedy roles since she has been identified with more serious parts. Nina Romano, recent bride of Lou Tellegen, adds her beauty to a supporting part, as does Margaret Quimby, former New York dancer now under contract to the Universal company.

Emily Fitzroy, a stage and screen character actress, who is remembered principally for her work in Charles Brabin's artistic production of Universal's "Driven" tries her hand at a comedy role.

The cast also includes Melbourne MacDowell, William Austin, Frances Raymond, Broderick O'Farrell, Ben Hendricks, John Elliott, Edward Cecil. All are well-known actors of both the stage and pictures.

AT THE REGENT

CONDOR VILLIAN IN RIN - TIN - TIN FILM

In Warner Brothers production of "The Night Cry," starring Rin-Tin-Tin and featuring June Marlowe and John Harron, Bozo, the only California condor in captivity in America, portrays the role of the villain. This picture opens on Thursday at the Regent Theatre.

He weighs 46 lbs., has a wing-spread of 10 feet 2 ins., and belongs to the largest species of bird in the world. A hundred years ago the California condor was a common sight from the mountains of Lower California to those of Washington, but now only a few of the great birds of prey are left in Southern and Lower California, where they are threatened with extinction.

The fact that a pair of California condors raise only one bird in a nesting period of six months, which may occur only once every two to four years, is one of the greatest reasons why they are so scarce.

To quote from The National Geographic Magazine of August, 1923, however, "the main cause of the decrease in condor numbers seems to be that when stock-raising became common in California years ago, in order to secure pasturage during the dry months, the rangers were compelled to drive their herds back into the more remote mountainous parts. Here they invaded the retreats of panthers, grizzlies and coyotes. These preyed upon calves and sheep. The quickest and best device for getting rid of these animals was by baiting the carcasses with poison. Since condors came to feed on the carcasses, many of these birds were killed in this way."

As long as they killed their own prey, which they carried to their mountain fastnesses, they were safe, but when they yielded to the temptation of feeding on the carrion which these predatory animals left, they sealed their own doom.

Operations On Long Side Work For Higher Prices

NEW YORK, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Encouraged by the action of the directors of the U. S. Steel Corporation in placing the common stock on a regular 7 per cent basis, operators on the long side resumed their campaign for higher prices in today's market despite sporadic bear selling in various sections of the list. Buying orders were well distributed but steels, equipments, motors, and foods gave the best demonstrations of group strength. Despite the announcement that freight car loadings for the week ended April 17 were more than 40,000 above the corresponding week of last year, and that the net operating income of the first 57 railroads to report their March earnings totalled nearly $75,000,000 as against only $58,000,000 in the same month last year, speculative interest in railroad shares was confined to relatively few issues. The "Big Four" soared 10 points and the Atlantic Coast line and Missouri Pacific Preferred each advanced a point.

Noranda Features Active Session on the Standard

TORONTO, April 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Noranda was the feature of a much more active session of Standard Mining Exchange to-day, selling up to 17.30 in heavy trading and closing the morning at 16.90, an advance of 76 cents. The rest of the list was largely weak, particularly the golds. Teck Hughes eased two at 339. Kirkland Lake two at 114, Dome and Hollinger each five at 13.65 and 13.00, while McIntyre strengthened 25 cents at 26.25. Canadian Lorrain was a firm feature, advancing 1 1-2 at 84 1 2. Lorrain lost three-eighths at 4 7-8.

Wheat Gains New Strength Provision Market Firmer

CHICAGO, April 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Fresh strength developed in wheat prices to-day after a wavering start. Smallness of the reserves of old wheat and absence of growing weather in the spring crop belt were cited as reasons which tended to encourage buyers and to lift values. Opening prices, unchanged to 3-8 off, May (new) 163 5-8 to 164 3-4 and July 143 to 143 3-8, were followed by a fractional sag all around and then by upturns to well above yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat. After opening unchanged to 3-8 lower, July 77 1-8 to 77 1-4, the corn market underwent a slight general setback and then scored gains.

Oats started at 1-8c. decline to an equal advance, July 42 1-8 and later hardened a little.

In line with hog values the provision market was firm.

Mines Take Active Lead Trading Light At Toronto

TORONTO, April 28. —(Canadian Press.)— Mines and Brazilian were the active leaders on the Toronto stock exchange this morning. McIntyre Mines sold up to a high of 26.70, but closed at noon unchanged. Brazilian advanced a point and a quarter at 89 3-8, and Atlantic Sugar was another firm spot, gaining one at 24. British Columbia Fishing lost a point and an eighth at 62 3-4. Trading was scattered lightly through the list. Smelters closed the morning a point higher at 195. Dome Mines eased 20 cents at 13.50, while Noranda advanced 40 at 17.00.

INSURANCE FIRMS OFTEN DEFRAUDED

Says Fire Marshal, By Fraudulent Collection of Insurance.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press).—Losses sustained by fire insurance companies in the United States annually through arson and fraudulent collection of insurance total about $150,000,000, Chester E. Johnston of Montgomery, Ala., president of the Fire Marshals' Association of North America said in addressing the convention of Canadian fire marshals here today. He believed the loss in Canada would be proportionately as great.

Although showing that there was a reduction in fire losses in Canada in 1925 from the previous year, annual report submitted today by George F. Lewis, President of the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals at the annual meeting here, showed a total loss for last year of $41,000,000.

Mr. Lewis suggested that definite measures should be taken to cope with fires in the rural districts by zoning the country. Adjoining municipalities, he suggested, should in places where hose, hydrants and couplings vary in size, have adaptors to make co-operation between them possible in fighting large fires.

Canada's fire loss for the year 1925 was $40,712,172, according to figures provided in his report by J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner and honorary secretary-treasurer of the Association.

LIQUOR GIFTS OF NO EFFECT

Civil Service Commissioner Says They Had No Influence on Promotions.

TESTIFIES AT PROBE.

OTTAWA, April 28.— (Canadian Press.)—"Whether my wine comes from Peter or Paul, it makes no no difference to me," said M. G. Larochelle, one of the Civil Service Commissioners, at the Customs probe to-day. He was reading from a statement prepared in connection with the shipment of a custom gauger's sample of liquor from Montreal to his club near Ottawa, on the Quebec side of the river. He denied that the receipt of such gifts by himself and Clarence Jameson, another commissioner, had ever influenced their decision when dealing with recommendations for promotion of civil servants in the Montreal district.

Mr. Larochelle said that he had been very reluctant to accept the liquor but had finally done so at repeated demands of R. P. Clerk, Chief Customs Inspector in Montreal.

ANOTHER PROPHECY OF PROVINCIAL VOTE

Telegram Says General Election Scheduled For June 28.

TORONTO, April 28 (Canadian Press)—The Evening Telegram today says that "barring accidents" the Provincial general election will be held on June 28. The newspaper says it is "reliably informed today at the Parliament buildings that only two considerations are delaying the announcement of the contract between the Hydro Commission of Ontario and the International Paper Company, and the vacant portfolios in the cabinet. "Before an appeal is made to the electorate," the newspaper say, "the portfolio of Lands and Forests is to be filled, and Premier G. H. Ferguson is said to be in doubt as to whether he should not also appoint a separate Minister of Education."

HUMANE SOCIETY EXECUTIVE MEETS

Organization of Junior Society is Considered—Inspector's Report.

The regular executive meeting of the Peterboro Humane Society was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

As the president C. H. Ackerman, was unable to attend, the first Vice-president, G. B. Boucher, presided.

The secretary-treasurer reported a balance in the bank of $614.43, and 205 members up to the date of the meeting. A letter was read from J. M. Wilson, general manager of the Ontario S.P.C.A., in which he stated the Peterboro Society would have hearty co-operation from headquarters and expert veterinary services when requested. A letter of appreciation will be forwarded to Mr. Wilson for this consideration.

The organizing of a Junior Humane Society was freely discussed and a committee composed of President Ackerman, E. S. Martin and G. A. Gillespie was appointed to interview Inspector Mowat with the view of having the same announced through the schools.

Considerable trouble has been noticed that has occurred in the local back yards by delivery wagons meeting, which resulted in horses suffering considerable abuse, at the hands of poor drivers in being backed out to allow one or the other to pass. To try to overcome this, a motion was passed whereby the secretary was advised to write to the local council asking that signs "IN" and "OUT" be placed at the entrance to these lanes, making them one-way lanes.

As May 25th, the date of the next meeting, is so near the holiday, it was decided to change the date to May 26th. This will be quarterly meeting, open to everyone, and it was decided that an invitation be extended to J. M. Wilson, general manager, Ontario S.P.C.A. to address this meeting on "Humane Work."

The inspector reported as follows: Horses examined, 22; horses humanely destroyed 1; horses brought to shelter, 1; dogs brought to shelter, 4; dogs placed in homes 3; cats humanely destroyed 2; summons issued, 1; number of convictions, 1; complaints investigated, 4; warnings issued, 6; stables inspected 7.

HERBERT W. HALFERTY.

KINGSTON, Ont., April 28.—(Special.)—Death came with terrible suddenness late last night to Herbert W. Halferty, a prominent resident of the village of Sydenham, while motoring with his wife. He had been in Kingston attending a meeting of the Kingston Presbytery and was on his way home, when within a short distance of his home the car swerved off towards a ditch. WELCOME, April 28. — Mrs. Roberts of Port Hope and the Misses Montgomery of Peterboro were the guests of Mrs. W. Symons last week.

Miss Jennie Smyth, who was the guest of Mrs. Clare for the past two weeks, left on Friday for Wellington to visit her brother, Rev. W. J. M. Smyth.

Some of the roads in the vicinity are in a dreadful condition.

In the half mile west of Morrish Church on the highway which was left unpaved last fall the bottom has fallen out of the road. In two or three places the cars dropped below the axle in mud.

On Saturday the Toronto-Cobourg bus was held up for several hours. The farmers along the way got out their teams and made it a paying business to pull the waiting cars out of the ruts. On Sunday one of the officials of the highway hired the teams to be in readiness and five teams were kept busy. At times ten and fifteen cars were lined up waiting their turn, while many drivers, seeing the condition of the road, turned back.

The lake shore road is also impassable for cars, and several holes are barricaded on the Canton-Welcome road.

Napoleon put artillery first in importance of arms.

The pigment carmine was discovered accidentally.

LIQUOR GIFTS TO CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONERS CREATE ADVERSE OPINION, SAYS HON. R. B. BENNETT

Col. M. G. Larochelle Denies That Liquor Supplies Influenced Promotions.

MADE APPOINTMENT

"Donor" of Wet Gifts Elevated to Position Specially Made for Him.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Methods by which liquor samples taken in Montreal find their way to Ottawa were reviewed at the customs probe again yesterday. The chief witness was M. G. Larochelle, one of the three members of the Civil Service Commission two of whom admit having received gifts of liquor from the inspector of customs in the Port of Montreal.

Mr. Larochelle denied that such gifts had influenced the decision of the Commission regarding appointments and promotions in Montreal customs circles. The Commission had turned down applications from that department quite frequently in the two years, during which the liquor supplies found their way into Ottawa, or to the country clubs just across the river in Quebec territory.

Supplies Cut Off.

Hon. H. H. Stevens and Hon. R. D. Bennett, on the committee, thought different, and the latter caustically commented that when an application from the donor of the liquor, R. P. Clerk, for an increase in pay had been vetoed by the head of the Civil Service Commission, Hon. Dr. W. J. Roche, "supplies had been cut off" for the other two members of the Commission. Mr. Larochelle protested that he and Clarence Jameson, the other Commissioner referred to, had refused further offers of liquor from Montreal and that the only reason he accepted them in the first place was that he did not know they came from the customs warehouse, and he could see no harm in the transaction.

Other witnesses during the day gave evidence as to their part in the shipment or receipt of the liquor, and it was revealed that half a dozen bottles at a time found their way, before the customs probe started, into the customs department in Ottawa in a famous old box which ostensibly carried samples.

Bisaillon On Stand.

Just before adjourning, J. E. A. Bisaillon was cross-examined concerning his bank account. Certain cancelled cheques asked for by the committee had not been produced. Bisaillon's counsel, Oscar Gagnon, explained that these had been deposited in a Monteral court in con-

Woman Drinks Poison Then Runs For Doctor

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29 Hope was expressed at noon today that Mrs. Freda Bechard, young wife of Solomon Bechard, would recover from the effects of the carbolic acid which she swallowed late yesterday. She is in the Public General Hospital and her condition is serious.

"I have swallowed poison," the woman said to Dr. C. B. Oliver on entering his office. The medical man immediately supplied antidotes with a measure of success before rushing her to the hospital.

In police court on Monday last Mrs. Bechard pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

GRAIN TRADING JUST GAMBLING JUDGE DECIDES

When Neither Party Contemplates Actual Delivery of the Grain.

SUIT IN CALGARY.

Claim of Winnipeg Grain Company For $28,870 Dismissed.

CALGARY, Alta., April 29 (Canadian Press) — Where people are trading in grain futures and neither party contemplates actual delivery of the grain, such transactions come within the gaming section of the Criminal Code of Canada.

This was the judgment handed down by Mr. Justice Walsh in the action brought by the Topper Grain Company, Ltd., of Winnipeg, against E. A. Mantz. The defendant, Mantz, operated a country elevator at Hilda, Alta., and the plaintiff a grain firm in Winnipeg, arranged to help the defendant financially in operating the elevator and to act as his broker in the purchase and sale of his grain. Heavy financial losses incurred by the defendant in April, 1925, rendered him unable to carry on after June of the same year. Upon all the transactions of these parties a balance of $28,870 was due to the plaintiff, and the action was brought to recover the amount, which was admitted by both sides to be correct.

Mr. Justice Walsh gave judgment dismissing the plaintiff's claim and gave judgment for a counter claim by defendant for $2,190.42, but dismissed his claim for damages for failure of the plaintiff to obey instructions as to purchase and sale of grain on his speculative buying.

Fifteen minutes after the last note of the song Cullen died.

QUEBEC TO GET BRITISH FILMS

Threat of U. S. Boycott Not Worrying Premier Taschereau.

FROM FRANCE, TOO.

QUEBEC, Que., April 29.—(Canadian Press.) — That even if the film producers went ahead with their threat not to sign contracts for the supply of moving picture films unless the Provincial Board of Censors became more lenient, the Province of Quebec woud be amply supplied from British and French firms was the declaration made by Premier Taschereau Monday and confirmed by the following cable received from the Quebec agent in London, Dr. L. J. Lemieux:

"In view of the proposed boycott of distribution of American films in Quebec province, picture producers of London are ready to furnish to the cinemas of Quebec province large quantities of very good modern moving picture films."

The Prime Minister said the time had come to get some good British films for this province.

"We will certainly be pleased to get our films from the British firms," he stated, "and in addition I think that the French producers will also be easily interested in supplying us with good artistically prepared films."

OTHER UNIONS TO AID MINERS

General Support Is To Be Given in Case of Strike.

NO GENERAL STRIKE.

LONDON, April 29 (Canadian Press).—General support of the miners by all trades unions in the event that there is no settlement of the coal mine dispute is promised in a resolution adopted today by the executive council of the unions affiliated with the Trades Union Congress.

While no decision was taken regarding a general strike, some of the union leaders unofficially predicted that such a course would be pursued in the event the coal negotiations, in which the miners are fighting a wage reduction, failed.

Arthur Henderson, head of the Labor leaders, said the situation was hopeful to the extent that the parties were still negotiating. Premier Baldwin is continuing his intensive conferences with both sides.

TENDERS FOR FIRE EQUIPMENT AND CLOTHING ARE CONSIDERED

Hose to be Purchased From Gutta Percha and Bi-Lateral Firms.

INSURING APPARATUS.

Committee Leaves Consideration of Clothing Samples to Two Members.

The committee room table at the city hall looked as if it belonged to a rummage sale last night, when the Fire, Water, and Light Committee met to consider tenders for fire hose, suits, overcoats, and shirts. Samples of cloth, shirts, hose, and coupling were strewn from one end of the table to the other.

Hose was first considered. Five companies the Bi-Lateral Company, the Dominion Rubber Company, the Gutta Percha and Rubber Company, the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Company, and the Goodyear Company, submitted tenders. In all cases the price for first grade hose was $1.70 a foot and it was decided that 500 feet of Gutta Percha "Paragon", of which there is already considerable in use by the department, and 500 feet of Bi-Lateral hose be purchased. The Bi-Lateral hose is of a slightly different construction than the others and is guaranteed for a longer period. Both of the successful companies tendered through local agents.

Clothing Not Chosen.

In the matter of clothing no final decision was made. It was nearly 11.00 o'clock when the tenders were opened and read and it was decided that the Chairman, the Mayor, and the Chief be a committee to examine the samples submitted and make a recommendation to the committee, which will ask the Council, at Monday's meeting, for power to act.

Tenders were submitted by the Grafton company, which supplied the suits last year, for suits, overcoats and shirts, from the Cressman Company, which supplied the shirts last year, for all three items, and from J. D. Walmsley, Al C. Sharp, and Harry Dickin, for suits and overcoats. All quoted on many grades of cloth and sent large packages of samples.

The Toronto Casualty Company, L.L. Maguire, agent, made the lowest tender for public liability and propety damage insurance on the fire apparatus, with a price on the three cars of $200. This is for up to $5000 for injury to any one person, $10,000 for personal injuries to more than one person in the same accident, and $1000 damage to the property of other people. Other quotations were from the St. Lawrence Company, $280, and the Casualty Company of Canada, $295. The committee recommended the acceptance of the lowest tender.

Supplies for Brigade.

Various items for the brigade, for which provision has been made in the estimates, were considered. A hose basket and 35-gallon chemical tank will be purchased for the Reo truck, which answers the smaller alarms, so that it can handle a greater portion of the calls. These will be purchased from the Bickel company. Nozzles, foamite equipment, and fire alarm boxes will also be purchased.

It was decided to install street lights on King Edward street, on Stewart street, north of the creek, and on Bethune street, north of Hunter street. The Utilities Commission will be asked to prepare a quotation on the cost of lighting a section of the west end with centre suspension units instead of bracket lamps.

Leach was the second person to go over Niagara Falls and live, The first being Mrs. Anne Edson Taylor of Niagara Falls, N.Y., who made the trip in a barrel on October 24, 1901.

GERMANY STAYS WET.

Local Option Bill Is Thrown Out.

BERLIN, April 29. — Canadian Press. — The failure of the coalition parties after four months' deliberation to produce an alternative for the Socialist-Communist bill providing for the confiscation of the propreties of former German rulers without indemnity, finds the Luther ministry in its weakest position since its advent to office.

The discussion over the government's compromise bill before the Reichstag judiciary committee yester day collapsed after there had been a liberal exchange of interparty recriminations. Later there was a heated debate in the Reichstag over the Radicals' referendum measure which the government vainly sought to head off.

SHOOT WOMAN KILLS HIMSELF

Believing Woman To Be Dead Man Commits Suicide.

RESULT OF QUARREL.

MONTREAL, April 29. — Canadian Press. — After firing two shots into the leg and arm of Mrs. Naida Kornejchuk, aged 32, and believing her to be dead, Alex. Scopecz, aged 40, this morning, thrust the muzzle of his .32 calibre pistol into his mouth, pulled the trigger, and fell to the floor dead.

The woman is in the Montreal general hospital suffering from two bullet wounds, but she will recover. The shooting is said to be a result of a quarrel two days ago when Scopecz is alleged to have struck the woman.

Scopecz had been the proprietor for some time of a pool room and barber shop on the St. Lawrence boulevard, and was apparently prosperous.

VATICAN SENDS NOTE TO LEAGUE

Second Time Since Formation That Direct Interest Has Been Shown.

PROTESTS OMISSION.

GENEVA, April 29. Canadian Press —For the second time in the history of the League of Nations, the Vatican has interested itself directly in League affairs.

A communication from the Papal Nuncio at Berne was distributed to the Council members on Wednesday. It protests against the omission from Lord Cecil's slavery protocol of certain provisions relating to the rights, prerogatives and jurisdiction of missionaries in Africa.

The only previous occasion on which the Holy See has sent such a communication was in regard to the holy places in Palestine, at time the British mandate was drawn up.

ITALIAN ALLIANCE WITH FRANCE TO BALANCE RUSSO-GERMAN PACT ENCOURAGED BY FASCIST PRESS

Possibility of Establishing Accord Among Latin Nations is Discussed.

BARTHOU IN ROME

Former French Premier Receives Effusive Welcome in Italian Capital.

ROME, April 29. — (Canadian Press.)—The possibility of the creation of a bloc of Latin nations has been brought again to the front on the political stage in Rome, as Italian public opinion, expressed in the press and political circles, is veering sharply away from antagonism to France and towards recognition of the need of close and friendly co-operation.

The most important recent factors which have contributed to the change of feeling include Premier Briand's remarks concerning Italy, which were of an extremely friendly nature, a slackening of the anti-Fascist campaign in the French press, Italian suspicions relative to the Russo-German pact and the conviction in some quarters here that it would be better for Italy to line up with France before Germany comes to some understanding whereby the Geneva clash can be smoothed out.

The remarks urging Franco-Italian amity made by Louis Barthou, former French premier and president of the reparation commission, who is visiting Rome, and who has been the object of an elaborate welcome, are printed widely in the Italian newspapers, which also give great prominence to stories from France hinting at a desire for more friendly relations.

Fascism Misunderstood.

The Impero (Rome) under the headline "On the road to a Latin agreement," sounds the keynote of public opinion by expressing satisfaction over the reported changed attitude of France toward Italy. It points out that the Fascist press campaign against France was a mere protest against the sister nation's refusal to understand Fascism, while a similar campaign against Germany, particularly with reference to the Upper Adige question, was more fundamental, since as the paper puts it, "we consider the German people eternally incapable of living pacifically and civilly with us."

If the French press abandons its anti-Fascist campaign and if France, confronted with a rise in the power of an anti-Latin Germany, is willing to consider Italy as a friend, the paper continues, there is a chance for "a good concrete accord to render onerous access to raw materials, to refrain from coming into conflict with us, and, instead, help us get, in proper colonial zones, outlets for emigration and to reassure the Italian nation regarding the destiny of its sons residing in France."

Must Have Colonies.

The Impero denies emphatically that Italy is seeking war, saying: "We are a healthy and strong people, who face with equal unconcern the difficulties of cultivation and the perils of war.

"In any case we should perfer heroic war to death by suffocation. If to-morrow we could carry out our development in peace and live as equals with all other nations we would be the first to be satisfied.

"Destiny perhaps will that France's best friends in the future will be those who have violently criticized her in a moment of incomprehension, namely ourselves."

This viewpoint was strikingly duplicated by M. Barthou, who asserted yesterday that France and Italy must drop vague talk about "fraternity," "sister nations," etc., and must be friends on the only possible basis—mutual interests.

House Of Lords Passes Birth Control Resolution

LONDON, April 29 (Canadian Press) — The House of Lords yesterday passed by a vote of 57 to 44, a motion by former Lord Chancellor Buckmaster calling on the government to withdraw all instructions given welfare organizations to withhold from married women information on birth control. This vote in favor of the free dissemination of such information followed a debate in which the Marquis of Salisbury, Lord Privy Seal, on behalf of the government, formally opposed the motion.

Yesterday's debate was the first discussion of birth control in such an exalted place as the House of Lords, and the vote has vastly encouraged birth control opponents. They announced last night they will seek the first opportunity of forcing a vote on the question in the House of Commons.

CHEMONG BRIDGE FLOATING AWAY

Broken Loose From Its Mooring By the Pressure of Ice.

WORSE THAN EVER.

So great has been the havoc wrought on Chemong bridge, that the structure has been loosened from its moorings, allowing it to drift in sympathy with the moving masses of slowly melting ice which have already broken it into four parts. Damage to the bridge has been an annual affair for many years, but the destruction this year is greater than formerly on account of the unusually large quantities of ice on the lake. Most of the railings on one side are already destroyed. As a result of the condition of the bridge, the mailman on the R.R. 1 route was unable to reach Peterborough yesterday and the mail was delivered by Mr. Jobe, of Bridegnorth.

CHINESE ARMIES FIGHTING AGAIN

Allies Attack Nationalists Near Nankow—Railway Torn Up.

TO STOP RETREAT.

PEKING, April 29 (United Press) —The allied Chinese armies' attack on the Nationalist army which recently evacuated Peking was resumed vigorously to-day.

The Allies removed a long strength of track from the Peking-Kalgan railroad by which the Nationalists had intended to withdraw from Nankow to Kalgan. Intermittent attacks were launched against Nankow, where the principal Nationalist forces was concentrated. An encircling movement designed to pen in the Nationalists in Nankow seems to be under way.

Former Wife Used Insurance Proceeds For House In Husband's Memory, and Marries—Then He Appears

PORT HURON, April 29 (Canadian Press).—Returning after an absence of four years to find he had been officially recorded as dead, his former wife married to another man, and $10,000 life insurance he had carried used by his former wife to erect an apartment house bearing his name out of respect to his memory. Adelaide Lebert, 53 years old, has started an investigation into one of the most puzzling legal tangles in Port Huron's history.

Four years ago Lebert disappeared after a quarrel with his wife, Victoria. Mrs. Lebert had obtained a divorce on grounds of desertion several months after his disappearance, but she had kept up payments on his life insurance.

Last fall she obtained a court order presuming her husband to be dead and collected the insurance. She was married to William Manley, a 75-year-old civil war veteran. Mrs Lebert is about 50 years old.

A week ago Adelaide Lebert returned.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

GOVERNMENT STANDS BY SLASH IN MOTOR TARIFF, ROBB ASSERTS, AND UNAFRAID OF CONSEQUENCES

Minister Unmoved by Representations of Second Delegation to Ottawa.

AID EXPORT TRADE

Desires to Help, Not Injure, Automotive Industry in Canada.

OTTAWA, April 29 (Canadian Press).—Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, told a large delegation of automobile parts manufacturers yesterday afternoon that there would be no change in the reductions in the tariff on automobiles, provided for in the budget.

"We are going to put this legislation through and if anybody thinks we can't get it through, I am not afraid of the issue," said Mr. Robb.

The Minister declared that it was not the desire of the Government to injure manufacturers of automobiles or of parts in Canada. It was the intention of the Government to assist these manufacturers in developing export trade, and he thought that the reduction would have this effect.

McLaughlin's "Guff."

Mr. Robb referred to a visit which he said he paid to Toronto during the early part of March to consult with motor car manufacturers. On that occasion, R. S. McLaughlin, president of General Motors Limited of Oshawa had declared as follows:

"If you change those duties at all, I'll close the doors of my factory."

"I replied to him that he couldn't get away with that kind of guff," Mr. Robb told the delegation. The other manufacturers present had taken a more reasonable view of the matter and he had discussed it at some length with them, the Minister said.

Says Robb Mistaken

Just before the delegation broke up T. A. Russell, president of the Automotive Industries of Canada, rose and denied that Mr. McLaughlin had made the statement attributed to him by Mr. Robb.

"Didn't he say that he would lock his doors of the reductions went into effect?" asked the minister.

"And didn't I reply to him that he couldn't get away with that kind of guff?"

"No, he didn't," said Mr. Russell. "Your statement is not fair to Mr. McLaughlin who is not here." Mr. Russell said that Mr. Robb had certainly taken an incorrect meaning from the remarks of Mr. McLaughlin.

Always "If," Says Robb

Various members of the delegation representing the industries who supply parts of Canadian-made automobiles read prepared statements, to which Mr. Robb replied: "The thing that strikes me in your whole argument is the 'if.' Something is going to happen 'if.' We have been through all this before with agricultural implements. Yet in 1924 the implement industry employed 6,200. In 1926 it is employing 8,268, an increase of over 2,000, notwithstanding the drastic budget of 1924. This shows what happens 'if'.

"A good deal of unrest is possibly caused by lack of knowledge of the concessions made in the introduction of the budget," said Mr. Robb, who quoted a letter sent out by the secretary of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in which no mention was made of the drawback. He produced a reply sent by one manufacturer who said: "The arguments in this letter are all bunk. The materials we use come from the United States anyway, and if we get them cheaper we can sell cheaper and it will check smuggling."

Not C.M.A. Views

J. R. K. Bristol denied that the first letter represented the views of the C.M.A., and had been sent out by the secretary of the British Columbia division on his own initiative.
